"Proclamation carries the idea of publicity and also of authority. The missionary's message is no private or commonplace matter to be whispered in the ear, but an official declaration of supreme authority and universal import, to be scudded forth in clarion notes. The missionary is to "cry aloud and spare not."

"Gospel" means "good tidings." The very name "gospel" indicates its missionary nature, for "tidings" can be tidings only to those who are ignorant of them, and they can be "good" tidings only to those who hear them. It is, therefore, the very essence of the gospel (good tidings) that it be proclaimed to all men.

"Unconverted" means "not turned to" Christ, and hence, signifies a lost condition. "Turn ye, turn ye; for why will ye die?" (Ezek. 33:11.) The term embraces equally those who, through willfulness reject the gospel, those who, through ignorance, do not know it—that is, all men everywhere. The terms "home" and "foreign" commonly applied to Missions, are not scriptural, they are merely human terms of convenience. "Unconverted" men are lost—in America, Africa or Asia alike. Whether the sinner is such through inexcusable willfulness or through unfortunate ignorance, his condition is alike one of peril, and his only hope is in turning to Christ.

"According to the command of Christ." The missionary enterprise rests upon his command and commission for its authority. Christ did not merely express a wish or offer a suggestion. He gave an order, clear, explicit, peremptory—"Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." Such is his final, most imperative, most inclusive command, and it is binding upon his followers everywhere and for all time.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING JULY 9, 1932.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 2,913.14
Damascus, Chapel Hill, N. C.	1.92
Oakland, Suffolk, Va.	3.00
Palm Street, Greensboro, N. C.	4.81
Newport, Stanley, Va.	1.98
Mt. Pleasant, Overhills, N. C.	1.30
Zion, Sanford, N. C.	1.20
Smithwood, Liberty, N. C.	.84
Liberty (Vance), Henderson, N. C.	2.40
Bethlehem, Suffolk, Va.	5.00
Palmyra, Edinburg, Va.	1.42
Wadley, Ala.	.75
Youngsville, N. C.	1.00
United Cong.-Chris. (Rose Hill), Columbus Ga.	2.00
Linville, Va.	6.43
Bethel, Union Ridge, N. C.	2.04
Auburn, N. C.	2.40
United Church, Lynchburg, Va.	2.65
Fuller's Chapel, Henderson, N. C.	2.16
Total	$ 2,956.44

Individual and Church Offerings.

Previously acknowledged	$ 2,655.96
Corinth, Wadley, Ala.	1.27
Rock Springs, Roanoke, Ala.	1.20
Windsor Church, Windsor, Va., as follows:
Mrs. J. W. Roberts	$ 5.00
Mrs. L. C. Beale	1.00
Mrs. R. A. Rhodes	5.00
Mrs. E. R. Laine	5.00
S. T. Holland	10.00
	36.00
Rosemont, Norfolk, Va.	50.00
Auburn, N. C.	1.33
Ebenezer, Raleigh, N. C.	1.75
Total	$ 2,747.51

Dollar-a-Month Club.

Previously acknowledged	$ 169.00
Mr. and Mrs. Floyd H. Dunn, Lynchburg	2.50
Total	$ 171.50

Coin Card Offering.

Previously acknowledged	$ 112.23
Junior and Intermediate classes, Bethlehem Sunday School, Suffolk, Va. ...	7.00
Randleman Church, Randleman, N. C. ...	9.30
Biscoe Church, Biscoe, N. C.	9.00
Youngsville Sunday School, Youngsville, N. C.	1.60
Class No. 3, Linville Sunday School, Linville, Va.	1.00
Bethel Sunday School, Union Ridge, N. C.	1.00
Ebenezer Church, Raleigh, N. C.	4.40
Fuller's Chapel Sunday School, Henderson, N. C.	10.00
Total	$ 155.53

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$16,567.35
Sunday Schools, regular, July 9, 1932....	43.30
Individual and church offerings, July 9..	91.55
Dollar-a-Month Club	2.50
Coin Card Offering, July 9, 1932.....	43.30
Total to date	$16,748.00

J. O. ATKINSON, Mission Sec'y.

EVERY MEMBER IS PROFITED.

Every woman brought into fellowship with missionary work is herself the gainer. Some of the gains are as follows:

1. Constant association and fellowship with the most earnest Christians in the church.
2. Social contacts and pleasures that come through the missionary meetings.
3. Intellectual stimulus and culture through program work, mission study classes, and the use of our rich missionary literature.
4. Increased knowledge of countries, peoples, geography, history, sociology, governments and conditions prevailing in and among the different nations.
5. Self-development and expression taking part in programs, speaking or writing, and leading in prayer.
6. Knowledge and experience in parliamentary practice and the conduct of official responsibilities.
7. Deepening of the spiritual life with clearer vision and realization of Christ and his world mission, through study of the Bible, through attendance at missionary meetings, through the prayer life into which members of missionary societies may be led.
8. Heart culture with increasing unselfishness as we learn to love the helpless, the unfortunate, as we learn to regard all nationalities and races as members of God's great family.

9. Development of personality and elements of leadership as experience in the work is attained.

10. Greater than all these gains to the individual is the opportunity and privilege of service—service to God through service to our fellowmen. This service will find rich expression through time and strength, thought and prayer, and gifts poured out in proportion to our ability.

How immeasurably greater are the benefits to the individual woman growing out of missionary work than the contribution she herself is usually able to make to the work of world betterment.

The Doshisha, Kyoto, Japan, has graduated over 900 students this year. Commencement was held in the beautiful new Fowler Chapel. Many of the students are going into civic, social and religious work. Miss Frances B. Clapp in telling of the impressive ceremonies mentions the greetings of the President of the Imperial University at Kyoto at the dedication of Fowler Chapel, who stressed the great need today for spiritual education as well as material, and quoted, "And God said, let there be light, and there was light."

REPORT OF CHILDRENS' DIVISION.

(Made to the North Carolina and Virginia Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention, by Mrs. Essie Truitt Simpson.)

The latter part of last summer I received a letter from our president, Mr. W. B. Truitt, asking me to visit the following churches in regard to the Cradle Roll, Primary and Junior Departments: New Lebanon, Howard's Chapel, Kellam Grove and Reidsville. I also added to this list Mt. Bethel (this being my home church).

The above churches have the Primary and Junior classes working successfully, but did not have the Cradle Roll Department, except Reidsville. This church had an active Cradle Roll Department consisting of twenty members, with Mrs. Thomas Collins, superintendent.

The Cradle Roll Department has been organized in the following churches this year: New Lebanon, Miss Carrie Sharp superintendent; Howard's Chapel, Mrs. J. P. Carter, superintendent; Kellam Grove, Mrs. Annie Joyner, superintendent; Mt. Bethel, Mrs. Clara Moricle, superintendent.

For those who are not so well acquainted with the Cradle Roll Department, a few words as to the origin, purpose and value:

The Cradle Roll comes first in organized Sunday School work. It was the first branch of Sunday School work to be definitely organized as a department apart from all others. It has seen all the other groups fall into line and take their places in this great organization.

It was in 1877 that Mrs. Petit "infant class teacher" in the Central Baptist Sunday School of Elizabeth, N. J., conceived the idea of enrolling in a birthday book the names of the children too small to attend Sunday School, and asking for a birthday offering, the money to be used for missionary purposes. Seven years later (1884) the Cradle Roll was given the list. A few years later, this Cradle Roll movement had become so strong that it was mentioned in the International Sunday School Convention held at Atlanta, Ga., and at the Toronto Convention in 1905, it was given first place in the Elementary Standard of Excellence.

Thus, up through the years, the Cradle Roll has developed, passing through what might be termed the sentimental period first of all. Then followed the spectacular stage, when much stress was laid upon fancy wall rolls, and the little courtesies which helped to bring the department before the people. Today, just as much attention is given to the little details, but we realize now that the department stands for far more than a spectacular display. Today, after the test of years, the Cradle Roll is here to serve. Service is its keyword.

Space does not permit the enumeration of the many acts of service which have been rendered through the Cradle Roll Department. Note the countless organized classes of mothers and fathers which are the direct or indirect outcome of someone having to bring the little three-year-old to Sunday School; the pastors who have gained admission to homes otherwise closed because they called to see the baby who was a member of the Cradle Roll.

Only in a slight measure do we understand the moral and spiritual needs of a child under four. But that they are very real and very fundamental is realized when we learn that by the time he is four years of age, a child has attained certain very definite traits of character. The Cradle Roll can be of inestimable value to the child in his first early impressionable years by surrounding him with a religious atmosphere and providing a religious training.

Some of the characteristics of a good superintendent are as follows:

1. A Cradle Roll superintendent, to be a leader, must have a personality which is surcharged with the Divine Spirit.
2. She must have a sincere belief in her job.
3. She must know her job.
4. Furthermore, she must work her job.
5. She must have enthusiasm.
6. Again, she must be a dreamer. She must ever have before her mind a vision of the finished product.
7. A good superintendent is resourceful.
8. She must have a goal.
9. She makes haste slowly. "One thing at a time," is a motto which she religiously keeps.
10. She is patient, but persistent.

The business end of the work is largely concerned with the keeping of records. First, comes the application card. This card may be purchased from any Sunday School supply house. Then, the birthday card. The wall record is the visible record which hangs where it may be seen by everyone.

The superintendent may have one or more helpers. The teacher must be a woman of keen understanding as to the needs of the child.

At least once a year the Cradle Roll should be presented to the school in a special program. The purpose of such a program is two-fold: To show the strength of the department and let the people know what is being done for the tiniest members of the Sunday School.

At this time the superintendent will make a complete detailed report of the work and the pastor will make it an opportunity to address the parents.

ESTABLISHED.

There is an old story of a deacon whose Christian life had stagnated, and who yet sturdily intained the dignity of his Christian standing and experience. "Yes, brethren," was his testimony, "I'm not making much progress, but I'm established." One day in the spring when the frost was coming out of the ground, the deacon set off to town with a heavy load and became mired. He did his best to get out, but horses and wagon were stuck. A neighbor coming by stopped to help him, but could not forbear a cheerful shaft. "Well, deacon," said he, "I see you are not making much progress, but you are established." It is better to get on a bit.—Publisher Unknown.

Special Combination Subscription Offer!

A special arrangement has been made whereby those who desire to do so may receive both THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for just a little more than they now pay for one of these papers.

Beginning immediately, we will accept subscriptions for the two papers at the price of $3.75 for the combined subscription. This means to SUN readers that for only $1.75 additional they may receive the great wealth of knowledge that The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty brings weekly. Those who are already subscribers for the latter paper may add THE SUN to their list for only 75 cents for the whole year.

You do not have to wait until your subscription to one or the other paper has expired, but send in your subscription now. You will begin immediately to receive the other paper and that which you are already receiving will be marked up a year in advance.

While this offer is open to everyone, it should appeal especially to the pastors and lay workers in the Southeast Convention, and we beg them to take advantage of this opportunity.

It is, of course, understood that under this special offer all subscriptions must be in advance, and must be sent directly to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va., or to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

DEAR SIRs:

Please (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my present subscription one year) to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my subscription one year) to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

(Please mark out the words not applicable.)

I enclose, herewith, check or money order for $3.75 to cover same.

M

Street No. or R. F. D.

City and State.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, Waverly, Va.

YOUTH FELLOWSHIP IN WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA.

There is always a place for young people who are willing to serve. Two girls in this conference and from the same church, along with many others, have learned the value and joy of serving the Master; for they write me, "I will be glad to serve as key-worker or do anything in my church."

At present, there are thirteen out of thirty-six churches in our conference which have representatives. What a howling success our work would be if the remaining twenty-three churches could find a young person willing to serve! Who will be the next to say, "I will be glad to serve?"

Last week, the key-workers of this conference received letters concerning our church publications, and will receive a postal card bearing the name, subscription rate, and address of the papers they are to solicit for. The president urges each one to begin work immediately.

And the tentative date for the rally, which was mentioned some time ago, has been changed from August 28th to September 4th. Plans for a snappy and inspirational program are in the making. Start planning now to come.

CARL R. KEY, President.

THE WADLEY SUMMER SCHOOL.

Only seventeen more days until the young people of Alabama and Georgia will assemble at Wadley, Ala., for the beginning of a happy week together. Don't forget the date of this Summer School for Leadership Training, July 28th to August 4th. If you have not done so, start planning now to be there, for you have only a short time left. I am sure everyone will enjoy the worship, fellowship, study and play at this meeting, and at the same time receive intensive training in leadership for your own church.

With the following daily schedule and experienced leaders, it is believed that all anticipations for the success of the school will be surpassed.

At 6:30 in the morning there will be a rising bell, breakfast at 7:00, and a chapel service at 8:00, led by Rev. F. C. Lester.

The first period of the day begins at 9:00 o'clock and continues for one hour. The young people have their choice of three different courses during this period. First, Course No. 206—Administration of Elementary Work, taught by Miss Annie Campbell. Second, Course No. 72—Young People's Materials and Methods, taught by Miss Dorothy French. Third, Course No. 308—World Missions (China), taught by Dr. F. P. Ensinger.

The second period begins at 10:00 o'clock, and continues for one hour, at which time the young people may take either of three courses: Course A—Worship, led by Miss Dorothy French; Course B—Pastor's Problems, taught by Dr. F. P. Ensinger; and Course 101—Life of Christ, taught by Rev. F. C. Lester.

There will be a recess period from 11:00 to 11:15. This time will be spent in games and exercises directed by Miss Marguerite Davison.

The third period, beginning at 11:15 and lasting until 12:15, and the first period courses shall be repeated at this time. And the remainder of the day will be spent as follows: 12:30, dinner; 1:30, rest hour; 2:30, discussion of Young People's Work by Miss Lillian McKee; 3:30, recreation; 5:30, supper; 6:30, vespers by Miss

French and her class leading; 7:45, recreation—Theory and Practice, by Miss Marguerite Davison; 9:00, social hour; 10:00 lights out.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONGRESS TO MEET.

All the young people in Eastern Virginia are urged to attend a rally-day meeting of the Young People's Congress, to be held at Bethlehem Christian Church, a few miles from Suffolk, on July 26th. Get out your car, fill up the tank and come to Bethlehem.

The following program should indicate that you will enjoy the fellowship and be benefited greatly by the information and inspiration to be had for the taking. Theme: "Youth's Present-Day Calls to Service."

MORNING SESSION—9:30 o'Clock.

Call to order by the president; song service; worship service; welcome; response; president's message; Purpose of Youth Fellowship; business session; special music, duet; address, "The Call of Youth in Recreation," Rev. H. S. Harcastle; special music, quartet; chalk talk, "The Call of Youth in Prohibition," Dr. Ed. J. Richardson, Superintendent of Anti-Saloon League of Virginia; roll call of churches; adjournment for lunch.

AFTERNOON SESSION—2:30 o'Clock.

Call to order; special music, violin solo; song service; business session; worship service; installation service; address, "Youth and Missions," special music; closing service.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

HOW FAR DO THE TEACHINGS OF JESUS AFFECT OUR CONDUCT?

The worship period should begin by singing reverently as a prayer, "Jesus Saviour, Pilot Me," or, "Jesus, Keep Me Near the Cross." Two scripture passages may be read: Matt. 7:24-27 and Matt. 13:3-9. And the following hymns may be used also: "Break Thou the Bread of Life," "Beneath the Cross of Jesus," "Take the Name of Jesus With You," and "True-Hearted, Whole-Hearted."

Children, young people and older people have been hearing the message of Christ for a number of years. They have read his word, they have heard his word, and they have sung his word. And yet, a great many seem to have missed the principles of life, set forth by Jesus, to govern their conduct. Jesus lived what he was, and taught what he was. How far toward the top can we place ourselves in this category?

In this meeting, without becoming too personal, let us hold a mirror up to our own lives. While we may associate religious worth with age and experience, the fact is that, as young people, we are now better able to build a life according to the divine plan than we shall be ten or twenty years from now. Then we should have to clear away the rubbish of feeble, unsuccessful efforts to make a life that was a compromise between God's way and our own. Now we build on a new, firm foundation.

Thoughts and Objectives for Discussion.—Morality and unethical practices in national and individual life; war, racial and class restrictions, and oppressive forms of government; child labor and court injunctions in labor disputes; required military duty; and the keeping of promises.

Questions for Discussion.—How can we test our own conduct? What does our knowledge of the best demand of us? Where are the "hot points" today in choosing the best? What difference does our conduct make? This may be the heart of the discussion. Are we being good to make a good record, personally, as a Christian? A higher motive is expressed in Matt. 5:16. What about the relationship of a Christian's conduct to evangelism? Does good Christian living make for useful citizenship?

How are we like the builder of a house? What would you call rock foundations of character? What are some of the things in life that test foundations? What in man is like rock? sand? How, in the light of juvenile crime, do you think youth is standing the test? The greatest question of all is, What would Jesus do if he had to face these problems?

What is Christ's Teaching? might help tremendously in this program. In the home, kindness; in business, honesty; in society, courtesy; in work, fairness; in misfortune, pity; in weakness, help; in sin, repentance; in penitence, forgiveness; in doubt, faith; in hardship, cheerfulness; in good fortune, sharing; toward God, reverence and love.

EASTERN VIRGINIA SUNDAY SCHOOL AND CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR CONVENTION.

Cypress Chapel Christian Church,
July 19, 1932.

MORNING SESSION.

9:30 o'Clock.

Call to order.....J. F. West, Jr., President
Devotional service.....Rev. R. L. House
Report of Executive Committee....Rev. R. E. Brittle
Annual Address.....Rev. H. S. Harcastle
Treasurer's report.....J. W. Folk
Song service.....Rev. J. F. Morgan
Report of Christian Endeavor.....Mrs. W. B. Williams
Address on Christian Endeavor.....Miss Richards
Orphanage half-hour.
Report on Cradle Roll.....Mrs. M. T. Whitley
Report on Beginners.....Mrs. W. H. Johnson
Report on Primary.....Mrs. R. E. Brittle
Report on Juniors.....Miss Mary Lee Godwin
Report on Intermediates.....F. A. Osborne
Report on Seniors.....Miss Doris Eure
Report on Young People.....Miss Lillye Holland
Report on Adults.....E. L. Daughtrey
Group Discussions:

- (a) Cradle Roll, Beginners and Primary,
Mrs. R. E. Brittle
- (b) Junior, Intermediate and Senior.
- (c) Y. P., Y. P. Congress and Christian Endeavor.....Rev. F. C. Lester
- (d) Adult and Home Department.

Adjourn for lunch.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

2:00 o'Clock.

Call to order.....J. F. West, Jr., President
Devotional service.....H. T. Taylor
Report on Literature.....Rev. H. S. Harcastle
Report on Missions.....Mrs. R. T. Bradford
Address—"Teaching Missions in Sunday School."
Christian Endeavor hour.
Reports of committees.
Miscellaneous business.
Adoption of reports.
Recreation period.
Supper.

Vesper service.....Mrs. W. B. Williams

EVENING SERVICE.

7:00 o'Clock.

Reassemble to auditorium for closing service.
Song and prayer.
Report of Board of Christian Education,
Rev. F. C. Lester
Inspirational address—"The Challenge of Religious Workers Today".....Dr. L. E. Smith
Adjournment.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. STANLEY C. HARRELL.

THE DELIVERANCE AT THE RED SEA.

LESSON IV—JULY 24, 1932.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Jehovah is my strength and song, and he is become my salvation."—Exodus 15:2.

LESSON TEXT: Exodus 13:17 to 15:21.

TIME: B. C. 1491.

PLACE: The Red Sea.

In last Sunday's lesson, we saw the Israelites celebrating the first Passover. This was done on the eve of the departure from Egypt. After the slaying of the first-born among the Egyptians, there arose an insistent demand that Pharaoh send the Israelites away as they had requested. Human nature has changed but little with the passing of the centuries. Mob psychology is a modern term, but that which it denotes is as ancient as it is modern.

In the bitterness of their grief as they wept for the first-born, the Egyptians felt that they never again wanted to look into the face of a Hebrew. But the day after the funeral, when the Egyptians had to face again the ordinary tasks of life, they sorely missed their former slaves and felt that they must be brought back at all costs. And Pharaoh, quick to meet the demands of his people, prepared at once an expedition to go after the Israelites and bring them back.

When the Israelites saw the hosts of Pharaoh pursuing them, they gave us another instance of how fickle a thing the mind of the masses can be. It had been a splendid thing to leave behind the Egyptian tasks and task-masters. It was quite another thing to face the armed forces of Egypt, with their chariots and swift horses. The hearts of the people melted like wax. They berated Moses for ever having suggested so foolish a thing as that they should try to shake off the bondage of Egypt.

It was about the rashest venture in history, this attempt of a mob of slaves to defy the power of Egypt. Human prudence and common sense would have been all against it. It is always a dangerous thing to undertake to overthrow established social relationships and well entrenched social customs. If such an effort fails the last state is always worse than the first. But progress always is at the expense of great risk. And only fools attempt to work revolutions unless they are convinced that God is on their side. It was only the consciousness of divine guidance and divine help that enable Moses to calmly face the threat that seemed about to destroy his great adventure almost before it had begun.

We do not need to recount here all the details of the deliverance by which God secured the safety of the Israelites and overthrow the forces of Pharaoh. One fact we do wish to emphasize, namely, that God used natural means to accomplish a super-natural purpose. God drove back the waters of the Red Sea by a strong east wind. Moses expressly states that fact. There are those who seem to lose sight of all spiritual implications when any reference is made to this natural force. But why should Jehovah upset all the laws of gravitation to get the water out of the way, when he had at his finger tips a wind strong enough to blow the water out of the way as easily as a man blows a fleck of dust from his coat sleeve?

It seems to me that the whole point of the story centers in this fact. It fits in with all the rest of the story of God's dealings with his children, as the Bible reveals it to us. God always uses human and natural agencies for the working out of divine and supernatural purposes. He did that even in the Incarnation. The wonder and wisdom of God's plan of thus using natural agencies is, that it not only gets God's purpose fulfilled, but it develops, strengthens and glorifies humanity in the process of fulfillment.

That such a lesson as this should come at such a time as this seems providential. We look out upon a world that is in an economic bondage which is as real as was the bondage of the Israelites in Egypt. There is an increasing number of us who believe that only God can get us out of the difficulties in which we find ourselves. It seems reasonable to suppose that in this future deliverance God will use spirit-called and spirit-filled men. It is also reasonable to suppose that God will make use of all the natural laws and natural forces that he has built into his universe. But we do not believe it will be done until we are willing to heed the men whom God has called for our deliverers and the plan which God has formulated by which the deliverance shall be wrought.

OUR COLLEGES.

(Continued from page 7.)

1857, and for nearly seventy years continued to serve the churches in Western Iowa in a splendid way. About five years ago, after great sacrifice to keep it open, circumstances compelled its final closing. It became evident that something should be done to preserve the records and to continue the standing of its graduates. The suggestion was therefore made that a merger should be sought with some other similar institution. The sentiment of Tabor graduates favored Doane College, only ninety miles away, and with which there had always been a friendly relationship. This merger was found to be feasible and has been fully consummated by the trustees of both colleges. The main items of the agreement are as follows:

That all assets of Tabor College which are not subject to financial obligations, including all official records, students' grades and other important documents be officially transferred to Doane College and that Doane College use, safeguard and administer the same in the same spirit and with the same care exercised with its own assets, records, students' grades and documents thus perpetuating Tabor College in Doane College.

That in official publications of Doane Alumni lists the graduates of Tabor be listed with the respective classes and the name of Tabor perpetuated by placing "Tabor" in parentheses following each name.

That the trustees of Tabor College maintain their legal organization and if legacies, bequests, or other assets are received by Tabor College in excess of its legal liabilities, transfer such excess to Doane College, provided the terms of the legacies or bequests permit this. And if any legacies, bequests or other assets are received from Tabor College they shall bear the name Tabor, unless otherwise specified by the donors.

That Doane College shall not be liable for any financial obligations, past, present, or future, of Tabor College.

IX. Olivet College.—The Michigan Congregational and Christian Conference at its recent meeting voted to recommend to the churches of that State that they voluntarily add to their apportionment five per cent for the benefit of Olivet College. The new dormitory for women is being completed.

X. Yankton College Golden Jubilee.—The commencement just held at Yankton observed the completion of the first fifty years in a fitting way. The largest student attendance in the history and the largest class ever graduated have marked this jubilee year. Much was made at commencement of the completion of the merger of Fargo College with Yankton College now in full force. Mr. William H. Best, of Boston, one of the prominent Fargo graduates was the Yankton commencement speaker and Mr. James Mullenbach, the first Fargo graduate, addressed the anniversary service. Especially appropriate was the granting of the LL. D. degree to Mr. A. R. Bergesen, the last President of Fargo College. Yankton rejoices in the new "Look Hall," a modern dormitory for men.

W. R. KEDZIE, Secretary,
Dept. Educational Institutions.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3¼x5½ Inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3¼x5½ Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps$2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5¾x8¾ Inches and 1¾ Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavan grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold$4.75

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address
THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street Richmond Virginia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."—II. Chron. 7:14.

MONDAY.

Idle Rote.

"When ye pray, use not vain repetitions as the heathens do."—Matt. 6:7.

Moffatt Version: "Do not pray by idle rote like pagans."

Doing things mechanically, by rote, is the arch enemy of creative life, and it is more so in prayer. The present processes of material life of standardizing everything, mass production and mass thinking, has no doubt affected our prayer life, causing our minds to become as interchangeable as Ford parts. Thus, our prayers may be rattled off in a mechanical fashion without a thought of what we are saying.

One night a Father was listening to his little daughter say her evening prayers. She rattled it off like a hurried recitation. He stopped her, and then said to her, "Now Mary, think of the Lord as listening to your prayer. Suppose someone were to say something to you in that fashion, what would you think? Now, say your prayer as if you were talking to the Lord, for you are; and understand that he is listening to you, for he is right with you listening." This revolutionized the child's praying; now God is a reality to her. Is he to you?

Prayer—Our Lord and our God, thou art only our portion, but ever present. Make us conscious of thee as our unseen companion at all times, and enable us to live in that consciousness. Amen.

TUESDAY.

SINGLENESSE OF EYE.

"The light of the body is the eye; if, therefore, thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light."—Matt. 6:27.

Moffatt Version: "If your eye be generous."

First of all, we may observe that the Lord is talking about the evil of accumulating worldly possessions and having undue anxiety about them. The Lord's great desire is that we should be single-hearted, and, to be so, depends upon the presence of divine light within and a keen sense of true values. To try to lay up treasures in heaven and in earth also, make us servant of two masters—double-hearted.

Undoubtedly the Lord desires us to banish temporal anxiety as a part of the heroism expected of his children; that we should not set our hearts upon the accumulation of earthly possessions, or be over-anxious about the necessities of life, for "the cares of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, choke the word," as expressed in chapter 13:12.

All this is reflected in our eyes. Eyes are ungenerous when they refuse to see. Miserly eyes never glow, and never express the visible sign of a living soul. The eye that sees soulfully for others carries life-giving power and invokes love. It is well expressed in Browning's words, "We lived in his mild and magnificent eye."

The ungenerous eye is not so. It is set as solid as a post. It has been painted thus, "With eyes like little dollars in the dark." How many people have traded eyes for little dollars! A single eye sees inside of life as well as the outside. That is like God, for we are told that man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart. The power God has given us to see into the heart is a part of our inheritance from the Father.

Prayer—O Lord, our God, we thank thee that the new day brings to our minds and hearts the heritage of likeness to thee. Make us this day more like thee in every way. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

PAGANS LIVE LIKE THAT.

"For after all these things do the Gentiles seek."—Matt. 6:32.

Moffatt Version: "Pagans make all that their aim in life."

It appears that the word "Gentiles" here refers to heathen, and the word "heathen" refers to those who live in ceaseless distraction seeking for so many things they think are necessary, caring nothing for God's will and having no claim upon his providences—there is nothing remaining for them but anxiety. This is Jesus' definition of paganism—pre-occupation with things.

It is interesting to note that Jesus, at the very outset of his training of the disciples, warned them chiefly against this paganism as the deadliest enemy to the way of life. He seemed to say that to smother one's thoughts with food and clothes and possessions is a denial of God.

This paganism still strides the earth like a colossal monster, who leaps on men with a strangle hold ruling our motives and diverting our lives from God's way. We see it in hosts who are frantically scurrying after bootleggers, after continual entertainmen, after superficial pleasures, styles, display, making life a show-window, worrying about what to drink, what to eat, what to wear, etc., as though such were life's major questions. It grows more intense and more complex as the number of things to buy multiplies by new industrial magic. It beggars of atheism.

We are told that one hundred years ago man had 72 wants of which 16 were necessities. Now, man has 484 wants, of which 94 are rated as necessities. One hundred years ago, there were not more than 200 items urged for sale, whereas today, there are 32,000 urged upon us by high pressure salesmanship and easy terms, and the total number of items sold today, including different brands of the same thing, is 365,000.

This civilization gives special point to Emerson's phrase, "To be simple is to be great." It certainly requires greatness these days to be simple. We are bewildered and put to great disadvantage. We would resent being called pagans, but if we apply the test of Jesus, what have we?

Prayer—Our Father, show us the way out of our bewilderment. Give us the one pre-occupation Jesus taught, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness." Empower us with thy help, and save us from untoward living. This we ask for Jesus sake. Amen.

THURSDAY.

NOTES AND BEAMS.

"Why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye?"—Matt. 7:3.

"Mote" is interpreted by Moffatt as "splinter," and "beam" as "plank." It is not to be understood that "splinter" and "plank" add to the meaning, but they do hit us smack in the face. A splinter may be so small that we can hardly see it. A plank will stop a train. Many people do like to criticise others for very small insignificant things, and at the same time never seem to think of their own faults, which might be so much greater; and perhaps, at the same time, the Christian ideal is entirely forgotten.

In colonial days, for instance, a man could be sent to jail for kissing his wife on Sunday, while at the same time traffic in the slavery of human beings went on with the blessings of the church.

Once it was a great sin to play a violin or an organ in church, while at the same time Christian people drew their fat incomes from child labor.

These things have, or are, passing. But the same sort of thing exists in the individual lives of many, "tithing of mint, anise, and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgment, mercy and faith. These ye ought to have done, and not left the other undone." (Matt. 23:23.)

It is apparent that many parents everywhere denounce young people of today, but pay no heed to the fact that they have failed to supply them their own example of Christian living. They who would govern, must themselves first be governed. Were the truth known, we might discover that we all have enough beams and planks to build a trans-atlantic liner.

Prayer—O Lord God, do thou bring us into a consciousness of thy reality in living, and of the errors of our own way, so that we may see those errors, turn from them and follow Christ. This we ask in his name. Amen.

FRIDAY.

GOLDEN STREETS.

"And the street of the city was pure gold."—Read Rev. 21:15-21.

The city engineer of Milwaukee, according to the Associated Press, declares that in every cubic yard of the city's pavements there are three cents' worth of pure gold; that a pedestrian treads on four dollars' worth in walking a block, an automobile passes over a hundred dollars' worth in going downtown, and that Milwaukee's streets altogether contain about $48,500 worth of the precious metal.

In a literal way, then, Milwaukee may claim to be a foreglimpse of the New Jerusalem, with its street of pure gold; but in a higher sense gold is to be found in every town, and in every part of every town. There are precious things everywhere. There is good everywhere.

Of course, we know that for ever three cents' worth of gold in Milwaukee's streets there is a ton of almost worthless clay and sand and gravel. But why not think of the gold rather than the dirt? Is it not the best way to go about increasing the ratio of the gold and bringing our streets up to the standard of the New Jerusalem?

Prayer—So, Lord, teach us to look for the best in the people around us, and rejoice in it. Teach us to acknowledge the bits of good in ourselves, and from them glean hope for the overcoming of our much evil. For if faith is a Christian grace, and if love is the greatest of the graces, there is a third with them, and that is hope. Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

SATURDAY.

A QUITTER.

"The house of the wicked shall be overthrown, but the tent of the upright shall flourish."—Read Prov. 14:5-11.

"You're a quitter!" said one boy to another. The answer came like a flash. "When it's a weakness I'm quitting; I'm glad to be a quitter."

That boy's remark was wise enough for any man. Quitting is sometimes the finest thing one

(Continued on page 14.)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

NATURE'S CATHEDRALS.

"For ye shall go out with joy, and be led forth with peace; the mountains and the hills shall break forth before you into singing, and all the trees of the fields shall clap their hands."—Isa. 55:12.

It must have been something to sit on the mountainside with Jesus; to rest one's eyes on the far-reaching valleys below and beyond; to watch the restless waves of blue Galilee; and to feel the quiet, calm, undisturbed words of the Saviour setting up standard of blessedness and challenging men to them in order that they might be the salt of the earth, the light of the world. "And seeing the multitudes he went up into a mountain; and when he was set, his disciples came unto him; and he opened his mouth and taught them." With the memory of the unsaved multitudes in the valley below he talked of salt, and with an understanding of the benighted condition of their darkened lives he talked of light. In that multitude he realized there were "poor," and weeping, and hungering, and oppressed; that there were hearts impure, and stirrers up of strife. It must have been something to have seen the light on his face as he talked of blessed poor, blessed mourners, blessed meek, blessed hungerers, blessed merciful, blessed pure in heart, blessed peacemakers, and blessed persecuted for righteousness' sake. The mountains and the hills must have seemed to break forth into singing, and all the trees of the fields must have seemed to clap their hands together.

It was, indeed, a cathedral of nature and the Priest, and Prophet, and Preacher was there. It is about the cathedrals of nature that we wish to talk this morning. We could talk of nature's hospitals, and recommend them to the sick, or we could talk of nature's schools and recommend them to searchers after knowledge, or we could speak of the storehouses of nature and recommend them to those in search of bounty; but instead we shall speak of nature's cathedrals and recommend them to those who seek after God. And let me put first and last, in the beginning and the middle and the end of what I shall have to say, this, namely, that he who best found God in the out-of-doors habitually sought him in the in-doors of an humble house built by men and dedicated to the worship of the eternal God!

Whenever we go to the doctor's office, or the public library, or the grocer's shop we go on account of some conscious need. If we should go to nature's hospitals, or schools, or storehouses, we would go on account of some lack or want.

How beautiful it is to know that nature has her cathedrals where hungering searchers after God may find him ready to supply their every need according to his riches in glory.

"To him, who, in the love of Nature, holds Communion with her visible forms, she speaks A various language. For his gayer hours She has a voice of gladness, and a smile And eloquence of beauty; and she glides Into his darker musings with a mild And gentle sympathy, that steals away Their sharpness, ere he is aware."

It is he who is first taught in the house of prayer, and praise, and worship to know and love God that finds in nature the finest food for thought, and the most enduring courage for action. In other words, to see the lilies of field in the sinless hands of the Saviour of men, and hear him praise their unearned glory is to catch a new meaning of the goodness and grace of God and is to learn that the ill-gotten glory of an earthly king is never so beautiful as the unmerited favor of our heavenly Father. To be in tune with God is to hear mountains sing, and to see the trees of the forests lift their hands in praise. It is in God's house, the appointed meeting house for worship, that we discover our conscious need of him, and become, therefore, the better prepared to appreciate the lessons and loveliness of nature.

For more than fourteen times in the gospels we find Jesus turning to the out-of-doors for prayer. The fields, and forests, and gardens of Palestine often felt the humble pressure of the knees of our Lord as he looked up to his heavenly Father in secret supplication. Perhaps we shall not be able to fathom that conscious need Jesus felt that sent him so often to seek his heavenly Father in nature's cathedrals, but we may easily discover in our own lives needs which will make it easy for us to seek God, first in his house, and then in his larger house of the out-of-doors.

Firstly, I mention the need of fellowship with the Infinite. Every race and every age so far as yet known has felt this need of fellowship with the Infinite. The American Indian faces the rising sun, and kindles his fire to represent the desire for harmony in his soul with the infinitude of the sun; the African savage feels a something within that longs to be in tune with Something above him, and he marks and mars his body in an effort to make some needed adjustment; the cultured psalmist cries out, "Bless the Lord, O my soul; and all that is within me, bless his holy name." An Oxford poet sings forth:

"A charge to keep I have,
A God to glorify;
A never-dying soul to save,
And fit it for the sky."

And so, we see, whatever our station in life, there is that restless longing to be right with God. Jesus says, "What is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" Tennyson expresses it in a different way:

"What profits now to understand
The merits of a spotless shirt—
A dapper boot—a little hand—
If half the little soul is dirt."

And Holmes cries, "Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul." We may laugh, or shout, play or pout with the fritter and froth of life, but we can never get away from the eternal longing in our souls for a companionship with the Infinite God of love! Who of us cannot catch the meaning of this line: "My father was an eminent button-maker at Birmingham, but I had a soul above buttons." Here is the common cry and prayer of the race: "As the heart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God." For those who have ears trained in God's house to understand the carillons of the cathedrals of nature are calling.

Secondly, I mention the need of worship which this fellowship with God brings—awe, and wonder, and praise, mingling into love. "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth his handiwork," declared a great lover of nature and of nature's God. Looking upon the holiness of God we realize our own unrighteousness, and a divine urge is felt within that we be like him; and the words of Jesus, "Be ye perfect, even as your Father in heaven is perfect," become a tangible desire in our hearts. From changing sounds to changing seasons there is a varied and constant hymn of praise and if we have not overlooked God in his humble places of man's appointing we shall find him when we look into the hills in prayer. If anyone could find him in the out-of-doors without first regularly seeking him in his house of prayer, it would have been Jesus, and yet Jesus sought him every Sabbath in the synagogue.

And lastly, I mention the re-building of our strength, which naturally follows as a result of our fellowship and worship. "Come unto me, all ye that labor, and are heavy laden and I will give you rest"—renewed strength for the burdens of tomorrow, and renewed courage for the moral battles that will need to be fought. "For ye shall go out with joy, and be led forth with peace; the mountains and the hills break forth before you into singing, and all the trees of the fields shall clap their hands."

"For the wonder of each hour,
Of the day and of the night,
Hill and vale, and tree and flower,
Sun and moon, and stars of light,
Lord of all, to thee we raise
This our grateful hymn of praise."

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00

Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75

Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50

Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25

Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25

Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00

Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00

Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling).$22.00

Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00

Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00

Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00

Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

People are kind to us and we are grateful. Our church people have been loyal to us all these years (nearly sixteen), and by their loyalty and devotion we have been able to help many little children who needed a home in the Christian Orphanage, or some like institution.

We have called upon our people when we were in need of some special thing and they have always responded beautifully; but we have always tried to be modest in our calling. We have often done without things we really needed rather than call too often. When we had the misfortune to lose our barn by fire several years ago, I will always remember with a great deal of joy the appeal my good friend, Mr. Darden, made in behalf of the new barn fund, and how willingly and beautifully the people responded to his appeal. Today we have a large modern barn with a modern dairy house where our milk is chilled and handled in a modern way.

It is great to have loyal friends who will help when help is needed. We have needed a piano in the baby home for a long time, but we had been too modest to ask for it. We happened to be in Burlington, N. C., some weeks ago, and went to Mr. C. B. Ellis' music house, where he had the lower floor filled with pianos. We said to him that we needed one in the baby home and if he had a good second-hand one he could give us that I hardly thought he would miss it out of his large stock. His answer was that times were pretty hard to make donations. He has a great big heart and has always been very considerate of the Christian Orphanage. We left the matter with him. The next day a splendid piano was placed in the baby home, and the little children can now have the use of it in getting up their Sunday afternoon programs. We truly hope that Mr. Ellis was as happy in making this contribution as our little children are in receiving it. Many thanks go to Mr. Ellis for his generosity.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

P. S. We have received to date 64,000 soap coupons. Please send 11,000 more right quick.

REPORT FOR JULY 14, 1932.

Brought forward $ 8,487.89

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:

Shallow Ford	$ 6.92
Lebanon	1.56
Union, N. C.	2.76
Happy Home	2.80
Concord	.61
	14.65

Eastern North Carolina Conference:

Mt. Hermon	$ 4.00
Damascus	1.30
Morrisville	1.65
Providence Memorial	2.43
Catawba Springs	7.71
Fuller's Chapel	4.08
	21.17

Western North Carolina Conference:

Biscoe	2.00
Union Grove	3.00
Liberty	1.23
Pleasant Hill	3.41
Ramseur	4.23
	13.87

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Mt. Carmel	5.68
Oakland	3.00
Johnson's Grove	1.34

Bethlehem	5.00
Liberty Springs Sunday School and classes	8.00
Rosemont	20.00
First, Richmond	3.89
	46.91

Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Concord	1.75
Dry Run	3.15
Palmyra	1.74
	6.64

Georgia and Alabama Conference:
Columbus	2.00

Special Offerings.

Mr. Roberts, support of children...	20.00
Herbert Scholz, Macon, N. C.	2.00
	22.00
Total for the week	$ 127.24
Grand total	$ 8,615.13

FAMILY ALTAR.

(Continued from page 12.)

can do. Before one can take up things worth while, one must drop things not worth while. We can not serve God and Mammon. We must be separated from the devil before we can be joined to God.

No one need be ashamed to be a quitter from weakness when it means a beginner in strength. Who need apologize for leaving poverty? "The tent of the upright shall flourish." Who need hesitate to quit failure and defeat? "The house of the wicked shall be overthrown."

Prayer—May we pay no heed, O God, to the clamor of fools. May we never tarry with their foolishness. May we count it all joy and honor to leave them and go to thee.

AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.

"TALK LESS, PLAY BETTER."

"Keep the door of my lips."—Read Psalm 1:10.

The aged philanthropist, John D. Rockefeller, played a foursome of golf the other day with three clergymen, and his side won. Mr. Rockefeller's score being the second best. He has not the strength for very long shots, but makes up for that in accuracy. At the close he calmly advised the other side to "talk less and play better."

Mr. Rockefeller's admonition is good for all who are playing the game of life. Let us make our own the psalmist's prayer, "Keep the door of my lips." We are not to be churlishly silent, of course. We are to be friendly and sociable, and sometimes volubility and jesting are highly valuable contributions to our friends' enjoyment. But we must use good sense. We must see that what goes out of the door of our lips is creditable to us and pleasant to all.

Prayer—It is thy gift, O our Maker, this wonderful gift of speech. May we use it to thine honor and glory. May we talk wisely that we may work wisely and play wisely.

AMOS R. WELLS.

A man is what he is, not what men say he is. His character is what he is before God. That no man can touch; only he himself can damage it. His reputation is what men say he is. That may be damaged. Reputation is for time; character is for eternity.—J. B. Gough.

ALL
SELF-
PRONOUNCING

Holman Testaments

COMMAND
ATTENTION
AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2½x4½ inches

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there
was a marriage in
Cana of Galilee; and
the mother of Jesus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles.	$.50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles.	.60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges.	.85

VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS
2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges.	.70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges.	.90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges.	1.10

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS
With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.
13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges.	.90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included.	1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4½ inches x¾ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made. The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller. It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength. One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together. The size, 2½x4½ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type
ST. MATTHEW 2 The three wise men carrying away into Babylonia; and from the carrying away into Babylonia unto Christ are fourteen ing interpreted is, God with us.
24 Then Jesus being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges.	$1.00
5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included.	1.50
5036PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms	2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET
SIZE
3¾x4½
inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type
CHAPTER 23.
THEN spake Jesus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3¾x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms.	$.90
4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges.	1.35
4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included.	1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT
4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges.	1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT
4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, with Psalms.	3.00
4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red.	3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print
Pica, 16mo. Size, 5¼x7¼x¾ inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines. It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

Specimen of Type.
THE book
of Jesus

PSALMS INCLUDED
2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included.	$1.50

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS
Same Large Print as Above
2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included.	2.95

RED LETTER EDITION
Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.
3913PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included.	3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

ELON DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

(Continued from page 5.)

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Dollar, LaGrange, Ga.	1
T. B. Dawson, Elon College, N. C.	1
Iva S. Diehl, Corpus Christi, Texas.	1
M. A. Dofflemeyer, Elkton, Va.	1
D. H. Dofflemeyer, Harrisonburg, Va.	1
Frances Deviney, Elon College, N. C.	1
C. W. Dunn, Paces, Va.	1
Elon College Book Club, Elon College, N. C.	1
Elon Lodge, No. 549, Elon College, N. C.	1
F. P. Enslinger, Demorest, Ga.	1
Mrs. J. D. Ezelle, Jr., Burlington, N. C.	1
Nannie B. Farmer, Wilson, N. C.	1
J. L. Farmer, Wilson, N. C.	1
D. R. Fonville, Burlington, N. C.	1
Sadie V. Fonville, Burlington, N. C.	1
P. H. Fleming, Burlington, N. C.	1
Mrs. J. E. Franks, Raleigh, N. C.	1
Rev. J. E. Franks, Raleigh, N. C.	1
Marvin L. Gray, Waverly, Va.	1
Clara Greeson, Durham, N. C.	1
A. N. Greene, Reidsville, N. C.	1
C. A. Hughes, Elon College, N. C.	1
W. D. Harward, Dendron, Va.	1
Mrs. W. C. Haswell, Durham, N. C.	1
Mrs. F. A. Hattman, Cooleridge, N. C.	1
M. W. Hollowell, Portsmouth, Va.	1
T. J. Holland, Ambrose, Ga.	1
Robert Lee House, Newport News, Va.	1
Lida Hoover, Meherrin, Va.	1
Mary Ann Harrell, Durham, N. C.	3
Alfred W. Hurst, Elon College, N. C.	1
Ruth Horne, Burlington, N. C.	1
Mrs. S. A. Horle, Burlington, N. C.	1
J. Allen Hunter, Elon College, N. C.	1
Britton J. Howard, Chapel Hill, N. C.	1
Mrs. E. P. Hyman, Garysburg, N. C.	1
F. H. Hunter, Denton, N. C.	1
Rev. and Mrs. H. S. Hardeastle, Suffolk, Va.	3
M. Israel, Elon College, N. C.	1
H. W. Jackson, Richmond, Va.	5
Nannie Johnson, Durham, N. C.	1
W. M. Jay, Holland, Va.	1
E. L. Jones, Durham, N. C.	1
Mrs. Sue Jones, Durham, N. C.	1
W. R. Kedzie, Chicago, Ill.	1
J. A. Kimball, Manson, N. C.	3
J. Edward Kirby, Raleigh, N. C.	1
R. J. Kernodle, Durham, N. C.	1
O. C. Knight, Elon College, N. C.	1
Erma Lloyd, Mebane, N. C.	1
G. O. Lankford, Burlington, N. C.	1
Miss Effie Lowe, Greensboro, N. C.	1
W. S. Long, Jr., Graham, N. C.	1
S. E. Madren, Henderson, N. C.	1
W. P. Minton, Dayton, Ohio	1
E. L. Moffitt, Elon College, N. C.	1
J. F. Morgan, Norfolk, Va.	1
C. C. Mulholland, Durham, N. C.	1
Mrs. Glenn R. Miller, Lumberton, N. C.	1
Frankye V. Marshall, Walnut Cove, N. C.	1
H. W. Mason, Bath, N. C.	1
W. B. Madison, Wentworth, N. C.	1
Mrs. F. F. Myrick, Greensboro, N. C.	1
Rev. J. E. McCauley, Richmond, Va.	1
Mrs. J. E. McCauley, Richmond, Va.	1
C. W. McPherson, Burlington, N. C.	2
J. U. Newman, Elon College, N. C.	25
C. E. Newman, Virgilina, Va.	1
Jason Noble Pierce, Nashville, Tenn.	2
O. D. Poythress, South Norfolk, Va.	1
Mrs. Matt Preston Paris, Greensboro, N. C.	1
E. N. Pearce, Burlington, N. C.	1
R. O. Rothgeb, Luray, Va.	2
Dan Rader, Burlington, N. C.	1
C. Rexford Raymond, Chattanooga, Tenn.	1
J. B. Robertson, Burlington, N. C.	1
P. S. Sailer, Brooklyn, N. Y.	1
Wm. T. Scott, Salisbury, N. C.	1
Mrs. Wm. T. Scott, Salisbury, N. C.	1

Dale O. Sander, Reidsville, N. C.	1	C. M. Walters, Burlington, N. C.	1
Mrs. L. A. Sharpe, Burlington, N. C.	1	Edith Walker, Burlington, N. C.	1
H. S. Shepherd, Elon College, N. C.	1	W. C. Wampler, Harrisonburg, Va.	1
Mrs. W. R. Sellars, Burlington, N. C.	1	R. L. Weatherspoon, Durham, N. C.	1
D. E. Sellers, Burlington, N. C.	3	R. L. Williamson, Winchester, Va.	1
W. R. Sellars, Burlington, N. C.	1	M. J. W. White, Norfolk, Va.	1
H. L. Snuggs, Elon College, N. C.	1	T. F. Wright, Sanford, N. C.	1
Miss Pearl Smith, Haw River, N. C.	1	J. F. West, Jr., Waverly, Va.	1
E. H. Thompson, Liberty, N. C.	1	John Wagoner, Elon College, N. C.	1
Rev. J. L. Trolinger, Brown Summit, N. C.	1	Mrs. W. C. Wicker, Elon College, N. C.	1
L. L. Vaughan, Raleigh, N. C.	1	W. C. Wicker, Elon College, N. C.	1

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

WHITLEY MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

SUMMER TERM, JUNE 6th to JULY 15th. The college has arranged for a summer session of six weeks this summer at a very low rate for the expenses. Students living near the college, and coming from their homes, can take the six-weeks' course for as little as $15.00. The total cost for students that board on the campus is $45.00 to $50.00. Courses will be offered for college credit towards a degree and for raising and renewing Teacher's Certificate.

For Further Information, Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. Associate
W. W. STALEY, D. D. Contributing
S. C. HARRELL, D. D. Contributing
C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. Contributing
ELISHA KING, D. D. Contributing
W. C. WICKER, D. D. Contributing
J. T. KERNODLE, D. D. Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year$2.00
Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When sending subscriptions for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of year.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

MARRIAGES

BRITTLE-PARKER.

In Cypress Chapel, Nansemond County, Va., on the night of June 7th, there was a beautiful and impressive wedding, when Miss Mary Sue Parker, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John W. Parker, of Holland, became the bride of the pastor of the church, Rev. Richie Edwin Brittle, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Brittle, of Union Church, Surry County, Va.

The church, decorated by the women of the congregation, was lovely with masses of ferns, evergreens, madonna lilies, white larkspur and Queen Anne's lace, baskets of white and green being used in artistic effect, with white standards of cathedral candles.

Just before the ceremony, performed by the writer, assisted by Dr. W. M. Jay, of Holland, Va., Mr. J. M. Harrell, of Holland, Va., accompanied by Mrs. Wallace Brinkley, sang, "I Love You Truly," and "Believe Me, If All Those Endearing Young Charms."

Immediately after the ceremony, Rev. and Mrs. Brittle left for an automobile trip through the Valley of Virginia and other points of interest.

Bro. Brittle has, for some time, been serving Cypress Chapel and Bethlehem Churches and is much loved by his people. Miss Parker has been an efficient teacher in the Cypress High School, and is held in high esteem.

These happy and consecrated young servants of the church and Christ have the best wishes of their many friends, who believe that continued success awaits them in the great work to which they have given themselves.

They will make their home about halfway between the two churches, on the North Carolina highway, between Suffolk and Cypress Chapel.

W. D. HARWARD.

OBITUARIES

TEAGUE.

Pleasant Daniel Teague was born March 22, 1862, and fell asleep in death June 21, 1932. His wife passed from time to eternity some months before his going. He is survived by three children: Mrs. Blanche Riddle; Mrs. Nannie Harrison and Mrs. Elsie Davis, and by four grand-children and a host of friends and relatives.

He united with Pleasant Hill Church when a boy, and was deeply interested in church and Sunday School work and faithful in attendance. He will be greatly missed in home, church and community.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer assisted by Rev. T. J. Green, and interment was made in the Pleasant Hill Cemetery to await the resurrection morning. May the Healer of broken hearts comfort those who mourn.

P. H. FLEMING.

SUMMER SESSION

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

JUNE 8 TO 20, OR AUGUST 10

An Accredited Summer School in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

Standard Courses in Fifteen Departments Meeting the Academic and Professional Needs of College Students, Teachers and Prospective Teachers.

Special Courses in Primary, Intermediate, High School and Rural Education; also in Public School Music and Art, Story Telling, Coaching of Plays, Southern Literature, Southern History, Geography, Religious Education, Piano, Voice and Violin.

Six to Nine Weeks of Profitable Study Combined with Delightful Vacation and Recreation.

For Catalogue, write

DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
Demorest, Ga.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

A Memorial of the Congregational-Christian Union.

FRANK E. JENKINS, Pres. MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD, Dean

Chartered by Southern Christian Convention, June 2, 1922, as Bethlehem College; renamed Southern Union, June 3, 1931.

Will function during the present financial depression as a Junior College only.

FALL TERM WILL OPEN SEPTEMBER 7.

DEPRESSION PRICES.

Depression prices during the coming year, made possible by extensive gardens, careful planning, organization and donations—Tuition, board and room, $194 for entire scholastic year; tuition alone, $48; each payable in six equal installments.

Unsectarian, but thoroughly Christian.

For Information, write—

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA.

THE CONGREGATIONAL LATIN-AMERICAN INSTITUTE AND PILGRIM LATIN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH OF WEST TAMPA, FLA.—

Are helping give the Gospel, which is "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," to the forty thousand Latin people of Tampa. The evangelical forces working among the foreigners of Tampa are by no means covering the territory sufficiently.

Methodists have six preachers, Baptists two, Presbyterians one, Congregationalists one. Church workers and teachers must be supported for this great missionary work. Send check to

LESLIE S. BRAY, Treas.

Route 4, Box 468, - - Tampa, Fla.

Send boxes of clothing to Mrs. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

For literature, write Rev. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla

LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' EDITION FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear, Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5 1/2 inches.

Spectrum of Type.
"From that time Jesus to preach, and to say, 'I the Kingdom of heaven'"

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid. 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid. 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid. 10.65

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXIV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JULY 21, 1932.

NUMBER 29.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

A Hole In One.—

A recent press notice carried the statement that an ice man, who was never on a golf course before, walked up to the tee, smacked the ball, and to the amazement of everyone around, it soared through the air, landed on the green and—rolled into the cup. On the second hole, which was a three-par of about 150 yards, he only took a twelve. We do not know what his final score was, but we do know how to sympathize with him on his second shot, though we never have had the thrill of his first.

What's In a Name?—

He is a peasant farmer of China—quiet, almost illiterate, and he lives in Spinach Village, Shantung Province. He went to work in Manchuria and while there became a Christian. The awful experiences of the recent trouble with Japan enveloped him. He, with the group of Christians he had gathered, sought refuge in a church. Back in Spinach Village he tells of the terrors in Manchuria where Chinese were ordered off the streets in a foreign tongue. In Spinach Village, say the missionaries, this man has won others to the Christian life, not by his preaching, or his logic, but purely by his life and strong faith.

Ladies, Attention!—

The good ladies will welcome the announcement that patents have been granted for a machine which knits "Non-Run" hosiery. We are not so sure that the manufacturers will be pleased with this announcement, for it will probably mean the junking of other machinery at considerable loss, should the feminine taste be suited with the newer kind that will not "run." Buyers for the trade are awaiting with interest the first showings. Are they as pretty? Are they as sheer? Will the cost be prohibitive? These are some of the questions that arise. We do not know about the first two, but we predict that if the sales volume permits, this kind of hosiery will eventually drop to prices in line with the older styles.

Death Comes to Jules Jusserand.—

Jules Jusserand, for 22 years Ambassador to the United States from France, died on last Monday morning at the age of 77 years. He had been ill in his Paris home for nearly two months. No diplomat of his time figured more in American life, and few, if any, received as many honors. It would be impossible to say what part he played in the entry of America into the World War, but it is certain that much of the good feeling on the part of Americans at that time toward France was due to their much-loved Ambassador. It is said that he was deeply distressed in recent years because of the fact that there was not the same feeling of cordiality between the two countries which existed previously, and that up to the very last he did everything that he could to bring the two nations closer together.

Three Billions for Health.—

The American people spend over $3,000,000,000 a year to get well, or to keep well. Taken as a whole they are quite a healthy lot, but they pay well for this health, for the above figures do not include the money indirectly spent by public health agencies or that expended by institutions which provide free medical care. Individual expenditures have risen rapidly over a period of years, and rose from 2.6 cents of each dollar earned in 1919 to 3.7 cents in 1929. The percentage is very probably still greater now, though the total expenditure has dropped some in the past two years. In 1929 the average family in the United States distributed their "keeping well" fund as follows: For doctors, $31; dentists, $12; home nurses, $6; institutions, $39; appliances, $7; drugs and medicines, $33; total, $128. During these ten years there have been some changes in the relative amounts spent, and the hospitals, sanatoria, etc., have increased the proportional expenditure, while the bills for doctors, etc., have remained more nearly stationary.

What Would You Buy Next?—

We wonder if a cross-index of over one thousand American families would be a fair guess as to what you, Mr. or Mrs. Average American, would buy next? Look over the list and see if your want is among those chosen. Business Week says: "Public utility men asked 1,057 families in 21 cities of 14 States. Well, they named 37 different things. Here are the 15 things that are first choice of the greatest number, with the percentage of families naming them: Electric refrigerator, 28.0; rug, 14.8; radio, 21; washing machine, 10.1; vacuum cleaner, 9.8; 'furniture,' 9.1; living-room furniture, 7.1; bedroom furniture, 5.7; automobile, 5.5; curtains, 5.2; stove or rugs, 5.2; electric clock, 5.0; dining-room furniture, 4.9; lamp, 4.2; 'electric appliances,' 3.8." From this list, it is apparent that the desire for new furniture is probably predominant, if we should include the various kinds. However, the manufacturers of electric refrigeration should be well pleased that over a fourth of these people desire electric refrigeration above other things.

St. Lawrence Seaway Pact Signed.—

Eleven years ago agitation was started for an outlet from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic Ocean. On last Monday a pact was signed between the United States and Canada calling for the development of the St. Lawrence River from Montreal to Lake Ontario. This pact, while now a binding agreement, has to be ratified by the legislative bodies of the two countries. When this is done there will be started construction calling for the expenditure of $800,000,000, involving more work than did the Panama Canal project. Eight years will be necessary in which to complete the work, but when it is finished, ocean-going steamers will be able to visit the heart of the American Continent. In addition to opening up our inland waterways to ocean traffic, the project will include the development of up to 2 billion horsepower electrical energy to be divided between the Canadian and American sections bordering on the waterway. The building of this great joint waterway will do much to improve the spirit of friendship which has always existed between these two American nations.

If We Can Forget.—

"The war," says Harold Cox, "destroyed the pre-existing rough balance between production and consumption. . . . To meet the needs thus created, the productive capacity of the world's industries was expanded at a rate previously undreamed of. When peace came, this fierce demand for purely military and naval equipments necessarily ceased, but meanwhile a new call upon industry had arisen. While fighting was in progress many people had, from compulsion or from a spirit of patriotism, reduced their scale of living, and on the advent of peace there were many household deficiencies to be made good. . . . To meet these needs, most of the industries of the world found they had to work full time, and many industries that had been exclusively engaged on war work turned over to peace work. Thus in the years immediately following the war there was a great burst of industrial activity, but as the various needs created by the operations of the war were gradually made, the calls upon industry began to decline; factories had to reduce their output or even shut down; unemployment became rampant." In commenting upon this, the Richmond News-Leader says: "This, of course, is not the only factor in the depression. . . . But," it continues, "the expansion of production to meet temporary demands was probably the major force in precipitating the catastrophe. Demand in some industries will not again equal productive capacity for twenty years, during which time many factories, office buildings and hotels will eat their heads off in interest charges or else become obsolete. The loss has to be taken. Yet America will be immensely the gainer if she ceases to regard 1925-29 as normal years, but views them as a season when every man was picking up money in the street. If we separate mentally what we made because of that temporary replacement-demand, and put in another compartment of the brain what we made from the normal dispatch of normal business, we shall not find ourselves so bad off today. We need to forget as much as we need to remember."

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Besides the pastor, Rev. J. E. McCauley, and the writer, four others attended the Eastern Virginia Sunday School Convention from Richmond. They were Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Parsons and their son, Carl, and Miss Helen Alward.

The North Georgia Association of Congregational (the name has not yet been changed to include "and Christian") Churches, will meet August 1st and 2nd, at New Trinity, near Lawrenceville. Prof. Lisle Percy, Demorest, Piedmont College, is Moderator, and with Rev. Theodore L. Leverett, pastor of Macedonia Church, is working out a fine program.

Rev. and Mrs. Theron Zimmerman, S. S. S. workers at Salisbury, N. C., were given a hearty welcome by the people of the church Friday evening, July 8th. A fine reception had been prepared for them, and the people were very happy in greeting these new workers. The young people are delighted at the prospect of a happy summer with these new people.

The Rev. J. B. Thrall, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Asheville, N. C., left for a two months' vacation in Minnesota and the Montana Rockies. His pulpit will be filled by John R. Chapman, of Brockton, Mass., senior student at the Union Theological Seminary at New York. He is stopping at the DeYoung Inn on Merrimon Avenue.

It was great that Mrs. L. W. Stagg, of Christian Temple, Norfolk, had the privilege of attending the National Conference of Federated Church Women at Detroit, Mich., June 14th-17th, and it was gracious of her to send to THE CHRISTIAN SUN a report of that great convention. SUN readers will find Mrs. Stagg's report exceedingly illuminating and informative.

While attending the Eastern Virginia Sunday School Convention, the Managing Editor was delighted to see Dr. W. W. Staley, who is still at Lake View Hospital, Suffolk, Va. We are glad to find him improving, though very slowly, and we hope to be able to report continued improvement as the weeks pass. We miss, and we know our readers miss, his wonderful weekly visits through his "Suffolk Letter."

A faithful reader of THE SUN, a good brother of much curiosity, in a letter a while ago, inquired what the initials "J. O." stood for. We declined to reveal, simply to satisfy curiosity, and now this comes as punishment: "Dear Brother Jeremiah Obadiah—You see how sweetly I have guessed the meaning of your initials at last, etc." We confess that is quite sweet, even if poor guessing. How will Jonah Overboard do?—J. O.

How is this as a tribute after more than one hundred years? A soldier passing through a certain town in old England demanded to know why one could not get something to drink in that town. The reply was, "A man by the name of John Wesley passed through here about one hundred years ago." What a pity, indeed, that we haven't some John Wesleys to pass through some of our cities and towns now.

Dr. E. A. King, of Miami Beach, and Mrs. King and her sister, Miss Leach, have arrived at Fairview Inn, Fairview, N. C., where they expect to spend six weeks' vacation. During his absence, his pulpit will be supplied in July by Rev. Kenneth Close, of Coral Gables, and in August by Rev. Orville D. Ullom, of Melbourne, Fla. Dr. King recently gave his last radio address for the summer. He has been giving Sunday evening radio talks regularly for the past six years.

Miss Pattie Lee Coghill is to spend July and August working among the churches of Eastern Kentucky as she did last year. She will be moving about a good deal, but she can be reached by addressing 2325 Winchester Ave., Ashland, Ky., care of A. B. Rainey. This year she will be assisted by Miss Jean Fullington of Rollins College and New Port Richey, Fla., a Student Summer Service worker, and by Miss Kroner of St. Petersburg. Miss Kroner goes as a volunteer worker at her own expense because of the joy of the service.

Elon College has completed its first summer session. The campus has been a scene of activity with its Summer Session and its two separate groups of young folks in Religious Training conferences. The trustees and college officials are desirous of making the college buildings and campus render service while the regular college work is suspended for the summer vacation. An enlarged program is being planned for next summer. Dr. J. Allen Hunter, of the Department of Education in the college, headed up the summer school, and to his wise management much of the success of the school is due.

Again we suggest that CHRISTIAN SUN readers turn at once to that refreshing mountain breeze that comes from the high hills of Carroll County, Va., with the signature of "V. E." attached. Many of us, as we have contributed our dimes for the purpose, thought we were making a contribution to Carroll County; we are now learning that Carroll County is making a contribution to us, for out of the soul of those high hills and from the majesty of those mountains, comes a message of faith, hope, courage. Many of us cannot go to the mountains, so the mountains have decided to come to us, and what a glorious visit it is!

✓ Dr. C. H. Rowland, Dr. W. C. Wicker, Rev. Milo J. Sweet and Mission Secretary J. O. Atkinson, met at Winston, N. C., with Rev. W. T. Scott, Thursday afternoon, July 14th, to help in trying to locate and to take the initial steps for securing a lot on which the Congregational-Christian Church of Winston-Salem is to be built. Bro. Scott, the pastor, feels much encouraged, and now that he is living in Winston and among the people whom he is serving, he feels that the time has come when definite steps should be taken to make the work in Winston permanent and assured. A very appropriate corner lot is offered and seems a most fitting and accessible place for our church in Winston.

From Rev. and Mrs. R. T. Grissom, our workers in Carroll County, Va.: "Fancy Gap, Va., July 11.—We began our revival at Elk Spur Christian Church Wednesday night. God is wonderfully blessing us in the meeting. Please continue to remember us, our efforts and the work here, to Him 'from whom all blessings come.' Bro. J. Ray Dickens is helping in our revival. After being in five services yesterday (Sunday) for our Lord, we feel fine this morning. The people here are hungry for the gospel, and while we feel so weak and helpless, we are happy we can serve Him in an humble way. We earnestly ask divine guidance in the service here among these good people, our neighbors, whom we are learning to love."

Elsewhere we give the report of Mrs. W. R. Sellars, Treasurer, North Carolina Woman's Board. Total collected for the quarter, $648.01. Mrs. Sellars apologizes, with deep regret, that the amount for the present quarter is no larger, and we join her in that regret, but at the same time the amount collected indicates that the good women are still loyal and faithful and are carrying on in their efforts to maintain the Mission work so near and dear to their hearts as it was nearest and dearest to the heart of our Lord. The men of the church have an opportunity now, through the coin card, to make denial through small offerings for weeks and months as the women do, and thus, if they would, could pile up no inconsiderable sum to prevent the Mission work from suffering.

The Eastern Virginia Sunday School Convention held quite an enjoyable session at Cypress Chapel on last Tuesday, July 19th. The opening address by Rev. H. S. Hardcastle was pleasing and to the point. The reports showed care in preparation and the fact that the officers of the convention had been working. Mr. Jesse West, Jr., president of the convention, presided with poise and kept the sessions going on schedule time. Dr. L. E. Smith addressed the convention at the evening session, and his address well repaid us for the 100-mile drive from Richmond. The rest of the convention was net profit. The meals served by the church and the entertainment were characteristic of Cypress Chapel, and we hardly need to say more than that. Those who missed the convention, missed a treat. We hope for a detailed account from the Press Committee next week.

Here is news, indeed, coming from the pen of our veteran and beloved missionary in Japan, Rev. A. D. Woodworth, D. D.: "In the recent election of the members of the (Japanese) Parliament, twelve Christians were elected, five from our church. One of the projects already proposed for consideration on convening Parliament is to prohibit all manufacture and sale of liquor for five years. The idea is that the purchase of liquor, which is not a necessity, makes the times harder for the poor. If that is so, why should it not be prohibited all the time, since the liquor curse is most keenly felt among the poor? There is agitation of the question of helping the farmers here because in certain districts the economic condition is causing them to sell their daughters to brothels, the price said to be paid for a good-looking girl being about the cost of a horse in the States, viz: $140.00."

The Richmond News-Leader recently showed its readers the fine face of our friend and co-worker, Mr. John T. Kernodle, managing editor of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, giving a complimentary and well deserved sketch of the achievements of our fine friend, and announcing the fact that he became managing editor of THE CHRISTIAN SUN in place of his father, now retired, on July 1st, by the election of the Burlington Convention. "John T." is a fine fellow, indeed, filling an important place in his community, in his city and in his church, and is making a real contribution to our Congregational-Christian constituency. He is a splendid man to work with and takes particular pride in presenting to the subscribers of THE CHRISTIAN SUN an excellent paper in every mechanical and physical detail, and one which compares with the very best in the make-up and attractiveness of a church paper. It is a pleasure to work with "John T."—J. O. A.

Dr. Daniel A. Poling, president of the World's Christian Endeavor Union and chairman of the Allied Forces for Prohibition, was present at and took part in both the Republican and Democratic National Conventions at Chicago. As a result, "he objects to the 'resubmission program' of the Republican platform and the repeal proposal of the Democrats," and in a statement given to the press recently, he announces "that his organization (Allied Forces for Prohibition), is raising funds and organizing for the militant new campaign in support of dry senators and representatives. Our campaign does not wait," he said. "We shall participate in all contests against the repeal of state enforcement laws. We are raising funds and organizing, to help elect a Senate and House of Representatives pledged to enforce and not to nullify the law; pledged to preserve the gains made under the Eighteenth Amendment; pledged to the Constitution of the United States and to representative government. We shall support Democrats and Republicans alike who subscribe to these principles."

THE SUN's editor has a daughter, a school teacher, who is spending the summer "in the old country," and where there is one line in a letter about things that are modern and up-to-date, there are pages about buildings, places, institutions, hoary with age and glorious through the wear and tear of time. From one place in old England, she writes: "The year 1492 is quite modern here. Have just visited a lovely old castle built in 1115. The hotel in which we are stopping is quite up-to-date, having been erected in 1521. I recently passed through and around about a building erected in 35 A. D." When Napoleon wanted to inspire his troops, fighting with the Egyptians, in sight of the pyramids, he cried out to them: "Forward, brave men. Forty centuries are looking down on you from those pyramids. Somehow the past stirs the blood, peoples the imagination and quickens the fancy. This is why the Holy Land is holy. It tells eloquently of a glorious past out of which have come history, and events hallowed by the power to endure and sanctified by the silent march of the centuries."

REVIVALS AND GOOD WORK.

Dear SUN Readers:

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks for your prayers for our revival held at Rocky Ford Christian Church. We felt inspired in a special way. We are now in the midst of a revival at Elks' Spur Christian Church. Will you set aside some special time each day to ask God to guide us? If you could feel as we do that this is our work and God's work together, I am sure you would be more concerned. If you could only come and see! Can you get this picture? After laboring on their farm through the day, a family will walk seven miles to hear the word of God explained, and then walk seven miles back to their home, rejoicing in their hearts, but we do ask for your prayers that we may be guided in carrying forward God's work, your work, and our work.

Again, we request you to write us personal letters about the work here. And most of all, we wish for each of you to feel with us as one of us. This work does not belong to Mrs. Grissom and myself. God's work is left in the hands of his followers, and that includes even you.

We remain, your brother and sister in his service.

REV. AND MRS. R. T. GRISSOM.

Fancy Gap, Va.

PROGRAM.

Following is the program of the Middle Georgia Association of Congregational Churches which meets at the Meansville Congregational Church, July 27, 1932:

Morning Session—10:00 o'Clock.

Worship service.....Miss Marjorie Askins
Words of welcome.....Miss Rosie Gill
Business session.
Young People's Meeting.....Miss Annie Campbell
Reports from the churches.
Adjournment for lunch (meeting of committees).

Afternoon Session—1:00 o'Clock.

Devotional song service.....Mr. John Bush
Evangelism for Today.....Rev. J. H. Dollar
Men's Conference.....Prof. Huey, Leader
Women's Conference.....Miss Campbell, Leader
Suggested Theme: "Planning for the Future."

Our Wider Fellowship,

Rev. M. J. Sweet, Pastor-at-Large

Dr. Bloom's Message.

Business session—Election of officers, reports of committees, etc.

Adjournment.

Evening Session—7:00 o'Clock.

Song service.....Mr. John Bush
Reading of Minutes, miscellaneous business, offering.
Devotional services.....Rev. David Shepherd
Special music.
Conference Sermon,

Dr. Henry C. Newell, Piedmont College

Each church in the Association is to be represented by two delegates and the pastor. One of these delegates should be the church clerk. Please send names of delegates and pastors; how and when they will arrive; whether they will expect to be entertained one or two nights. This information to be sent to Miss Rosie Gill, Meansville, Ga.

PROGRAM.

Following is the program for the 84th Session of the Virginia Valley Central Congregational-Christian Conference, to be held with the Winchester Christian Church, August 10-11, 1932:

WEDNESDAY.

Morning Session—10:00 o'Clock.

Call to order.
Devotional service.....Dr. M. L. Weekley
Enrollment.
Welcome address.....T. W. Matthews
Response.....Walton E. Brill
Report of Program Committee.
Report of Executive Committee.
Miscellaneous business.
Report of Director, Religious Education..K. B. Hook
Annual Address.....Rev. R. L. Williamson
Adjournment for Dinner.

Afternoon Session—1:45 o'Clock.

Devotional service.....Rev. B. J. Earp
Report of Committee on Religious Literature, Alfred Dofflemyre, Chairman.
Address—"Our Publications and Our People," Dr. W. P. Minton, Dayton, Ohio.
Report of Committee on Evangelism, Mrs. A. W. Andes, Chairman.
Report of Committee on Social Service, K. B. Hook, Chairman.
Address—"Our Orphanage".....Chas. D. Johnston, Supt.
Report of Conference Mission Secretary,
R. O. Rothgeb
Adjournment.

Evening Session—8:00 o'Clock.

Program by the Young People.
Address on Young People's Work....Dr. L. E. Smith
THURSDAY.

Morning Session—9:30 o'Clock.

Devotional service.....Rev. W. B. Fuller
Roll call and reading of minutes.

Report of Committee on Education, Rev. A. W. Andes, Chairman.

Address on Education.....Dr. L. E. Smith
Conference Missionary Association.

Report of Committee on Foreign Missions, R. O. Rothgeb, Chairman.

Address on Foreign Missions.....Dr. W. P. Minton
Report of Committee on Sunday Schools and

Christian Endeavor, J. Warner Stearn, Chairman.
Report of treasurer.

Adjournment for dinner.

Afternoon Session—1:45 o'Clock.

Devotional service.....Chas. D. Johnston
Report of Stewardship Committee, Mrs. J. J. Lincoln, Chairman.

Report of Committee on Home Missions, W. C. Wampler, Chairman.

Report of Committee on Christian Union, N. L. Norris, Chairman.

Report of Committee on Apportionments, R. Roy Hosaflook, Chairman.

Miscellaneous business.

Adjournment.

METHODS CORNER

By REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.

Miami Beach, Fla.

In our last "Corner" we concluded our talk on "Motives to Missionary Effort," with reference to the so-called command of Jesus to preach the gospel everywhere. I have heard men say that they had no personal opinion about missions, all they knew was that the last command of the Master was to go into all the world and preach the gospel. That was the reason they gave for missions. Such a "motive" is weak because it does not carry with it obligation to study missions and to work with an increasing intelligence. However, the motive has its power. The last wish of a dear friend should be considered seriously and carried out if possible. What would such a person do, however, if he ever came to the conviction that the formula that includes Jesus' "command" at the end of the gospel, was added by a later hand? Not that we think it was, but the thought simply goes to show that the reason for engaging in missionary effort should be something deeper and more gripping than simply a recorded command. Those who are engaging in missionary service today are moved by greater internal convictions. These we shall discuss later.

It is probably true that many people are still moved by all of the "nerves" mentioned to some degree, but the missionary motive of today is a little different. Young men and women, splendidly equipped with education and experience, are offering themselves for foreign missionary service and some of the finest, most upstanding young men and women are entering student summer service in this country, with the greatest possible joy. They are not actuated by the older "motives" that we have been talking about. Or, at least, they are only partly moved by them. Young Christians of today seem to be driven by something more and something different.

There are some very important questions to be asked and answered before we get at the modern motives that enlist the new generation in missionary effort. One question that must be answered, is this, "Do we believe in Jesus?" This question is put by Dr. Stocking in the article in The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty (April 9, 1931), and I am taking the outline he gives because he has summed up the matter so well. This question is not academic, but real. Do we think of Jesus as a real person, the revelation of God on earth, the Saviour of mankind?

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. W. STALEY C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

W. C. WICKER

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

EASTERN NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE.

It was the 38th annual session at New Hope Church, Franklin County, July 12th-13th—Rev. R. A. Whitten was president pro re nata; Deacon W. A. Newman, vice-president; Miss Erma Jean Whitaker, secretary; Mr. C. H. Stephenson, treasurer. Food was abundant for delegates and visitors—food for the body, food for the mind, food for the soul. The people of the community generously supplied the first named, the good supply of ministers present and others appointed on the program supplied the second and last named. And it was good to be there. The singing was sane and secure under the leadership of that veteran of music, George McCullers. President Whitten told the convention that every Sunday School teacher, not only in presenting one lesson but every lesson of the year, must have in mind a three-fold task, as he or she faces the class:

1st. Intellectual, intelligence, the impartation of knowledge. Robert Rakes, the founder of the Sunday School, gathered up the children of the poor and taught them on Sunday the rudiments of a primary education—reading, writing, arithmetic. Out of this teaching the poor and needy on Sunday, in order that through such teaching the poor might learn to read the Bible, and have in their homes and lives the Word of God, has grown and developed the Sunday School of the present.

2nd. The task is social. Every pupil, as well as every teacher, has social obligations and privileges to face, each as a member of society, and it is within the province of the teacher to drive to the mind of the pupil the thought that we are members, one of another, and if one member suffers all the members suffer. Our social institutions are to be made clean and wholesome, or there is no safety for the individual.

3rd. Evangelism. Every teacher must face the fact that it is his or her duty to deliver the Evangel to the class present, the teaching of Christ and about the Christ, in such a way that the pupil and the class will not only be won to Christ, but will honor him, glorify him, with their lives, their substance, their worship.

The various departments—Home, Cradle Roll, Primary and Beginners, Intermediate and Adult, Missions and Music, were presented with recommendations by the department secretaries.

The Mission Secretary gave an address in the afternoon of the first day, in which attempt was made to show that every Sunday School lesson had its missionary message, if only the teacher would see and reveal that message, and that the "best mission book" ever published is the Bible, many of whose books and chapters are meaningless except in the light of their missionary message; Missions being defined as "the effort, or better, the method of God in revealing himself to those who have not known him, particularly as he is revealed in his only begotten Son. Rev. M. T. Sorrell, presenting the report on Missions, urged teachers and superintendents and pastors to lay upon the hearts of their pupils and classes the burden of the missionary message, the meaning of the missionary task, the glory of the missionary cause.

The writer regretted his inability to be present the second day and to hear the discussion on Christian Endeavor in its various phases, and also to hear President L. E. Smith of Elon College in his address on the "Relationship of the College to the Sunday School;" the address of Dr. W. C. Wicker and Mrs. M. B. Newman and others. Sufficeth to say that the convention was well attended, especially on the first day, and the schools well represented, while teachers and pupils attending the sessions went away feeling that they had really received something of practical worth and merit which they could take back to their schools.

J. O. A.

THE SORDID AND THE SENSUAL.

One fails to understand why the daily press is constrained to spread before the public the sordid and the sensual. The very papers and people who would deny the depravity of man, who would declare that man, by nature, is inherently neither beastly nor brutal, will lose no opportunity of displaying to the gaze of all, every detail, great and small, of that which is sordid, sensual, low and vile.

The North Carolina papers, in particular, and the daily press throughout the country, through dispatches of the Associated Press, has recently given an exhibition of the sordid and the sensual, to the point of nausea and disgust, of a boy not having yet reached his majority, burdened the most of his life with the curse of too much money, passing out of life from a bullet through his head after a high social episode of drinking and debauchery. Every detail of that boy's life must be paraded in the papers, and again and again his name and picture must be presented, "the heir to millions," and that of his wife, a former chorus girl, who acknowledged, when "her husband" passed through the awful tragedy, that she had already passed out from a normal frame of mind, as witnesses testified, from too much drinking. All of the whole disgusting spectacle, to the minutest detail, must be sent broadcast again and again through the daily press. Again we wonder why the sensual and the sordid, especially occurring in "high life" among those whose only thought is that of spending and indulgence, must be paraded in glaring headlines, and made the most prominent feature of the day. One wonders why all this must be dished out, printed, pictured, day after day, till the heart is sick and the soul is weary of the minutiae and detail of so many revolting crimes.

Possibly, after all, human depravity, "total depravity," is not a reality, and by no means universal, and so to broadcast the deeds of the depraved is news, since it is unusual and not the usual, the abnormal and not the normal. "The heavens," quiet, peaceful, processes of the planets, "declare the glory of God;" whereas, the earthquake, the thunder and the lightning are the eruptions, the breaks, the noises injected into the peaceful processes of the everlasting centuries. The only relief from the sordid, the sensual, the revolting, is that we soon forget it, and wipe out of the mental picture those who played the principal parts—and then forget them forever.

J. O. A.

THE DEPRESSION AND CIGARETTES.

There comes one heartening word from the Internal Revenue Bureau, Washington, D. C. It is to the effect that, in spite of all the advertising to the contrary, the use of the deadly cigarette is declining. According to official figures of the Bureau, almost two billion less cigarettes were consumed in April of 1932 than in April of 1931. The exact figures are:

April, 1931.....9,470,621,253

April, 1932.....7,562,290,327

The actual decrease for April of 1932 over that of April of 1931 was 1,908,330,926.

The drop in the consumption of cigars for the same month was over 1,100,000,000, and manufactured tobacco dropped more than 2,500,000 pounds. These are the returns as reported by the Internal Revenue Bureau for taxes received for the corresponding months. It may be that "hard times" prevent the buying and use. If so, there is at least some compensation in "hard times." Since, as one writer puts it, "human brains will have a chance to function more normally and sensibly during these days (of depression) if they are less stupefied by nicotine." The cigarette smoker is content with nothing else than to inhale the deadly nicotine into his lungs, and thus sweep the poison through his system, with a fair shot at his brains. If cigarettes were an end and not a beginning, it might be different. How often are they a means, or rather a measure, of a way to an end, a way from that which was sensible, safe, sociable, sober, a way, so often, that is anti-social, non-sensible, non-sober and un-healthful. The only value any one has ever logically assigned to the cigarette so far as we know, was that it was a poison which did its work to brains and to conscience slowly. Verily, "depression" has some compensation.

J. O. A.

GOOD CHEER FROM SANFORD, FLORIDA.

Sanford is in the center of the celery and truck farming section of Florida. In ordinary times it is prosperous, but in such times as these the farmers are first to feel the pinch. A large number of them have gone bankrupt. It has severely affected our church there, but the pastor, Rev. J. B. Roat writes that the situation has some encouraging features. One is that it has drawn the people more sympathetically together. He and his family are not taking a vacation—just staying on the job and taking care of all services and helping to keep the people encouraged.

Among other things undertaken to add new interest is a five-piece orchestra led by an old German who had been an orchestra leader. Another new undertaking was an interdenominational daily vacation Bible school. Concerning this Mr. Roat writes:

"For five years, I have been trying to get the six churches of the city to work together on a daily vacation church school program. This summer I was made chairman with power to appoint my own committee and proceed. We invited Miss Pattie Lee Coghill to sit in with us and advise us. She proved to be not only a source of knowledge, but also a fund of inspiration. We appointed a General Superintendent, and Superintendents for the Beginners, Primary and Junior Departments, teachers, secretaries, pianists, etc., and then had Miss Coghill come in again to advise with us.

"She could not be with us when the school started because of a prior engagement at Elon College, but so well had she trained the staff of teachers that everything went along smoothly, the teachers became more and more enthusiastic with the passing of each day; the children grew more and more interested, and the handwork, which was placed on exhibition on the night of graduation, was a surprise to all who had no idea what a daily vacation church school really can accomplish. On the night of graduation one of the business men of the town declared that the school was the greatest thing that had come to Sanford in a long time and that if there was any deficit he would meet it himself. Everyone is looking forward to the school next summer."

Mr. Roat delivered the Senior High School Baccalaureate address and also the graduating address at the Junior High School, the latter being requested for publication. He has been called upon for addresses before several clubs, one of them being a Jewish club. E. C. G.

PROHIBITION A LIVE SUBJECT.

The two leading political parties have made prohibition a very live subject. No matter how one may wish it not to be made the chief bone of contention it is being discussed everywhere by everybody. The younger generation, those who have never seen a real old-fashioned saloon at work, cannot understand why we who have seen it dread the thought of having it return. Years before prohibition came the saloon dominated certain forms of social and political life and became a menace to all moral progress.

Perhaps the one outstanding organization that faced the saloon bravely and sought to rescue individuals from its baneful influence was the Salvation Army. That organization ought to know something about the saloon and the difference between conditions then and now. In a church paper published in Cleveland, Ohio, May 30, 1932, there appeared a statement from a certain Colonel Davis of the Salvation Army, presumably an officer living in Cleveland. He said that during the past sixteen months the Army had dealt with about a million cases. This reference is doubtless to the work of the Army throughout the United States. Out of this large number only seventy-five were bad cases of drink, and of moderate cases only five hundred. From October 11, 1930, to February 3, 1932, the Army helped 1,102,545 unemployed men. Of this number about 98 per cent were drink free. Having nothing to do, these men would probably have drank to excess if they could have gotten the liquor. The number of women who now go to the Salvation Army with a tale of being ruined by drink is less than one per cent of the entire number, Colonel Davis adds. And the same is true in their family relief work. In these days very few needs arise from strong drink. In the old days of the saloon we are told that 90 out of every 100 destitute cases was caused by drink. Poverty from drink has practically disappeared since prohibition came. The old-time drunkard has gone.

The Colonel said further that before prohibition the Salvation Army would gather drunks by the truckload and busload from the saloons and park benches. Today one would have to search high and low in every American city to find at one time one hundred men and women of the type the Salvation Army used to gather by the thousands under the rule of John Barleycorn.

Let those who have been reading in the newspapers and elsewhere that prohibition is a failure ponder the words of Colonel Davis. He has reason to know whereof he speaks. E. A. K.

PROGRESS BY ELIMINATION.

The noted humorist and philosopher, Mark Twain, said somewhere that "any library is a good library, provided it does not have in it the books of a certain author" (he named the author, too). Some events, as well as individuals, in this life are measured in value by the conspicuous absence of undesirables. Comes now a case in point. The papers are telling us that the word "reparations" is to be banished from the vocabulary of Europe. Requiescat in pace. That word "reparations" has been used until it has become a nightmare, and any vocabulary will seem richer without it. It took tears, sleeplessness, fasting, prayer, but it came. The amount of Germany's reparations obligations was one hundred and twenty-five billion dollars—an inconceivable sum that was doing the German nation and people to death. The Lausanne Conference, composed of England, France and Germany, agrees that in lieu of this, Germany should contribute the sum of seven hundred and fifty million dollars to "European re-construction." No sum can amend or repair what war has destroyed. The soldiers buried in Flanders cannot be brought back. When death and destruction, hate, madness, murder, do their work, there can be no reparation, and so they have decided to banish "reparations" even as a word. And with a small pittance of the original amount demanded of Germany, they will steadily go about trying to reconstruct some of the things torn down by the sword and the bullet. Our language is enriched, our hearts beat a little warmer, by the elimination of "reparations," as we resolve, by the help of Almighty God, that there shall not be another war, since all "reparation" is impossible, and peace must prevail. J. O. A.

Special Combination Subscription Offer!

A special arrangement has been made whereby those who desire to do so may receive both THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for just a little more than they now pay for one of these papers.

Beginning immediately, we will accept subscriptions for the two papers at the price of $3.75 for the combined subscription. This means to SUN readers that for only $1.75 additional they may receive the great wealth of knowledge that The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty brings weekly. Those who are already subscribers for the latter paper may add THE SUN to their list for only 75 cents for the whole year.

You do not have to wait until your subscription to one or the other paper has expired, but send in your subscription now. You will begin immediately to receive the other paper and that which you are already receiving will be marked up a year in advance.

While this offer is open to everyone, it should appeal especially to the pastors and lay workers in the Southeast Convention, and we beg them to take advantage of this opportunity.

It is, of course, understood that under this special offer all subscriptions must be in advance, and must be sent directly to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va., or to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

DEAR SIRs:

Please (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my present subscription one year) to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my subscription one year) to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

(Please mark out the words not applicable.)

I enclose, herewith, check or money order for $3.75 to cover same.

M
Street No. or R. F. D.
City and State

CONTRIBUTIONS

NATIONAL CONFERENCE OF FEDERATED CHURCH WOMEN.

A fine spirit of Christian fellowship prevailed at the Fourth Annual Conference of the National Council of Federated Church Women, which met in Detroit, Mich., June 14th-17th.

This national organization dates its beginning back to that great Foreign Mission Conference held in New York City, in 1900, when the first woman's international group was formed, known as the Central Committee on United Mission Study. The fellowship thus developed led to the Federation of Woman's Boards of Foreign Missions of North America in 1915. In a similar way, the Home Mission Boards were federated. Through unity these Boards enlarged their scope of activities until by 1928 fourteen hundred local interdenominational groups had been formed. There now arose a necessity for a national organization that the efforts of the church women might be harmonized more fully. In Buffalo, in June, 1928, the National Council of Federated Church Women was formally organized. These three organizations cooperate in all matters of common interest, certain tasks being allocated to one or another of the bodies, thus preventing confusion and overlapping.

The general sessions of the convention were held in the Central Methodist Church. The business sessions, the day preceding and following the program, were in the Hotel Statler, which was convention headquarters.

At the opening session Wednesday morning, the key to the City of Detroit was turned over to the delegates by the president of the Michigan Council of Federated Church Women, the Detroit Council of Federated Church Women, and the Council of Detroit Church Federation. Leaders of these organizations expressed their happiness and pleasure in welcoming to their State and city this body that is doing so much for the advancement of the kingdom. Mrs. John Ferguson, the president, that splendid Christian character and scholar of high type, in her greetings stressed the importance of the church women of America in uniting their strength against the rapidly moving forces of evil. The morning session was given over to reports on the following departments: Law Observance, Christian Citizenship, Marriage and the Home, Motion Picture and Drama, Social Service, Spiritual Life, International relations, Race Relations, School of Missions, Missionary Education. While each report was nation-wide in its intent the necessity of laying emphasis on the local was strongly emphasized, as with the individual and local organization abides the "power house."

The ladies of the Detroit Church Federation entertained the delegates for luncheon at the City Club. After greeting from officers there were brief messages from the following: Mrs. Orin Judd for the Council of Women for Home Missions; Mrs. Thomas Nicholson for the Federated Foreign Boards; Mrs. F. I. Johnson for the National Save the Child Movement. The climax of the hour was reached when Miss Harriet Taylor of New York City, Religious News Events editor of The World, told something of what the Christian statesmen of the Orient are thinking and doing. The afternoon session was given over to a forum on local, State and national problems. In the evening there were two thrilling addresses, Mrs. J. P. White, editor of the largest missionary magazine in the world spoke on "The Missionary Program of the Church," and Mrs. F. I.

Johnson, of national reputation, brought a marvelous missionary message on "History Shows Tendencies."

On Thursday morning the various committees submitted their reports, and at noon the Detroit Church Federation entertained the Convention at the Young Men's Christian Association, at which time we were told what the four hundred churches of Detroit are doing by uniting their strength.

In the afternoon Dr. Walter Getty, of the Missionary Education Movement, spoke on the imperative need of a stronger missionary program in the church. Among other things he said: "If the youth of our land is not captured for missions in this generation our country is surely doomed." Dr. Roy B. Guile, of the National Federal Council, gave a message on, "It is a Fine Thing that God Left So Much for Us to Do."

On Thursday evening the members of the beautiful Disciples Church invited the convention to dinner, and to hold the evening session with them. Dr. S. M. Cavert, Secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, in the message of the evening, brought hope in his thought that the church is now in the throes of greatest agony for soon the finest spirit of the ages will be born.

A part of the day Friday and Saturday was spent in business conferences. The entire conference was good and great. Each session was delightful, and alive with many things that could not be mentioned in this brief article. It is important that our local and State interdenominational groups become an integral part of this great national organization that has for its object the establishment in the world around of a Christian social order in which all areas of life shall be brought into harmony with the life and teachings of Jesus Christ.

MRS. L. W. STAGG.

Norfolk, Va.

GOING STILL FARTHER WITH THE MASTER.

The Master we are following suffered untold agony that night in the garden. It is easy to sing, "I'll go with him through the garden," but the actual test too often finds us where it found the disciples. We leave him to suffer alone while we indifferently sleep and take our rest. If we are going with Jesus all the way, he will let us have a taste of that garden suffering. He will let us learn something of the meaning of that 53rd chapter of Isaiah.

We will understand the meaning of such words as "oppressed," "afflicted," "bruised," "stricken," "despised" and "rejected," better than we have ever done. We will know their full meaning better than any dictionary could possibly define them. We, too, will know something of the suffering which caused our Lords cry of anguish from the Cross of Calvary. We shrink from the trials, the pain, the suffering and sorrow which God let's come into the lives of his children, that he may perfect their graces. But we, too, are made perfect through suffering. We, too, learn obedience through suffering.

Our Lord lets us come to the end of our resources that he may prove to us the infallibility of his resources, his exhaustless supply, his readiness and willingness to be our help in every time of need. When he had brought you to the place where your resources had failed, when the burden had become so heavy you felt your strength was giving way, when every nerve and muscle was quivering with weariness, when you came to him weary and worn in body and mind, did he fail you? He took it all as soon as you turned it over to him, did he not?

Have you ever come to him when your God-given prayer seemed to have failed? Have you come pleading, praying, agonizing, as never before? God's ear is open day and night, listening for the cries of his children. "If they cry at all, I will hear." He hears even before the cry leaves our lips. While yet upon bended knees, while we are yet speaking, we feel the prayer is taken away from us. We cannot form another sentence. All we can do is to be silent before God. We know that not only have our words been heard, but Jesus at the right hand of the Father, has taken them up and is pleading them for us. We know the answer is on the way. All we have to do now is to "rest in the Lord and wait patiently for him." Nothing to fear, nothing doubting, all is in his hands. He is near and all is well.

The happiest people in the world are those who have given up most for the Lord's sake. Those who have yielded all, even suffered much for him. The smile cannot be long kept from the faces of those who have yielded all, and are closely following the Master. There is always a joy within the heart of the one who is fully surrendered to the Master's will, which shines through. Paul could not keep from singing praises at midnight, although his feet were fast and his back was bleeding. When we get to thinking about Jesus, what he has done for us, what he is doing, and what he will do, the pain becomes a joy, the sorrow becomes a song of praise, and the tears give way to smiles.

Following Jesus, we look to him for guidance, and when we look to him we look up. Looking up brings joy and gladness. The kindly, beaming, sympathizing face of Jesus draws us on and on, flooding our lives with peace and happiness, more and more, day by day. Oh, blessed Master, we will now go on with thee, anywhere, doing anything for thee, thou wouldst have us do. We cannot now go back. We desire to go all the way with thee, in obedience to thy command, to do thy will until we shall see thee as thou art, and become like thee.

MINNIE LOHR.

Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

YOUNGSVILLE, N. C.

During the week of July 4th, it was my privilege to visit the old home and home-folks in and around Wadley, Ala. The Sunday before was a rainy day—not many attended the services at the old church, of which my brother is pastor. But the thrill of meeting those of former days at the altar where we first saw the light, no words can describe. All of the brothers were there and it fell to my lot to be the preacher. For dinner, four of the brothers and one sister sat at the table with our mother; she is ninety-one and a half, hearty and happy. Many reminiscences of the past came rushing in as we thus dined together at the old home-place.

Monday we could hardly wait for the family, relatives and friends to come for the reunion. They came from many sections of the State and Georgia; and what a meeting! Seventy-five, I think, was the number, and yet there were about one hundred who failed to come. A family of five generations represented in one meeting.

While there, I went over to the college to view again the buildings and grounds of the institution. I thought of the labors and sacrifices that have already been made and could see many more. But such an opportunity you scarcely find at the door of a people as you see there. Southern Union has opened to her from the North a territory of one hundred and twenty-five miles to Birmingham; northeast, to Bowden, forty-five miles; east, to LaGrange, forty miles; swinging around a little southeast, to Macon, Ga., with Mersa, one hundred and twenty-five miles; continuing to the south, by Americus, Ga., one hundred and twenty-five miles, with no college, so far as I know, with Columbus half-way between, also with no college. To the south is Montgomery, Ala., ninety miles; Auburn, the Polytechnic Institute, fifty-one miles; on to the west, is Judson and Marion colleges, eighty-five miles, and the University of Alabama, one hundred and three miles. This, in a way, will give an idea of the vast field this college has opened to her. Some of the best pupils of the last two sessions have come from Columbus, Ga. The location is ideal; many improvements have been made, the buildings completed and the grounds are being beautified, which make it a lovely place for an institution of learning. They have a good library and a modernly equipped chemical laboratory which was donated by the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. This Institute is standing by the college, and is a great help. They have a Summer School with more than forty pupils which extends teacher certificates and gives full credit for all work done. It was an inspiration to go again to this place and view the possibilities of the institution.

My! it's great to have a home. Even though one may be a long way separated from it, but just to know there is such a place. And the fond recollections that linger, with the hope of meeting again those of childhood's happy days. And so we are hoping to go next July to visit and see again the one who is the inspiration of our lives—our Mother!

E. M. CARTER.

WINCHESTER LETTER.

Our Children's Day services were held on the fourth Sunday in May. The training of the children was under the direction of Mrs. Roy A. Larrick, superintendent of the Primary Department. She was assisted by the teachers of the department, Miss Irene Headly, Mrs. Perry Miller, Mrs. W. L. Cooper, Miss Elsie Mathews, and Mrs. Orville Hoover of the Junior Department, who presided at the piano. A service was rendered that reflected favorably on the children's trainers, and was much enjoyed by all.

On the evening of June 12th, the Ever Ready Missionary Society gave the annual Thank Offering service. The service, under the direction of Mrs. Orville Hoover, president, was well prepared and was not only most interesting, but educational and inspirational as well. This society has some excellent workers, and is doing splendid work for the Master's cause.

In the early morning of June 23rd, a number of our young people left here for Norfolk, to attend the annual session of the Virginia Christian Endeavor Convention. The Winchester C. E. Union secured a bus for the trip, which was comfortably filled with young people of the various societies of the city. They returned Monday morning, reporting a great session and a wonderful trip, without harm or accident. Miss Margaret Richards, of our Society, is State president. Miss Richards was re-elected, with Rene Mathews as first vice-president.

Notwithstanding depression and talk of it, our little band of workers here are bravely trying to meet the situation, and we feel sure that the Lord will bless them in their efforts, and will grant them success in his cause.

R. L. WILLIAMSON.

REVIVAL AT ROANOKE, ALA.

I suppose the pastor will report the revival that is in session at our church in Roanoke, and which closes tonight. It has been the greatest revival in many ways that the First Christian Church of Roanoke has ever had. Bro. H. C. Caviness and his devoted wife have certainly been at their best all the week. I have not been privileged to attend every service, but each one I attended lifted me higher. There was one thing about this meeting that Roanoke has never had, so far as I know, and that was a sunrise prayer meeting, which proved to be the climax of the services. I have never attended just such a meeting as we had this morning. More people attended these early morning meetings than we expected.

We have had the best cooperation in this revival of any meeting that has ever been held at the First Christian Church. Every pastor in town has cooperated in a most hearty way. The first Sunday night service was held at the First Methodist Church. They were just closing a successful revival, and the pastor, Rev. Ellis, happened to be an intimate friend of Bro. Caviness and invited him to preach in the Methodist Church, which was a delight to all.

The men's service at 2:30 this afternoon was a great service, indeed. Our church was filled with the leading men of the town, and Bro. Caviness brought us a wonderful message.

The closing service was held in the First Baptist Church, which has a large auditorium that was filled to its capacity. The subject of the evening was, "The Second Coming of Christ."

No accessions to the church were made, but we feel that the entire church life of Roanoke was strengthened.

G. H. VEAZEY.

ROSEMONT CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The quarter ending July 1, 1932, was a record-breaker for the Sunday School of the Rosemont Christian Church. The attendance at Sunday School during the quarter was higher than it has ever been during the history of our school.

At the regular quarterly meeting of the Congregational-Christian Sunday School Conference of Greater Norfolk, held at the Ocean View Church on July 12, 1932, the Rosemont School was awarded the banner for having done the best work of any of the schools in the Conference during the last three months.

The Rosemont Church is proud of her Sunday School Superintendent, H. R. Morrison, and all his fine corps of officers and teachers, and we hope that this fine work will continue.

J. F. MORGAN, Pastor.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

- Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4½ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible
2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Israel, years old and upward, thro

- No.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5½ x 3½ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. 10 Mercy and truth (gather) righteousness: I kissed each other. 11 Truth shall spring

- No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¼ x 4½ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed. 10 For a day in thy courts is better 10 Gen. 15. 1. 6 Ps. 56. 1. 57. 1. 2 or, all

- No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 1½ inches.

Specimen of Type

8 9 Jē-hōi'-ā-chin was 4 years old when he began t

- No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark $9.50

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

No. 03255x

- As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1½ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

- Nos.
04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and hand-some Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

- 0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

PRAYER.

Blessed be the name of him who says, "I am the way, walk with me." Our perverseness, Father, is our shame. Human ways tend but to confusion. Forgive us if we have thought the Kingdom way may be altered. But for thy Son who died to give us peace and who bequeathed to us his yoke of ease, our strength would be consumed by the weight of days. That "It is written" forever stands and that the yoke of Jesus does not bend, praises forevermore be to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. Amen. L.

A PENTECOST IN INDIA.

By JAMES F. EDWARDS, Missionary.

(We wonder what those earnest souls who pray daily for a Pentecost in the church will think of the following which tells of such a Pentecost? And we wonder further what those will think, should any of them read it, who say that money sent abroad for Missions is largely wasted and that in order to win the world to Christ we need to keep what we have at home? Think of it! "Twelve thousand people a month bowing the knees to Jesus for regeneration of life and character. 'Nothing like it,' according to Missionary Edwards, "in all history; this rate of increase is faster than the conversion of the Roman Empire," but read this wonderful story given first-hand by one on the field in the July number of The Missionary Herald.—J. O. A.):

When the figures of last year's Indian census are analyzed they show that in a decade when the increase in India's population was unusually large, the rate of increase in the number of those returned as Christians has been more than three times the rate of increase in the general population, and that, during a period of such far-reaching disturbance as the Non-Cooperation Movement in the early part of the decade and the Civil Disobedience Movement at its close.

The increase of nearly a million and a half in ten years means nearly one hundred and fifty thousand a year, or a steady unbroken addition of over twelve thousand every month of those who are publicly accepting Christ.

This means that in spite of all our difficulties and perplexities and personal imperfections we are really in the midst of a wonderful Pentecost, and that before our very eyes God is answering the prayer of Christendom that by the power of his Holy Spirit he would lead India to Christ. As far as our own knowledge of the history of Christianity goes, there has hitherto been no land and no age when twelve thousand people a month were bowing the knee to Jesus for regeneration of life and character. This rate of increase is faster than the conversion of the Roman Empire, as Sherwood Eddy pointed out some years ago.

The Ideals of Jesus Accepted.

The words of the late Sir Narayan Chandavarkar—"The ideals that lie at the heart of the Gospel are slowly but surely permeating every part of Hindu society, and modifying every phase of Hindu thought"—apply with greater force than ever today. None can watch India and its movements for uplift without being driven to the conclusion that the Spirit of Christ is the most tremendous force at work amid the ferment of India's religious and social reforms. The ideals of Jesus are more and more accepted all over the land, and these ideals have left their stamp on thousands of students who have gone through Christian colleges. The Indian Church has come to be a power in India, an example to all other communities, so inspiring an example, indeed, that the presence of a successor to the late K. T. Paul in the Round Table Conference was held to be a national necessity, hence the appointment of that other non-communal Indian Christian statesman, Dr. C. K. Datta.

What Part Has the Missionary in This?

The editor of one of the leading non-Christian weeklies in India not long since stated that he believed the leaders of the Christian Movement in India subjected themselves to a more remorseless process of self-criticism than any other set of people of whom he could think. Since, therefore, our Christian leaders, both Indian and non-Indian, so constantly realize the imperfect aspects of their work, it is in no sense unhealthy that they should receive with gratitude the fine chit that so keen an observer as Lord Irwin gave them last July, for we are sure that "the spirit of service" to which he alluded helps to explain the splendid spiritual harvest of the past ten years. Speaking at the Central Hall, Westminster, London, to the assembled Missionary Societies of Great Britain, he stated:

"The missionaries are doing work of quite incalculable value in India. And their most powerful sermons are their own lives. The work of missionaries is something to be recorded in the history of India. As a result, Christ's name stands high in India today. . . . I am sure Mr. Gandhi knows, as we do, that the work springs only from the irresistible impulse of men and women who, knowing themselves to possess a treasure trove beyond price, long to share it with their fellows, and are impelled by the value they attach to each human soul to spend themselves in lifting the fallen, ministering to the oppressed, and bringing hope to those who have never before known its meaning. Truly, it is by the spirit of service that these men are inspired."

Will Swa-Raj Check Christian Progress?

With complete self-government in India we believe Jesus Christ will have a greater opportunity than ever before. Western India may not yet have the great Christian numbers to show that some other parts have, but when Mr. G. Devadhar, the president of the Servants of India Society, the model social reform agency of India, tells his Jubilee meeting that he received his first challenge to social service for India from the example and teaching of Western India missionaries, there is nothing about which there is need to be discouraged. It is our growing conviction that if Mission Boards in the West and Indian churches and Missions will go on with their patient sowing of the true Christian message, if they will ensure the training of teachers and of preachers and workers of all kinds for the Indian church, and above all, if that church will insist on that voluntary service which means every disciple of Jesus doing some work for him in the home and in every part of Indian society, then there is sure to be a still grander harvest all over India. The question is: Is Jesus Christ going to have in West and East alike a church holy enough and Christ-like enough to reap the harvest when the hour comes?

If you pray for a man sufficiently often and sufficiently fervently, and in secret, you cannot but love that man, even were he Alexander the Coppersmith.—William Law.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING JULY 16, 1932.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 2,956.44
Wentworth, McCullers, N. C.	3.15
Durham, N. C.	5.67
Leaksville, Stanley, Va.	1.98
First Christian, Winchester, Va.	2.96
Berea (Norfolk), Berkley, Va.	8.46
Mt. Auburn, Manson, N. C.	1.25
Bethlehem, Altamahaw, N. C.	9.68
Elm Avenue, Portsmouth, Va.	2.60
Third Avenue, Danville, Va.	4.74
Total	$ 2,996.93

Individual and Church Offerings.

Previously acknowledged	$ 2,747.51
Liberty Spring, Holland, Va.	18.00
Mt. Olivet (R), Elkton, Va.	1.11
Berea (Nans.), Driver, Va.	13.25
Total	$ 2,779.87

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$ 1,552.49
Wakefield Christian Church Endeavor Society, Wakefield, Va.	2.00
United Bank and Trust Co., Burlington, N. C., cash received as per re-opening plan, Treasurer's Account, Home Missions	18.07
United Bank and Trust Co., Burlington, N. C., cash received as per re-opening plan, Treasurer's Account, Foreign Missions	16.00
United Bank and Trust Co., Burlington, N. C., cash received as per re-opening plan, Secretary's Account	146.15
Western N. C. S. S. and C. E. Convention	10.67
Eastern N. C. S. S. and C. E. Convention	1.46
Total	$ 1,746.84

Coin Card Offering.

Previously acknowledged	$ 155.53
Mrs. I. J. Carden, Mebane, N. C., Mt. Zion Church	1.00
Jule Pace, Mebane, N. C., Mt. Zion Church	1.00
I. T. McAdams, Mebane, N. C., Mt. Zion Church	1.00
Worth Lynch Mebane, N. C., Mt. Zion Church	1.00
Young Ladies' Bible Class, First Christian Sunday School, Winchester, Va.	1.00
Mrs. J. A. Wilson, Middleburg, N. C., Mt. Auburn Church	1.00
Total	$ 161.53

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$16,748.00
Sunday Schools, regular, July 16, 1932..	40.49
Individual and Church Offerings, July 16	32.36
Specials, July 16, 1932.....	194.35
Coin Card Offering, July 16, 1932.....	6.00
Total to date	$17,021.20

Those who received and placed the Coin Cards ten weeks ago should now, please, call the roll for them, receive them at the church or school, enter the amount, and send the same in. Thanks to each and every one.

J. O. ATKINSON, Mission Sec'y.

Why are we so glad to talk and take our turns to prattle, when so rarely we get back to the stronghold of our silence with unwounded conscience?—Thomas A. Kempis.

QUARTERLY REPORT.

The report of the treasurer of the N. C. C. Woman's Missionary Conference, for the third quarter, ending July 15, 1932, is presented, as follows:

Woman's Societies.

Antioch	$ 2.00
Burlington	144.76
Durham	34.96
Elon College	67.15
Hank's Chapel	5.40
Haw River	8.84
Hebron	1.90
Henderson	50.00
High Point	1.00
Howard's Chapel	5.00
Lebanon	3.25
Liberty (Va.)	3.00
Liberty (Vance)	27.00
Mt. Auburn	7.50
Mt. Bethel	4.25
New Lebanon	7.50
New Hope	2.60
Palm Street, Greensboro.....	4.50
Pleasant Hill	6.75
Pleasant Ridge	5.00
Piney Plains	8.00
Parks Cross Roads	4.00
Raleigh	37.50
Reidsville	50.00
Sanford	27.47
Shallow Well	23.00
Virgilina (Union)	12.25
	$ 554.58

Young People's Societies.

Durham	$ 8.00
Graham	2.03
High Point	2.10
Ramseur	10.00
Reidsville	10.00
	32.13

Willing Workers' Societies.

Durham	3.05
	4.53

Junior Willing Workers' Societies

Durham	4.53
--------------	------

Cradle Roll Societies.

Burlington	$ 18.73
Durham	1.52
Liberty (Vance) Memorials.....	2.00
	22.25

District Meetings.

Guilford	$ 7.58
Halifax	6.17
Lee, Chatham	4.40
Randolph	2.30
Vance, Warren	6.75
Wake, Durham	4.26
	31.47
Total	$ 648.01

MRS. W. R. SELLARS, Treas.

Burlington, N. C.

A LITTLE BROWN CHURCH IN THE HILLS.

Have you ever thought how many souls are drawn closer to God as they sing those beloved words:

"No spot is so dear to my childhood
As the little brown church in the vale."

Just the thought of some little church, somewhere, holds many souls for God.

If that memory of your childhood church was wiped out forever—if it had never been—just what would you be? Have you ever thought what your life might have been had it not been for that little church way back in the past where your father and mother prayed and sang?

My dear reader, I have no such memory. There was no little church for me in my childhood. There was no church where my mother and father prayed and sang. In place of the Sunday School lesson and the Bible being read at bed-time, I heard only tales of murder, ghosts and witches. This is what is always found in the homes of those who have no church.

Of course, there were churches in Carroll County, but I am trying to say that we did not have one in this part. And I could count the times that I was in any church in my early days.

The people of the hills probably have a stronger faith in God, in their way, than any other people, but they don't do much about it. Just sometimes some teacher would start up a little Sunday School in this part, but with no church or pastor to back it, it soon went down. And that is as near as I ever came to having a church in my childhood days.

Can you imagine how sweet it is to me to hear a church-bell in these hills, and to know it is our church? Now the children going out from here can carry with them the memory of "a little brown church in the hills." They have a church to come home to and to love. And I look forward to the day when we can have one of the biggest and best churches. I am dreaming of great things for the hills. Our young people are fine, and many are talented in music.

Let your prayers follow our Hilly Grissoms over the mountain trails. They find these trails steep at times, though they never complain. They would not do that. Though there will be many a heartache that will never go into print, and therefore, never be known to the public.

They made one trip down a trail so steep that Mr. Grissom had to carry the baby with one hand and pull Mrs. Grissom up with the other. Then, when I asked her about the trip, she smiled and said: "Why, it was beautiful down there!"

How is that for a little lady who is from the flat country? And do you blame me for dreaming of great things for our little church in the hills? These Grissoms are sure to win.

V. E.

OUR BEST FRIENDS.

(This oration was delivered by a young student of the Azabu Middle School against fifteen competitors from other schools in Yokohama and Tokio, Japan, and won the prize, a large silver cup. As I did the training, some people said I shared the honor.—A. D. WOODWORTH.):

A dog is said to be our best friend. Many people emphasize money as the best means of happiness and safety, and spend their lives in its accumulation. They think that money is their best friend. But if suddenly we were asked who our best friends are, how many of us would answer, "They are our father and mother?"

Do we consider the months and years when we were helplessly dependent upon them? The hours of wakefulness and care which our parents gave to us in times of sickness? Do we remember the labor and expense which they lavished upon us to clothe us, to educate us and help prepare us for the numerous and difficult duties of life?

We need strong bodies for life's conflicts. Who gave them to us but our parents? It is not uncommon to see small boys and girls, children of defective parents, themselves born defective, with defective eyes, defective digestion and a defective nervous constitution? But if, on the other hand, we are born with sound minds in sound bodies, we have to give grateful thanks to our fathers and mothers who have bestowed on us their vital strength and energy.

But strength of body and mind are not all that we have received. If these were all, we might be no better off than the wild beasts of the jungle, which have also strength of body and keenness of mind which make them the mighty hunters for their prey. Our parents have given us their love, and in return, have awakened affection in our own hearts. They have inspired us with a desire that our lives shall not be merely those of strong animals, but that we should be noble men, able to control and use our bodies for noble purposes, teaching us that we should be true and noble men.

As we study the lives of such men as Abraham Lincoln, and see the heights to which he climbed, the good he did as the emancipator of millions of slaves, and the example of lofty character which he set before the world, we are reminded of this lofty saying of his: "All that I am and all that I have, I owe to my dear mother."

If it be true that "the boy is the father of the man," it is just as true that the boy owes his ideals of life to the example and precepts which his father and mother have handed down to him. In our country, filial piety has always been esteemed as among the highest virtues. Shall we not then give to our parents, who are our best friends, that loyalty and love which are due to them? Shall we not honor them, not only by our words, but by the noble deeds of our lives? Shall we not also remember that we young men of today are to be the fathers, and the young women the mothers, of the next generation of Japanese people? As we look up to our parents and give them reverence, shall we not make it our ambition to build up our bodies and minds and character that we may be proper examples to the boys and girls that are yet to be? Some of us may have money to bequeath to their children, but while most of us will probably be poor, it is the privilege of all the fathers and mothers to bequeath to their children the priceless legacy of a noble life and a noble example.

A poet says of his father:

"Always my counselor, always my friend,
Always with patience his help would lend,
Always at hand when life's problems I met,
Through all my lifetime my best friend yet,
Always consistent, understanding my case,
Midst all my troubles, there shone his kind face."

So, an ancient prophet said, "Honor thy father and thy mother that thy days may be long on the earth which the Lord thy God giveth thee." So, if I were to offer a toast before you today, it would be this: "All honor to our fathers and mothers, our best friends and true."

THE NEED OF CONVERSION.

Our weakness as a Church is that so many of us fall short of the full conversion to Christ. It is of little use to have dignity, order, beautiful forms of worship, noble architecture, if we lack the one thing that can give life and meaning to it all.

Conversion to Jesus Christ does not conflict with the reality of our sacraments; conversion means awakening to, and using the mighty blessings given to us in the sacraments. I believe with my whole soul in the Holy Catholic, and Apostolic Church, but I know that the Church is dead, that it is only a husk, unless it is filled with people who are converted and whose lives and influence are bringing others to Christ. If the New Testament is true Jesus Christ can be known today, and is to be known, by each of us as really as we know each other.—Bishop W. T. Manning, in the Living Church.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, Waverly, Va.

YOUTH AND YELLOW JOURNALISM.

Every child and young person carries in his or her mind a dormant desire for something thrilling, something exciting. They are seeking something that will give them social recognition. The mind is a great laboratory in which many experiments are performed, making the training of children and young people in Christian living of immense value. In this "Century of Christian Progress" the agile minds of young people may be poisoned by the wrong kind of literature.

With these facts in mind, we turn to the daily newspapers filled with stories of killings, suicides, robberies, breakings-in, and gun play between the racketeers and policemen. Any child who is inclined in the least to be a hero worshiper, may admire the successes and failures of such activities. How can a Christian nation promising liberty, justice and freedom to all be so blind as to pay millions and millions of dollars daily for their children to become prospective criminals in the future by reading such accounts. The young mind is like unto the potter's clay, it can be molded in any way. Few of the Summer Service workers, Sunday School workers, and workers in the Youth Fellowship realize how much their little deeds of service are doing to stem the onslaught of a great crime wave.

Recently, several of the leading newspapers of our country stated that religion and the church no longer had a place in our modern civilization. Such statements may prove disastrous if they are weighed by serious-minded young men and women. This writer is of the opinion that young people should not make any such mistakes as these because they hold within their grasp the destiny of the young people and the nation.

CARL R. KEY.

WORSHIP.

While I was attending the Elon Summer Conference, I learned all over again the real meaning of worship. Each morning at 8:00 o'clock, the group went to Chapel or Morning Devotion, which was led by Mrs. Marian Parsons. At these morning services we worshipped the Lord in hymn, scripture and poetry. These services were uplifting, and helped us to go through the day with sweeter and cleaner minds.

Then each evening at the close of the day when man can feel closer to God through nature, we met for Vesper services. These were interesting because they served as a sort of laboratory where the young people who were taking Miss Coghill's course in "Training in Worship and Devotional Life," could carry out the ideas which they were learning in the classroom.

The young people taking this course were required to hand in a worship service made up by themselves. Miss Coghill was kind enough to turn these papers over to me, and I am passing them on to you. There is space for two of these programs this month.

The first is by Inez Duncan, Ingram, Va.:

THEME: "Courage and Faith."

Prelude—"Faith of Our Fathers."

Call to Worship—Responsive Reading by two young people:

Leader—"Trust in Jehovah with all thine heart and lean not upon thine own understanding."

Response—"Behold, God is my salvation; I will trust, and not be afraid, for Jehovah is my strength and song."

Leader—"Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong."

Response—"The Lord God will help me, therefore have I not been confounded; therefore have I set my face like a flint, and I know that I shall not be put to shame. Therefore, will we be strong and of good courage:

"The Lord of hosts is with us;

Blessed be His holy name."

Hymn—"My Faith Looks Up to Thee."

Leader's Talk—(Outline):

1. Joy that follows faith and courage.
2. Suffering and persecution endured by the fathers of old.
3. How courageous are followers "in spite of dungeon, fire and sword," their faith is still living to challenge the loyalty and courage of God's people everywhere.
4. The necessity for us to put our faith and trust in God and live courageous lives.

Prayer—God of our fathers and all, give us courage and faith to face the trials that come to everyone. May our faith rest entirely in thee, and by courageous lives, perform the duties of life. We ask it in the name of Him, whom we can trust with all our hearts. Amen.

Poem—"Faith":

"What if I say
That Jesus Christ is Lord divine;
Yet fellow pilgrims can behold
Naught of the Master's love in me
No grace of kindly sympathy?
If I am of the Shepherd's fold
Then shall I know the Shepherd's voice,
And gladly make His way my choice.
We are saved by faith, yet faith is one
With life, like daylight and the sun
Unless they flower in our deeds,
Dead empty husks are all the creeds.
To call Christ, Lord, but strive to obey,
Belies the homage with what words I pray."

—Maud Fraser Jackson.

Reading—Since without faith we cannot be courageous, and both are so closely related, one to the other, may our faith be increased as we hear read:

"Faith scales the dungeon wall, and through the bars
Beholds her future written in the stars:
She reads her kindred with infinity,
And waits the moment that will set her free."

"Hope sings her lyric when the path is steep,
And watches for the morning without sleep;
When courage falters at the long delay
Her voice is first to hail the dawning day."

Hymn—"My Life, My Love, I Give to Thee."

Closing Prayer—Help us, our Father, to see the real beauty of faith and through it be of much courage. May we be able to fear nothing, knowing "The Lord is our Shepherd." Amen.

The second service is by Ruth Duke, of Elon College, N. C.:

THEME—"Life."

Hymn—"Holy, Holy, Hly."

Call to Worship—

"Blind and stumbling
Weak and thoughtless
Selfish are these hearts of ours,
O, our Master;
But with all our faithlessness
Thou lovest us."

Response—

"True love is born and exists
In a realm beyond this world
In God Himself;
In God, and God alone,
When our souls are silent before Him."

Poem—"A Psalm of Life":

"Tell me not in mournful numbers
Life is but an empty dream,
For the soul is dead that slumbers
And things are not what they seem."

"Life is real! Life is earnest!
And the grave is not its goal.
Dust thou art, to dust returnest
Was not spoken of the soul."

"Not enjoyment, and not sorrow
Is our destined end or way:
But to act that each tomorrow
Finds us farther than today."

"Art is long and time is fleeting
And our hearts tho' stout and brave
Still like muffled drums, are beating
Funeral marches to the grave."

"In the world's broad field of battle
In the bivouac of life
Be not like dumb driven cattle,
Be a hero in the strife."

"Trust no future, however pleasant,
Let the dead past bury its dead:
Act—act, in the living present,
Heart within and God o'erhead."

"Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime
And, departing, leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time."

"Footprints, that perhaps another
Sailing o'er life's solemn main,
A forlorn and shipwrecked brother
Seeing, shall take heart again."

"Let us, then, be up and doing,
With a heart for any fate,
Still achieving, still pursuing—
Learn to labor and to wait."

Leader—May we bow our heads in a moment of silent prayer, and continuing in prayer, sing 1st verse of "Jesus Saviour, Pilot Me."

Response—"Jesus Saviour, Pilot Me."

Speaker—"The Desire to Live a Better Life."

Hymn—"Father, I Know that All My Life."

Benediction.

MABEL SMITH,

Devotional Life Superintendent.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

"WHAT IS GAMBLING? WHY IS IT WRONG?"

In the worship service, use for your scripture lesson Prov. 13:5-11; and for your theme: "Well-Founded Trust in God." These hymns have been suggested: "Praise Him, Praise Him," "For the Beauty of the Earth," "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," and "Rock of Ages."

This is a question we should approach tactfully and thoughtfully. Gambling is rank paganism. There is nothing in Christian thought or teaching that encourages chance or getting without earning, or pursuing a pastime that has evil effects. Every influence of true Christianity is and has always been against gambling, whether in its gross or its petty developments. "The lucky breaks" that the gambler seeks is we miss in this lesson the implied promise of God to provide his people with the daily bread for which the Christ commanded us to pray. There has not been a time when this lesson has been so

(Continued on page 11.)

Sunday School Lesson

BY REV. STANLEY C. HARRELL.

THE GIVING OF THE MANNA.

LESSON V.—JULY 31, 1932.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights."—James 1:17.

LESSON TEXT: Exodus 16:1-36.

TIME: B. C. 1491.

PLACE: The Wilderness of Sin.

In the lesson of last Sunday, we studied the miraculous deliverance of the children of Israel at the Red Sea. It would seem that after such a wonderful experience that the Israelites would have been established in an unshakable confidence in God. The Red Sea incident spoke clearly and definitely of God's care and protection. It was a monumental experience of divine power. The fact that it did not make a more lasting impression upon the minds of the people is an evidence of the weakness of miracles as a basis of faith. If people are to be held in the way of faith through miracles, it requires a great miracle today and a still greater one tomorrow.

The shores of the Red Sea were scarcely out of sight before the minds of the people were centered upon the question of food. It was a vital issue. A casual reading of Exodus gives us no idea of what a multitude of people Moses was responsible for. Conservative estimates fix the number of people that went out from Egypt as three million. Exodus 12:37 gives the number of men as six hundred thousand. It was no small task to feed so great a number of people, moving as nomads through a strange country.

We make a mistake, however, if we think of the wilderness country through which they were passing as desert. The Old Testament describes as wilderness, country that is not thickly inhabited and intensively cultivated. But to the individual that is lacking in faith there are always difficulties that seem insurmountable; and to him that is disposed to grumble, there are always ample grounds for complaint. The people set up a mighty wail against Moses and Aaron. They wished that they were back again in Egypt that they might enjoy the bounty of that land. There are always people to whom an empty stomach outweighs all advantages that life may offer.

The way that the Lord responded to their complaints is an evidence of his graciousness. He heard their murmurings as if they had been prayers, and immediately promised to give them bread and meat. The meat came in the form of immense flocks of quail that settled down about the camps. The bread was sent in the form of small particles that covered the ground like frost. It had the shape and size of small seeds, and when cooked was of a delicious flavor.

The name "manna" by which we have come to call this God-given food, means in Hebrew, "What is it?" And the word in its ancient Hebrew meaning is still the most appropriate name that could be given to it. All attempts to supply an explanation of the feeding of the Israelites in terms of natural agencies have failed. There is a tree that still abounds in that section which exudes a substance very like the description of the manna upon which the Israelites were fed. But the entire peninsula does not provide over five hundred pounds. While during the forty years of the wilderness sojourn, six days in every week there was found enough for every individual to gather between a half gallon and three quarts.

Perhaps we do well to see in the manna a type of the Christ, who was to testify of himself, "I am the bread of life." But it seems to me that sorely needed in a great many years. There are thousands who sorely fear that starvation is to be their lot. A short time ago we felt that the marvels of science could supply all human needs. It now becomes apparent that our condition would have been far better had we relied upon the kindly care of a loving heavenly Father.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

(Continued from page 10.)

absolutely opposed to the God that Christ reveals—one who works according to law and order, yet in the spirit of love is both just and merciful and is ever ready to hear and answer prayer.

Ask two or three young people to prepare a definition of gambling, using a dictionary if needed. Have some one make a study in your community. What forms prevail? Are young people or old people participants? Try to arrive at some method of eliminating such practices. Note the different things your community will class as gambling.

Gambling is like the many-tentacled octopus—you will find it appearing in various forms. These may be used in discussion groups: "Adventuring, The Bible and Gambling," "How Much is Bet," "Gambling, the Greedy Man's Grab," "Threatened by His Own Nemesis," "Huge Profits of Organized Gambling," "Gambling Takes Bread from Children," "Gambler's Money Corrupts Government," "Gambling Takes Many Forms," "Something for Nothing," "Somebody Always Loses," and "Avoid the Appearance of Evil."

It doesn't matter what our social standing or customs are, it all depends on the principle of the thing whether we gamble or not. Paul says: "It is good not to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, not to do anything whereby my brother stumbleth."

Questions for Discussion—"In what sense is gambling ever guilty of deceit or lying?" "How can one make his conscience, his inner sense of right, his best policeman?" "What kind of riches has the fleetest wings with which to escape from us?" "How can one be poor and yet have great wealth? What kind of wealth?" "In what sense do the poor enjoy life more than the rich?" "Who do you think tend to live longest, the good or the evil? Why?" "What nations could you cite as causing contention by pride in their armies and navies?" "Why do ill-gotten gains slip more easily away?" and "How do small means help make people thrifty?"

PROGRAM.

Following is the program of the Young People's Congress of the Eastern Virginia Conference, to be held with the Bethlehem Church, July 26, 1932. "Youth's Present-Day Calls to Service" will be the theme of the session:

Morning Session—9:30 o'Clock.

Call to order.....President
Invocation.....Dr. W. D. Harward
Pledge to the U. S. flag and the church.
Songs service.....Miss Mary Rawles Jones
Worship service.....Mr. Watson Cobb
Welcome.....Miss Doris Eure
Response.....Mr. Fletcher Raiford
President's message.....Mr. C. E. Warrington
Business session.
Special music....Misses Estelle and Francis Cotton
Address—"The Call of Youth in Recreation, Rev. H. S. Hardeastle.
Special music.....Cypress Chapel
Chalk Talk—"The Call of Youth in Prohibition," Dr. Ed. J. Richardson, Supt. of Anti-Saloon League of Virginia.
Roll call of churches.
Adjournment for lunch.

Afternoon Session—2:30 o'Clock.

Call to order.....President
Song service.....Miss Mary Rawles Jones
Worship service.....Miss Louise Pitman
"Purpose of Youth Fellowship".....Rev. Carl Key
Business session.
Installation of officers.
Special music.....Miss Charlotte Morgan
Address—"Youth and Missions."
Special music....Misses Claudine and Katherine Barrett
Closing service.....Rev. F. C. Lester

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1½ Inches Thick.

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3¼x5½ Inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3¼x5½ Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps.....$2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5½x8½ Inches and 1½ Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Lavant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.75

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond Virginia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."—II. Chron. 7:14.

MONDAY.

LESSON: James 3 (Be sure to read.)

"Every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give an account thereof in the day of Judgment."—Matt. 12:36.

Moffatt: "For every careless word that men shall utter."

A recent writer has said that Dr. Moffatt has not improved upon the understanding of this passage by changing the word "idle" to "careless," except in its suggestiveness. That suggestiveness comes in this way: Idle words may be interpreted to refer to mere useless speech, ordinary words which flow as the product of imagination, jocular brandishments and expletive outbursts.

Careless words are those that run like the pattern of Solomon's wives, or the drippings of a leaky spigot, and such careless words may be busy words, in fact the busier our words the more careless they are liable to be.

It is understood that our Lord does not mean that mere jest, good humor, or even useless speech shall be charged to our lives as sin, but that the endless flow of words void of understanding, and which have no background of thought or flavor of personality useful to mankind, piles up an enormous liability for Judgment Day, because life has a meaning and that high meaning should flow in all our conversation.

The person who is not "gifted with flashes of silence," or who does not acquire the gift of being "still and knowing God," by dint of self-control, is bound to have mostly careless words.

"A fool's voice (cometh with a multitude of words . . . and vanities in many words; but fear thou God." (Eccl. 5:3, 7.)

"He whose spirit is without restraint is like a city that is broken down and without walls." (Prov. 5:28.)

"If any man among you seem to be religious, and bridled not his tongue . . . this man's religion is vain." (Jas. 1:26.)

"Not that which goeth into the mouth defileth a man; but that which comes out of the mouth, this defileth a man." (Matt. 15:11.)

The control of the tongue seems to be the message, and every day is a judgment of what we have said.

Prayer—Our Father, we pray to thee for the baptism of the Holy Spirit in our inner soul, that we may boast only in the power and glory of God through the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ. Give us control in all things and specially in our speech in all we say, that those who hear us may be edified. This we ask for Jesus sake. Amen.

TUESDAY.

HEARTS WAXED GROSS.

"The people's heart is waxed gross."—Matt. 13:15.

In this text we are told that "gross" means "dulled." A mind is dulled when it is dominated by things. To be obsessed with mere things is like being under the influence of drink, one's mind becomes befuddled, proportions and perspectives are lost, understanding is hazy. If life is lived in terms of outward possessions and void of spiritual significance and values, it is clouded and one cannot grasp the finer issues and interests of life.

Prayer—Our Father from whom all blessings flow, and who art the Blessor of all spiritual blessings, shine thou in our lives through all the things about us, and give unto us spiritual vision to penetrate clear through to all that is noblest and best. In Christ's name we ask it. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

CHRIST SHOCKED PEOPLE.

"The Pharisees were offended, after they heard these things."—Matt. 15:12.

Weymouth: "The Pharisees were shocked."

Jesus never tried to shock people, but he often did, and it seems that he was never afraid to do so, if it were necessary. He came into the world, as he says, "to bear witness unto the truth," and sometimes the truth shocked.

Christ had just reproved the Pharisees for not honoring Father and Mother and making the commandments of God of none effect by certain outward traditions, teaching the commandments of men rather than of God. They were rebuked for drawing nigh unto him with their mouth, and honoring him with their lips; but their hearts were far from him.

Jesus seems to have shocked their dignity. One commentator says, "imagine how a cautious adviser may have said, 'Now, Master, of course your ideas of the importance of ceremonial cleansing are all right, but don't say them out bluntly. There is a way to say it without offending. These are very influential people and if you would succeed you cannot afford to offend them. Put it this way: 'You are greatly to be honored for your devotion to traditions, but there is another point of view that will bear looking into.'"

If Jesus had spoken in that strain, what would you think of him? He would not so much as make an impression. Jesus came to build a new way for the salvation of humanity, and building a new road requires blasting. The test of an electric wire is its ability to shock. That indicates life. The test of Christian character is often found in its ability to shock people. A Christian life is different and often opposed to traditions.

"Let not kindness and truth forsake thee." (Prov. 3:3.)

"He that uttereth truth showeth forth righteousness." (Prov. 12:17.)

"They that deal truly are a delight to the Lord." (Prov. 12:22.)

Prayer—Our Father in heaven, come thou and dwell in our hearts and lives this day, and give us the courage to show forth thy truth and thy love and mercy in all our days. Amen.

THURSDAY.

JESUS AND THE AVERAGE MAN.

"And Jesus said, are ye also yet without understanding?"—Matt. 15:16.

Moffatt: "Are ye totally ignorant?"

Peter was among those apostles who had come to Jesus to tell him that the Pharisees were shocked at what he had said, and it appears that he would insist on Jesus telling him why it was necessary for him to shock these people. Jesus asks Peter, if he too, like them, is ignorant of what he is talking about. He explains to Peter how it is that it is not that which enters in at the mouth that defiles a man, but that which comes out of the mouth.

Although there is a clear note of exasperation here, Jesus explains patiently. Jesus never treats any one with scorn, no matter how humble, or how slow to understand.

Scorn is one of the most dangerous emotions any one can allow himself to feel. It spoils one's whole spirit. It is common to perch one's self upon some height of superiority and call some one a "boob," "moron," etc. Jesus' attitude furnishes a sharp contrast to such disdain. No matter how slow one may be to get in motion, he had respect for him, and he went to work patiently to share the truth with him. Jesus had a deep penetration into the larger values of ordinary men, and it was through these very men he brought the Kingdom of God into the world. This is a challenge to us to follow him in this spirit also.

Prayer—Our Father, it is human to err, but thou dost teach us that it is divine to follow Christ. O God, may we follow thee in true humility all the way. Amen.

FRIDAY.

"And they reasoned among themselves."

"And he said unto them . . . do ye not yet understand?"—Matt. 16:7-8.

This solemn warning against becoming like the Pharisees which Jesus had given had gone over their heads, and they were "discussing something" among themselves. They seemed to be arguing over a lunch basket.

How often since that time have Christians given themselves to lengthy discussions as trivial as the contents of a lunch basket, and missed the message that Jesus had for them?

"Ye tithe mint, anni and cummin and neglect the weightier matters of the Kingdom."

Shall we make Jesus continue to say, "Why do ye doubt?"

Prayer—O Lord, our God, we dedicate ourselves to thee this day to follow thee all the way the best we can. Help us to forget the lesser for the greater and know thy will. In his name we ask it. Amen.

SATURDAY.

TIRED OF SHERLOCK.

"Thou, Jehovah, hast made me glad through thy work; I will triumph in the works of thy hands."—Read Psalm 92:1-10.

When Sir Conan Doyle was celebrating his seventy-first birthday, he declared that the world and seen the last of his famous character, Sherlock Holmes. He said he was tired of hearing himself described as the author of "Sherlock Holmes."

In the only conversation I ever had with Thomas Bailey Aldrich, I spoke of my pleasure in reading his famous "Story of a Bad Boy." "I'm sorry I ever wrote that book!" he exclaimed. Of course, he had written much of higher literary charm, but he need not have been ashamed of his renown among the boys.

Many of us are best known for work of which we think the least just because it is easiest for us to do; but for that reason it is probably our best work. No matter what it is, let us be glad and triumphant in the achievement, because it is the work not only of our hands but of His.

Prayer—Co-worker with thee, O God! What honor is greater than that? And is it for thy assistant to select the task? Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.

HERD TYRANNY.

"Be not afraid . . . for all the multitude." Read II. Chronicles 32:1-8.

In a strong essay, President Morgan of Antioch (Continued on page 15.)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

THE FORGOTTEN CHRIST.

"And when they found him not, they turned back again to Jerusalem."—Luke 2:45.

There are two pictures in the world never to be forgotten. One is of that group with faces turned from Jesus, the other is that group with faces turned toward him. We may stand aloof and look upon those two groups—those facing toward Jesus, and those facing from him, and forget that our faces are turned one way or the other. But we need not forget, for the light on our face, the love in our heart, and the labor of our hands will eventually disclose to the whole world whether our face was to or from the Christ!

How the words in our text race back toward Jerusalem! "Turned" to Jerusalem; "turned back" to Jerusalem; "turned back again" to Jerusalem! How they re-double upon themselves! When Mary and Joseph found their faces turned away from Jesus they went back, back, back, seeking him!

The Lindbergh kidnapping story had covered the land. Fear had been driven into the hearts of thousands of parents of little children. We awoke one morning a little after sunrise and went in to our two-year-old baby's bedroom only to find her bed empty! For a moment it was appalling to see that empty bed. A brief search soon discovered the child out on the lawn in her nighties. How our hearts went back, back, back; out, out, out in search for her. How the heart of God must hunt his own.

Not long ago a little six-year-old girl in Cincinnati was lured along down a back alley, and was later found dead in a discarded basement. It is far worse to turn our faces away from God.

I.

What an array of folk have turned their faces away from Jesus. Before he was born, the innkeeper in Bethlehem began the procession; then Herod falls in line and seeks to murder him as a Babe, but he might as well have tried his hand at blotting the stars out of the sky; then Mary and Joseph unluckily find themselves almost in the procession, but with their hearts in their throats they raced back to Jerusalem to find him; the multitudes began to follow him for the bread he could furnish, the forgiveness he could offer, and the life he could give, but soon, for one reason or another, they began to turn their faces from him. Priests moved by jealousy, and the Pharisees moved by hate; young men for lack of courage, and older for lack of conscience turned away.

Good men, like the rich, young ruler; and worthy men like the one who came by night, began to leave him. What did they gain by leaving him? What has history said about their perfidy? What good deeds have they done with their faces set away from the Saviour of men? All save the disciples on one occasion left him. Jesus asked them if they would also go. Had they gone he would, no doubt, have found an even humbler group from the highways and hedges and would have written their names imperishably upon the pillar-stones of a redeemed world! Judas did eventually go. How my heart yearns to see those I love stay by the Christ and the church, because Judas went away. I do not like the results of facing away from the holiest and best the world has to offer! Peter's path of penitence led him back, humbling himself like a little child at the very feet of Jesus. If you should ask me what good deed Peter did while his old salt face was set away from Jesus, I would answer with the thanks of untold millions: He turned around and repented.

We are told that they all forsook him, and fled. And when dying for all on the cross, Jesus cried, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" But it seems that God had not forgotten him. And God had not forgotten him, for he led them forth conquerors and to conquer.

II.

What a beautiful sight it is to behold those whose faces are turned toward Jesus. There they are, never to be forgotten: Mary, the mother of Jesus, pure and chosen of God; and Mary of Magdala, impure and discarded of men—both faces alike fill with holy love, and undying devotion as they turn toward Jesus Christ. Now I see the face of blind Bartimaeus, weaving blindly back and forth as it turns hopefully toward Jesus; and now the poor cripple at the pool of Bethesda; and again an unhealed and haunted woman who stretches out her hand to touch, if she may the hem of his garment; some with broken bodies, and some with broken hopes; some with seared skin, and others with seared souls; anxious fathers bring their sons, and loving mothers bring their babes; and something happens to every face that longingly turns toward Jesus that makes angels in heaven rejoice.

Peter facing away from Jesus could be frightened out of his wits with the accusations of an innocent little girl, but turned toward Jesus the combined evil forces of Jerusalem and Rome could not shake his courage. How easy it is for us to be floored with some simple thing when we are not in tune with God, and how steadily we battle real life problems and come out conquerors and more than conquerors when our faces are looking to Jesus. Tennyson has Sir Galahad say:

"My good blade carves the casque of men;
My tough lance thrusteth sure;
My strength is as the strength of ten,
Because my heart is pure."

Meeting Jesus in the quiet heart-searching moments of the morning watch, and engaging his companionship, and leadership for the day, will make one able to set one's face as steadfastly toward the New Jerusalem as Jesus set his toward the old and passing one. Consciousness of the companionship of Christ brings achievement and victory.

III.

What a large part of our present generation seems to have lost courage, lost heart, lost the calming, abiding presence of the Christ. Whose fault is this? Is it the Christ's? Or is it the world's? When Mary and Joseph lost Jesus what did they do? Did they join the stock market at Jericho? Or did they seek the gold of Ophir? What did they do? "And when they found him not, they turned back again to Jerusalem, seeking him."

Do you recall that giving by the church to missions had greatly fallen off before this economic collapse came? Do you recall that gifts to large and powerful educational institutions, which institutions had largely separated themselves from the church, increased; while small church-owned and controlled colleges began to suffer even unto their dissolution? Do you recall that church building programs ceased almost completely before the crash in 1929? Is our world now hungry? discouraged? And in many places without present hope and solution? What did Mary and Joseph do when they found Jesus not with them? Why they "turned back again" to the place where he might be found—namely, in God's house of prayer, where they had left him?

We took our money from the altar of prayer and put it in the armaments of destruction; we took our attention away from the evangelizing command of Jesus Christ, and put our trust in far more material things, to put it mildly, we, all too largely, forsook the call to unselfish service in building up a new Christian world order, and turned rather to the machine, and the motor, and the monster implements of war in expectation of a new day. Invention is right. Invention and inspiration form an humble worship of God, are handmaidens of peace and prosperity. In short, let the individuals in the church, the nations which bear the name of Jesus and Christendom at large, start a real "turn back again" to Jesus regime, and a new day will dawn.

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses $22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses
(this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling). $22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00
Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Five of our children had a week's outing that they will long remember. They are members of the 4-H Club in Alamance County, N. C. The Home Demonstrator for the county and the Assistant Farm Demonstrator carried sixty-five of the young boys and girls from the several clubs in the county on a camping trip near Reidsville, N. C. These were divided into four groups, and a captain was elected for each group. One of our girls and two boys were elected captains of three of the groups.

It was not only a camping trip, but was a school, too. They had a graduate nurse to give lessons in first aid, an expert gave lessons in swimming and two of our boys qualified as life savers. Two of our children were elected as the best sports. Two were elected as the best campers. They were taken in the forest and given a lesson in identifying trees, and our children got the following grades: Joe Cox, 99; Burl Duke, 97; Louise Duke, 94; Joe Thompson, 93.

At the close of the camp, our girl captain was voted by the entire camp as having the best group in the camp. You see our children met shoulder to shoulder with the county boys and girls, and won high honors.

Our two girls that went on this trip have been here four years and had never had an opportunity to have a vacation. They are splendid girls and we were delighted to give them this outing.

We have a number of little boys and girls who never get a vacation because of the fact that they have no place to go. It would do them a lot of good if some one would invite them for a few days.

We will thank all the Sunday Schools and individuals who have soap coupons for the Orphanage to mail them at once.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR JULY 21, 1932.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Brought forward	$ 8,615.13
North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
New Lebanon	$ 1.50
Greensboro, Palm Street	6.00
Durham	11.67
Howard's Chapel	3.00
Elon College	6.25
Third Avenue, Danville	4.75
	33.17
Eastern North Carolina Conference:
Mt. Auburn	$ 1.25
Pleasant Union	2.00
Shallow Well	1.60
Youngsville	1.00
Piney Plains	6.50
Wentworth	7.49
Western North Carolina Conference:
High Point	$ 2.40
Burlington	33.66
Pleasant Grove	4.13
Shiloh	1.96
Randleman	1.00
	43.15
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Barrett's	$.95
Berea, Norfolk	5.84
Wakefield	2.22
Mt. Zion	2.45
Union, Surry	3.70
Cypress Chapel	5.41
Elm Avenue	2.29

Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Leaksville	1.33
Special Offerings.
J. Spencer Love, Burlington, N. C.
support of child	$ 60.00
Western Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention....	10.67
Burlington Rotary Club, for dinner	35.25
Eastern Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention....	4.54
R. J. Morgan, support of Morgan children	30.00
Men's Bible Class, Union Southampton Sunday School.....	1.05
Endowments.
Lawrence S. Holt Endowment.....	$150.00
Total for the week	$ 411.86
Grand Total	$ 9,026.99

RELIGIOUS BOOKS

(Any book reviewed in this Department may be had of THE CHRISTIAN SUN at the publisher's price.)

THE CHURCH SCHOOL COMES TO LIFE, by Mildred Hewitt. The Macmillan Co. 341 pp. $2.50.

This book is written especially for Episcopal schools, but its general principles are of value to all schools. It is welcomed in this day of shifting impulses and pioneering efforts in religious education.

While the book is forward looking in all respects, the chapter on building the curriculum is especially noteworthy. Miss Hewitt says in this chapter: "We must teach not only knowledge, but also attitudes and habits. To do this we need in our church schools a planned series of experiences." Again she says: "By curriculum we mean all of the planned activities of the school." And again: "The curriculum of the Church School is really its life, and the life of the school, its curriculum. When learning is interpreted as living, the Church School comes to life."

The positions taken are far in advance of the old-type transmissive curriculum, centered in information to be imparted and acquired. Miss Hewitt is not ready to make the actual experiences of the growing persons in the school its curriculum. When we are ready to do this, we will really have life as the basis of the curriculum, but the Church School itself will have life.

W. A. H.

THE PRAYER LIFE AND TEACHINGS OF JESUS, by A. C. Wicand. Fleming H. Revell Co. 172 pp. $1.50.

Prayer is conceived of religion in action. There appears to be a slight artificiality about the fact that 20 prayer teachings of Jesus are presented and the same number of instances presented from his life. The appendix is greatly enriched by a summary statement of the philosophy of Jesus respecting prayer. Here philosophy involves action, which is not generally conceived as an essential characteristic of philosophy. The atmosphere of the book is good, wholesome, reverent. It supplies a real elixir for life. W. A. H.

Final rejection of God's call to repentance seals destiny, and all men unwilling to settle for their sins at the mercy seat must meet them at the judgment seat.—Selected.

ALL SELF-PRONOUNCING

Holman Testaments

Size, 2½x4½ inches

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Specimen of Type.

AND the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was there.

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles.....	$.50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles.....	.60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....	.85

VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS

2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges.....	.70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....	.90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges.....	1.10

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges.....	.90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included.....	1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4½ inches x ¾ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4½ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2 The three wise men carrying away into Babylon fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Babylon fourteen generations shall Christ be born.

ing interpreted is, God with us. 24 Then Joseph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had said.

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....	$1.00
5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included.....	1.50
5036PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms.....	2.60

COMMAND ATTENTION AND APPROVAL

Holman GEM Testament

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type

CHAPTER 23.

THEN spake Jesus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3¾x4¼ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms.....	$.90
4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....	1.35
4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included.....	1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT

4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....	1.50
---	------

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT

4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms.....	3.00
4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red.....	3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print

Pica, 16mo. Size, 5¾x7¼x¾ inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines.

Specimen of Type.

THE book of Jesus

It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

PSALMS INCLUDED

2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included.....	$1.50
--	--------

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS

Same Large Print as Above

2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included.....	2.95
--	------

RED LETTER EDITION

Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.

2913PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included.....	3.10
--	------

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

FAMILY ALTAR.

(Continued from page 12.)

College, speaks of the tyranny of the herd. He has himself lived where abstinence from strong drink made him almost a social outcast. In reference to the present craze for immodest clothes, he writes: "If modesty and reserve become 'old-fashioned' in a community of young people, any young woman who persists in these traits is considered queer and uninteresting, and is shunned in social affairs."

The cry today is for "personal liberty," but often the personal liberty to be strong and pure and wise is hotly denied by the clamorous herd.

Scarcely is any truth more to be sought than the ardent conviction that "one, with God, is a majority." Let us revise our definition of a multitude. God is always the multitude.

Prayer—May we fear nothing, O Lord, but to oppose thee. Walk thou with us, and though all perils line the road, it will be the pathway of eternal peace. Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

THE MERGER.

(The following is from F. G. Coffin, President, General Convention of the Christian Church):

Dear Friend and Co-Worker:

You will be interested and encouraged in knowing that the Congregational-Christian Union is working to success with a promptness and unanimity beyond the original expectations of its promoters. The generosity and fairness of each organization to the other as we get more deeply into the plans have given a new and forceful testimony of genuine Christian spirit. Our machinery and programs are being co-ordinated in a most encouraging way.

The Union could not have been inaugurated at a more difficult time than during the present depression. The minds of our folks have been absorbed through the pinch of other things. Their contributions have been smaller. This in turn has forced a limitation of expenditures and reduced that personal official visitation which would have given information and guidance in the union, its meaning, details and progress. Notwithstanding all this, the progress has been almost phenomenal.

Unfortunately, in a few cases where our churches had not fully understood the union, representatives of some denominations, strongly inclined to be parasitic in habit, have tried adroitly to alienate such churches to their fellowship. Occasionally a tendency has cropped out in our own fellowship to become insurgent and not enter into the movement, but in the very few such cases, the promotion of this attitude is traceable to individuals whose pique or personal ambition is stimulating it. These same persons have rarely co-operated wholeheartedly in the plans of our own church even before the merger.

There is all encouragement for the new movement. We, above all others, should make such an effort succeed. It brings to partial realization that cardinal principle of union for which our church has stood from its beginning. It enlarges the scope of our fellowship and the extent of our influence in the world. It gives to the churches of other denominations, an encouragement toward that complete unity for which Christ prayed.

"Let us not grow weary in well doing for in due season we shall reap if we faint not." Enter heartily and co-operate fully in the plans of the united church. Whenever possible seek closer fellowship with our new brethren. Privately and publicly rebuke any who attempt to hinder the unanimous and successful consummation of the union and its plans of work.

If your officers can be of any help to you, or provide you with any needed information, do not hesitate to write them.

Columbus, Ohio.

Dishonesty is nowadays substandard. It portrays an inferior quality both in mind and heart. For a man to be strictly honest, he must be honest to himself. Charity begins at home; so does honesty. Integrity is the foundation of a man's character, and, like the foundation of any structure that is well built, will stand and can be trusted to weather the storms and to stand as a monument to those who designed it. Employers learned long ago that those who are dishonest for them will be dishonest with them. Consult any successful business man, and he will tell you that "honesty is the best policy." Honesty pays dividends in dollars and in peace of mind.—Selected.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

WHITLEY MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

SUMMER TERM, JUNE 6th to JULY 15th. The college has arranged for a summer session of six weeks this summer at a very low rate for the expenses. Students living near the college, and coming from their homes, can take the six-weeks' course for as little as $15.00. The total cost for students that board on the campus is $45.00 to $50.00. Courses will be offered for college credit towards a degree and for raising and renewing Teacher's Certificate.

For Further Information, Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. Associate
W. W. STALEY, D. D. Contributing
S. C. HARRELL Contributing
C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. Contributing
ELISHA KING, D. D. Contributing
W. C. WICKER, D. D. Contributing
J. T. KERNODLE Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT
RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When sending subscriptions for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of year.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

MARRIAGES

FRANKLIN—CANDLER.

Saturday evening, July 9th, at the home of the writer on Shepherd Street, Durham, N. C., Mr. Elbert G. Franklin and Miss Mattie Candler were united in marriage in the presence of a few close friends.

Mrs. Franklin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Candler, of Durham, N. C. Mr. Franklin is the son of Mrs. Maggie Franklin, of Durham, having spent his childhood days at the Elon College Orphanage, after the death of his father. For the past two years he has made his home at Roaring Gap, near Asheville, N. C. They will make their home at Warrensville, N. C.

J. S. CARDEN.

OBITUARIES

ROUNTREE.

When one who is known so well and loved so much as Mrs. L. C. Rountree departs this life for a better world, we should be grateful to Almighty God for our associations with her. Therefore, be it resolved:

First: That we, the members of the Missionary Society of Damascus Christian Church, of which she was a member, express our appreciation of her loyal friendship and generosity. She was kind-hearted and lovable, always ready and willing to help lighten another's burden, and to comfort and help those in distress.

Second: That we deeply sympathize with her family in their bereavement and bid them look up to Him who rules and reigns in heaven and in earth, and is able to sustain them at all times.

Third: That a copy of these resolutions be published in "The Christian Sun," a copy made in our church register, and a copy sent to her family.

MRS. J. R. CORBITT,
MRS. ALMIRA HINTON,
MISS ANNIE LASSITER, Committee.

FOX.

Samuel J. Fox was born October 17, 1874, and was killed suddenly in an accident May 31, 1932. His age was 57 years, 7 months, and 14 days. Mr. Fox was a man of clean habits, honest and industrious, and highly respected by all who knew him. Funeral services were held at Timber Ridge Christian Church, June 2, 1932. A. W. ANDES.

RUSH.

Mrs. Tracy Lineweaver Rush was born January 22, 1869, and died June 5, 1932, aged 63 years, 4 months, and 13 days. She is survived by her husband, Edward Rush, and four sons and two daughters. Sister Rush was a member of the Progressive Dunkard Church. Funeral was held at Narrow Passage Church, near Edinburg, Va., June 7, 1932.

A. W. ANDES.

SUMMER SESSION

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

JUNE 8 TO 20, OR AUGUST 10

An Accredited Summer School in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

Standard Courses in Fifteen Departments Meeting the Academic and Professional Needs of College Students, Teachers and Prospective Teachers.

Special Courses in Primary, Intermediate, High School and Rural Education; also in Public School Music and Art, Story Telling, Coaching of Plays, Southern Literature, Southern History, Geography, Religious Education, Piano, Voice and Violin.

Six to Nine Weeks of Profitable Study Combined with Delightful Vacation and Recreation.

For Catalogue, write
DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
Demorest, Ga.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

A Memorial of the Congregational-Christian Union.

FRANK E. JENKINS, Pres. MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD, Dean

Chartered by Southern Christian Convention, June 2, 1922, as Bethlehem College; renamed Southern Union, June 3, 1931.

Will function during the present financial depression as a Junior College only.

FALL TERM WILL OPEN SEPTEMBER 7.

DEPRESSION PRICES.

Depression prices during the coming year, made possible by extensive gardens, careful planning, organization and donations—Tuition, board and room, $192 for entire scholastic year; tuition alone, $48; each payable in six equal installments.

Unsectarian, but thoroughly Christian.

For Information, write—

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA.

THE CONGREGATIONAL LATIN-AMERICAN INSTITUTE AND PILGRIM LATIN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH OF WEST TAMPA, FLA.—

Are helping give the Gosper, which is "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," to the forty thousand Latin people of Tampa. The evangelical forces working among the foreigners of Tampa are by no means covering the territory sufficiently.

Methodists have six preachers, Baptists two, Presbyterians one, Congregationalists one. Church workers and teachers must be supported for this great missionary work. Send check to

LESLIE S. BRAY, Treas.
Route 4, Box 468, - - Tampa, Fla.
Send boxes of clothing to Mrs. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

For literature, write Rev. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

HOLMAN BIBLES

LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' EDITION FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear, Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type.
"From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, 'The kingdom of heaven is at hand.'"

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid. 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament; Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid. 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid. 10.65

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXIV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, JULY 28, 1932.

NUMBER 30.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

Maroon and Gold

Christian Advocate Issues Centennial Number.—

Of unusual interest in church circles is the issuance of the Centennial Number of the Richmond Christian Advocate. This special number carries specially prepared articles which are of especial interest to the members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The paper, which has been edited since 1921 by Dr. J. M. Rowland, has had among its editors the foremost men of the church which it represents. It has been a power for good among its constituents and throughout the State of Virginia.

A Subscription Campaign.—

We note that the Methodist Protestant-Recorder has been running a subscription campaign in the State of Maryland. This campaign was carried on by the ministers of the various churches and brought the paper 1,094 renewals and 165 new subscriptions. The net money returns amounted to $2,341.63. Times are not so hard but what a person can pay four cents a week for a church paper if they really want it. The minister who will take the time and trouble to see that his members take and read their church organ, will himself be repaid many times by increased interest manifested in the activities of the church, both local and general.

The Depression Curtails Marriages.—

Marriages have declined greatly in number in the past year, but the cost incidental to divorce seems to have had its effect also. The Bureau of the Census, in its preliminary reports from 39 States and the District of Columbia, shows that there were nearly 37,000 fewer marriages in 1931 than in 1930. The divorces decreased 5,456 during the same period of time. The slump in both marriages and divorces seemed to be general, but it is quite possible that more stringent laws passed by several of the States had their effect as well as the depression. A notable instance is Idaho, where marriages fell off 49.7 per cent, due to the adoption of more rigid laws. The largest increase in marriages (not divorces, mind you), was in Nevada, amounting to 25.1 per cent!

Revenue from Gasoline Decreases.—

Sixteen states report decreased consumption of gasoline for the first four months of 1932, compared with the first four months of the previous year. The decrease varies from 17,000,000 gallons in California to 2,000,000 gallons in Idaho. A peculiar thing about this decline is that it seems to have little if any relation to the gas tax imposed. Missouri, with a gas tax of 2 cents per gallon, used 7,000,000 less than in 1931, while Florida with a tax of 7 cents, consumed 4,000,000 less. There are fewer cars registered in Florida than in Missouri, but there are many more visitors to Florida at the time of year considered.

For the entire country the decline in the use of gasoline was 6,000,000 barrels, or about 5 per cent. This decline may have been caused by lack of use of cars, but part of it was possibly due also to improvements and refinements in engines which have given them greater gasoline mileage.

Treasury Offers $650 Million in Notes.—

On Monday of this week the United States Treasury offered for subscription, at par and accrued interest, two series of notes, amounting to $650,000,000. Both of these series are dated and bear interest from August 1, 1932. One series, amounting to $325,000,000, or thereabouts, is to run for two years and will bear interest at the rate of 2 1-8 per cent. The other series for a similar amount, will run for four years, and the interest rate will be 3 1-4 per cent. Neither of these series is subject to call before maturity, and the principal and interest are payable in gold coin of the present standard of value. The notes will be exempt, both as to principal and interest, from all taxes now or hereafter to be imposed by the United States or any of its subdivisions. Applications for the notes may be made at any Federal Reserve Bank, or branch, throughout the country.

Glass Piping Perfected After Many Trials.—

After years of experimenting, the announcement was recently made that glass piping has been perfected. There has for a long time been a demand for glass pipe in the food, chemical and mining plants of this and other countries, where the conveyance of hot or corrosive liquids is a serious problem. In food plants, especially, glass offers cleanliness with complete visibility. One of the greatest drawbacks to the use of glass has been the need for regular removal of the lines for cleaning. A joint that is heat-proof and air-tight, and can be put up and taken apart without the necessity of special mechanics, had to be developed. Such a joint has been perfected, and consists of sections held together by a wide-flange metal collar with asbestos inserts which absorb the pressure of the bolts and form a heat-resisting joint. It is said that it is now possible to cast 100-gallon containers which will rival porcelain in food and chemical plants. The toughness of this glass makes it as hard to crack as glazed tile.

The Farm Board Unloads.—

The Farm Board has gone a long way toward unloading its great surpluses of a year ago. Then, when it stopped buying wheat, it had purchased a little over 329 million bushels at an average price of 82 cents per bushel. At that time the Grain Stabilization Corporation owned about 257 million bushels, or about three-fourths of the country's carry-over. Within the past year over 47 millions have been sold abroad, 85 millions given to the Red Cross for relief work, and 81 millions sold on the domestic market. There are 25 million bushels stored in Canada which will probably be disposed of there, and the Board has 30 millions of wheat "futures" which it will probably not take up. This leaves only about 18 million bushels of cash wheat to be disposed of, slightly more than 5 per cent of that held a year ago. Of the 1,300,000 bales of cotton acquired by the Cotton Stabilization Corporation, 500,000 is to be given to the Red Cross and 650,000 is to be gradually disposed of during the year beginning August 1st. Thus, by the end of the next fiscal year, very little of this commodity will be held by the Board. The financial side of the picture is not so bright, for the Board's holdings have had to be disposed of at about one-half of the price paid for them. Nevertheless, the fact that these stocks are pretty nearly disposed of should be a helpful factor in their respective markets.

"Overproduction" May Prove an Illusion.—

We have heard many people complain of the fact that "overproduction" was causing many of our troubles today. We have thought all along that this contention was just another attempt to find a reason, and that it would be hard to prove. We are glad, indeed, to find that we are borne out in our opinion by no less an authority than Business Week, one of the leading statistical journals of the country. It says, in part: "Many of our economic troubles, including, finally, the depression, have been blamed on excess production capacity. But many of those who have laid the blame at this door haven't been altogether clear as to what they have been talking about. Confusion arises from the fact that, in their talking and thinking, they sometimes fail to distinguish between two kinds of excess. Most manufacturing plants have more equipment than they would need if they could operate 24 hours a day, day in and day out, without regard for seasonal demand, storage facilities, or traditional labor practices. But most plants don't operate that way. Few have more machinery than they need to produce, under normal conditions of operation, the quantity of goods required to satisfy the normal demands of consumption in a given period of time." The National Industrial Conference Board goes even further, and says: "In view of the rapidity with which equipment becomes obsolete and the fact that in the past two years there has been little replacement, the opinion is held by some well-informed persons that, far from having at the present time an excess capacity, American industry is not properly equipped to meet a normal demand for its products."

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

President L. E. Smith, Elon College, preached at the United Congregational-Christian Church, Raleigh, N. C., July 24th, in the absence of the pastor, Dr. Kirby, who is away on vacation.

"Let it not be imagined that the life of a good Christian must be a life of melancholy and gloominess; for he only resigns some pleasures in order to enjoy others infinitely better."—Pascal.

Rev. Oscar H. Denny, pastor of North Miami Church, received 22 new members into the church on Sunday July 10th. On the evening of Sunday, July 17th, an Immokalee service was held by the young people in connection with those from Miami Beach and Coral Gables.

Rev. Joseph E. McCauley, pastor of Richmond First Church, is assisting Rev. C. E. Gerringer in revival services at Wakefield this week. At the close of these services, Mr. McCauley, with his family, will visit Rev. J. W. Fix, at Urbana, Ill., and with him will attend the Winona Bible Conference. Rev. R. L. House, of Newport News, will also attend the Winona Bible School.

It will be learned with regret that Rev. G. R. Underwood, Goldston, N. C., is in failing health, and a brother minister, who visited him recently, writes unless there is a change for the better, this faithful man of God and true soldier of the cross will not be with us much longer. Let all friends, who know him, write a cheering line, a word of favor and friendship, to this worthy and beloved brother.

Chaplain H. E. Rountree, U. S. Navy, Charleston, S. C., writes: "It may be of interest to the readers of THE CHRISTIAN SUN to have mentioned that I was on the air over WCSC, July 21st, 22nd, and 23rd, directing the morning devotions under the auspices of the Ministerial Association of the city. I was assisted by Miss Richolda Luden, soloist, and Miss Dorothy Bulwinkle at the console, both of St. Philips' Episcopal Church."

CHRISTIAN SUN readers may bear in mind and assure their friends that Elon College opens for its 43rd annual session September 12, 1932. Reports from the administration are very favorable for a large opening. Applications are coming in very encouragingly for rooms and reservations. Every friend of the college should use his and her influence to make the coming session the best in all of our honorable history, since Elon offers the best in scholarship, in training, and in all Christian activities.

Miss Mary D. Atkinson, writing from Scotland, July 12th, says: "Yesterday we saw an old Roman camp and walls built in 122 A. D. These walls were built and used to separate England from Scotland and have roads on top, as they were seven feet wide and connected the camps." How the ages do laugh at the folly of man in the past. Think now of a wall to separate England from Scotland and soldiers with swords and bayonets drawn to keep peace by separation of sturdy Briton and canny Scotsman.

Rev. O. D. Poythress, South Norfolk, Va., assisted Rev. J. W. Patton, Bethlehem Church, Alamance County, in a revival service the past week. The meeting was largely attended and the results were very encouraging. Bro. Poythress called at THE SUN office full of enthusiasm for the work of the kingdom. His church is still making a bold and courageous effort to go forward under heavy indebtedness and to meet its obligations. Considering conditions, he feels much encouraged with the prospects.

Our Ocean View Church, under the aggressive leadership of Rev. J. H. Warren, pastor, has recently been constrained to put a $1,000.00 addition to the Sunday School rooms. The addition is now enclosed so it can be used and represents real self-denial on the part of those who have financed the same. The average attendance at the Sunday School for June was 101 each Sunday, and the average offering per Sunday for the month was $4.75. The average attendance at church for the morning services was 89, for the evening services, 42. This new church shows up well and sets an example for many of our older churches.

A line from Mrs. R. T. Grissom, Fancy Gap, Va., July 18th: "Our revival closed last night here at Elk Spur with twelve additions to the church. If you could have been here to see the congregations and cooperation we had, your heart would have been thrilled as ours were. Some of the members received are the most substantial and influential citizens of this community. The entire community fell in love with Rev. Ray Dickens, who did the preaching and assisted in the meetings, and many have asked him to return next year. Raymond, my husband, is to help Mr. Dickens at Lee's Chapel, beginning next week."

"We had a wonderful meeting here with Rev. H. C. Caviness, Portsmouth, Va., as the preacher. He did fine work for us here, and our little church has been greatly revived and much encouraged to go forward, looking to God for greater things. We had our Missionary and Children's Day at Antioch and New Hope Churches in June. It was a real pleasure to witness the scene. The children gave their pennies, and the young people their nickels and dimes. Thus, out of their loyalty, they gave their offering for the Lord. It was not much, but it was seemingly the best they could do. I will be in revival meeting next week at New Hope Church." So writes G. D. Hunt, Roanoke, Ala.

It is with genuine delight and gratitude that the editor of THE SUN learns that Rev. J. Lee Johnson, Fuquay Springs, N. C., who has been out of the pulpit because of impaired health for several months, is now much improved and has been occupying his pulpit for the last two Sundays, and now hopes and expects to go right on with his work. He will be assisted in his strenuous revival services the remainder of the summer, but he feels equal to the task of carrying on his work. A characteristic line from our good friend says: "I am quite sure that the prayers of the many saints of God in behalf of my recovery have been a greater means through grace to sustain me than all other things combined. To Him be all the praise."

Rev. A. W. Hurst, pastor of Elon Church, announced Sunday, July 24th, that he would preach his final sermon as pastor at the College, July 31st, the church having voted him August as a vacation month; his resignation as pastor of the church taking effect September 1st. Rev. Hurst is beloved by his entire congregation and constituency at Elon, and it is with sincerest and deepest regret on the part of the church and the community that his pastorate here is to close.

We are not advised as to the church, whose fortune it will be to secure him as pastor. He is a student, an able expounder of the Word, an eloquent minister, a true and faithful pastor. That church, indeed, will be fortunate that secures him as preacher, pastor and leader.

Rev. and Mrs. R. T. Grissom, Fancy Gap, Va., were happy visitors at Elon last Thursday. They were accompanied by Rev. J. Ray Dickens, Holly Springs, N. C., who had been assisting them in a revival at Elk Spur, Carroll County, Va., the past two weeks. The Grissoms are delighted with their work, both Sunday Schools having been reorganized, very happy revivals enjoyed at both churches, and they feel encouraged in every way with the work they have found and the people they are living and laboring with at Fancy Gap. They have decided that they have about the best field of labor and the most agreeable people to live and labor with of anybody. They are finding real neighbors at Fancy Gap and folks who are ready and anxious to go forward in building up church and Sunday School—a most hospitable people and most gracious and generous to serve. Mr. and Mrs. Grissom are in a meeting with Rev. J. Ray Dickens, pastor, at Lee's Chapel this week and next, but left the work at Elk Spur and Rocky Ford in competent hands, members there who are loyal and true to their church and their God.

THE SUN is certainly indebted to Rev. E. C. Brady, Hemp, N. C., for his "Historical Development of the Sunday School," which this issue carries. We would advise Sunday School superintendents and teachers to read this sketch and tuck it away for safe-keeping. It has permanent value. Out of a desire to teach the poor reading, writing and arithmetic, has come the whole modern Sunday School movement, worldwide, now, in scope and organization, and at this very time a World Sunday School Convention is meeting in South America, with its many hundreds of delegates interested in Sunday School work, from practically all the nations of the earth. Surely, that man was right who said: "Nothing is so powerful as an idea come to its time." Robert Raikes, founder of the modern Sunday School, simply gave expression to "an idea come to its time." We think of making contributions to the poor; well, the poor have made some very valuable contributions to us of this world, the Sunday School being not the least among these. The historical development of the Sunday School makes a page in history that illuminates all the other pages and makes this whole world a brighter and better place for its writing.

ANNUAL CAMP MEETING.

The Annual Pentecostal Camp Meeting, of the Southside Virginia Holiness Association, will be held at Wakefield, Va., Camp Grounds, August 5th-14th, inclusive. This camp is interdenominational, and is supported by all denominations in this section.

Ministers in charge this year are: Rev. Robert A. Young, pastor Grace M. E. Church, South Riverside, Cal., a great preacher; and Rev. H. C. Caviness, pastor, First Christian Church, Portsmouth, Va., also a successful pastor and a great preacher.

The prayers, support and cooperation of all of God's people everywhere are solicited for this special effort in soul winning.

Meals and lodging on the grounds.

Yours in Christian service,

O. M. COCKES, President.

Elberon, Va.

DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB.

I hope that you have read the report of the Dollar-a-Month Club for the past two weeks. If so, you have an accurate idea of the progress that we have been able to make. Up to and including last week, we have enrolled 341 memberships. If your name is in the list, I know you are happy to be counted among those who are willing to add their gifts as an expression of their faith in the college and their determination to do their bit that the college may be enabled to meet her obligations and to carry on her program of instruction and culture with profit and enthusiasm. If your name did not appear in the list, think of what encouraging assistance you would lend by sending your name to the office at the college for membership, and enclosing your fee. What an inspiration it would be if a large number of those who have not, would join in and become a part of this popular and growing Club. May we have your name and your first contribution?

Now, just a word to those of you who have joined: It is one thing to join, and we are glad to have you, but it is another thing to keep your dues paid. Some of you are considerably behind. It will be difficult for you to pay if you wait much longer. The best way to be interested about this proposition and to keep happy about it, is to keep your dues paid up promptly. Then, too, you are carrying out the spirit of the Club.

Our expenses are monthly, and what we want and need is a large number of friends who will not only be interested in giving us their moral support, but who will be concerned and give us their financial aid. So, if you are behind with your dues, won't you please send them in as early as possible?

We are happy to report the following new members this week:

Mrs. J. J. Lincoln, Lawrenceville, N. J., 1 membership	$3.00
Miss Louise Watkins, Windsor, Va., 1 membership	1.00
Mr. C. D. Johnston, Elon College, N. C., 1 membership	12.00
Mrs. C. D. Johnston, Elon College, N. C., 1 membership	12.00

We have received total cash receipts for the week amounting to $47.00.

L. E. SMITH, Pres.

RELIGIOUS WORK CONVENTION LARGELY ATTENDED.

The Eastern Virginia Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention held a one-day session at Cypress Chapel on Tuesday, July 20th. The meeting attracted a large attendance and an inspiring program was furnished those present.

The Rev. H. S. Hardcastle delivered an address on a "Pod of P's for Sunday School Workers," emphasizing personal piety, and personal work. J. M. Darden, chairman of the Orphanage Board, and C. D. West, member of the Board, presented the claims of the Orphanage. An appeal was made for continued support of the Orphanage with not only money, but food and clothing.

An hour was given to reports of departmental superintendents as follows: Cradle Roll, Mrs. M. T. Whitley; Beginners, Mrs. W. H. Johnson; Primary, Mrs. R. E. Brittle; Juniors, Doris Eure; Intermediates, F. A. Osborne; Seniors, Mary Lee Godwin; Young People, Lillye Holland; Adults, E. L. Daughtrey; Young People's Congress, Irene Cotten. Children's Division led by Mrs. R. E. Brittle; Juniors, Intermediates and Seniors, led by Mrs. B. D. Jones; Young People, Young People's Congress and Christian Endeavor, led by Rev. F. C. Lester and Miss Lillye Holland; Adult and Home Department, led by Dr. W. G. Newman.

Rev. D. M. Spence led the devotional service in the afternoon. A report was made on "Literature" by Rev. H. S. Hardcastle. Rev. W. M. Jay spoke on "How to Teach Missions in the Sunday School," after which a group of Christian Endeavorers conducted a model program, the theme of which was "What Is Meant by Living a Christian Life?" featured by talks by the young people and by special music. Special prayer was offered by Dr. W. W. Staley. The cup, offered to the Christian Endeavor Society making the best record for the year, was won by the South Norfolk Society for the second year in succession.

The Resolutions Committee voted a change in the custom of having a two-day session of the convention, confining the convention to one day. The matter will be referred to the convention at its next session.

The Committee on Nominations presented the following report, which was adopted:

President, Rev. J. F. Morgan; vice-president, E. L. Daughtrey; second vice-president, Aubrey Todd; recording secretary, W. H. Baker; executive secretary, Rev. R. E. Brittle; Christian Endeavor secretary, Mrs. W. B. Wililamson; treasurer, J. W. Folk.

Executive Committee: Rev. J. F. Morgan; E. L. Daughtrey, Aubrey Todd, W. H. Baker and J. W. Folk.

Departmental Superintendents: Cradle Roll, Mrs. M. T. Whitley; Beginners, Mrs. W. H. Johnson; Primary, Mrs. R. E. Brittle; Juniors, Miss Doris Eure; Intermediates, Mr. F. A. Osborne; Seniors, Miss Mary Lee Godwin; Young People, Miss Lillye Holland; Adults, J. W. Roberts; Young People's Congress, Irene Cotten.

Home Department, to be supplied.

Supper was served by the ladies of the church, and after a vesper service by Aubrey C. Todd, the night session was called to order. Rev. F. C. Lester presented the report of the Board of Christian Education and Dr. L. E. Smith, president of Elon College, delivered an address on "The Challenge of Religious Workers Today." Remaining matters of business were disposed of and the convention adjourned.

PROGRAM.

Following is the program for the 84th Session of the Virginia Valley Central Congregational-Christian Conference, to be held with the Winchester Christian Church, August 10-11, 1932:

WEDNESDAY.Morning Session—10:00 o'Clock.

Call to order.
Devotional service Dr. M. L. Weekley
Enrollment.
Welcome address..... T. W. Matthews
Response Walton E. Brill
Report of Program Committee.
Report of Executive Committee.
Miscellaneous business.
Report of Director, Religious Education.. K. B. Hook
Annual Address..... Rev. R. L. Williamson
Adjournment for Dinner.

Afternoon Session—1:45 o'Clock.

Devotional service..... Rev. B. J. Earp
Report of Committee on Religious Literature, Alfred Dofflemyre, Chairman.
Address—"Our Publications and Our People," Dr. W. P. Minton, Dayton, Ohio.
Report of Committee on Evangelism, Mrs. A. W. Andes, Chairman.
Report of Committee on Social Service, K. B. Hook, Chairman.
Address—"Our Orphanage"..... Chas. D. Johnston, Supt.
Report of Conference Mission Sec'y, R. O. Rothgeb.
Adjournment.

Evening Session—8:00 o'Clock.

Program by the Young People.

Address on Young People's Work.... Dr. L. E. Smith

THURSDAY.Morning Session—9:30 o'Clock.

Devotional service..... Rev. W. B. Fuller
Roll call and reading of minutes.
Report of Committee on Education, Rev. A. W. Andes, Chairman.
Address on Education..... Dr. L. E. Smith
Conference Missionary Association.
Report of Committee on Foreign Missions, R. O. Rothgeb, Chairman.
Address on Foreign Missions..... Dr. W. P. Minton
Report of Committee on Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor, J. Warner Stearn, Chairman.
Report of treasurer.
Adjournment for dinner.

Afternoon Session—1:45 o'Clock.

Devotional service..... Chas. D. Johnston
Report of Stewardship Committee, Mrs. J. J. Lincoln, Chairman.
Report of Committee on Home Missions, W. C. Wampler, Chairman.
Report of Committee on Christian Union, N. L. Norris, Chairman.
Report of Committee on Apportionments, R. Roy Hosaflook, Chairman.
Miscellaneous business.
Adjournment.

METHODS CORNER

By REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.

Miami Beach, Fla.

The question, What do we think of Jesus? is of vital importance in the solution of our missionary work. Is it true that the message of Jesus is what the whole world needs? Does he mean much to us? Do we wish to share that with other people? Is our experience worth sharing? Would the teachings of Jesus, if applied, solve the problems of the world? If we are convinced they would, then we have one driving motive at least to send us out into the world to try to convince men that this is true.

Then there is the spirit of devotion, loyalty, love. Perhaps one may say, an emotion so great as to sweep everything else aside and make this one tremendous. This personal devotion to Christ and his cause is, probably, the great missionary motive, yet I can imagine many people who have all this who cannot quite agree that such devotion should be spent in "foreign" missionary effort. However, this is one of the "nerves."

Another question that must be asked and it is this, Do we believe in the brotherhood of all men in all the world? Do we believe the world to be a brotherhood? I would like to call your attention to Dr. Cornelius Patton's book, "God's World," because it sets before us an understandable world filled with needs. When you read that book you see what the human needs are and you can then determine whether you will spend your time, thought, money and other things for home consumption only. Read such a book as Albert Schweitzer's "On the Edge of the Primeval Forest," and his later books and see what a talented, cultured Christian thirty years of age thought of his obligation to help people other than his own with practical missionary service.

Then there is another question to ask: Should we share our privileges with others of lesser opportunity? Does privilege such as ours mean that we are in duty bound as Christians to share it? A great many Christian people believe that they ought to share with others less privileged the blessings they enjoy. Because this is true we have teachers, evangelists, educational missionaries and medical missionaries.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. W. STALEY C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

W. C. WICKER

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

EVANGELISM.

This is the evangelistic season especially in our rural churches. Reports of gracious, even glorious revivals, come from many pastors and churches. This is heartening and gives new hope, brings new courage. He who delivers the evangel does a good work and is wise. One of the most convincing and magical sermons this writer recalls ever having heard, was delivered by the late, lamented Rev. Dr. Torrey, using as his text, Proverbs 11:30: "He that winneth souls is wise." It was compelling, and sent the hearer forth with an unquenchable zeal to win a soul, that in so doing wisdom might come. We know by doing, and as we deliver the Evangel to others, thus doing the will of God, we come to know the way of God. It is a spiritual task, and in performing a spiritual task, there is developed, fervor, fire, flame. The poet, Whittier, wrote:

"And comet-like, adding flame to flame,
The priests of the new Evangel came."

Evangel; Good News; the Gospel! And so the preacher, giving his message of flame and fervor, the devout and loyal souls in the congregation, taking that message and bearing it to others, personally, till the whole community is aflame with zeal for God—the power of the Evangel, the good news. That, indeed, revives the church, and carries renewed zeal to the membership of the church. Some one has truly said that, delivering the Evangel in person, telling the good news of the saving power of the Christ to another by word of mouth, is Evangelism; while sending that good news through prayer and purse, where one cannot go in person, is Missions. Missions and Evangelism, the two elements of the same process: Missions—sending the good news; Evangelism—carrying in person the good news.

And so, in many of our churches now, pastors and devout men and women of God are telling others the good news of the saving power of our Lord. This is that for which the church was founded of our Lord, and this is why the church is the body of our Lord, and he is its head. It is the institution that declares, as Peter did in the moment of divine revelation: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the Living God."

Religious education is necessary at all times to train youth in the lessons and in the atmosphere of religious opportunity and restraint; but no sort of intellectual process or program can take the place of, or act as substitute for, the direct delivery of the Evangel, the good news, the saving power of our Lord and the calling upon the individual, whether youth or adult, to face the fact of personal salvation through Christ, and of accepting him as Saviour and Redeemer, choosing to enlist under that name, which is above every other name, and be found bearing that banner waving over the hosts of those who are battling to make this world, a world of righteousness and the kingdoms of this world, the kingdoms of our Lord and his Christ. Ephesians 6:12: "For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places."

Evangelism is the very heart and soul of the church, and unless the church is evangelistic it has no right to the name church. J. O. A.

GOD FINDING FRIENDS.

We need and must have friends. In that particular, we are made in the image of God. God wants and must have friends. He has made his work on earth depend upon the plans and pursuits of his friends. We have put into song our friendship for Jesus; "What a Friend We Have in Jesus." I am certain that Jesus would also have us put into song, "What Friends I Have in You."

Isaiah spoke of this relationship, saying: "Jacob, whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraham, my friend." God works through his friends, and he depends upon his friends to carry on his work; but God makes no man his friend until that man has known God and realized God in his own heart. Jesus made this clear (John 15:15): "Henceforth I call you not servants; for the servant knoweth not what his Lord doeth; but I have called you friends; for all things that I have heard of my Father, I have made known unto you." If we would be friends to God, we must know God. This is true of all friendships. Our friends are those whom we have learned, whom we know, whose life is an open book to us.

And thus God intrusts the doing of his work in the world to the hands of his friends. God could have chosen cohorts of angels flying through the world with tongues of fire and eloquence to proclaim that he was God, and that Jesus Christ was his only begotten Son, and that through him was life. On the other hand, he chose men and women, and intrusted to them the work of declaring and revealing him to the world. God needs us just as we need God, and his heart longs for friends who are willing to know him and do his will just as our hearts long for loved ones and friends about us.

It was Horace Bushnell who said: "God could publish his will in flaming letters on the sky. He could have sent cohorts of angels flying through the air to publish the good news. He could have set the stars chiming with the music of salvation. He could have made the stones of the mountains proclaim his will. But his purpose is that the great work of redemption should be carried on by us."

But he had better things than this for us, viz: He wanted to be with us unto the end, enjoy our friendship, and so he said: "And, lo, I am with you unto the end." How sweet and precious, indeed, is that declaration of our Lord (John 15:14): "Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you." J. O. A.

WHAT NEXT—THEN?

It took the church, great statesmen, devoted and anxious fathers and mothers, one hundred and fifty years to shut up the saloons of America and outlaw the liquor traffic. It was through prayer, earnest pleadings, faithful teaching, invincible logic that this was achieved. Now we are told that the Eighteenth Amendment must be repealed, prohibition annulled, and the manufacture and sale of liquor legalized. Thus, in a decade, the ex-saloon-keepers, those who love booze and beer more than they love their fellowmen, are demanding that we tear down that which we were so long in building up. We are told that this will be better, and that if the government will again legalize beer and booze and give it the sanction of sale and manufacture, times will be better, morals will improve, youth will be safer.

This is, indeed, a strange spectacle. We are to unleash the lion, for whose capture and caging the sober citizenship of a nation spent a century of tireless and unceasing loyalty, consecration and effort. Now, we are assured, society will be safer when once again the lion is unleashed. We are not told as to who will guard the lion, protect the youth and the homes of our land against his approach, devastation and death. When the Eighteenth Amendment is abolished, when the prohibition law is modified, when liquor and beer are made more abundant, their manufacture and sale become universal, who, then, will manage the beast? Who, then, will save our boys, our girls, our fathers and brothers, our mothers and sisters from this, the deadliest foe that ever has cursed mankind and sought his destruction? If the United States Government, with all of its police and constabulary, is impotent to cope with this monster now, who is to cope with him when the national government shall have acknowledged its impotency, its inability, its incapacity to handle the deadly monster, or cope with his subtle, devastating and murderous attacks? Can individual states, can local communities, do more for self-protection and defense than all the states and all the communities can do unitedly? Who, then, will manage? Who, then, will be able to cope with the demon, drink—this monster of ruin, of death, and of hell?

One may tear down a house in a day that had been a year in the building. Is our Government to tear down in a few weeks that which it took a century and a half to build up? If so, who, then, will manage, who build up, who protect? J. O. A.

Life is like fire. There is always more or less smoke about a fire to choke the voice, fill the eyes with tears and obscure the light of day. But if only the fire is hot enough and the stoking done with sufficient care, a fire can consume its own smoke, not only destroying the smoke as smoke, but utilizing it as fuel. So if only the fire of our spirit is warm enough, we can make fuel of our own miseries, clearing the atmosphere of our lives and strengthening the blaze of our souls.—Holmes.

A DOCTOR OF THE OLD SCHOOL.

Word comes to us of the illness of Rev. W. W. Staley, D. D., pastor emeritus of the Suffolk, Va., Christian Church. He is suffering with an affliction in one of his eyes, which is very painful, but we are glad to announce that the latest report from Lake View Hospital of Suffolk is that his condition is improved.

Few ministers of the Christian Church are more widely known and loved than Dr. Staley, who is rounding out a service of fifty years in Suffolk, and in the church at large. As a young man he came, in 1882, to a small church, which he served as active pastor for forty-one years, and built up what is probably the strongest church of the Christians in the Southland. In 1923 Dr. Staley was made pastor emeritus, with salary and parsonage for life, and with freedom to do as little or as much in the pulpit and in pastoral work.

Rev. H. S. Hardcastle, of Princeton Theological Seminary was engaged as active pastor. The relation between the pastor emeritus and the acting pastor at Suffolk for these nine years has been a beautiful one. Dr. Staley preaches on occasion, and occupied the pulpit for a continued term during the illness of the acting pastor last year. Few men in our church, or in any other church, have come nearer to the lives of the people than has Dr. Staley. His pastoral work through his forty-one years of active ministry was his great strength, and there was no illness or trouble or need in the homes but that Dr. Staley seemed always to be the one to first discover it, and the last to stand by and see that the need was met. That long-continued work became a part of his life, and has not slackened in his nine years as pastor emeritus. It is a pleasure and a real thrill to walk with him for an hour on the streets of Suffolk, and to see him greeted by boys and girls, as well as by men and women in all walks of life; and including colored people, to whom he has ministered and whose attitude shows both love and respect. One colored minister in Suffolk is reported as saying to his people that Dr. Staley may be a white man, but he has got a black heart! So close does he come to understanding and being close to them and their lives.

Fifty years is a long time for a spiritual leader to minister to a community, and he became so much a part of it that when he resigned as active pastor the community attempted to make him a judge in its courts, but he declined such honor in favor of continuing his visitations and pastoral work. These young couples you meet on the streets were married by him, and their fathers and mothers were married and buried by him. These boys and girls show by their attitude and salutation their respect and devotion to him. The whole community rises to do him honor on any possible occasion. A committee of the church has been appointed to arrange a suitable Jubilee next November, in honor of his coming to Suffolk fifty years ago in November, 1882. It will be a great occasion and one worthy of such a long ministry.

May we add an incident which is illuminating regarding Dr. Staley's long ministry. The writer had the privilege of being with him a week in Franklinton College, N. C. (colored), and one day, in conversation, we came to the matter of his long pastorate approaching fifty years in one church, and the writer said, banteringly, that he would think that a church would get tired listening to one preacher for fifty years. This started Dr. Staley engagingly to reveal his philosophy of a successful ministry. He acknowledged that if his work were preaching alone, they would have long ago grown tired of him, but he had based his ministry on something else than a Sunday morning sermon. When he came to Suffolk he did not think of himself as a great preacher, or one who would ever become great, but he took himself seriously as a pastor and went into the homes of the people, and came to know each one of them and their children personally, and to talk to the people on the street and to know what they were doing and thinking and desiring. His tabulated list of calls in homes ran well over the two thousand mark each year, and informal meetings and greetings outside the homes and hospitals were never charted or counted on such a list. He came to be one of the people and his homely way of putting it (at Franklinton to us) was: "My philosophy is that if you can get folks to like you they won't care what you say," and he illustrated it by citing the writer's old father (whom he had met shortly before that), and saying how he had bragged on his son, and commented on it by saying: "That old father of yours does not like you because you are smart, but he thinks you are smart because he likes you." He carried that on in an illustration of a young fellow just out of Yale who was cultured and refined, but who fell in love with a girl who had never finished high school, and whose grammar was anything but perfect. Dr. Staley said that young collegian just hung on her every word—not because that word was so perfect or worth listening to for its worth, but because he loved her, and everything she said and did was perfect to him. It was a homely presentation of the secret of success of one of our most successful ministers, but many a young minister can get more from it than from some of his books and studies if he will but sense and follow the spirit of the suggestion.

The late Dwight Morrow, when appointed Ambassador to Mexico to establish friendly relations, was told that he could do nothing with those "greasers." He replied, "Well, I can like them anyway." And that policy won out in Mexico and in Suffolk, and wherever there are folks in need of fellowship.—Hermon Eldredge in The Congregationalist.

NOTICE.

Visitors to the Virginia Valley Central Conference will please notify the undersigned. This will greatly aid us in our efforts to make your stay with us as pleasant as possible. There will be a two-day session, opening at 10:00 A. M., August 10th. We hope the delegates will come prepared to attend all sessions.

R. L. WILLIAMSON.
12 Clifford St., Winchester, Va.

Special Combination
Subscription Offer!

A special arrangement has been made whereby those who desire to do so may receive both THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for just a little more than they now pay for one of these papers.

Beginning immediately, we will accept subscriptions for the two papers at the price of $3.75 for the combined subscription. This means to SUN readers that for only $1.75 additional they may receive the great wealth of knowledge that The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty brings weekly. Those who are already subscribers for the latter paper may add THE SUN to their list for only 75 cents for the whole year.

You do not have to wait until your subscription to one or the other paper has expired, but send in your subscription now. You will begin immediately to receive the other paper and that which you are already receiving will be marked up a year in advance.

While this offer is open to everyone, it should appeal especially to the pastors and lay workers in the Southeast Convention, and we beg them to take advantage of this opportunity.

It is, of course, understood that under this special offer all subscriptions must be in advance, and must be sent directly to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va., or to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

DEAR SIRs:

Please (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my present subscription one year) to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my subscription one year) to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

(Please mark out the words not applicable.)

I enclose, herewith, check or money order for $3.75 to cover same.

M

Street No. or R. F. D.....

City and State.....

CONTRIBUTIONS

"BEING DEAD YET SPEAKETH"

By H. H. SMITH.

Shakespeare makes one of his famous characters say: "The evil men do, lives after them; the good is oft interred with their bones." While it is true that the world is often prone to forget the good and remember the evil, it is a momentous fact that both the good and the evil of one's life survive to bless or curse the world. Every life sets in motion currents of influence that continue after death. Some rough English soldiers, entering a town, complained: "Why can't a fellow get a drink here?" The reply was: "Because a man named John Wesley passed through this town a hundred years ago." The good that Wesley did was not interred with his bones. Not long ago a noted criminal was arrested for mail robbery and murder. He confessed that he had been a student and admirer of atheistic literature. The skeptics, infidels and atheists set forth their doctrines in their books and finally passed on, but their influence survived and brought forth a harvest of evil.

Stephen was a mighty preacher—we have his fiery sermon in the book of Acts—but no sermon he ever preached accomplished so much as his triumphant death for the truth. Saul of Tarsus, a young man, stood by and watched the face of Stephen in his dying hour—a face glowing with heavenly light and peace, as he prayed for the forgiveness of his enemies. It was such a spectacle as could never be forgotten. On his way to Damascus to persecute the Christians, no doubt the persecutor meditated upon that strange but impressive scene—a man dying in agony, with the joy of heaven in his heart, fervently praying for the forgiveness of the murderous persecutors. No doubt, that this incident had much to do with the great apostle's conversion to Christianity.

On North Broad Street, Philadelphia, there is a great church—Dr. Russell Conwell's church—known as the Temple Baptist Church. There is an interesting story connected with the building of this church. Dr. Conwell had been preaching in a very small church building in that community—so small that it could not accommodate the growing congregation. One Sunday morning, as Dr. Conwell approached the church, he met a little girl who was crying, and when he asked her why she was crying, she replied that there was no room in the Sunday School and she had to go home. The great-hearted preacher took the little girl in his arms and said: "I will find a place for you." A short while afterward, when the matter of building a larger church was being discussed, the little girl showed great interest and began to save her pennies for the building fund. Only a few weeks after that she was taken suddenly ill and died. At the funeral, her father told Dr. Conwell that the little girl had been saving her pennies for the building fund, and handed him the amount she had saved—fifty-seven cents. At a meeting of the trustees of the church, Dr. Conwell told them of the little girl's desire to help build the church, and the pennies she had saved. He says: "The trustees seemed much impressed, and it turned out that they were far more impressed than I could possibly have hoped, for in a few days one of them came to me and said that he thought it would be an excellent idea to buy a lot on Broad Street—the very lot on which the building now stands. I talked the matter over with the owner of the piece of land, and told him of the beginning of the fund, the story of the little girl. The man was not one of our church, nor, in fact, was he a church-goer at all, but he listened attentively to the tale of the fifty-seven cents and simply said he was quite ready to go ahead and sell us that piece of land for ten thousand dollars, taking—and the unexpectedness of this deeply touched me—taking as a first payment just fifty-seven cents and letting the entire balance stand on a five per cent mortgage."

It was only a short while after this negotiation for the property that another pleasant surprise came to Dr. Conwell. His members arranged a surprise party for him, and at that gathering it was announced that the entire amount, $10,000, had been raised to pay for the building lot for the new church.

When you visit Philadelphia, and pass the Temple Baptist Church, recall this story of the little girl and the fifty-seven cents. "Being dead yet speaketh."

Ashland, Va.

"I WANT TO BE ORDAINED."

Faithful is the saying, "If a man seeketh the office of a bishop, he desireth a good thing." So said Paul. He knew. Then he uttered a warning by describing the qualities of a "God minister of the New Testament." "Without reproach." "No brawler." "Not a novice." "Have good testimony from them that are without." "Apt to teach." "Gentle." "Not contentious." What a man Paul saw when he was selecting the qualities of a good preacher, or minister, or pastor, for that is after all what the office of a bishop in Paul's days really meant.

And these same qualities obtain today. If anything the requirements are greater. Today a minister must be an administrator as well as a good preacher without reproach in character, training or temper. He must be "a very gentle knight." He must have had his academic training put well behind him. But he must not be puffed up nor a lover of money. Paul was a great example. Perfect in all the training of the law of the Jew before his conversion to Christianity; and then a three years' course in theology some where in Arabia before he was "ordained" to preach or to become a missionary. And this, too, it may be believed, as it seems to have been in Jesus' experience, despite the fact that he was to preach to "unlearned and ignorant men."

What can be said then, to seem of the finest types of Christian manhood who seek to be ministers, who are saying, "I want to be ordained." Who shall say they may not qualify? Who shall close the door? Or who shall open it? The writer knows some of the gentlemen of God, whose desire to do good is never to be gainsaid or brought into question at any point. They ask to be ordained. What has been done or what is being done to help them worthily and helpfully to gain the satisfying training which they must have if they are to be "without reproach" and happy in a ministry where so much is being demanded today? Before answering the question let it not be forgotten that God needs great laymen today quite as much as he does ministers. Indeed, ask any pastoral supply committee or any one who knows where ministers may be found and he will tell you that the supply of men trained for the ministry exceeds the demand.

Nevertheless something is being done to help young men who have not had a college chance to prepare for an honorable and suitably dignified ordination. If God does really call a man to the ministry, he will not forget to provide some way to give him the proper training for the great demands placed upon him in this worthy calling.

There are night schools for those who have lost the high school advantages. There are correspondence schools or courses. There are teachers in our public schools who will gladly give such guidance as may be requested by any young man who earnestly seeks to know. There are ministers who often do give time and encouragement to those who come to him. And besides all these self-evident opportunities for self culture, all our conferences provide a course of study for young men (or older men) who seek to become full-time ministers. This is the method of it in most instances:

A young man is asked by the church to be its minister, or at least to preach for the people. He seeks to be licensed in order to be found doing the work in an orderly way. The conference or association asks for the story of his call. A special committee inquires into the conditions. Gets news from the church, interviews the man. Then the committee, if it sees fit, recommends the candidate for licensure for one year, providing he is willing to pursue the course of study provided for by his conference. The man accepts the challenge. At, or near, the close of the conference year the man is asked to take an examination on the course. Or, perhaps, he has been taking examinations at various times during the year. If the committee is satisfied, the man is recommended for licensure for a second year, and then, if he passes the second-year studies, for a third year. Then, if he satisfies the committee of his ability at the end of the third year he is recommended for ordination. It is a simple process and one which demands only that which dignifies other professions and holds the calling of the ministry to a standard which all must acknowledge is its due.

In following out this method it has been found best in many places frankly to suggest to men over forty years of age and without adequate training, that they had better not ask for ordination. They may be licensed. But manifestly time has taken its toll of life and responsibility has come in the way of a home and work which make it quite inadvisable for men of this age to seek ordination and full-time pastorates. It is pitiful how some good men come to this age, even having been trained, only to find few churches open to them. It is hard to face facts, but it is honest and honorable to do so. It is also the only safe thing to do. Except in very exceptional cases, men over forty seeking the ministry as their life profession, will find their truest friends will advise them not to do it. Better cling to the old lines of making a living and being a first-class layman. God needs such more abundantly. A man over forty, untrained, has not the time to prepare before he has crossed the dead line into the unknown when churches are seeking for a new minister. This may be more true than it ought to be, but in some cases it is too bitterly true. And those who know would, if they would be true, disclose the facts to friends. Let all know that one can't be called into the ministry on flowery beds of ease. Hard work—early morning, late at night—every day. But when you ask for ordination, stand on a solid rock of preparation which will make you honored, not pitied, by those who love you and seek your everlasting good. S.

Just a word—Summer Christianity ought to be of the gladdest kind for God shows us his beauty in the flowers, in the singing birds, in the green fields, and in the happy children.

HISTORICAL DEVELOPMENT OF SUNDAY SCHOOL.

By REV. E. C. BRADY, Hemp, N. C.

A historical study of religions and moral education shows that some form of religious instruction existed amongst all peoples, whether primitive or civilized. It is found in the earliest history of Egypt, when the priest class was dominant; it is found among the Assyrians, the Chinese, the Indians, and among the educational ideals of the Greeks and Romans. Early Hebrew life well illustrates the purposes and uses of this form of teaching. All the way from the prominence of the Hebrew scribe and interpreter of the law down through the development of the synagogue, certain features of religious education may be found. When the patriarch gathered his household about him for sacred instruction, great importance was attached to this form of education. Religious teachings began at the father's knee and formed one of the best examples of the earliest and most effective moral and religious teachings.

If we follow the Sunday School movement closely, we will see that it is an outgrowth of an organized system of instruction of a general rather than a definite or specific character. These schools, were first of all intended for poor people, who had no other educational opportunity, and so exclusive was their attention to the poor and destitute that they soon came to be called "ragged schools." These schools attempted to teach reading and writing, and in some instances, arithmetic. They were entirely separate from the church and their work often met with direct opposition from the church. Not until about 1850 were they regarded (in England) as a part of the church organization.

Robert Raikes, to whom the modern Sunday School movement has been credited, and yet some say other teachers held organized classes previous to his efforts, had an interest in the poor children of the Gloucester pin factories. This interest led him to establish schools for their training in reading, writing, elementary arithmetic, the Bible and the catechism.

Teaching in these Sunday Schools was not at first voluntary; the teachers were paid for their services. Some of the earliest teachers under Raikes were paid one shilling per day. It is said that in the beginning ladies of fashion undertook teaching in this movement. Certain it is that the work Raikes was doing was received with some favor and the impetus which he gave the movement caused it to expand and greatly extend its influence. This is shown by the fact that at the time of his death, there were a large number of schools in England doing a work similar to that which he was doing.

Sunday School work began in this country near the close of the 18th century, when Raikes' plan was brought to America. Here, however, two conditions were found which were likely to hamper its work. One of these was the more extensive elementary school system; the other was the objection of the church. Little is known of this work in America in its infancy. It is of interest to note that Bishop Asbury established a Sunday School in Virginia as early as 1786. A Methodist conference in session in Charleston in 1790, ordered the establishment of Sunday Schools in or near the churches or places of worship, and provisions were to be made "to teach gratis all who will attend and have capacity to learn from 6:00 o'clock in the morning till 10:00 A. M., and from 2:00 to 6:00 P. M."

This movement increased in popularity until by 1832, when headquarters were established in Cincinnati, within two years there were 2,800 Sunday Schools established.

About this time the church became interested in these new schools and adopted the Sunday School system. The Methodists first recognized the importance of this work. The Unitarians, Lutherans, Congregationalists, Baptists, Presbyterians and Episcopalians, in the order named, recognized these schools.

The Sunday School has been called the noblest development of the 19th century. The past 100 years have seen the origin and development of more agencies for human betterment and human progress than any preceding century since the Christian era. In the long list of these institutions and organizations the modern Sunday School occupies imperial rank, and as an agency for far-reaching reformation and effective training, it has possibilities which have not been realized. Born of a movement which gave unusual attention to child life and development and encouraged by religious upheavals, it has had rapid growth. But its advance in a career of usefulness is met by many difficulties, among which we shall name only a few.

One of the biggest hindrances facing the progress of this work is the task of securing, training and maintaining a body of competent teachers for the work of all departments, who have a proper appreciation of the work for which they are engaged. The real purpose of the Sunday School is to develop intelligent and effective Christian lives and to train intelligent and useful leaders for the work of the church. Too many Sunday School superintendents are very grateful to get almost anybody to teach classes on Sunday. Fully 75 per cent of our teachers are not the ones we would choose but we must take whom we can get, writes one superintendent. Teaching in the Sunday School has been too long regarded largely as a matter of conscience and duty; and too often it is looked at as a duty to be assumed or neglected by anybody.

Inefficient teaching in the Sunday School is, in a large measure, responsible for the prevalent criticism that this part of the church work is losing ground. Three-fourths of the boys who enter Sunday School leave before they become eighteen, and practically every one of them is able to give a good reason: "Nothing vital in the teaching," "Never an inspiration," "Monotonous," "Not enough practical study." These and others are the reasons the boys give for being on creek bank or in the swimming pool on Sunday, rather than in the Church School.

(Continued on page 14.)

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4½ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible
2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Israel, years old and upward, thro

No.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5½ x 3½ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.
20 Mercy and truth gathered together; righteousness kissed each other.
21 Truth shall spring

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¼ x 4½ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.
10 For a day in thy courts is better
2 or, all

No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 1½ inches.

Specimen of Type

8 7 "Jō-hōi'-ā-chin was 4 years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark $9.50

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

No. 03255x
As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1½ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos.
04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and hand-some Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

PRAYER.

Blessed be the name of him who says, "I am the way, walk with me." Our perverseness, Father, is our shame. Human ways tend but to confusion. Forgive us if we have thought the Kingdom way may be altered. But for thy Son who died to give us peace and who bequeathed to us his yoke of ease, our strength would be consumed by the weight of days. That "It is written" forever stands and that the yoke of Jesus does not bend, praises forevermore be to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. Amen. L.

TO THE UNKNOWN MISSIONARY.

Some sixty years ago, a Christian missionary found his way into Macedonia, which was then under Turkish rule. Among the converts was a young man named Kalaloff, who became a flaming evangelist and organized a little group of converts, whom he served as a lay-preacher.

Through war and persecution, he faithfully served this congregation. Today the work goes on in that little Macedonian village, which is now a part of Yugoslavia, under the leadership of the son of the lay-preacher, who is an ordained minister. But that is not the whole story.

In Port Colbourne, Canada, is another son, who keeps a confectionery store, but who is also known throughout the country as a leading Christian layman. Another son is on a farm near Simcoe, and two daughters are in Toronto; all are fine Christian characters.

The name of the original missionary has probably been forgotten, but down through the years his influence has lived on in the lives of these humble, but useful, Christians.—From the Record and Missionary Review of the United Church of Canada.

POPE HAS PASSION FOR MISSIONS.

The current issue of the International Review of Missions contains an exceedingly interesting account of the increasing interest in missions in the Roman Church during the last ten years, a period which coincides exactly with the pontificate of Pope Pius XI. Much of the $87,500,000 which was paid to the Holy See by the Italian Government in settlement of their long-standing disagreement was spent for missions. In addition, special funds were subscribed for missions in the same year to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the ordination to the priesthood of Pius XI, who is known as "the missionary pope."

During 1925, which was a "Sacred Year," when multitudes made a pilgrimage to Rome, a missionary exhibition was held in the Vatican gardens illustrating the whole work of the church overseas. A Day of Prayer for Missions was instituted in 1927, and is observed annually on the "penultimate Sunday in October." The development of a sense of responsibility for missions has been especially rapid in the United States since the close of the war. Nearly 20 per cent of the adult communicants of the Catholic Church in the United States support the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, which draws nearly $1,500,000 annually—over one-third of its annual budget—from this country. During the past decade much attention has been given to the training of a native clergy in mission lands, which has required a great increase in the number of seminaries. The same policy expresses itself in the appointment of indigenous bishops, of whom thirteen have been consecrated in China

(three of whom died shortly thereafter.) The centralized organization of the Roman Catholic Church is a source of strength in its missionary activities, for through it the enthusiasm of the present Pope makes itself felt in every country.—The Congregationalist.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING JULY 23, 1932.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 2,996.93
Morrisville, N. C.	2.65
Pleasant Hill, Liberty, N. C.	4.95
Belew Creek, N. C.	2.20
Rosemont, Norfolk, Va.	16.94
Happy Home, Ruffin, N. C.	1.95
High Point, N. C.	2.50
Wake Chapel, Fuquay Springs, N. C.	10.00
Berea (Nans.) Driver, Va.	4.33
Cary, N. C.	11.32
First Christian, Greensboro, N. C.	27.29
Biscoe, N. C.	1.60

Total $ 3,082.66

Individual and Church Offerings.

Previously acknowledged	$2,779.87
Miss Margaret Wilkins, McLeansville, N. C.	1.00
Rev. J. Ray Dickens, Holly Springs, N. C.	1.00
Liberty (Vance), Henderson, N. C.	4.50

Total $ 2,786.37

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$ 1,746.84
Burlington Sunday School, Burlington, N. C.	101.65
Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va.	750.00

Total $ 2,598.49

Coin Card Offering.

Previously acknowledged	$ 161.53
Liberty Spring Sunday School, Suffolk:
F. F. Brinkley	1.00
Mrs. F. F. Brinkley	1.00
E. B. Rawles	1.00
Mrs. E. B. Rawles	1.00
Joel Harrell	1.00
Mrs. E. F. O'Perry	1.00
Mrs. J. W. Tidwell	1.00
Miss Lizzie Harrell	1.00
Miss Hattie Harrell	1.00
Mrs. Roscoe Harrell	1.00
Rosemont Sunday School, Norfolk, Va.	32.80
Damascus Sunday School, Corapeake, N. C.	5.00
Class No. 5, Winchester Sunday School, Winchester, Va.	1.00

Total $ 210.33

Dollar-a-Month Club.

Previously acknowledged	$ 171.50
Miss Hontas Rawles, Suffolk, Va.	1.00
B. F. Branch, Raleigh, N. C. (Catawba Springs Church)	1.00

Total $ 173.50

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$17,021.20
Sunday Schools, regular, July 23, 1932..	85.73
Individual and Church Offerings, July 23	6.50
Specials, July 23, 1932.....	851.65
Coin Card Offering, July 23, 1932.....	48.80
Dollar-a-Month Club, July 23, 1932.....	2.00

Total to date $18,015.88

Many have had the Coin Cards ten weeks now, and we trust they will be sent in soon. The pockets in the card make it convenient for any and all who have the will to do something for Missions. And there is great need now.

J. O. ATKINSON, Mission Sec'y.

TO VICTORIA OF THE HILLS.

Dear "Victoria of the Hills":—We greet you across the many miles of space which separates us, for we are of the "Cities of the Plains." As we write these words we think of Abram and Lot, and of how Lot chose to dwell in the plains. We did not choose the plains as our earthly abiding place, but we do believe that God placed us here for some special purpose and we want his purpose to be worked out in our lives. Our tents overlook "Sodom" and in every direction we can see nothing but the tents of the multitudes of others who inhabit the plains with us. But we can look up into the same sky that you can see beyond your hills and see the clouds as they mass into different forms and hues.

We have never had but one little glimpse of the hills like yours, yet as we look at the clouds we let our imagination work "over time," and think that we can see hills and valleys. It refreshes us so much to look away from the sin and sorrow of the cities of the plains, and feast our eyes upon God's handiwork, even though some might think that we have lost our senses. The Psalmist said, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help." So, we just look up to the only hills we have for we know that the same God made the clouds that formed the "everlasting hills."

Yes, we have churches and schools in plenty, but O, how few according to the vast number, take advantage of the opportunity which they present. There are many who would love to worship and learn but owing to some physical handicap cannot get to either church or school. But the great majority have let the cares of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, and the lust of other things, keep them from the house of God, and from service in his kingdom. This is the tragedy of the age that men are lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God. Such contemplation would tend to keep us defeated in our high purpose, but we just look up and he, the blessed One, the coming One, gives us the victory over the world, the flesh and the evil one. We are glad that you, too, know this victory that overcomes the world and that your name echoes it. May you ever keep the victory, Victoria.

So, Victoria of the Hills, we greet you as we sojourn in this strange country, for we, like Abram of old, have no continuing city, yet we look for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God. "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."

"W" IN A CITY OF THE PLAINS.

P. S.—I read the two articles by "V. E." in THE SUN at our missionary meeting last night, and they were appreciated. In the circle of prayer that followed, different ones prayed for "Victoria of the Hills." "W."

With machines ever enlarging man's power and capacity, with electricity extending over the world its magic, with the air giving us a wholly new realm, our children must be prepared to meet entirely new contacts and new forces. They must be physically strong and mentally placed to stand up under the increasing pressure of life. Their problem is not alone one of physical health, but of mental, emotional, spiritual health.—President Hoover.

MISSIONARY PROGRAMS FOR AUGUST.

MRS. W. M. JAY, Editor.

PROGRAM V.

WOMEN'S SOCIETIES.

"The Father of All Mankind."

Purpose of this meeting: To help the women to a feeling of brotherhood because all may claim "Our Father."

1. Service of Song—"Day is Dying in the West" (if an evening meeting); "For the Beauty of the Earth"; "This Is My Father's World."
2. Service of Prayer.
3. Talk.
4. Discussion:
 - A. How folks of other lands are helping us.
 - B. Ways in which we can strengthen our spirit of brotherhood toward other folks
5. Hymn, "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind."
6. "There's a Long, Long Trail A-Winding."
7. Closing Friendship Circle.

Suggestions.

It is very appropriate to hold this meeting out of doors. When we are out in God's great out-of-doors, it is much easier to think of God as the Father of everything beautiful and the Father of all races everywhere.

A few weeks before the meeting is held, ask each person to bring in as many small pictures of folks of different lands as possible. These can be found especially in The National Geographic Magazine, missionary magazines, and our own church papers. Thus begin thinking about other nations. For invitations, paste one of these on paper cut in the form of a leaf or tree, or something typical of the out-of-doors. For poster, paste these pictures around the edge of a large cardboard, in the center of which announce the meeting in an attractive way, such as "Meet With Us to Discuss 'The Father of All Mankind' at such time and place."

For Your Program.

1. In your worship service, keep in mind that you are worshiping the God of the out-of-doors as well as the Father of all. In the first hymn, note the phrase, "Lord God of Hosts." in the chorus; in the second, that the gifts of the Father are such that they are for all people everywhere; in the third sing, "This Is Our Father's World," instead of "My." Or, try to find other familiar songs which give this message.

2. Ask certain ones in advance to pray and suggest the following thoughts for their prayers: (1) Thank God for the out-of-doors, where we can get close to Him; (2) Express our appreciation that He is our Father and the Father of all people everywhere; (3) Ask Him to make us realize in a greater measure that we are brothers.

3. Bring out the thought that God taught that He is "Our Father." "The field is the world," said the Master. Emphasize the need of acquiring the habit of thinking of the whole world as our dwelling place and the different races as our brothers and sisters in our Father's family.

4. This discussion may be led by one person who is good at getting people to take part, or several phases may be assigned in advance to different members.

A. What gifts do we receive from other lands and other peoples? Are we so grateful for the gifts that come to us every day from these folks that we can forget color and racial differences? A good illustration is the following: "A young missionary knelt for the first time at the communion rail of a church in India. An American missionary administered the bread and the Indian pastor passed the cup as he said, 'I too am ministering in His name.' Touched as never before, the girl looked into the fine face of this earnest servant of God and said to herself: "Oh, Pastor, we came here to serve you and you are serving us!" With a new humility and a keener sense of brotherhood, as they knelt together, she forgot every difference of color in the realization that they were united in the presence and love of God.

B. How can we help to express our brotherhood to others in our own community? In our churches? Throughout the world?

5. Read the second stanza as a prayer of consecration.

6. Have a group dressed to represent various nations pass by slowly as some one sings:

"There's a long, long trail a-winding,
Into the lands far away,
Where our brothers sit in darkness,
Waiting love's bright ray;
Go and end their night of waiting
Unto our Father be true,
Go seek and find and bring them
Down the long, long trail with you."

(Tune: "Long, Long Trail.")

As the group comes back, have some one read or sing, "In Christ There is No East or West." As the first stanza is sung or read, have them stand apart; approaching each other as the second verse is sung, joining hands on the third, and standing thus for the last.

7. For closing, have all clasp hands and join circle begun by these in costume, and sing some appropriate song, as "The Whole Wide World for Jesus." Close with prayer that we may all be drawn closer together as one great family, with God as our Father, and that peace may come as we become one great brotherhood.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETIES

TOPIC—"God and the Census."

Theme—"Christ at the Door."

I. Business Period.

II. Study Period—Chapter XI: "Why Does the Enterprise Sag?"

1. Leader may give a brief review of preceding chapter, and use first page of this chapter as an introduction.

2. "Why Does the Enterprise Sag?"

(a) Denominational differences, pp. 135 to 137, a member; (b) Spiritual weakness, 137-141; (c) The great god organization, pp. 141-143, a member; (d) Creeds, 144-145, a member.

III. Worship Period.

1. Hymn, "Let Him In."

2. Call to Worship, "The Lord is His holy temple; let all the earth keep silence before Him."

3. Scripture, I. Cor. 13.

4. Prayer.

5. Story.

6. Offertory.

7. Hymn, "O Jesus, Thou Art Standing."

8. Benediction.

WILLING WORKERS OR JUNIORS.

Theme—"God's World."

Have this a picnic meeting. After supper have a short worship program consisting of songs, sentence prayers, and some one might tell a suitable story.

CALL TO PRAYER.

Not since the critical days of the Great War has there been a time when Christian people have been as conscious of the sad plight of the world, of their own shortcomings and of their need of Divine leadership and help as today.

The wide extent of unemployment; the distress of missions in respect to daily bread; the prevalence of lawlessness; the tide of secularism; the threat of international strife; the lack of human leadership equal to the new problems of government and society, the failure of Christian people to rally to the support of the church as the saving agency of God; the crippling of our missionary work at home and abroad—these, and other conditions present to our minds, call for a deep searching of heart, a fresh evaluation of our resources in God, and a persistent waiting upon him. It is a time for earnest and united prayer throughout the Congregational-Christian fellowship of our land.

To this end, the Committee on the Encouragement of Prayer, of the Commission on Missions, has felt constrained to issue the following:

"Conscious that the present period, with its world-wide distress, is a time of testing for all who bear the name of Christ, God is summoning us as never before to share our material and spiritual possessions and to bear the burdens of our fellowmen; that the Church of Christ must experience a new birth of spirituality and power if she is to rise to the present demand; we of the Congregational and Christian Churches feel called to a special session of united prayer. We believe in God. We believe in Christ. We believe in the Gospel as the power of God for the saving of society in a time like this. We believe in prayer. Let us then, in humility and faith and in singleness of will, lift up our hearts and minds to God."

We suggest that our prayer in regular gatherings, such as mid-week and young people's services, and in special groups formed for this purpose be concentrated for the coming weeks upon specific objectives—objectives relating to the needs of those who participate, of the local churches, of the fellowship of the churches as expressed in their State, National and world-wide missionary endeavor, and of the nations and peoples of the world. The services are available in leaflet form, and may be secured from the Regional Offices of the Commission on Missions, 287 Fourth Ave., New York City. It might be well to have them distributed in the pews before the "Call" is read. Attention is also called to the Prayer Cycle arranged for daily individual use, for surely many will be moved to subscribe to this helpful quarterly at this time.

It is earnestly hoped that this movement, proposed by a praying group in one of our cities, may receive the endorsement of State Conferences and Associations; and that the suggestions, in so far as they meet with approval, may be followed with a minimum of organization.

GRAINS OF MUSTARD SEED.

"The Kingdom of Heaven is likened unto a grain of mustard seed."

1. "The Spirit of Missions is the Spirit of the Master."

2. "Prayer and Missions are as inseparable as Faith and Works."

3. "We've a life and a love to share with the Nations."

4. "We see Christianity at its best only in Missions."

5. "Your Mission offering will help send Jesus to others."

6. "God's best gift to us—His Son. Our best gift to Him....?"

7. "Christ gave His life—what have you given?"

8. Not how much of my money will I give to God, but how much of God's money will I keep for myself?"

9. "Just give until the Lord stops giving to you."

10. "What a Friend we have in Jesus; but what sort of a friend has Jesus in us?"

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, Waverly, Va.

GOING TO COLLEGE?

Hot July and August weather may not be conducive to serious thinking, but many a life decision has been made in these hot months of the summer time. It was at a summer session of a Sunday School convention that this writer signed an application to enter Elon College the next September. On that decision hinged my life from that day forward.

Going to Elon meant leaving a widowed mother and a younger brother on a little Carolina farm. It meant years of hardship and struggle. It meant sacrifice for me and those I loved. But it meant a step toward ideals, personal development, and future service. Five years at Elon and three years in a seminary seemed like a long time to invest in preparation for life's work. With no money in hand and but little prospect of getting any in the future it seemed like an impossibility. But it was only a venture in faith. The eleventh chapter of Hebrews said that "many had ventured in faith" and found it to work. I now add my humble testimony—it does work!

If you who read this are debating about going to college, let me recommend that you cease the debate, pack your trunk and enter your church college when the doors open in September. It can be done—and it is worth all the cost.

Get ready to go to college, so you can live a bigger and better life.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION AND THE STATE.

Recently the editor of this page had the privilege of sitting with half a hundred leaders from over the State of Virginia at a Round Table on "Religious Education" at the University of Virginia. For a week these teachers of Leadership Training Classes and other church leaders seriously sought to find the best in the field of Religious Education. The work being done was evaluated, aims stated, and methods considered.

It is significant that a State University through its Institute of Public Affairs, deemed it wise to call in leaders in the field of religion for a Round Table. The leaders of this university feel that religious training is one of the problems of the State, and that it deserves study along with other problems. For all too long the State has ignored religion and religious instruction for it is in the realm of religion that people develop attitudes that lead to success and happiness, or the contrary. Business men and statesmen are beginning to recognize that economic recovery can come only by a return to honest and honorable practices which grow out of religious ideals. For the State to try to promote the two hundred protestant denominations, the Roman or Jewish Church would be silly, but to ignore them is tragic.

The Institute of Public Affairs was wise in calling together leaders from the various denominations to discuss their common problems. Among the leaders were Dr. Forest L. Knapp, Director of Leadership Training of the International Council of Religious Education; Rev. Minor C. Miller, General Secretary, Virginia Council of Religious Education; Miss Mary E. Skinner, Director of Children's Work, Methodist Episcopal Church, South; Miss Florence M. Hostetter, Director of Religious Education, Albemarle, Augusta and Rockingham Councils of Religious Education; Dr. Charles W. Brewbaker, Director, Bureau of Evangelism, United Brethren in Christ;

Dr. Z. B. Edworthy, Director of Young People's Work, West Virginia Council of Religious Education, and Dr. Henry W. McLaughlin, Director, Country Church Department, of the Presbyterian Church in the United States.

It was evident from the first that whatever our church affiliations might be, we were interested in the same things. Congregationalists and Presbyterians, Methodists and Baptists, Disciples and Christians, Brethren and all the rest were eager to know how to train boys and girls, men and women, so they will grow into the fullness of Jesus Christ. Our words may be different, but our aims are the same. We are all "members one of another" and citizens of the State. It is well that the State called us together to counsel on our common problems. Those who attended were deeply grateful and expressed by appropriate resolutions their appreciation to the Institute of Public Affairs for the high privilege which this great old State institution gave to its Christian educators.

YOUTH.

(Passed on to THE SUN by CARL R. KEY.)

Youth is not a time of life—it is a state of mind. It is not a matter of ripe cheeks, red lips, and supple knees; it is a temper of the will, a quality of the imagination, a vigor of the emotions; it is a freshness of the deep springs of life.

Youth means a temperamental predominance of courage over timidity, of the appetite for adventure over love of ease. This often exists in a man of fifty more than in a boy of twenty. Nobody grows old by merely living a number of years; people grow old only by deserting their ideals.

Years wrinkle the skin, but to give up enthusiasm wrinkles the soul.

Worry, doubt, self-distrust, fear and despair—these are the long, long years that bow the head and turn the growing spirit back to dust.

Whether seventy or sixteen, there is in every being's heart the love of wonder, the sweet amazement at the stars and the starlike things and thoughts, the undaunted challenge of events, the unfailing childlike appetite for what next, and the joy in the game of life.

You are as young as your faith; as old as your doubt; as young as your self-confidence, as old as your fear; as young as your hope; as old as your despair.

In the central place of your heart there is a wireless station; so long as it receives messages of beauty, hope, cheer, grandeur, courage, and power from the earth, from men, and from the Infinite, so long are you young. When the wires are all down and the central place of your heart is covered with snows of pessimism and ice of cynicism, then you are grown old, indeed.—Anon.

Horace Greeley is said once to have received a letter from a woman stating that her church was in distressing financial condition. They had tried every device they could think of—fairs, strawberry festivals, oyster suppers, a donkey party, turkey banquets, Japanese weddings, poverty socials, mock marriages, grab bags, box socials, and necktie sociables. "Would Mr. Greeley be so kind as to suggest some new device to keep the struggling church from disbanding?" The editor replied, "Try Christianity."—The Christian.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

"PROBLEMS OF YOUTH ON MISSION FIELDS."

This is a question that should be given much thought and study. To do this an effective worship service is necessary. For the Scripture lesson use I. Thess. 1:1-8. And any of these hymns are suitable for this program: "The Whole Wide World for Jesus," "Teach Us, O Lord, True Brotherhood," "Christ for the World We Sing," "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations," and "In Christ There is No East or West."

Youth is a time of transition and readjustment. Then, let us think seriously about our own needs and problems in our own homes and community, and see how many are common to youth everywhere. We are sure that youth in mission lands have some problems that are much more acute than ours. What about the youth of China, Japan, and India, and all other lands beyond the seas? These countries, as well as the youth, are passing through a period of transition and readjustment and therefore the problems of youth are greatly intensified.

There are several problems we might use for discussion:

The Church Presents a Problem.—When missionaries are sent out by our American churches they are told by their own church how to do the work. As a result our churches have been transplanted into foreign soil. Denominationalism is a stumbling-block in non-Christian lands. Our orders of service, our hymns, our church architecture are all strange and out of harmony with the life and culture of other lands.

The Conflict with Loyalties to Family and to Country.—A young Indian goes to the mission school and becomes a follower of Christ. Then he returns home; will he remain loyal to Christ, or loyal to his family? Today Mahatma Gandhi is in prison in India, and the fires of unrest smolder throughout the land; will the youth remain loyal to their country or not?

The Chasm Between Ideals and Practicabilities.—In India, there still remains what is known as the caste system. The people are members of their own isolated, independent group and their customs of eating, marriage, etc., are different. It is a disgrace and they become outcasts if these customs are broken. What can our Mission schools and colleges do about it? In China and India the marriage customs require a betrothal of the boy and girl early in life. No matter what happens the betrothal cannot be broken. If the boy dies the little "wife" becomes a widow for life, maybe at the age of five years.

The Problem of a Life-Work Upon Graduation.—Most Chinese and Indians expect to enter governmental service and prepare for this in college and later find that there is no opening. The problem is to fit them for the practical purposes of life. Missionaries must recognize the cultural values of the marriage intermingled with the historical background of Oriental youth when they may become leaders of the natives. And another challenge to youth in mission lands is the acceptance of responsibility. This will give the missionary a chance to be an adviser and co-operator rather than a director.

The Demonstration of Reality in the Christian Life.—The time has come when all youth are seeking for reality. They are tired of pretense, sham, platitudes and pious phrases. The leaders in mission lands must show by their lives and their willingness to help the youth how they can find the real God and the real Christ.

"I have better use for my brain than to poison it with alcohol. To put alcohol in the human brain is like putting sand in the bearings of an engine."—Thomas A. Edison.

Sunday School Lesson

BY REV. STANLEY C. HARRELL.

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS—PART I.

LESSON VI—AUGUST 7, 1932.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might."—Deut. 6:5.

TIME: B. C. 1491.

PLACE: Mount Sinai.

In the lesson for last Sunday, we studied the love of God manifested in the gift of Manna, that was to feed the Israelites during their sojourn in the wilderness. That lesson set forth one side of the religious life; the attitude of God toward man. The lesson for today and the lesson for next Sunday set forth the other side of religion; the attitude of man toward God. The average individual would much prefer the former, and is always inclined to overlook the latter. It is the weakness of modern Christianity that it does not properly emphasize the duty of man toward God.

In order to properly appreciate the facts of this lesson, one should read carefully the nineteenth chapter of Exodus, which sets forth the preparations which were to be made for the reception of God's Commandments. God rarely ever speaks to the unprepared mind and heart. Or if he does speak to those who are not prepared and expectant, the message is unheard or unheeded. We should not expect that God would waste words on careless and unthinking men.

The Ten Commandments are the Magna Charta of human conduct. They are the irreducible minimum of human duty. No standard of human conduct is complete and perfect that neglects any phase of the Ten Commandments. Much has been made of the fact that other codes show striking resemblance to the Ten Commandments, especially in the case of the Code of Hammurabi, which authorities agree was of an earlier date than the Decalogue. The Bible never claims that it presents truth that has never before been glimpsed by the mind of man. So much of God's truth is foreshadowed in his universe that thinking men could not have failed to chance upon some of it. But man waits upon God's revelation for a complete and adequate understanding of the truth.

It is especially important that we carefully study that portion of the Commandments which is included in the lesson for today. It has to do with the relationship of man to God. It is foolish to expect right relationships between men, who do not have the right relationship toward God. The moral collapse of the present generation, is the direct consequent of the weakened sense of man's duty to God which developed in the preceding generations. It is a waste of time to try to establish an enduring morality in the lives of men and women who are not conscious of their duty to divinity.

The Commandments begin with a reminder of the deliverance from Egypt, and attention is directed to the fact that their God had wrought that deliverance. God challenges our allegiance to him through what he has done for us. God is by this reference identifying himself with both their past and their future.

The First Commandment enjoins that Jehovah is to be the supreme and only God. This commandment seems especially necessary for the Israelites, since they had just come out of Egypt where the gods were all but numberless. The constant contact with such worship could not have but left an impression upon the minds of the people. It is well, however, that we remember that men have always turned to the gods in the hope that they may exert a helpful influence in the present welfare of the people. Are we placing our hope only in God? If not we are liable to be breaking the First Commandment.

The Second Commandment is very closely related to the first. It forbids the making of any graven image as an object of worship. Perhaps it was intended to prevent the people from making images that would through a material presence represent to them the Lord whom they served. It is very hard to keep worship entirely upon a spiritual plane. But only spiritual worship avails anything for the heart of man. For idolatry works two ways. The New Testament tells us that covetousness is idolatry.

The Third Commandment forbids the irreverent use of God's name. It not only forbids what we commonly know as profanity and cursing, but it also forbids the use of the name of God to establish a falsehood. The breaking of this commandment witnesses two things against the transgressor. First, it is an evidence that he does not know enough to clearly and emphatically express his ideas. And second, it is an admission that he does not believe others to have sufficient confidence in his truthfulness to believe him unless he bolsters his statement with an oath.

The Fourth Commandment forbids the desecration of the Lord's Day. It is very clear and explicit as to what may and may not be done on the Sabbath. It is intended not only to make holy things sacred. It is designed to prevent man's selfishness from destroying his spiritual interests. In the day in which this commandment was spoken, man was most liable to let his desire for gain cause him to disregard the Sabbath. Today it is the desire for pleasure that is the strong temptation that confronts the masses. Greedy men anxious to turn the desire of others for pleasure into their own profit, are making a desperate effort to commercialize the Lord's Day. These four commandments lay the foundation for all human conduct by bringing men into the right relationship with God.

LOOK UP!

"A young man once found a five-dollar bill on the street," says William Feather, a well-known writer. "From that time on he never lifted his eyes when walking. In the course of years he accumulated 29,516 buttons, 54,172 pins, 12 cents, a bent back, and a miserly disposition. He lost the glory of the sunlight, the sheen of stars, the smiles of friends, tree-blossoms in the spring, the blue skies, and the entire joy of living."—San Francisco News.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 $\frac{7}{8}$ x7 Inches, and 1 $\frac{3}{8}$ Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75
India Paper Edition, Size 4 $\frac{7}{8}$ x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00
Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold.....$1.60
Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 $\frac{3}{4}$ x7

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.50

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges.....$6.00

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 $\frac{3}{4}$ x5 $\frac{5}{8}$ Inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 $\frac{3}{4}$ x5 $\frac{5}{8}$ Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps.....$2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 $\frac{3}{4}$ x8 $\frac{1}{2}$ Inches and 1 $\frac{3}{8}$ Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools.....95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond Virginia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."—II. Chron. 7:14.

MONDAY.

HINDERING GOD.

"Get thee behind me, Satan; Thou art an offence unto me; for thou savourest not the things that be of God, but these that be of men."—Matt. 16:23.

Goodspeed: "You hinder me, for you do not side with God, but with men."

Peter, it appears, was surprised at this outburst of Christ, and no wonder, for it, no doubt, was furthest from his mind to either be an offence or an hindrance to Jesus. He thought he was making things easy for Christ. Peter had just been blessed by his Lord, and in turn he felt that he would protect his Lord to the last ditch.

This brings to our minds that love itself may be the most formidable hindrance to us in doing the right thing. Love forces us into the easiest way, and yet to take the easiest way may prevent one from achieving the heights. Love may cause one to make it easy for a child, and to give way to the child's will; but the easy way to a child hinders the development of his best manhood, and to have his way leads to a living positively vicious. A wife may play the part of a loving devastator to her husband. It was a deeply seeing man who cried: "I can take care of my enemies, but save me from my friends."

Does it take much for you to hear Jesus say: "You are hindering me?" "On to Calvary," is still his watchword. If we take the easier way, we would, like Peter, urge him to stay in Bethany, that there are crosses in Jerusalem. But love, joy and peace are to be brought to the world, and to produce these traits means Calvary. We must go with him, help him, and die for the cause, if necessary.

Prayer—O Lord, our God, show us thy way. If the hard way is the best, wilt thou not make it plain to us wheresoever thou shouldst go—may we be willing to follow, fearing nothing. O God, we trust thee. Amen.

TUESDAY.

"Thou savourest not the things that be of God, but those that be of man."—Matt. 16:23.

Goodspeed: "You do not side with God."

Moffatt: "Your outlook is not God's."

Either of the above interpretations are true and fitting. There is a great deal in being on the Lord's side, and there is more in having God's view of things. The latter is promised and is an outcome of the former, and the original word embraces both.

One thing we can do is side with the Lord. All righteousness makes such a step the most reasonable step to take. One thing we can have in common with our Lord and in that be consciously like him, is, our view-point. What an inspiring thought it is that we can each day look at things and consider things as God sees them and have our understanding of them according to Divine purpose. Certainly, we cannot have the mind of God. His thoughts are above our thoughts, but we can have his outlook. It was not the condition of heart that Jesus rebuked in Peter, but it was the direction in which he was looking.

Jesus thus gives a new depth of life. He has plumbed beneath mere outward observances and struck the bottom of the heart. He pulled away the clouds from the material skies and stretched Peter's eyes unto new heights as the necessary human outlook for the kingdom. He tore away the fences that kept Peter from seeing the world as God's field, and opened his eyes to the needs of neighbors, and all people.

Jesus had no use for fences. They shut out view. It was one of the surest evidences of his divinity that he tore down the walls between peoples and took the Gospel to the world.

When we take a less circle of humanity in our interest than Jesus did, the outlook is man's, not God's.

Prayer—Our Father, we believe that thou knowest what we need better than we do. We confess that at our best we are selfish and mean. We pray for thy indwelling with us to make us all that thou wouldst have us be. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

PUTTING CHRIST IN UNIFORM.

"And they stripped him and put on him a scarlet robe."—Matt. 27:28.

Commentators tell us that in this text "scarlet robe" is interpreted to have been a "General's short crimson cloak." Such an interpretation is in keeping with the sarcasm and ridicule of the things they did to Jesus on the cross. For instance, they crowned him King, using a crown of thorns; they put an inscription over his head, "King of the Jews," and then they put upon his body the robe of a Roman general, and spat upon him. What irony to dress the Prince of Peace up thus and subject him to low indignities!

All this is symbolic of much that has happened in Christian history. Each age has made violent wrenchings and distortions of Jesus in order to make his meaning fit our ideas of pleasure, lust and personal interest. We set him up in institutional religion, but institutional religion does not represent Jesus Christ. We dress him up with a long face, but that is not Jesus. Today we dress him up in the garb of a "go-getter," the "high-powered" executive, etc., but Jesus is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, goodness, gentleness, meekness, the truth, the life, the Author of faith and the Finisher of faith. As "the Kingdom of God is righteousness," so is Jesus righteousness, justice and peace. There is no need in the world greater than to strip Jesus of everything foreign which man has placed upon him and let him stand out unhindered and undisguised in all these things, forgetting everything else, in our endeavor to promote them.

Prayer—O Lord God, lest we forget, be with us today in a consciousness of these supreme trials of Christian character and help us to make everything else in all our lives subordinate and contributing to the achievement of love and righteousness. In his name we ask it. Amen.

THURSDAY.

PASSING THE BUCK.

"I am innocent of this just person; see ye to it."—Matt. 27:24.

Moffatt interprets the last clause thus: "It is your affair."

It is a common occurrence for some one to shift responsibility upon someone else. This is called "passing the buck."

Four times in the trial of Jesus he was handed over to someone else on the plea that it was "their affair." After it was all over the concerned innocent ones said, "It was not my fault." Anything to get Jesus off their hands was the motive.

This passing of Jesus from one to another is the supreme instance of side-stepping responsibility. It is a part of the daily picture of life. Trying to locate responsibility and getting action thereon.

The most serious aspect of this is that in most cases it is a lie. Jesus was the affair of Judas and of everyone to whom he was subsequently turned over. Jesus is every man's affair and he cannot be sidestepped. He is our affair in every choice we make. The whole trial is a looking-glass for all of us. Shall we too pass up our responsibilities for decision on him? It is easy for us to condemn them, but how about us?

For instance, the blame for crime today is put on almost everything—home, school, laws, police, newspapers, movies, prohibition. We are pointing to each of them and saying, "that is your affair." Nobody says, "I am to be blamed for that; what shall we do?" We are saying, "Why don't they do something; they are to blame?" We pray, "What wilt thou have the social order to do?" instead of saying, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?"

Not until we learn that we are responsible for our homes, our schools, our laws, our police, our newspapers, our movies, our prohibition failure, etc., will conditions be better, it matters not whether we repeal or continue. We must say this, "This is my affair; I will stop lawlessness." How different things would be if we would

Prayer—O Lord, make us all over again. Make us more interested in the Kingdom than in alibis. We see where it all leads. God save us from the hell of it all. Amen.

FRIDAY.

THE RESURRECTION AND THE CRUCIFIXION.

"And the graves were opened; and many bodies of saints which slept arose."—Matt. 27:52.

At the supreme moment of Jesus' sacrifice, the dead arose. Has that not always been so? Whenever the spirit which Jesus manifested on Calvary finds expression, men are shocked into life.

When Francis, of Assisi, showed men the love of Christ there was startling awakening of life. When David Livingston plunged into Africa, a new world came forth. "God's trumpets wake the slumbering world," said Longfellow. The sacrificial life has always been the most effective. In fact the sacrificial life has been the only life that has brought forth new life, even in the advancement of science.

"Ten thousand musics never could
Stir an image out of wood;
But let love knock at the door,
And Saints in niches, gray with lore,
Step from their halos to the floor,
And laugh, and are alive once more."

Well, many a Saint is sleeping in his niche today. Some general resurrection is needed to bring forth new life.

Resurrection always follows crucifixion. Said one, "I've always known what the Bible said about it, but I never saw anyone before who had the nerve to live it. You have given my thinking a jolt." That is our final hope, and the only hope of the Kingdom of God. Nerve to live it.

Prayer—Our Father, give us faith that knows no daunting. Make us willing to follow thy lead—to sacrifice for the sake of life. In Christ's name, we ask it. Amen.

(Continued on page 15.)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

PERSONAL WORK.

"And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and forever."—Dan. 12:3.

I. The Price of Personal Work.—Before we can win others we must first pay the price of personal work. When Peter and John were going up to the temple at the hour of prayer a poor cripple asked alms of them. And Peter said, "Silver and gold have I none; but what I have, that I give thee." And we can only give what we ourselves have. If we cannot offer much, let us seriously ask ourselves whether or not we have much to offer. It would not take so much training, talents, or time—if we had our pockets full of ten-dollar gold coins—to give them to others.

If we have our own lives full of the confidence of our own salvation—for both this world and the world to come—it will be an easy matter to seek others. For instance, if we feel a happy impelling spirit within us which causes us to love God, to love God's people, to love God's house; and a spirit within us which would see our hands cut from our arms rather than engage us in evil-doing; and if we have within us a spirit of anxiety to do the will of God in living, loving service—then, and not until then, will we have a real testimony for others. Or again for instance, if we—knowing the promises of God as found in his revealed Word, feel a witness within our own hearts that our own personal sins have been wiped out as far as the "east is from the west"; or that they "have been cast into the river of forgetfulness"; or that "no more will God remember them against us forever"; and that when we come before the great judgment bar of God, we will stand clean, pure, innocent, and redeemed through the blood of the Lamb—then, and not till then, will we have the most effective message for others.

Matthew was sent out to be a personal worker for Christ, but not until he had paid the price. Before he was sent out we read of him that he "forsook all." This was the very first thing he did—before he even "rose up." It was a great mental and spiritual exercise within. Sitting there at the seat of custom, hearing the call of Christ, he simply and unequivocally decided to put God first. Two things must have been controlling his mind, namely, his love for the clean, beautiful life calling him; and also his desire to fill a place of real service for others in this life. Ah! my friends, if those two motives might reach first place in our lives today! Our love for Jesus! How we know him! Why we see what he has done for us; and then we see what, through so many centuries, he has done for others. He is no stranger to us. How we should love him! Then, too, we should desire to be like him in serving others. In rendering a service which will be remembered long after our bodies are turned to dust. So much for the price of personal work.

II. The Power of Personal Work.—Matthew did not stop at forsaking all. That would have been tragic. Too many people think religion is a process of "quitting." It is mostly just the opposite. Nature abhors a vacuum. And religion, that is the Christian religion, is a great "beginning to do and teach." All our lives we are to be undertaking things for God. He will give the increase. Matthew rose up and followed him.

He put evil purposes out. He took Jesus in. "And as many as received him, to them gave he the power." (John 1:12.)

He had power to follow him. And the beauty about this faith is that we need not always quit whatever we are doing to follow Jesus. Many times Jesus wishes us to follow him at just what we are doing. Not always did he permit them to leave their work, or place to follow him. Sometimes he specially charged them to remain where they were. The Gadarene, who was healed of a mental disease, and given a spiritual blessing, wanted to go with Jesus, but was told to go home to his own people instead. I suppose that the women of the city of Sychar continued to carry water from Jacob's well after she had been called to follow Jesus. She must have done the same kind of honest work, and in much the same way and yet what a difference there must have been. Every time she dipped up a butt of that water how she must have drunk in ever after the "living water" of which the Saviour spoke!

If we allow Jesus to empower our lives, "behold all things become new." How the old tasks shine! How the old work thrills! Here was a man making money to hoard away. To count by day and by night. One day men found his treasure and stole it away! His very heart was gone. He felt that he was ruined beyond repair. A short while later a little lost girl found her way to his hearthside, and her little life made immediate and urgent demands upon him. He began to serve her, and without his gold. Little by little, and quite rapidly, he found his gold again in the sunshine of her laughter. Silas Marner worked again, and made money again; but for, oh! such a different purpose, and with such a different zest.

In a former parish I had a man who loved God. One day I challenged him to show his love by giving the church $500 to clear it of a little debt. He did, and a few weeks later he voluntarily gave that same church another check for $500; the same size check to another church in the community; and a check twice as large to a church institution. His money had a different meaning to him. God gave his life a new power. God gives us power to start, and as we go he adds power—and besides this, our very going for God increases our power an hundred-fold! Go out. Win one soul. See if you do not immediately wish to win another.

In Norfolk, Virginia, I was holding a meeting and a young truck driver became a Christian. He lived down in a sort of forgotten section. He canvassed that section for his own neighbors—got them to promise to come to his home for a prayer meeting, and invited me to come down for an hour before my evening services began. I went, and before the meeting was over, he had added twelve persons to that church. Let us likewise accept the power God gives us, and go out to win others; God will honor our efforts and bless our own lives and the lives of others. "And said unto him, Follow me. And he forsook all, and rose up and followed him." Amen.

ANSWERED WHILE SPEAKING.

A company of Covenanters had been pursued by their prosecutors until their strength was exhausted. Reaching a hill which separated them from their pursuers, their leader said, "Let us pray here, for if the Lord hear not our prayer and save us, we are all dead men." He then prayed: "Twine about the hill, O Lord, and cast the lap of Thy cloak over our old Saunders and these our things!" Before he had done speaking a mist rose up about the hill, and wrapped the devoted little band about like the very cloak of the Lord he had prayed for. In vain their enemies sought to find them and while they were wearying themselves in the efforts, an order came which sent them on an errand in a different direction.—Arthur T. Pierson.

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling). $22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00
Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

We some times wonder if some of our church people don't think those who work at the Christian Orphanage have a good, easy time. If so, they should come and spend a week with us, and satisfy themselves as to the true facts.

Your superintendent has had charge of this institution for nearly sixteen years, and during that time he's had two weeks' vacation. Time has been too precious and the work has been too strenuous to take time off. In fact, vacations never appeal to us. We are always happy at work.

Then think of the matron who has charge of the kitchen and dining room in one of the buildings which houses from thirty to forty children. Three meals each day, every day the year 'round. Ah! you say, the girls help do the work. Of course, they do, but the responsibility, the planning of the meals, the serving of the meals, the constant study how to economize and make everything go as far as possible, because they are checked after each month.

Then, take the house mother, who has the discipline of the children—who is responsible for their training, conduct, the clothes, the tidiness of the house, the sewing and one hundred other things. The girls help, of course, to do the work, but the responsibility that weighs upon one's shoulders and never lets up!

Take our farm. Think of cultivating 150 acres with a bunch of little boys. This year they made 813 bushels of wheat, 423 bushels of oats, 31 bushels of rye, 250 bushels of Irish potatoes. We make all the vegetables we use. 50 acres in soy beans and 20 acres in corn, three acres in tomatoes and five acres in sweet potatoes. Think of the work it takes to cultivate this much land.

We go to the dairy and find thirty head of pretty Holstein and Jersey cows. Think of the work to handle that many cows every day and to handle sixty gallons of milk daily and keep everything spotless and clean so we can hold our "A" grade.

Then we go to the piggery and see 25 nice fat, slick hogs to make our meat for next year. Can you imagine much time to rest? Not much.

Since your Christian Orphanage opened you have given care to 368 children and they have all been trained in some of the above departments. You have been a friend to them when they needed your friendship. They asked you for a home and you did not turn them away. They asked you for food and you heard their cry. They have been sick and you have visited them. You have done it in His name.

We advise the use of lots of Octagon Soap this hot weather, and mail the coupons to the Christian Orphanage. We want 10,000 more by September 1st. Put on an Octagon Soap campaign.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR JULY 28, 1932.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Brought forward	$ 9,026.99
North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Mt. Zion	1.25
United Lynchburg	3.93
Ingram	3.00
Salem Chapel	1.72
	9.90
Western North Carolina Conference:
Pleasant Ridge	2.27
Ether	1.00
Antioch	.44
	3.71

Eastern North Carolina Conference:
Christian Light	$ 2.00
Wake Chapel	10.00
Liberty Vance	3.36
Cary, January to July	9.22
	24.58

Eastern Virginia Conference:
First Norfolk	6.99
Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Winchester	$ 3.48
Timber Ridge	6.52
	10.00

Special Offerings.

R. J. Miller, support of children..	$ 30.35
W. A. Lee, support of children..	5.00
	35.35
Total for the week.....	$ 90.53
Grand Total	$ 9,117.52

DEVELOPMENT OF SUNDAY SCHOOL.

(Continued from page 7.)

Another fallacy is in the selection of teachers. The best teachers usually go to the Men's Bible Class or the Woman's Class. The next best to the young people's class and so on down the line, until we get to the beginners, who get the sorriest teachers. We should see that the beginners have the best teachers. Well might we remember the Catholics' emphasis on primary training.

Next, let us look at the physical plant, and see what we find there. I wonder how many churches in our conference have Sunday School classrooms either built as an integral part or sectioned off by means of wires and curtains. Roughly estimating it would not seem too low to say that one in ten have these rooms. Then in the words of Christ, "Where are the nine?" How many of our churches have all the special equipment for these Sunday School rooms? Our guess would be about one church (Burlington). Where are the rest? They (the pupils) are groping in a conglomeration of teachers' voices with their attention fluctuating from one teacher to the other, each struggling for an audience until that most gladsome news comes for the classes to reassemble. Contrast this picture with the picture you get on entering any classroom in any standard or elementary high school in North Carolina, and you will see conditions so vastly different that they will hardly appear as supplements in the great task of the 20th century.

Let us remember that the Sunday School movement arose to meet a felt need in the proper development of youth. It has grown and developed from a more or less sporadic, unorganized institution, operating independently of the church, to a highly organized institution connected with the church, and forming one of the most important parts of its organization.

More attention must be given to training the teachers. Poor teachers fail to beget in their pupils right attitudes, conduct and appreciation.

The teaching period should be lengthened. At the rate of thirty minutes per Sunday it would take 20 or 25 years to complete an English or History course in a standard high school.

We should have better buildings and a great deal more equipment.

Why should we not awaken and bestir ourselves to action? How foolish of the blacksmith to idly stand by while the glowing heat passes and then when the iron cools tries to shape it! How foolish the farmer to neglect the seasons! How foolish the church to neglect her nursery!

ALL
SELF-
PRONOUNCING

Holman Testaments

COMMAND
ATTENTION
AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2½x4½ inches

Specimen of Type.

AND the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Je'sus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles.....	$.50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles.....	.60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....	.85

VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS

2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges.....	.70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....	.90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges.....	1.10

With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.
13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges.....	.90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included.....	1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4½ inches x 3½ inch. The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller. It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength. One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4½ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2 The three wise men

carrying away into Babylon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Bab-ylon
unto Christ are fourteen

ing interpreted is, God
with us.
24 Then Je'seph being raised from sleep did as
the angel of the Lord had

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....	$ 1.00
5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included.....	1.50
5036PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms.....	2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET
SIZE
3¾x4½
inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type

CHAPTER 23.

THEN spake Je'sus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3¾x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms.....	$.90
4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....	1.35
4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included.....	1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT
4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....	1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT
4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms.....	3.00
4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red.....	3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print

Pica, 16mo. Size, 5¼x7¼x3¼ inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines.

Specimen of Type.
THE book of Je'sus
It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

PSALMS INCLUDED
2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included.....	$ 1.50

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS

Same Large Print as Above
2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included.....	2.95

RED LETTER EDITION
3913PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included.....	3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

MASANETTA SPRINGS.

The Young People's League of the Synod of Virginia closing at Masanetta Springs recently, was pronounced by leaders as a well organized, fine spirited, character building conference. There were in attendance approximately 450 including the teachers and counselors. The depression has not yet apparently had any great effect upon the attendance at the Massanetta Springs Conference.

The new officers elected for 1933 were Mr. Edwin Hemphill, Petersburg, Va., president; Mr. Clarence Ale, Alexandria, vice-president; and Miss Helen Williamson, Washington, D. C., secretary.

No one can compute the influence which went out from the text-book and classes and inspirational addresses. Those giving inspirational addresses were Dr. R. C. Long, Greenwood, S. C.; Rev. Parks W. Wilson, Harrisonburg, Va.; and Dr. Ben R. Lacy, president of Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va.

There were fourteen text-book classes and a total of 35 speakers, teachers and counselors. Approximately 350 students will each receive three credits for work done in the text-book classes. Fifteen young people received the "Order of Massanetta."

The Training School for Auxiliary Workers opened at Masanetta Springs on the 26th of July. Among the outstanding speakers are Dr. S. M. Zwemer, famous missionary and now Professor in Princeton Seminary; Dr. Donald Richardson, Professor in Union Theological Seminary, Richmond; Dr. C. Darby Fulton, Executive Secretary of Foreign Missions, and others.

The Bible Conference for Ministers begins on August 8th, and runs through to the 21st. This meeting is usually attended by many of our own ministers, and this year will probably prove no exception.

Reduced rates are given by bus lines and railroad trunk lines in Virginia and adjoining States.

FAMILY ALTAR.

(Continued from page 12.)

SATURDAY.MONKEY OR GORILLA?

"There were they in great fear, where no fear was."—Read Psalm 53:1-6.

Not long ago, near where I am writing, a little monkey escaped from a park. The news of his escape was exaggerated as it traveled until it was believed that a terrible man-eating gorilla was at large. Great fear seized the people. At last two small boys emerged from the woods carrying the little monkey, which played merrily with them like a kitten.

So it is with our fears and worries. We magnify them out of all reason. We do not find out the facts regarding them, but rest on fancy. We flee from them while they have no intention of chasing us. The cure is a firm reliance on God. If we trust him, we shall not be afraid of any evil, however terrible it may seem.

Prayer—Our divine Leader, lead us from foolish fears. Draw us away from our petty worries into peace. Assure us of thy presence, and be our invincible confidence forever. Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.NO FOREIGNERS.

"Why have I found favor in thy sight, that thou shouldst take knowledge of me, seeing I am a foreigner?"—Read Ruth 2:8-13.

Ruth, the Moabitess, was amazed that Boaz, the rich Jew, should take any notice of her, still less do her a kindness, since she was of alien blood. The entire Book of Ruth shows how exceptional were such acts in those days. Indeed, the world had to wait for the coming of the Son of Man, a descendant of Ruth and Boaz, before it began to learn to be courteous and helpful to foreigners. He planted the spirit of brotherhood in all his true followers.

It took a long time for even Christians to learn the lesson. Paul, as he spread Christianity among the foreigners, even to Greece and Rome and Spain, had to fight bigotry and exclusiveness at home as he fought idolatry abroad. And still now, after nineteen centuries of Christianity, the Christian Church has hardly reached the full state of brotherhood, to say nothing of the rest of the world.

Each one of us is to go to a better country, Paul assures us. Our Saviour has prepared a place for us there. But will not the warmth of our reception depend in part upon the warmth of our reception of these strangers and foreigners here below?

Prayer—How alien was this world to thee, our Saviour, and how cruelly it treated thee! And we know that thou makest the cause of all foreigners thy cause also. May we not offend thee in offending them. Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

WHITLEY MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 15th. Freshmen register on Tuesday, September 13th, and upper classmen on the 15th. Expenses reduced for this session. Write for Catalog and application blank.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. Associate
W. W. STALEY, D. D. Contributing
S. C. HARRELL Contributing
C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. Contributing
ELISHA A. KING, D. D. Contributing
W. C. WICKER, D. D. Contributing
J. T. KERNODLE Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When sending subscriptions for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of year.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

OBITUARIES

BRIDGES.

Robert Henry Bridges was born January 15, 1860, and departed this life May 14, 1932, aged 72 years, 3 months, and 29 days. Deceased was a man of good standing in his community. He lived near Elkton Va. He is survived by his widow and one son. Funeral services were held at the home, May 16, 1932, and interment was in the Elkton cemetery. A. W. ANDES.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom, has removed from our midst our friend and co-worker, Mrs. Lou McAden Yarbrough, a member of the Woman's Missionary Society of Lebanon Christian Church, be it resolved:

First: That we are grateful to the Master for her happy and useful life; though her prospects seemed so bright, God's finger touched her and she slept.

Second: That we miss her gentle presence which was ever a joy and inspiration to us, but pleasant memories of our association with her will abide.

Third: That we extend to the family our sympathy and commend them to Him whom she served.

Fourth: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to her husband, Mr. John Yarbrough, of Semora, to her daughter, Mrs. Clifton Wells, of Edgerton, Va., and to "The Christian Sun," the church paper she loved, with the request that they be published.

THE CONGREGATIONAL LATIN-AMERICAN INSTITUTE AND PILGRIM LATIN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH OF WEST TAMPA, FLA.—

Are helping give the Gospel, which is "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," to the forty thousand Latin people of Tampa. The evangelical forces working among the foreigners of Tampa are by no means covering the territory sufficiently.

Methodists have six preachers, Baptists two, Presbyterians one, Congregationalists one. Church workers and teachers must be supported for this great missionary work. Send check to

LESLIE S. BRAY, Treas.

Route 4, Box 468, - - Tampa, Fla.
Send boxes of clothing to Mrs. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

For literature, write Rev. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' EDITION FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type.
"From that time Jē to preach, and to say, 'I the kingdom of heaven'"

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid 10.65

Be it further resolved, That the Missionary Society of Lebanon record in its minutes, this expression of our affection for our departed friend and member.

MARKS.

Georgiana Benton Marks was born July 12, 1866, and passed to her reward May 22, 1932. She was married to James L. Marks December 24, 1883, and to this union there were born six sons and one daughter, all of whom, except the one son who died in infancy, survive her. She became a Christian in early life, and when she moved to Hoke County, near Vass, N. C., she became a member of Mt. Pleasant Christian Church and remained a faithful member and devoted Christian until death.

She died suddenly about 5:00 P. M., Sunday, May 22nd, after returning from Sunday School and after taking dinner with her daughter. She loved her church and did all she could to build it up and keep the good work of the church going. She was buried in Mt. Pleasant cemetery May 23rd, the funeral being attended by a large company. The floral offerings were elaborate and beautiful. The funeral was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. T. Fred Wright, of Sanford. Truly, a good woman has gone to her reward. J. S. CARDEN.

Durham, N. C.

SUMMER SESSION

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

JUNE 8 TO 20, OR AUGUST 10

An Accredited Summer School in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

Standard Courses in Fifteen Departments Meeting the Academic and Professional Needs of College Students, Teachers and Prospective Teachers.

Special Courses in Primary, Intermediate, High School and Rural Education; also in Public School Music and Art, Story Telling, Coaching of Plays, Southern Literature, Southern History, Geography, Religious Education, Piano, Voice and Violin.

Six to Nine Weeks of Profitable Study Combined with Delightful Vacation and Recreation.

For Catalogue, write

DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
Demorest, Ga.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

A Memorial of the Congregational-Christian Union.

FRANK E. JENKINS, Pres.

MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD, Dean

Chartered by Southern Christian Convention, June 2, 1922, as Bethlehem College; renamed Southern Union, June 3, 1931.

Will function during the present financial depression as a Junior College only.

FALL TERM WILL OPEN SEPTEMBER 7.

DEPRESSION PRICES.

Depression prices during the coming year, made possible by extensive gardens, careful planning, organization and donations—Tuition, board and room, $192 for entire scholastic year; tuition alone, $48; each payable in six equal installments.

Unsectarian, but thoroughly Christian.

For Information, write—

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXIV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, AUGUST 4, 1932.

NUMBER 31.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

Number of Automobiles Decreases Slightly.—

According to the estimate of the Department of Commerce, at the close of 1931, automobiles owned throughout the world numbered 35,263,397, as compared with 35,805,632 at the close of 1930. This is a decrease of approximately 1.5 per cent. During this time passenger cars declined 2.1 per cent, but trucks and busses increased 1.4 and 6 per cent, respectively. The United States still leads with nearly 26 million registrations, but shows a decline of nearly 3 per cent.

Public Libraries Cut Costs.—

In normal years the public libraries of the United States spend around 19 or 20 million dollars for new books and periodicals. Up to the present year this amount has held up very well, but owing to cuts in appropriations and other conditions, there has been a drop in purchases amounting to an average of 24 per cent, or nearly $5,000,000. This is quite an important item in the book and periodical business, and would in itself account for a great part of the falling off in that line of business.

Youth and Prohibition.—

W. Roy Breg is the authority for the statement that "Young people are playing an increasingly important part in the fight for the Eighteenth Amendment." He continues to say that Allied Youth Councils have been formed in more than 200 cities in connection with the educative movement now being carried on for the retention of the amendment and the strengthening of its enforcement. Every State in the Union is represented, and the present enrollment numbers about 150,000. At this late date the prohibition forces are attempting what should have been a continuous program since the enactment of the law, that is a program of education as to its value and of the detrimental effects of a backward step.

Good Will Handkerchiefs.—

The World's Sunday School Convention is meeting this year in Rio de Janeiro, and the Philippine Council of Religious Education has sent to this convention a box of international good-will handkerchiefs for distribution. These handkerchiefs were prepared by members of the Philippine Sunday Schools for the Sunday School children of the world, and the idea urging the preparation of the handkerchiefs created quite a keen local interest. The handkerchiefs are said to be beautiful in design, being embroidered with the Holy Bible, the Philippine flag and the name of the donor. They are sent with the hope that "the distribution of these good-will handkerchiefs at Rio will help create a more intelligent and intimate fellowship among the Sunday School forces of the world."

Canada Makes a Mistake.—

Under the Dominion Trademark Act, which becomes effective on September 1st, protection is no longer provided through the known use of a trademark by a particular manufacturer or for a specific line of goods. American firms are warned that registration will be the only guarantee of exclusive ownership, and if they do not register their brands and someone else wishes to use that trademark, they have no redress at all. Contrary to common law usage, the Canadian Act provides that prior registration alone determines ownership. This act will work great hardships upon American firms advertising and doing business in Canada, but the Canadians themselves will be the ones to pay the greater penalty. The act gives unscrupulous manufacturers the chance to cash in on the advertising and good-will of reputable firms, and to use similar trademarks on inferior goods. We are afraid Canada has made a mistake.

Massenetta Bible Conference.—

Massenetta Springs is the scene each year of religious conferences for young people, lay workers, and others. There is also a musical festival which has become nationally important. Probably, however, the Bible Conference which is held the last two weeks of the open season, is better known than the others. Though under the auspices of the Presbyterian Church, ministers and laymen from practically every major denomination may be found in attendance. Eminent speakers from all over this country and from all parts of the English-speaking world participate in making this conference well worth-while, and this year should be no exception. Among the speakers for this year are numbered Dr. Robert E. Speer, of New York; Bishop E. D. Mouzon, Rev. "Billy" Sunday, Dr. J. Stuart Holden, of St. Paul's Church, London, England; General Smedley D. Butler, and others of equal note. The Christian Church is represented on this program by Dr. Leon E. Smith, who is to speak on "The Christian Message for a Time Like This." Ministers and others cannot do better than time their vacations so as to attend at least one week of this conference.

Some Good in Increased Expenditures.—

Not all of the increase in the cost of government can be said to be due to waste and extravagance. The American people seem to be eager for personal improvement and educational advantages. This is shown by the increase in expenditures for education in elementary and secondary public schools. In the year 1870 the expenditure per capita amounted to only $1.64, while in 1928 it had risen to $18.23. In 1929, the total expended for educational purposes by the Federal, State and local governments, amounted to $2,489 millions, of which $2,184 millions was used for public elementary and secondary schools. Thus, in 1929, approximately one-fifth of the total gross expenditures of Federal, State and local governments went for education. During the same year, in addition to the amount spent on public institutions, the amount paid for private education must have been enormous, as the following figures will show: 2,309,886 students were enrolled in private kindergartens and elementary schools; 373,159 in high schools, academies and college preparatory departments; 10,117 in normal schools and teachers' colleges; 550,306 in private universities, colleges and professional schools. These, with other special schools, gave an enrollment of approximately 3,500,000 paying for private education. If the right influences can be thrown around the boys and girls, the young men and women, in our schools today, this country truly has little to fear from the future.

The Home Loan Banks.—

Under the provisions of the Home Loan Bank Bill which was passed by the last Congress as part of Mr. Hoover's relief program, there seems to be the possibility of building up another system of banks comparable in size to the present Federal Reserve System. From eight to twelve of these banks are to be set up, with initial capital of $125 millions, which will be supplied by the United States Treasury. This capital is, however, to be gradually taken over by local banking and mortgage institutions, building and loan associations, etc. It is provided that these institutions may become members by subscribing 1 per cent of the unpaid principal of their outstanding mortgages. These members may rediscount their home mortgages with the Home Loan Bank up to 60 per cent of the unpaid principal of amortized mortgages, but not more than 40 per cent of the value of the property; when the mortgage is not of the amortized type, up to 50 per cent of the unpaid balance, but not over 30 per cent of the value of the property may be reborrowed. Another provision is that loans cannot be made on property valued at more than $20,000. Under the 40 per cent of valuation rule this would make $8,000.00 the largest amount that could be loaned on any piece of property by the bank. Thus a building and loan association which, in some cases, might lend as high as 75 per cent on a $20,000.00 property, or $15,000.00, would have the privilege of reborrowing $8,000.00 of that amount and have it available for relending. If the various commercial organizations of the country will take advantage of these banks, much can be done to relieve the distress among those who bought too strongly in the boom years of the past.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Dr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Gillette have returned from Asheville, N. C., where they spent a short vacation at the Forest Hill Inn.

Bro. Neese was a welcome visitor at Elon College this week, coming to make arrangements for two of his sons to enter college in September.

Rev. J. Delman Kuykendall, D. D., of Coconut Grove, Fla., is spending his vacation with his family at their summer home in Cloudland, Tenn.

Rev. C. Arthur Lincoln, of Daytona Beach, Fla., is spending a few weeks in New England and is supplying several important churches during his vacation.

Rev. A. L. Lucas is at Linville, N. C., for a few days where he can be reached by correspondence should any pastor desire him to assist in revival services this month or next. He will be glad to correspond with any pastor desiring help in evangelistic work.

Rev. T. J. Green, Ramseur, N. C., is assisting Rev. J. F. Apple in a revival at Bethel, N. C., this week. Besides being a beloved and successful pastor, Bro. Green is used and blessed most abundantly of the Lord in evangelistic meetings. He is one of our most faithful and consecrated preachers and pastors.

Under date of July 27th, Rev. G. D. Hunt, pastor, writes: "I am at New Hope this week in a fine meeting with great services, and the church is being much revived. I have no ministerial aid. The Elder reunion takes place at the church today, and this is an event of deep and very widespread interest throughout the whole country round about."

Rev. Ralph Krout, pastor of our church at New Port Richey, Fla., announces that his church, in cooperation with the Methodist Church, is holding a Daily Vacation Bible School. The four young lady teachers of the West Tampa Cuban Mission are assisting in the school. Mr. Krout expects to leave on August 15th for a vacation in New England.

Bro. Neese reports a very happy revival at Pleasant Ridge Church, beginning July 3rd and closing July 8th. Rev. J. M. Allred did the preaching throughout the services, which was very much enjoyed by the large congregations in attendance. The church was greatly revived, and there were two additions at the close of the meeting. More are expected to unite later.

One of his members, writing from Newport News Church, says: "We are getting along fine. Our people are fond of our 'House' (Rev. R. L. H.). From ages six to sixty-five are praising him. He has done marvelous work with our young people, and in this line he is particularly helpful in our work here." Bro. House recently assisted in a meeting at Shallow Ford near Elon College, and the people there esteem him for his good work and able sermons in the revival.

Dr. Clarence A. Vincent, pastor of the church at Winter Park, Fla., is spending a vacation with his family at their summer home in Hennessey, N. H. All their children and grandchildren except one are to be with them during parts of the summer. Mrs. Vincent, who was ill before leaving, has been recovering since her arrival in New England. Dr. Vincent is supplying several pulpits during the summer in various cities in the east.

A paragraph in a personal letter to the editor reads: "Truly, these last years have done things to me, and it is not all bad, either. I have learned things—things that I had to know. As yet I have not learned to 'wait upon the Lord' as well as I must learn. I must keep trying. But I have learned a little, and that little is a great help. I praise God for that much." There is always hope for folks who are teachable. There is always progress in lives that are still learning and wanting to learn. The trouble with many of us is that we do not care to know more than we do know, nor to be taught things differently from the things we learned long ago.

From our beloved and venerable brother, Rev. Albert Godley, Tenaflly, N. J., this wholesome message comes: "I enjoy THE CHRISTIAN SUN weekly, and I pray God's blessings upon you and our dear Brother Staley in his affliction and in his work. I pray God to bless all the faithful. Often I say, God bless them, as I read of their faithful work. May the Lord help us all to be truly faithful. I am getting stronger, and I hope to be able to walk soon. I have to be carried at present." Bro. Godley has been a cripple for some time, and it is a joy to get such a line of cheer from his loving and true heart and hand.

From Roanoke, Ala., under date of July 23rd, Rev. G. H. Veazey writes, very happily: "We closed the best revival yesterday that New Harmony has had in several years. The old standbys have passed on and the church is composed of younger people, and some of them are very consecrated. Rev. J. D. Dollar was with us most of the time and was certainly at his best. The church was greatly revived and we received eleven members—all young people, no children, nor any old people—six young men and five young women. The baptismal service was the climax when one more young man stepped out for Christ, making a total of ten candidates for baptism."

Rev. J. F. Apple assisted Rev. J. L. Neese, pastor, in a very gracious and glorious revival at New Lebanon, Rockingham County, N. C., beginning July 17th, closing the evening of July 22nd, holding four services daily—three preaching services and a prayer service each day. There was a full house in attendance every service and the deepest interest prevailed. The church was very greatly revived, and the whole community became deeply interested and blessed under the leadership of the pastor and the preaching of Bro. Apple. There were many confessions on faith and renewals and five united with the church at the close of the meeting.

The following is of interest to CHRISTIAN SUN readers who are gratified at every movement and gesture of progress in our initial Winston-Salem work: "Sunday night, July 24th, at the United Congregational-Christian Church, at Winston-Salem, was one of the best services the new congregation has had. Rev. John G. Truitt, of Dayton, Ohio, was present and spoke. Little James Albert Scott, infant son of Rev. and Mrs. William T. Scott, was consecrated to the Lord in a beautiful service conducted by Bro. Truitt. This day and the consecration service for the little Scott has added much encouragement to the new work in Winston-Salem. May the church ever seek to bring under its guiding hand little children, 'For of such is the Kingdom of Heaven.'"

Today, said the Psalmist, I am filled; "my cup runneth over." Tomorrow and forever I shall be with the Lord, dwelling in His pavilion. If trouble overtakes me and sorrow wounds me, goodness is trailing me, and will soon overtake me and heal me; if the archers of sin should shoot me and mistakes should confuse my steps, mercy will help goodness to relieve me, for she, too, is on my track, not far behind. "Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life"; and, beyond the days of this life, I shall continue to live—in the house of the Lord forever.—Christian Witness.

SUN readers will regret to learn that it became necessary for Dr. L. E. Smith, president, Elon College, to undergo a semi-serious surgical operation July 29th. Dr. Smith was on the operating table from 8:00 to 11:00 A. M., the operation being a tedious one—that for varicose veins in one of his lower limbs. Reports are that he stood the ordeal as well as could be expected, and there is promise that the operation was successful. He will possibly be in the hospital and confined to his bed for some two weeks or more. He is in Duke Hospital, Durham, N. C., where friends may reach him with a line of cheer and encouragement, if they wish. Mrs. Smith was with him during and following the operation.

One of our fine, intelligent young women said the other day: "I am just what the church has made me. I mean, all that is worth-while about me has come through Christian people." There are thousands of young people who could, if they would, make testimony to the same effect. Many of them may be indifferent to the church, and a pastor complained to the editor recently that the young son of a charter member of his church had not been to the church in many a day. And yet even that son, if he would search himself, would confess that whatever there is that is worth-while in him, whatever there is that is pure and true and good, noble and upright in him, he owes to the church, even to that father and mother who were faithful to the church and who never failed at the services.

Dr. A. D. Woodworth, one of our most beloved, faithful and efficient missionaries in Japan, writes from Tokio, July 4th: "The financial agitation is causing much anxiety in this land. The yen has slumped from about forty-eight and one-half dollars to the hundred yen to twenty-seven dollars for the same (almost one-half). A new law forbids anyone to change his currency into the American currency for stability. There is talk of adding a billion yen of fiat money to meet expenses. If this is done, I look for a further big jump downward. Active missionaries are paid two yen to the dollar." That is to say, the missionaries, besides having their salaries cut, and owing to the slump in the value of the yen, being paid two yen (twenty-seven cents each), they now receive only fifty-four cents instead of ninety-seven cents, $1.00 in our money being equal now to almost four yen, Japanese money. Our poorly paid missionaries are learning, indeed, what it means to suffer slump and cut in salaries and support.

NOTICE.

Visitors to the Virginia Valley Central Conference will please notify the undersigned. This will greatly aid us in our efforts to make your stay with us as pleasant as possible. There will be a two-day session, opening at 10:00 A. M., August 10th. We hope the delegates will come prepared to attend all sessions.

R. L. WILLIAMSON.

12 Clifford St., Winchester, Va.

REVIVAL AT ELK SPUR.

Sunday, July 17th, marked the close of the greatest revival in the history of our church here at Elk Spur. God moved mightily upon the hearts of the people here. We, who were in the church, needed an awakening, and we have had it. Our meeting lasted twelve days and was enjoyed by all.

We had Rev. J. Ray Dickens, of Raleigh, N. C., to do the preaching, and our hills join me in praising God for a boy like that. We hope our Christian Church has more like him in its ministry. His youth and sincerity won the hearts of all. It will be many a day before the light of his smile and the strength of his prayers will be forgotten here.

The people from other churches came, and all were as one. There was a great rejoicing when God brought to the altar more than forty to take Christ as their Saviour.

The last night of our meeting we had more people out than I have ever seen here at a revival. I have heard many say that this was the greatest meeting, in every way, in the history of our church here. Many SUN readers know that we have a large building for this part of the hills, and the building was packed. The school rooms were opened up and all seats were taken. People sat in the windows, they brought all the chairs from the parsonage, seated over twenty children on the stage, and took the preacher's chair. Our Grissoms had to sit on the floor. Then I was to learn later that another roomful stood outside. Yes, we have had a meeting. The mountains moved!

Twelve united with the church, and we expect more. Among those who united with the church was one of the leading men of this community, and one whom this church has needed so much, Mr. W. C. Strickland. I mention his name, because many Christian friends know him, especially those who have worked on this field, and they will be glad to know that this man whom we need so much will lend his influence for God and our church.

And I want to say to you Christian friends who made this great revival possible, your prayers are being answered in a mighty way, and I want to thank you.

Yes, all has been done through prayer. Our "Hilly Grissoms" are praying people, and this boy who preached certainly believes in prayer. "Ask and it shall be given." They prayed—all prayed—and God heard. It made all want a part to hear these boy preachers tell of two dear mothers back home who were praying for them and our meeting here. We praise God for mothers who send out sons like these. They have helped to make our hills ring with the praise for God.

And our little Mrs. Grissom has worked hard and prayed in these meetings. She came out tired but happy. Her place is hard to fill, but she is still smiling.

I have heard so many say, while the meeting was going on, that no boy could be educated to the place where he could preach like that without a power back of him. In other words, young Dickens proved that God was God of all.

I want to say to the youth of our church that we, too, can prove that God is God, and do so more easily if we start while we are yet young. May each of us hear God's call to the many fields of service, and answer that call now.

May Christian friends let their prayers follow these young workers as they go just now to another revival, and continue to pray for our hills and our "Hilly Grissoms."

May God's blessing abide with all who made possible this glorious revival in our hills.

"VICTORIA OF THE HILLS."

ENEMIES OF PROHIBITION.

What a strange group is getting on the beer-wagon to stampee the country for legalized liquor! We think of the news reports of Al Capone, now Number 40,886 in the Atlanta Federal Prison. The reporters wrote that he took a strong position against the Eighteenth Amendment. He would like to see it repealed. Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, in a recent news item, once more assured the country that he is wet. No need of that, especially for those who live in the state where he is governor.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., would like to see booze returned in legalized trade. We have a copy of his letter to Mr. Butler as an editorial favor. He would like to see the Eighteenth Amendment repealed. He says there is more drinking than before national prohibition. No truthful and well informed man can say that. He may think he is writing a fact, but be ill-informed; or he may be well informed and make a wild statement to carry his point. The news columns today report that John R. Mott, connected with the Y. M. C. A., cables from London that he would like to see the Eighteenth Amendment "resubmitted," which means nothing unless it means "changed." If prohibition is the best we have that; anything else means liquor legalized and the trade once more set up. This is a good time to hold steady and keep off the beer-wagon. It is running wild just now. Some men, otherwise sane and level-headed men, are clamoring for the return of the liquor trade. They are saying and writing wild statements about the benefits of getting the people drunk to make them prosperous and contented. We still have some faith in our country and in its statesmen, but we hope our politicians will not play with fire too much.—Wesleyan Methodist.

PROGRAM.

Following is the program for the 84th Session of the Virginia Valley Central Congregational-Christian Conference, to be held with the Winchester Christian Church, August 10-11, 1932:

WEDNESDAY.

Morning Session—10:00 o'Clock.

Call to order.
Devotional serviceDr. M. L. Weekley
Enrollment.
Welcome address.....T. W. Matthews
ResponseWalton E. Brill
Report of Program Committee.
Report of Executive Committee.
Miscellaneous business.
Report of Director, Religious Education..K. B. Hook
Annual Address.....Rev. R. L. Williamson
Adjournment for Dinner.

Afternoon Session—1:45 o'Clock.

Devotional service.....Rev. B. J. Earp
Report of Committee on Religious Literature, Alfred Dofflemyre, Chairman.
Address—"Our Publications and Our People," Dr. W. P. Minton, Dayton, Ohio.
Report of Committee on Evangelism, Mrs. A. W. Andes, Chairman.
Report of Committee on Social Service, K. B. Hook, Chairman.
Address—"Our Orphanage".....Chas. D. Johnston, Supt.
Report of Conference Mission Sec'y, R. O. Rothgeb.
Adjournment.

Evening Session—8:00 o'Clock.

Program by the Young People.
Address on Young People's Work....Dr. L. E. Smith

THURSDAY.

Morning Session—9:30 o'Clock.

Devotional service.....Rev. W. B. Fuller
Roll call and reading of minutes.

Report of Committee on Education, Rev. A. W. Andes, Chairman.

Address on Education.....Dr. L. E. Smith
Conference Missionary Association.

Report of Committee on Foreign Missions, R. O. Rothgeb, Chairman.

Address on Foreign Missions.....Dr. W. P. Minton

Report of Committee on Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor, J. Warner Stearn, Chairman.

Report of treasurer.

Adjournment for dinner.

Afternoon Session—1:45 o'Clock.

Devotional service.....Chas. D. Johnston

Report of Stewardship Committee, Mrs. J. J. Lincoln, Chairman.

Report of Committee on Home Missions, W. C. Wampler, Chairman.

Report of Committee on Christian Union, N. L. Norris, Chairman.

Report of Committee on Apportionments, R. Roy Hosaflook, Chairman.

Miscellaneous business.

Adjournment.

METHODS CORNER

BY REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.

Miami Beach, Fla.

I have a young friend who grew up in one of the California churches. I was the pastor of that church and was well acquainted with the family. The father had been a medical missionary in China, and on account of his wife's health came back to America. This home was a large, generous home where visiting clergymen, missionaries and reform workers were always welcome as was the minister. This boy came to our Christian Endeavor Society and Sunday School and to the church services. The atmosphere of the home was one that expressed great human interest and sympathy with all men everywhere. It was a home where everything in the world was of interest and where a world-outlook was constantly maintained. Religion was natural in that home. It was not surprising, therefore, that the young man thought occasionally of a way of spending his life. Naturally he felt that he would do something to help mankind. He turned to medicine and in time cast the die in favor of China. Yes, he would follow his father, and become a medical missionary. This he did, and is now in China giving his life with its skill and helpfulness for others. He was a devoted Christian, in fact, very much so in his devotion and his convictions. He was influenced by his family, of course, and the church did something, but he had to decide for himself. He wanted to follow Jesus in the ministry of healing. He desired to share what he had with the under-privileged and the needy. His wife is a physician, and was led in a similar way to consecrate her life to this great missionary cause. Here are two young people, skilled and able, living among a people who need them very much.

I once had an assistant who resigned to give his life to leadership with under-privileged boys. He wanted to do this. He was earnest and sincere in the matter. Well educated, finely trained, physically perfect, this fine specimen of Christian manhood deliberately turned down a career that seemed to promise more that he might give his life for those who seemed to need someone like him to minister to their needs. This is the kind of stuff the modern young missionary is made of. He is not moved by "commands" or even creeds, or questions of true or false religions. He is not interested in propagating Western civilization, or opening up riches for commerce. He is out to serve his fellowman, to share and to live the Gospel.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. W. STALEY C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

W. C. WICKER

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

SPIRITUAL BANKRUPTS.

Figures and accountants indicate that we are financially bankrupt — economically prostrate. Debts and obligations on government, institutions and individuals have piled up and we cannot pay. The brief definition of this condition is "depression." Because the wheels of industry move sluggishly, and business is not brisk, we cover the whole category of our ailments under the single item—"depression."

Now it begins to appear that we are spiritually bankrupt, also. We say "appear," because we are just beginning to see the outward evidences, the obvious consequences of our spiritual bankruptcy. The fact is that spiritual bankruptcy came first, then financial bankruptcy; and now the fruits of both must be eaten. In the days of prosperity, the destroyer came. This is the teaching of Scripture: "In prosperity the destroyer shall come." (Job 15:21.) We lived as if prosperity would abide, and we said with the Psalmist: "And in my prosperity, I said, I shall never be moved." But it was in the day of our country's prosperity that the seeds of our bankruptcy were sown—first in the soil of the spiritual, then in the soil of the financial and economic. There were wise ones who were declaring from the pulpit that "America's greatest sin was that of forgetting God." These men were real prophets, and the consequences of our sin came upon us. Spiritual depression came first, and was obscured through the pleasures and pursuits of possessions. Now that financial depression has come, we have discovered how thoroughly and completely we are depressed, bankrupt, morally and spiritually. From our prosperity, we were giving God and his cause a "hand-out." We were supporting the work of the kingdom with that which we did not wantonly waste and wish away. We became indifferent to the spiritual cause, and claims of the Kingdom of God, and now, when we are financially unable, we discover how spiritually bare we have become.

There is nothing that indicates the spiritual life of a people as its interest in Missions or the lack of that interest. Missions is the spiritual barometer of the church, because Missions is carried on solely by and through the one spiritual body, the body of our Lord, of which he is the head, namely, the church. Missions, a spiritual task, carried on solely through a spiritual body, reveals at all times the spiritual zeal or the lack of it among any people. As an evidence of our spiritual bankruptcy, therefore, we can turn to our Mission cause, a cause supported only by the church, with no outside benevolent, charitable, or fraternal order aiding the church, and there discover the facts and fruits of spiritual bankruptcy. Take our own Congregational-Christian fellowship. Our present plight in our missionary effort is pitiable, indeed, and nothing more clearly reveals our spiritual bankruptcy and depression. The Prudential Committee, named in the following, is the committee sponsoring the Foreign Mission work of our church, and the following is taken from the Record of Christian Work for August:

"Forced to desperate action by present conditions, the Prudential Committee of the American Board has now ordered that within one year six stations and six institutions must be closed, and 68 missionaries must be withdrawn from their fields, so that over $200,000 more shall be cut from the budget at home and abroad. Orders to this effect and information to the missionaries have been sent to the various missions, and comprise the most tragic message ever sent from the offices at home to the workers overseas."

The reason why this comprises the most tragic message ever sent from the offices of our Mission Board is that it indicates our spiritual paralysis and bankruptcy. It is significant that Missions suffer at a time like this; significant because it indicates the spiritual condition of the church—Missions being a spiritual task of the church, that task which alone undertakes to build up other churches, support the gospel, and hold up the banner of the cross. We shall have to recover our spiritual solvency and security before we recover our financial solvency and security, and if this time of economic depression will enable us to see ourselves in the true light and apply the remedy, then the "depression" will not have been in vain, but will prove the greatest of blessings even in disguise.

J. O. A.

"A WARNING."

The Family Welfare Association of America, with headquarters in the Russell Sage Foundation Building, No. 130 E. 22nd St., New York City, issued "a warning" that this writer undertakes to guarantee will not be heeded. This warning is to the effect that "the $300,000,000 relief fund to States contained in the Federal Relief Bill signed last week by President Hoover will not be sufficient to meet the mounting demands for aid upon welfare agencies in 1932-33." This warning is given out as "a joint statement by the American Public Welfare Association and the Family Welfare Association of America which represents the public and private local agencies throughout the United States and Canada." Let us see another statement from this warning. It reads: "No community and no private citizen should feel that because three hundred million dollars has been made available to States that the relief situation in this country is taken care of. It is estimated that in 1931, the private and public agencies of 81 cities alone expended $167,000,000 for relief. Several hundred towns and cities carrying on relief work are not included in this figure. Expenditures in 1932 will be higher than those in 1931." Read one more line from this warning: "From reports from the field, it is clear that local tax appropriations and private contributions will be absolutely necessary if our welfare agencies are to meet the demands for food and care which will be made upon them this winter."

The appeal comes that State, county and municipal appropriations will be necessary, and that the $300,000,000 appropriated by the National Government should not allow the sources of other relief to "dry up." What a "warning!" All the government agencies, from the highest to the lowest, seem to have gone into the relief work with coat off and sleeves rolled up. The result of which is, as is always the case, the more relief that is granted, the more is demanded. We admit that there are thousands who need employment and are without it, thousands who need food who are without it; but the number has not decreased, but increased with the dole, and with wholesome relief methods and agencies. Of all the times when able-bodied men needed to find something to do and do it, ours is that time. One may afford to be idle, and to make excuses for not working when times are easy, wages high, money plentiful, trade and industry lively. But when times are hard, money scarce, employment difficult to get, food, clothing, and shelter are needed, then is the time that every able-bodied individual ought to do something for the relief of himself and his family.

It is very easy in a time like this to give up and join the vast horde who are clamoring for relief. Now is the time that tries the souls of men and women; now the time that courage is required. There was a slogan much used years ago: "Find a way or make it." That slogan needs to be adopted by many today, and because the way is difficult, one need not give up; because the pay check is not as large as it used to be is a poor excuse, indeed, for calling on the government or a welfare agency for help. The Family Welfare Association need not have even issued its warning that the $300,000,000 direct relief fund by the government of the United States would not be sufficient, for the only way "hard times" have ever been solved was for individuals of energy, character, determination, initiative and effort, to call upon themselves and the resources around about them for relief and not depend upon government welfare agencies, or others than themselves. Several years ago the noted teacher of Sociology at Yale University, Professor Sumner, said in one of his books that "the most pernicious thing to vice was charity." Teachers everywhere sprang at the throat of Professor Sumner and said he was heartless. But what Professor Sumner meant was not heartless, nor was it an exaggeration, as he explained it, for much of the so-called charity and relief were taken by the weak-willed to make their wills weaker than they were. Much of the so-called charity for the relief of thousands who would be one hundred-fold better off if they would go, with coat off and sleeves rolled up, to work and depend upon themselves and their own hard licks and efforts rather than depend upon a relief or a dole from a welfare agency or a charitable institution.

One wonders if the day has not come for another Professor Sumner to cry out and spare not against the desire for a dole, and the unwillingness to earn a living by energy and hard work. This may sound heartless, but is it any more heartless than the law established by God and written upon the hearts of humanity: "Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work, and on the seventh day thou shalt rest." The command is as much to work six days as it is to rest on the seventh. Increasing thousands have made to none effect both parts of this eternal command, and this cannot be done with impunity.

J. O. A.

THE HABIT OF READING.

How easy it is to get out of the habit of reading! How difficult it is to cultivate the habit of reading if it has been neglected for many years! In spite of the fact that more books are written and more are being borrowed from public libraries than ever before, a great many people do not read, even the newspapers.

Life is so full of activity there seems to be no time for sitting alone with a book for an hour or so. Some people get their information from the news-reels at the motion picture theaters, and others from headlines in the newspapers. Then there are many church-loving people who get their information and inspiration from Sunday School classes or sermons on Sundays. And perhaps the largest number get their mental stimulation by the medium of the radio. No one can adequately estimate the number who get their sermons from the radio.

These are all popular sources of information, but personal reading of a good book that requires some quiet time and mental effort is the best of all. Books do not cost much these days. Many people think little of bringing a box of candy home that costs from fifty cents to a dollar and a half. It is soon gone. No one is the better for it, but a good book brought home and read by every member of the family and loaned to friends and neighbors, does a world of good, and opens up the mind, starts a person to thinking and sometimes changes the whole current of life. Take such a book as Kagawa's "New Life Through God." It contains the wonderful story of a man who found God and who was found by God; who gave himself to Christian service in the slums of Japan and who has become one of the six great Christians of the world. The book contains a series of addresses on the deep religious problems of the day. To read this book is to be enlightened, inspired and set to work in God's kingdom. Such a book loaned to friends and neighbors is equal to a revival.

Ministers, as a rule, purchase many such books and they would be glad to talk about them, to loan them and perhaps talk about them at prayer meeting or review them Sunday nights. They would do so if requested by members of their congregations.

A good book is the embalmed thought of some earnest soul who has a message to give, and a good book may become a good friend, always at hand to inform, give joy, encouragement and inspiration. Reading can be cultivated and become the greatest pleasure in life and the most profitable exercise in the world.

E. A. K.

AND SO CHRIST IS PREACHED.

Paul was a man of decided opinions, and immovable convictions. But he was as tolerant of others as he was bold and fearless in proclaiming his own. The passion that consumed him was that the Christ of the Cross should be preached. "Some, indeed, preach Christ even of envy and strife," he declares to the Phillipians "but others preach him of their good-will." Some preach Christ of contention, and they are not even sincere, and yet others, like himself, preach him of love, seeking only to share that love with others. But love suffereth long and is kind. What then? Whether it be of envy and strife, or contention, and of good-will, whether in sincerity or in pretense, or in truth, "Christ is preached, and therein I do rejoice." One is reminded in this tolerant attitude of that which our Lord Christ himself expressed when John came with the story of one who was "carrying on" in the name of the Master, "And we forbade him, because he followeth not with us." To which Jesus replied, "Forbid him not, for he that is not against us is for us."

In our day there are those who preach Christ, some as "a way of life," others as a "Life," and still others as the "Truth;" some believe he is about to come again, others that his coming is afar off, the time of which no man knoweth. What then? "Herein we rejoice and do rejoice, that Christ is preached." How different the attitude of Paul to that of the man who said: "My opinion may be changed, but I would like to see the one who can change it." One of the graces of Christianity, exemplified in the life, and proclaimed in the preaching of Paul, was that of toleration for others, the belief that Christ himself being the beloved Son of God, the revelation of the Father, the Incarnation of the Infinite, is large enough, liberal enough, loving enough to be interpreted from many angles and through varied opinions; but all opinions converging and climaxing in the fact, that however, we may differ about him, he is the world's only Saviour and Redeemer, the true and only begotten Son of God. Christ is preached, and therein we may rejoice.

J. O. A.

An infidel was lecturing to a great audience and, having finished his address, he invited any who had questions to ask to come on the platform. After a short interval a man who had been well known in the town as a notorious drunkard, but who had lately been converted, stepped forward, and taking an orange from his pocket, coolly began to peel it. The lecturer asked him to propound his question, but without replying to him the man finished peeling his orange, and then ate it. When he had finished his orange he turned to the lecturer and asked him if it was a sweet one. Very angry, the man said, "Idiot, how can I know whether it was sweet or sour, when I never tasted it?" To this the converted drunkard retorted, "And how can you know anything about Christ if you have not tried Him?"—Christian Herald.

Special Combination
Subscription Offer!

A special arrangement has been made whereby those who desire to do so may receive both THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for just a little more than they now pay for one of these papers.

Beginning immediately, we will accept subscriptions for the two papers at the price of $3.75 for the combined subscription. This means to SUN readers that for only $1.75 additional they may receive the great wealth of knowledge that The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty brings weekly. Those who are already subscribers for the latter paper may add THE SUN to their list for only 75 cents for the whole year.

You do not have to wait until your subscription to one or the other paper has expired, but send in your subscription now. You will begin immediately to receive the other paper and that which you are already receiving will be marked up a year in advance.

While this offer is open to everyone, it should appeal especially to the pastors and lay workers in the Southeast Convention, and we beg them to take advantage of this opportunity.

It is, of course, understood that under this special offer all subscriptions must be in advance, and must be sent directly to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va., or to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

DEAR SIRs:

Please (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my present subscription one year) to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my subscription one year) to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

(Please mark out the words not applicable.)

I enclose, herewith, check or money order for $3.75 to cover same.

M
Street No. or R. F. D.....
City and State.....

CONTRIBUTIONS

A PRAYER MEETING TALK—INGRATITUDE

Perhaps about forty years ago a pleasure boat, the Lady Elgin, went out from the city of Chicago with about four hundred passengers on a picnic excursion. For their enjoyment, they ate, they drank, they played cards. Some gambled and some made love. But a fearful storm suddenly arose. The rudder was broken and the ship was dashed on the shore a wreck. The waves were so high and the wind so strong that no life boat could be launched. Now, believe it or not, there was a strong man there who swam out to the wreck and brought in one passenger, went again and brought in another. Being finally exhausted, he lay down and rested, then went again until he had brought in twenty-three. So great had been his exertions that from that day to the end of his life he was said to be a helpless invalid. Of the passengers save, how many returned to give him thanks? Not one. Was it because they did not consider the value of their own safety? Was it because they did not appreciate the tremendous sacrifice which was made for their own rescue? Of the other passengers their dead bodies were picked up along the shore the next day.

Of the ten lepers whom Jesus healed, only one returned to give his thanks. Jesus, in wonder, asks: "Where are the nine?" It is said that there are two sins which are common above all others. One of these is against man and the other against God. Francis Xavier said that he had given extreme unction to many men, all their sins forgiven just before passing on to the next world. But while it was common for men to confess to such sins as theft and adultery and murder, no man had ever confessed to the sin of covetousness. But this is the common sin against one another. The other common sin is that of unthankfulness. Paul speaks of the common sins of the last days in II. Timothy, and among them mentions "unthankfulness, unholy."

In my French Bible in Psalm 103, when the English says, "And forget not all his benefits," the French says, "And forget not one." The French seems to be a little stronger than the English. It would be easy to say, "Remember all the Japanese people," but it would be stronger to say, "And don't forget one."

In his day William M. Evarts was considered to be one of the great lawyers and statesmen. One time he made a statement that he had reached a point where he no longer wanted to deal with individuals, but wanted to deal with people in great crowds. We remember that some of the finest work that Jesus did was done with individuals, such as the work he did with the woman at the well and with Nicodemus. It was in his heart not to forget one among the millions of the human race, even to remembering the most unworthy people, such as we are tonight. If you have been a real help to some people, how many of them have shown a real and deep appreciation of what has been done for them? Personally I have sometimes felt as Jesus did toward the ten lepers, but how does God feel toward us?

It was a Jew who said, "If I believed what you Christians believe, I would go out on the street and shout the glad tidings at the top of my voice, and nothing but death would stop me."

Forty years ago an American visiting pastor to Japan told of a hallelujah member of his church, a poor man, having little education, but a man tremendously alive to the mercies of God, for which he was always shouting hallelujah.

If the pastor talked of the love of God, it was hallelujah. If it was the precious blood, hallelujah. One day this man visited the home of the pastor, and having to wait a little, he was given a book on physical geography to amuse himself with, the thought being that he would find nothing in that to be especially happy over. But soon he was shouting "hallelujah." When asked what he had found, he said, "This book says the ocean is five miles deep, and the Bible says God has buried our sins in the depths of the sea where he can never find them. Hallelujah."

I have a very vivid recollection of the prayer meetings I attended sixty-five years ago in the little brick country church of my childhood days. The aged fathers and mothers in Israel, all of them of sainted memory, one by one stood up and with tears streaming down their faces and their voices broken by sobs as they endeavored to recount the great and unspeakable mercies that God had showered upon them. How near the Lord seemed! How great and loving and wonderful! And is he not just as wonderful here tonight? How thankful are we?

A. D. WOODWORTH.

SOCIAL SERVICE.

Today's mail brought THE CHRISTIAN SUN. I want to express my appreciation of its weekly news. A small paper has its advantages as each writer gives something worth reading in a few words. I especially enjoy news of "The Youth at Work in the Church," and hope they will wholeheartedly promote Dr. Poling's organization, the Allied Forces for Prohibition, which you have so splendidly reported in "Notes and Personals."

I have been especially anxious for news of the National Conference of Federated Church Women, and Mrs. L. W. Stagg, of Norfolk, Va., satisfies that hunger with a fine detailed report of the Fourth Annual Conference of that organization, held in June.

On another page, I find what I have been watching for in the pages of our Christian paper of the Southeast. It is included in your report of the Eastern North Carolina Conference, President Whitten's outline of the Sunday School teacher's three-fold task. This task, he says, is not only intellectual and evangelistic, but also social. My experience the past year as secretary of Social Service in our Woman's Congregational League of the Carolinas, has shown me the absolute necessity of righting many social conditions as we seek to teach our people clean, wholesome Christian living. With many of our rural children in such abject poverty that they are barely covered with one garment in winter, without shoes and so little food that soap for cleanliness is an impossible item of expense, we have a problem to meet. It is a joy to know there are over one hundred Christian churches scattered over North Carolina which, joining forces with Congregational Churches, can certainly meet this challenge from these very needy children.

Like Robert Raikes, "we must teach them the rudiments of a primary education so they can read their Bibles," and this means North Carolina must provide free text-books and our community churches must help the unemployed so they can earn food and clothing and make it possible for the children to attend day school and church school.

This type of work is well called "Social Service," as it must never be allowed to divert our wholehearted service to Christian Missions or subtract from our missionary funds. This is a splendid cooperative task of all the churches in a town or city, allied with other civic organizations. We did so last winter in Southern Pines, and by placing copies of an illustrated Gospel with a Christmas card with its verse of Scripture with each gift of food and clothing, we made sure the message of the Christ entered every home. This spring we secured seeds and government flour for these families. When a citizen insisted we were helping a bootlegger, I felt compelled to question this former tenant farmer, who had been obliged to move his large destitute family near town. This fine-looking American looked at me quietly and answered by going into the house and bringing out his Bible, and saying, "I live by this teaching." His life since of diligent work has shown the truth of his statement.

Do you not think there is great danger of the church losing the Christ-like personal contacts with those in need when so many benevolent agencies act in her place? While these agencies are largely manned by Christian people, those receiving help do not accept it as done in the name of Christ, or to make known the loving sympathy of God, their ever-present Father.

I trust all of our churches have members appointed to this special field of social service.

IDA S. ROBINSON.

Southern Pines, N. C.

FROM ALABAMA.

We closed a very fine meeting at New Hope Church last evening (July 30th), in the presence of one of the largest congregations I have had the privilege of addressing in a long time.

I have never had better attention, and surely never more earnest cooperation any where, or at any time, than I had this week at New Hope Church. Many hearts were blessed, many souls rejoiced, and a large number of the members pledged themselves to a more earnest consecration to their Lord and to the church. Some three or four hundred confessed that they had received a blessing during the meeting, and four nice young ladies gave their names for membership in the church.

We will baptize them tomorrow. One brother volunteered his automobile, another paid the gas bill, and two of the brethren canvassed the community for a pounding for the pastor. It was a wonderful response the people gave, and so this morning Bros. E. C. Stevens and Dewey Elder drove up to our gate and unloaded such things as the people had a mind to give—meal, syrup, lard, potatoes, tomatoes, dried fruit, roasting ears, butter-beans, jelly, peas, soda, matches, etc., all things that are needed in the dining-room and pantry. Our hearts were made glad and we thank everyone who had a part in the affair.

This is a sure way to bless the pastor and the people. I hope more of it can be done. It is a pleasure to serve a people who are so willing to help in such times of depression. God bless every one, and may His servants somehow be provided with the necessities of life.

G. D. HUNT.

You never can acquire anything in this world without purchasing it—purchasing it by your own will and effort. You may attain high state office. It will never come to you as a gift. You may attain a high place in business; your name may be emblazoned in the newspapers, and other distinctions may come to you. They are at the end of a long, hard road that only men and women with ability and energy can traverse.—J. Ramsey MacDonald.

THE FUTURE OF CHURCH COLLEGES.

By WALTER S. ATHEARN.

The belief that secondary schools and the first two years of the college course should constitute a single unit of educational administration, is now generally accepted. The rapidly growing Junior College Movement has affiliated itself with the department of secondary education of the National Education Association. It took three hundred years for the United States to produce six hundred four-year colleges; it has required thirty years for the United States to produce three hundred junior colleges.

It is generally believed by educational administrators that general education should be completed by the end of the second year in college and that specialization should begin with the junior college year. There are those who confidently predict that the senior high school and the junior college will in due time be united into a new administrative unit to do the work of general education formerly done by the liberal arts college, and that the senior college will affiliate itself with the professional school of the university.

If the senior high school and the junior college do unite to form the new college unit of the future the present four-year church college will find itself facing a serious problem of reorganization. If the local high schools expand into junior colleges there will be little patronage for the freshman and sophomore years of the present church colleges. The junior and senior years cannot be maintained alone without a very greatly increased endowment. Added to this difficulty is the attractive appeal of the larger tax-supported colleges where church foundations and other similar developments integrate the secular and religious courses.

Will the present church college divide, the senior college join the Church Foundation Movement at state universities, and the junior college coordinate itself with the new Junior College Movement and become the apex of a week-day religious school movement which begins with the grade school and continues on through the senior high school and junior college years? Or, will the church college continue its own independent course without feeling the influence of the modified state school plan? It seems clear that radical changes are ahead for the church college.

Whatever the organization may be, the leaders of the church college development of the future must seek a basic philosophy of education consistent with the genius of the Christian religion, and, in the light of this philosophy, they must interpret the needs as well as the trends of the times. Four distinct tasks must be achieved by the church school wherever it may be conducted:

1. To preserve the essential disciplines and cultures of the liberal arts college.
 2. To give religion and the Bible their rightful places in the college curricula.
 3. To give proper recognition in the college course of religious education and various forms of social service as vocational fields of great personal and social significance.
 4. To prepare college students for satisfactory graduate work in graduate and professional schools in the fields of religion and social science.
- Historically the liberal arts college has attempted a two-fold training. It has sought to give the student some measure of ordered knowledge in each of the main fields of human interest and it has also sought to train the students in the processes of acquiring and using knowledge. The church college which survives for the future must clearly recognize two facts:

1. Religion is a major discipline worthy of full academic credit as a cultural subject on its own merits regardless of its vocational possibilities.

2. Religion and religious education are fields of service worthy of the professional and technical emphasis given to other learned professions.

No student should be allowed to go through a Christian college without being prepared for intelligent lay service in the local church. The subjects included should relate the student sympathetically with the needs of the local church, and create within him a sense of personal responsibility for the ongoing of the agencies which foster the religious life of the community in which he is to reside. These courses should also stimulate the development of the personal religious life of students, give them a body of reasoned religious convictions, and established habits of worship and service which they can carry with them from the college into their homes. —In the World-Call.

"YOU MUST NOT . . ."

"You must not study that! You should not allow such words to fall upon your ears. Just let your husbands come, I'll tell them all about it. I'll tell them to tear up your books and put them in the fire—for it is a sin to even listen to such things!" Thus a caste man upbraided some Indian women who were being taught by a Bible woman near Aruppukottai, India. Formerly this would have frightened the women, but not so today. A new spirit of independence is gripping them. "Indeed, we certainly mean to study, for in these words we get good and wise teachings," they retorted. And they continued to study—and no one hindered them. An amazing side note on this is the fact that work was not started in this village until three short years ago.

IF YOU WANT A THING BAD ENOUGH.

To go out and fight for it,
Work day and night for it,
Give up your time and your peace and your sleep for it—
If life seems all empty and useless without it,
If you'll gladly sweat for it,
Fret for it,
Plan for it,
If you'll simply go after that thing you want
With all your capacity,
Strength and sagacity,
Faith, hope and confidence, stern pertinacity—
If dogged and grim you besiege and beset it,
YOU'LL GET IT!

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

- Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4½ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

- No.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5½ x 3¾ inches.

Specimen of Type

a My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.
to Mercy and truth together; righteousness hath kissed each other.
xx Truth shall spring

- No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¾ x 4½ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.
10 For a day in thy courts is better
a Gen. 15. 1.
b Ps. 56. 1.
c 57. 1.
d or, all

- No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 1½ inches.

Specimen of Type

8 9 Jē-hōi'-ā-chin was 8 years old when he began t

- No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark $9.50

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. No. 03255x $5.50

- As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date help, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1½ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

- Nos.
04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

- 0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

PRAYER.

Blessed be the name of him who says, "I am the way, walk with me." Our perverseness, Father, is our shame. Human ways tend but to confusion. Forgive us if we have thought the Kingdom way may be altered. But for thy Son who died to give us peace and who bequeathed to us his yoke of ease, our strength would be consumed by the weight of days. That "It is written" forever stands and that the yoke of Jesus does not bend, praises forevermore be to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. Amen. L.

SUFFERING WITH HIM.

Let us not decide that because we live in an easy, happy-go-lucky time and country, there are not those who yet suffer, even as Paul suffered in the name and for the sake of the Christ. There are yet courageous souls who endure all things for His name's sake, that through them the gospel and the power of the gospel may be manifest to others. The Record of Christian Work asks these pertinent questions:

"Have you had a policeman follow you for ten miles to ask what you are going to do next?"

"Have you been put in a room with a setting hen about to bring off her brood?"

"Have you ridden an ox both forward and backward?"

"Have you ridden for days in a slat-bottomed, wooden-wheeled bull cart?"

"Have you crossed a stream on a man's back, and by a misstep been submerged to your neck?"

"Have you been rescued from the bottom of the sea?"

"Have you been taken for a Buddhist priest?"

"These and more are the experiences of one missionary in the far reaches of the Whanghai Province."

But this missionary, who chanced in this instance to be a woman, has the promise which was given through the inspiration of Paul: "If so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together. For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us." (Romans 8:17-18.)

No, all the heroes and heroines of the faith did not pass away with Paul, and Silas, and Barnabas. There are those who are willing this day to suffer for his name's sake, and it behooves us to cheer and sustain them with our gifts and with our prayers, even though in so doing we are called upon to obey the command of our Lord who said: "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself." It is, indeed, through self-sacrifice that the life of our Lord has ever been revealed, his cause carried on, his kingdom supported and sustained on the earth. J. O. A.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING JULY 30, 1932.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 3,082.66
Providence-Memorial, Graham, N. C.	2.10
Shiloh, Kemp's Mill, N. C.	1.33
Liberty, N. C.	1.08
Long's Chapel, Mebane, N. C.	1.50
New Elam, New Hill, N. C.	2.81
Hank's Chapel, Pittsboro, N. C.	3.20
Eure, N. C.	1.00
Newport News, Va.	8.00
Wakefield, Va.	2.08

Antioch (R), Bennett, N. C.	.49
Ether, N. C.	.71
Monticello, Brown Summit, N. C.	7.20
Third Avenue, Danville, Va.	4.30
Pleasant Ridge, Ramseur, N. C.	2.95
Bethlehem, Harrisonburg, Va.	1.58
Union Grove, Asheboro, N. C.	.72
Holland, Va.	7.50
Total	$ 3,133.21

Individual and Church Offerings.

Previously acknowledged	$ 2,786.37
Lebanon, Semora, N. C.	1.06
Miss Stella Sharp, Summerfield, N. C.	5.00
W. S. Pearce, Youngsville, N. C.	1.00
Ocean View, Va.	10.00
Total	$ 2,803.43

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$2,598.49
Class No. 3, Rosemont, South Norfolk, Va.	5.00
Total	$ 2,603.49

Coin Card Offerings.

Previously acknowledged	$ 210.33
Roanoke Sunday School, Roanoke, Ala.	12.00
Piney Plains, Raleigh, N. C.	1.00
Miss Pauline Martin, Graham, N. C., Graham Christian Church	1.00
Miss Emma Harden, Graham, N. C., Graham Christian Church	1.00
Mrs. M. R. Rives, Graham, N. C., Graham Christian Church	1.00
Total	$ 226.33

Woman's Board, Southern Christian Conference.

Previously acknowledged	$ 8,844.53
Received of Mrs. H. S. Hardecastle, Treas., July 30, 1932	1,646.45
Total	$10,490.98

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$18,015.88
Sunday Schools, regular, July 30, 1932	50.55
Individual and Church Offerings, July 30	17.06
Specials, July 30, 1932	5.00
Coin Card Offering, July 30, 1932	16.00
Woman's Board, Southern Christian Conference, July 30, 1932	1,646.45
Total to date	$19,750.94

J. O. ATKINSON, Mission Sec'y.

MISSION REPORT.

Report of Woman's Mission Board of the Southern Christian Convention for quarter ending June 30, 1932:

Receipts.

Alabama Conference:
Woman's Societies	$ 16.45
North Carolina Conference:
Woman's Societies	$554.58
District Meetings	31.47
Young People's Societies	32.13
Willing Workers' Societies	7.58
Cradle Roll Societies	22.25
	648.01
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Woman's Societies	$260.00
Young People's Societies	200.00
Willing Workers' Societies	50.00
	510.00
Total	$ 1,174.46

Disbursements.

Home Missions:

Mountain Work, Virginia	$200.00
Ocean View Church	200.00
South Norfolk Church	100.00
Raleigh Church	288.00
	$ 188.00

Foreign Missions:

Japan, General Work	$643.35
Bible Woman	50.00
Kindergarten	10.12
	703.44
Porto Rico, General Work	$144.85
Cradle Roll	10.13
	154.98
Total	$ 1,646.45

Respectfully submitted,

Mrs. H. S. HARDCASTLE, Treas.

REPORT.

Woman's Home and Foreign Mission Board of Eastern Virginia Conference, third quarter, 1932:

Woman's Societies.

Antioch	$ 3.39
Berea, Nansemond	54.85
Berea, Norfolk	6.00
Bethlehem	32.00
Christian Temple	27.00
Cypress Chapel	22.50
Damascus	30.23
Dendron	5.20
Elm Avenue	5.98
First, Portsmouth	26.80
First, Norfolk	26.20
First, Richmond	3.80
Franklin	16.90
Holland	20.00
Berta Rowland, Holland	24.00
Holy Neck	50.50
Hopewell	2.00
Isle of Wight	9.50
Liberty Spring	10.00
Mt. Carmel	15.85
Newport News	5.30
Oakland	4.25
Ocean View	4.25
Rosemont	23.45
Suffolk	85.00
South Norfolk	6.00
Wakefield	5.00
Windsor	3.40
	$ 529.35

Young People's Societies.

Antioch	$ 3.00
Burton Grove	6.50
Bethlehem	23.00
Christian Temple	10.00
Dendron	4.50
First, Norfolk	20.00
Portsmouth	27.50
Franklin	16.25
Holland (Berta R.)	4.40
Holy Neck	2.25
Hopewell	3.10
Liberty Spring	30.00
New Lebanon	5.00
Mt. Carmel	6.00
Old Zion	2.50
Rosemont	11.08
Suffolk	53.50
Spring Hill	5.35
Windsor	2.95
	236.88

Cradle Roll.

Bethlehem	$ 4.50
Franklin	9.00
	13.50

Willing Workers' Societies.

Berea, Nansemond	$ 3.00
Bethlehem	4.00
Christian Temple	12.00
First, Norfolk	6.00
First, Portsmouth	3.25
Franklin	15.00
Holland	12.50
Holy Neck	15.00
Mt. Carmel	6.00
Newport News	2.26
Rosemont	3.86
Suffolk	5.00

87.87

Grand total $ 867.60

Respectfully submitted,
MRS. W. V. LEATHERS, Treas.

MISSIONARY PROGRAMS FOR AUGUST.

MRS. W. M. JAY, Editor.

PROGRAM V.

WOMEN'S SOCIETIES.

"The Father of All Mankind."

Purpose of this meeting: To help the women to a feeling of brotherhood because all may claim "Our Father."

1. Service of Song—"Day is Dying in the West" (if an evening meeting); "For the Beauty of the Earth"; "This Is My Father's World."
2. Service of Prayer.
3. Talk.
4. Discussion:
 - A. How folks of other lands are helping us.
 - B. Ways in which we can strengthen our spirit of brotherhood toward other folks
5. Hymn, "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind."
6. "There's a Long, Long Trail A-Winding."
7. Closing Friendship Circle.

Suggestions.

It is very appropriate to hold this meeting out of doors. When we are out in God's great out-of-doors, it is much easier to think of God as the Father of everything beautiful and the Father of all races everywhere.

A few weeks before the meeting is held, ask each person to bring in as many small pictures of folks of different lands as possible. These can be found especially in The National Geographic Magazine, missionary magazines, and our own church papers. Thus begin thinking about other nations. For invitations, paste one of these on paper cut in the form of a leaf or tree, or something typical of the out-of-doors. For poster, paste these pictures around the edge of a large cardboard, in the center of which announce the meeting in an attractive way, such as "Meet With Us to Discuss 'The Father of All Mankind' at such time and place."

For Your Program.

1. In your worship service, keep in mind that you are worshipping the God of the out-of-doors as well as the Father of all. In the first hymn, note the phrase, "Lord God of Hosts." in the chorus; in the second, that the gifts of the Father are such that they are for all people everywhere; in the third sing, "This Is Our Father's World," instead of "My." Or, try to find other familiar songs which give this message.

2. Ask certain ones in advance to pray and suggest the following thoughts for their prayers: (1) Thank God for the out-of-doors, where we can get close to Him; (2) Express our appreciation that He is our Father and the Father of all people everywhere; (3) Ask Him to make us realize in a greater measure that we are brothers.

3. Bring out the thought that God taught that He is "Our Father." "The field is the world," said the Master. Emphasize the need of acquiring the habit of thinking of the whole world as our dwelling place and the different races as our brothers and sisters in our Father's family.

4. This discussion may be led by one person who is good at getting people to take part, or several phases may be assigned in advance to different members.

A. What gifts do we receive from other lands and other peoples? Are we so grateful for the gifts that come to us every day from these folks that we can forget color and racial differences? A good illustration is the following: "A young missionary knelt for the first time at the communion rail of a church in India. An American missionary administered the bread and the Indian pastor passed the cup as he said, 'I too am ministering in His name.' Touched as never before, the girl looked into the fine face of this earnest servant of God and said to herself: 'Oh, Pastor, we came here to serve you and you are serving us!' With a new humility and a keener sense of brotherhood, as they knelt together, she forgot every difference of color in the realization that they were united in the presence and love of God."

B. How can we help to express our brotherhood to others in our own community? In our churches? Throughout the world?

5. Read the second stanza as a prayer of consecration.

6. Have a group dressed to represent various nations pass by slowly as some one sings:

"There's a long, long trail a-winding,
Into the lands far away,
Where our brothers sit in darkness,
Waiting love's bright ray;
Go and end their night of waiting
Unto our Father be true,
Go seek and find and bring them
Down the long, long trail with you."
(Tune: "Long, Long Trail.")

As the group comes back, have some one read or sing, "In Christ There is No East or West." As the first stanza is sung or read, have them stand apart; approaching each other as the second verse is sung, joining hands on the third, and standing thus for the last.

7. For closing, have all clasp hands and join circle begun by these in costume, and sing some appropriate song, as "The Whole Wide World for Jesus." Close with prayer that we may all be drawn closer together as one great family, with God as our Father, and that peace may come as we become one great brotherhood.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETIES

TOPIC—"God and the Census."

Theme—"Christ at the Door."

- I. Business Period.
- II. Study Period—Chapter XI: "Why Does the Enterprise Sag?"

1. Leader may give a brief review of preceding chapter, and use first page of this chapter as an introduction.
2. "Why Does the Enterprise Sag?"
 - (a) Denominational differences, pp. 135 to 137, a member; (b) Spiritual weakness, 137-141; (c) The great god organization, pp. 141-143, a member; (d) Creeds, 144-145, a member.

III. Worship Period.

1. Hymn, "Let Him In."
2. Call to Worship, "The Lord is His holy temple; let all the earth keep silence before Him."
3. Scripture, I. Cor. 13.
4. Prayer.
5. Story.
6. Offertory.

7. Hymn, "O Jesus, Thou Art Standing."
8. Benediction.

WILLING WORKERS OR JUNIORS.

Theme—"God's World."

Have this a picnic meeting. After supper have a short worship program consisting of songs, sentence prayers, and some one might tell a suitable story.

MISSIONARY ALPHABET.

Always attend the meetings.
Be prompt.
Collect money and pledges often.
Do heartily as unto the Lord.
Every one can do something.
For Jesus' sake.
Give systematically.
How much owest thou my Lord?
Invite your neighbors.
Join faith and works.
Knowledge insures interest.
Learn and you will love the work.
Make preparations for meetings.
Never be discouraged.
Omission, not mission, is written against too many of our names.
Pray, pay, and persevere.
Quiet, prayerful work needed.
Read the missionary magazines.
Study the needs and the fields.
Talk about the work.
Use influence, time, means.
Vow and pay unto the Lord.
Whatsoever He saith, do it.
Expect great things from God.
You each have responsibility.
Zeal and love will inspire success.
—Baptist Basket.

MY DREAM CITY.

I will speak out
Tho' no one yet will hear.
I see a City
Set upon a hill;
So wonderful it is,
I have no fear
But it will come
Till blighting doubt and ill
Shall see it,
Beautiful, complete, as now
I see it day and night
In star-lit dreams
As surely it is rising
On earth's brow—
So far away,
Yet near at hand it seems,
In teeming cities,
Cursed with dirt and wrong,
In country hamlets,
Often dull and coarse,
I'll set my dreams to music
In a song
That will refine the voices,
Crude and hoarse.
O Powers that be,
Nerve this right arm to fight
The wrongs that curse and weaken
Human kind,
Speed to the mark all arrows
For the right,
Till everywhere men shall
Fair justice find,
And the dream-city
Shall this wide world fill,
Love drive out greed,
And justice supplant ill.

CLARENCE A. VINCENT.

Winter Park, Fla.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, Waverly, Va.

GOING TO YOUR CHURCH COLLEGE?

Every young person has seen a smouldering fire, with only one large stick of wood on it, slowly dying away to ashes. Youth should not be like that. It should be like the fire that is burning brighter because it is replenished with sticks of many different sizes and shapes.

When we stop to think of it, the picture above is a beautiful one, isn't it? Now, you are wondering what that has to do with going to a church college? What it has to do with my life, my happiness, and my place in the community? At the church college there is an atmosphere that does not exist on the campus of a State university. One vital factor is obtainable at the church college that we do not find at the State school—religious life and religious training. You will no doubt say that a successful life depends on how much joy and happiness there is for the taking. Then, if you desire such a life, consider your own church college first; where you can combine the secular with the sacred; where you can develop your attitudes, ideals, purposes, and philosophy of life in a Christian atmosphere, helping to put sticks of many different sizes and shapes on the fire of youth. Then a successful, happy, and well-rounded life will be yours.

If you are planning to enter the ministry, missionary work, or any type of religious work, then it becomes a part of your duty to consider seriously your own church college. Talk it over with your pastor, your father and mother, send your room reservation fee to the registrar of your church college and be there in September to greet him with your smile. Ready to launch out and take a peek behind the horizon.

PUBLICATIONS.

It was the aim of the Superintendent of Publications for the "Youth Fellowship" of the Southeast that every pastor and key-worker of each church, and all the conference officers should receive a letter acquainting them with the work and containing the names of the church papers, etc., for which to get subscribers. We hope that everyone who has been called on to help in this campaign will feel that it is a part of their duty to cooperate, making this venture a success.

In a recent meeting of the "Youth Fellowship" of Eastern Virginia Conference, the organization set as one of its goals to get 100 new subscriptions to THE CHRISTIAN SUN. If every conference could do that well it would mean 700 new subscribers to only one church paper. Think of it! Now, I believe every young person who has been asked to help is going right to work and please their neighbors, themselves, and their God by a bit of Christian service.

Some people seem to think it is a bad policy to borrow or lend. All things have their good and their bad. I would suggest that each church member who is taking a church paper, read it and pass it on to a neighbor member who cannot afford a paper for the time being. You may say the Superintendent is trying to defeat his own purpose by advocating a thing like this. No, that isn't it. I want every church member in the Southeast to become familiar with the activities of our church through its publications. An exchange of ideas and ways of doing things helps even the most learned men, then why shouldn't others do it? Let's share our papers with others.

I would like to suggest a few more books and some poetry for our young people to read during the month of August: "The Personality of Jesus," by Kirby Page (Association Press, paper, 90c, cloth, $1.50); "Men and Religion," by Walter S. Ryder (Stratford, $2.00); "The Gospel Minister," by L. M. Zimmerman (Meyer & Thalhimer, Baltimore, Md.); Poetry: "The Marriage Feast," by Alice Brown (Macmillan, $1.50); "Path of Life," by Jeane L. Gould (Humphries, $2.00).

Any of these books may be had by ordering through THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 East Broad St., Richmond, Va.

CARL R. KEY,

Supt. of Publications.

"YOUTH FELLOWSHIP."

(Editor's Note.—I have never seen more industry, enthusiasm and determination manifested by any group of young people than in this meeting. The program was well planned, inspirational, and carried out in fine style. It proves that the young people are and will be doing a fine work for our churches. The success of this program is due largely to the efficient work of the president and secretary. There was a total of 191 present and 21 churches were represented.)

Report of findings of Committee of Sixth Annual meeting of "The Youth Fellowship," of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference, Bethlehem Church, Tuesday, July 26, 1932:

The theme for the Sixth Annual Meeting of "The Youth Fellowship" of Eastern Virginia was "Youth's Present-Day Calls to Service." The theme was emphasized in both the song and devotional services by appropriate selections.

The usual routine of welcome and response was followed by a very timely and constructive message from the president. The outstanding event of the business meeting was the adoption of a Constitution and By-Laws by "The Fellowship."

An address by Rev. H. S. Hardcastle on the subject, "The Call of Youth in Recreation," was a challenge to the youth of the conference. A most interesting and informative lecture was part of the Chalk Talk by Dr. Ed. J. Richardson, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Virginia. His talk and illustrative drawings were on the subject of Prohibition and Youth.

The afternoon session opened with a song and devotional service. Rev. Carl Key spoke on the "Purpose of Youth Fellowship." He stated that the purpose of the organization is still vague in the minds of some of our leaders, but expressed great optimism that the organization would soon find its proper place in the minds of these leaders.

After a brief business session the new officers for the coming year were installed by Dr. N. G. Newman, as follows: President, C. E. Warrington, 132 E. Berkley Ave., Berkley, Va.; Vice-President, Mills Godwin, Jr., Chuckatuck, Va.; Secretary, Irene Cotten, Dendron, Va.; Treasurer, Mary Knoeller, Waverly, Va.; Reporter, Doris Eure, R. F. D. 3, Suffolk, Va.; Superintendent of Devotional Life, Watson Cobb, 227 36th St., Norfolk, Va.; Superintendent of Service, Emily Tidwell, R. F. D., Suffolk, Va.; Superintendent of Leadership Training, Lottie May Cross, 128 Morgan St., Suffolk, Va.; Superintendent of Moral Standards, Aubrey Todd, 1207 Bainbridge St., South Norfolk, Va.; Superintendent of Publications, Lanson Granger, 405 E. Liberty St., Berkley, Va.; Pastor-Counsellors, Rev. F. C. Lester, Waverly, Va.; Rev. R. E. Brittle, R. F. D. 1, Suffolk, Va.; Lay-Counsellor, Miss Lillye Holland, Holland, Va.

The outstanding message of the afternoon session was Rev. F. C. Lester's address, "Problems of Youth in the Mission Field."

The Goals Committee, composed of Mrs. W. B. Williams, Chairman; Kathryn Burgess, Burwell Barrett, offered the following suggested goals for "The Youth Fellowship" of the Eastern Virginia Conference for 1932-33:

1. A youth organization of some kind in each church.
2. Have a representative key-worker in every church, who will: (a) Keep chart and goals before the young people's organizations of the church; (b) Receive mail and share it with the young people's organizations of the church; (c) Report to the editor of the Young People's page in THE CHRISTIAN SUN any news items in the local church.
3. At least one young person from each church attending Elon Leadership Training School.
4. The young people of every church giving to missions this year.
5. At least 200 converts to Christ won through the efforts of the young people.
6. All young people's organizations taking an active part in the program of Allied Youth in support of the Eighteenth Amendment and for Christian Citizenship.
7. At least 100 new subscriptions to THE CHRISTIAN SUN secured by the young people.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

"HOW DOES NATURE SPEAK TO US OF GOD?"

The worship service should be opened by singing one of the following hymns, or any of your own selection: "For the Beauty of the Earth," "In the Garden," "Day is Dying in the West." And for the Scripture lesson, read Psalm 19:1-6. Any poem on nature would be appropriate if it was read or recited to the Society.

Since God first created this universe nature has been making and breaking all types of life from time to time. Surely there is a God who controls its activities. And this writer is of the opinion that every person can hear the voice of nature telling of God. Our eyes must cooperate with our ears, our nerves must keep our bodies in coordination if we try to hear that still small voice. The whispering of the wind, the music of the birds, the many colored leaves of autumn, the amber and lavender sunset, all tell us about God and His handiwork. Nature renews God's promise to us as storm and disaster are doomed by the rainbow. The poet has said: "One touch of nature makes the whole world kin."

Then we might say nature tells of God through the waves that wash every shore. The following excerpt from Wordsworth's "The Tables Turned," expresses our ideas in part:

"And hark! how blithe the throstle sings!

He, too, is no mean preacher:

Come forth into the light of things,

Let nature be your teacher.

"She has a world of ready wealth,

Our minds and hearts to bless—

Spontaneous wisdom breathed by health,

Truth breathed by cheerfulness.

"One impulse from a vernal wood

May teach you more of man,

Of moral evil and of good,

Than all the sages can.

"Sweet is the lore which nature brings;

Our meddling intellect

Misshapes the beauteous forms of things:

We murder to dissect."

Does the Voice of Nature Make God Real?—Yes, a thousand times, yes! What greater assurance that there is a God who is omnipotent and omnipresent than what the voice of nature tells us? You feel that sense of reality in the rays

(Continued on page 11.)

Sunday School Lesson

BY REV. STANLEY C. HARRELL.

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS—PART II.

LESSON VII—AUGUST 14, 1932.

SCRIPTURE LESSON—Exodus 20:12-21.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."—Leviticus 19:18.

TIME: B. C. 1491.

PLACE: Mount Sinai.

Last Sunday's lesson was on the part of the Ten Commandments which defines man's duty and relationship to God. The lesson for today defines man's duty to man. The two are inseparably joined together. Any religion that emphasizes the one at the expense of the other, becomes a one-sided religion. Any attempt to live the one and disregard the other becomes a most dangerous half truth. There are many who are convinced that the moral collapse of the present day is due to the fact that man has tried to build a system of morality that leaves God out of account.

The Fifth Commandment states the attitude and duty toward parents. Here we have another instance of the divine insistence of putting first things first. Religion reaches its highest peak in what develops in the home. The foundation of all right relationships between men is laid in the home. It is not without significance that in the light of the ancient world's tendency to despise woman, that the Decalogue should place the father and mother on perfect equality. It should also be remembered that the Mosaic Law made the parents responsible for the teaching of religion. Not only religion but also civilization have their roots in the right sort of homes.

The Sixth Commandment provides for the sacredness of human life. The most priceless thing that one man may take away from another is life itself. Wherever man has recognized any law, murder has always been forbidden. It is a sad commentary on man's lawlessness that after fifteen hundred years of the Mosaic dispensation, and nineteen hundred years of the Christian era, that human life is held so cheap. Not only has man been unable to enforce the law against what is technically known as murder, but nations that call themselves civilized still make war on one another and kill men by the millions. This commandment not only forbids the actual taking of human life; but whatever gradually weakens or destroys human life would be forbidden by the spirit of the commandment.

The Seventh Commandment has for its purpose the safeguarding of the purity of life. If as we have contended the future of society rests upon the home, just as surely the future of the home rests upon the sanctity of sex relations. Among the peoples that have come upon the stage of history and passed away, disregard for all the restrictions of sex relationships has always preceded their downfall. That man or woman that is impure in the relations of sex, has paved the way for the destruction of all the virtues.

The Eighth Commandment provides for the safeguarding of human property. A man's life does not consist of the abundance of things that he possesses, but it does depend upon his ability to provide himself with the necessary things for his physical existence. Man cannot rise much above the level of the brute until he has been able to provide for more than his immediate needs. Whenever there is a man that has, there is a temptation for some other to take it from him by stealing. Always there is more involved than the mere thing itself. Possessions have always been a means for the development of personality and the attainment of future ends. Stealing is not only taking from another that which he has. It may be depriving another of that to which he has a just right, but of which he has not been able to gain possession. Most of our modern economic questions are rooted in that which this commandment has in mind. We shall never be able to claim a Christian social order so long as one man is surfeited with this world's goods and another is starving.

The Ninth Commandment safeguards man's good name. The bearing of false witness, where there is any possibility of the falsehood being believed, is even a greater wrong than the taking of property. It is a sad reflection upon man that the civil law must draw a broad distinction between what a man says under oath and his ordinary conversation. The fact that we are not always careful of what we say about others makes this distinction necessary. The reverse side of this commandment should remind us that we should be careful about that to which we listen. The fact that so many of us desire the sordid and the sensational, makes it possible for a certain type of newspaper to make money through the defamation of character.

The Tenth Commandment goes beyond the outward act that a man may do, and recognizes the fact that the real source of danger is the unholy desire that may exist in the mind and the heart. Thou shalt not covet drops a plumb line into the very depths of the soul. It is the climax and capstone of the Decalogue. It was this commandment upon which Jesus laid the greatest emphasis of all. In fact it may be correctly said that Jesus built his gospel upon the positive side of this commandment. Our study of the Ten Commandments shows us how completely and perfectly God has mapped out the way for us. When we consider the spirit of the commandments, they should, as Paul describes it, be as a schoolmaster to bring us to Jesus.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

(Continued from page 10.)

of the sun and the mellow glow of the moon and stars. The coming and going of the leaves tells us that God is real.

Questions for Discussion.—What does nature have to do with our food, clothing and shelter? Does it tell you anything about God? What thoughts enter your mind as you look over a bountiful crop ready for the harvest? Does nature tell us anything about God as we view the human body with its symmetry? Is not God a loving God? Isn't it nature to love? Man craves social contact—does nature play any hand there?

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 $\frac{7}{8}$ x7 Inches, and 1 $\frac{3}{8}$ Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 $\frac{7}{8}$ x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold.....$1.60

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 $\frac{3}{4}$ x7

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.50

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges$6.00

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 $\frac{3}{4}$ x5 $\frac{5}{8}$ Inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 $\frac{3}{4}$ x5 $\frac{5}{8}$ Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps$2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 $\frac{3}{8}$ x8 $\frac{3}{4}$ Inches and 1 $\frac{3}{8}$ Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold$4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold$3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street Richmond Virginia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."—II. Chron. 7:14.

MONDAY.

GOOD MORNING.

"Jesus met them, saying, all hail,"

Goodspeed says, "Jesus met them, saying, 'Good morning.'" There is a touch of familiarity and human interest in Goodspeed's translation. People do not use the word "hail" any more as a salutation. "Good morning," is the most common salutation today.

The unique thing about Jesus' "good morning," to these ladies in the garden, is that it was a good morning forever, the first of all days that had ever dawned on an eternal, living Christ, and the dawn of a new era to humanity. Death is vanquished and there is life eternal.

A beautiful song comes to us from Negro spirituals, quoting from Luccock's "Preaching Values":

"Trees will be a-living and a-waving
When I am dead.
Birds will be a-living and a-singing
When I am dead."

At the last of the song faith is restored, when, in a spirit of triumph, it sings:

"Who will be a-living when I am dead?
I will! I will!"

That "I will," is a joyous response to Jesus' "Good Morning." Let us reflect that spirit in our every-day walk.

Prayer—O Lord, our God, we pray for the vision to see with the glories of each new day, that greater glory in the new life in Jesus. We pray that we may have more faith to live by him this day. Amen.

TUESDAY.

THE MINISTRY OF JESUS.

"And he said, let us go into the next towns, that I may preach there also; for therefore came I forth."—Mark 1:38.

Moffatt translates this passage thus: "Let us go somewhere else, to the adjoining country towns, so that I may preach there as well; that is why I came out here."

Jesus had begun his ministry of preaching, teaching and healing. Crowds thronged him. The people besought him to "stay here." See the crowds that follow you. See what good you can do." But Jesus could not be tempted by the crowds. He refused to be localized. He avoided setting up an institution. The road of the world was better. He came not to be a town favorite, but a world Redeemer, so he must needs go on to others.

In this policy of the Master there lies the destiny of Christianity. As each new frontier has been reached, the Macedonian call has come, "Come over and help us," and some inspired soul has said, "Let's go." Home says, "Stay!" Love of our dear ones says, "Stay!" The making of money says, "Stay!" Friends and happiness say "Stay!" But the whole progress of Christianity has rested upon the struggle between "go" and "stay," in which God won out.

Most important it is that, as applied to us personally, Christianity is not expressed in form, dogmas, and organization. Christianity is yeast, not concrete. It is a condition within. It should ferment. It should grow. If Christians, we are to let our light shine so that others who see us may too know him. We cannot hide it under a bushel. The rich man said to his soul, "Now, we're all set. We have goods for many years. We don't need to think, or plan, or work, or worry." He thus set himself like a plaster cast and God decided that he was of no more use. When we stop, life is gone.

Prayer—O Lord, our Father, whatever thou hast for us to do help us to do with our might, failing in nothing. Lead us on and on with souls aglow with Christian fervor. In his name we ask it. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

BLINKING AT CHRISTIANITY.

"There were certain of the scribes setting there, and reasoning in their hearts."—Mark 2:6.

One translator says, "Pondering in their hearts;" another says, "Arguing in their hearts." To reason means to think out rationally: to ponder, means to consider heavily, laboriously, dull: To argue, means to discuss, dispute, etc. The scribes in the text seemed to be thinking like an owl blinking in the sunlight. There was something they could not grasp. Jesus had forgiven a man his sins. This came like a flash of light into their eyes and they were befuddled. They could see nothing to it but blasphemy. They never reached the realm of vital human need nor of spiritualities.

It is easy for us to think more of the form of baptism, or whether a child should be baptized, or whether a choir should be paid, or whether Christ was born of a Virgin, than we do of the saving grace of our Lord. The point is: believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, renounce the world, the flesh and the devil, and follow Christ, and thou shalt be saved. Why reason, or ponder, or argue?

Prayer—Dear Heavenly Father, we come to thee with faith as simple as the day. We lay ourselves on the altar to live for thee this day. Make thyself known to us each step of the way. Amen.

THURSDAY.

THE SIN OF OBSTINACY.

"He looked round about on them with anger, being grieved for the hardness of their hearts."—Mark 3:5.

Goodspeed's translation says, "Being hurt by their obstinacy," and Moffatt says, "In anger and vexation at their obstinacy." Obstinacy seems to be our present word for the attitude of these people toward Jesus. They would not even be fair enough to answer his question lest they be caught in a trap themselves and have to yield to the Master. They were determined to carry out their intentions in spite of advice, appeals, remonstrance or force. Jesus ignores them; goes on about his work. But the grief he suffered, the anger he felt, and the resistance he offered classifies this human trait—obstinacy—as a sin against the Kingdom of God.

It is sin because it may easily pass for Godly virtue. One loves to think he has an opinion and, once asserting it, he considers it virtuous to stick to it. It takes on the air of firmness, perseverance, strength of will, loyalty, integrity. At the same time it may be sticking to something dead wrong, or absolutely selfish.

Obstinacy is sin because it is hard to get over. It is something that grows with age deeper and deeper in nature and helps one to reach permanently the point where he is "set in his ways."

Obstinacy is sin because it hinders God. It can block any movement anywhere and at any time. It can raise a barricade to every advance of human progress.

Prayer—O Lord, our God, may we ask ourselves, "Is it I?" We know that thou alone canst cure our obstinacy. Cure thou us this day of any scintillation of it in us. We beseech thee to lead us, we promise to follow. Amen.

FRIDAY.

THEIR FAVORITE SPORT.

"It is vain for you to rise up early, to take rest late, to eat the bread of toil, for so he giveth unto his beloved sleep."—Read Psalm 127:1-5.

This year's vote of Brown University named sleep as the favorite pastime. Memories of my own college days place me in sympathy with that vote. In most colleges, for both men and women, each professor is all too likely to assign work on the supposition that his are the only classes in the institution. A conscientious student never gets really enough sleep.

But after we leave college, sleep is the favorite sport of more of us than will confess it. We will hardly miss any other pastime, or at least find easily a satisfactory substitute; but keep us from sleep, as ingenious torturers used to do, and we become insane before long, and soon topple over into our graves.

The victims of insomnia clearly understand what a blessed gift is God's bestowal of sleep. Well is it said by the psalmist to be God's gift to his beloved. Do we praise him enough for it? Are we grateful enough for it? It is to be ranked with the air we breathe and the bread we eat, the three being our greatest worldly blessings, and, for most of us, the blessings least regarded.

Prayer—Thou gracious giver, may we join with thy wisdom in the ordering of our lives. May we so pass our days that thou canst give us sleep, and crown with it all thy other gifts. Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

SATURDAY.

SILENCE AND SONG.

"Jehovah thy God is in the midst of thee, a mighty one who will save; He will rejoice over thee with joy; He will rest in his love; He will joy over thee with singing."—Read Zephaniah 3:14-20.

Love has words, Love needs no words. Love sings. Love is silent. Love rests in fellowship. Love labors in union. There is a time for silence and rest, and there is a time for speech and activity, because there is always a time for love.

So it is with the love of God. His children know equally well the joy of silent communion with him and the blessedness of listening to his songs, and joining in them. God is known in many ways. If it were not so, he would not be an infinite God. Let us find as many of these ways as we can ourselves, and let us join in many of them with others.

Prayer—Whether in silence or in speech, reveal to us thyself, O our Father. By every means come closer to us for eternity is too short to learn thee completely. Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.

WASTE.

"The highways lie waste."—Read Isaiah 33:1-10.

Americans are said to be very wasteful, and indeed many a populace could live in comfort on what we throw away; but the situation would be much worse if we were not also a very saving people. Probably a billion dollars' worth of waste.

(Continued on page 14.)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

THE SABBATH WAS MADE FOR MAN.

"Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work; but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy manservant, nor thy maidservant, nor thy cattle, nor the stranger that is within thy gates: For in six days the Lord made the heaven and the earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day; wherefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath day and hallowed it."

The above commandment is the highest law of God and man and is contained in the twentieth chapter of the Book of Exodus. It has for all the years been recognized by Christian nations, embedded in the life and laws alike of Hebrews and Christians. Undoubtedly the Hebrews construed the law as to the seventh day so that it became a burden instead of a day of worship and rest.

When Jesus Christ came he rebuked a too literal interpretation, saying: "The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath," adding: "Therefore, the Son of Man is Lord also of the Sabbath."

What was the occasion of this divine utterance of the new dispensation? Mark thus records it in chapter two:

"And it came to pass that he went through the cornfields on the Sabbath day; and his disciples began, as they went, to pluck the ears of corn.

"And the Pharisees said unto him, Behold, why do they on the Sabbath day that which is not lawful?"

"And he said unto them, Have ye never read what David did, when he had need, and was hungered, he, and they that were with him?"

"How he went into the house of God in the days of Abiathar the high priest, and did eat the shewbread, which is not lawful to eat but for the priests, and gave also to them which were with him."

The supreme law of God for the Sabbath as therein contained, is the act of Christ in healing the man with a withered hand on the Sabbath, saying to those who criticized his good act: "Is it lawful to do good on the Sabbath day or to do evil; to save life or to kill?" Mark tells us that his critics "held their peace." These instances might be multiplied as to Christ's attitude toward what may be done on the Sabbath. His whole teaching might be compressed in the story that if the ox is in the ditch it is lawful and humane to remove him on the Sabbath. From this teaching men have practiced those works on the seventh day deemed essential in a dispensation which recognizes that "the Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath."

The laws of men have followed the laws of Moses and the seventh day has long been set aside as a day of rest, with freedom from labor and the worldly pleasures proper and to be commended on the other six days of the week. In recent years in our country there has been a breaking down of the inhibition toward work and play on Sunday with the consequent destruction of much of good to the physical, as well as the religious well-being of mankind. During the French Revolution the trend away from tradition was so strong that the Sabbath was abolished, and the plan was to deny the need of any day set apart from the other six days of the week. Aside from considerations of religion it was found that man needed one day in seven to preserve his health and strength, as well as for reflection and worship. Neither man nor animal can do his best work without one day for rest and contemplation and worship. After all, as Daniel Webster said, religion is the chief concern of man. Break down all the inhibitions of the Scripture, all the discipline of religion, all the blessings of lives attuned to the will of God, and what remains of man beyond the lower animal?

The question of recreation on the Sabbath, of what may be properly done on the Sabbath, has recently been sharply raised in North Carolina by the playing of professional baseball in games where admission is charged. The ministers and others in Raleigh, apprehensive that this game to be encouraged and promoted as clean sport, would promote disregard and disrespect for a day always held sacred as "the Lord's day," have protested against what they regard as a desecration of the Sabbath. They hold that "the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God," and should not be used as an ordinary day, but observed as taught in the law of Moses as broadened in the teachings of Jesus.

The ministers and others, who look upon making the Sabbath just like the other six days, see in this departure from an ancient tradition and a sound principle, the open door to the breaking down of the day of rest and worship. If commercial baseball and moving pictures (however innocent or even educational those shows may be on that day) are to become a part of the Sunday diversion and recreation, what will be the next innovation? And how long until the old-time respect for the Sabbath, impressed by the teachings of Moses and Jesus Christ, will give way to the continental Sabbath of bull fights and elections and all things having no regard for the sound principle that "the Sabbath was made for man"—made for his physical, moral and religious well-being?

The debacle in business, in industry, in all the things that touch life will be complete and irremedial if the people look for no divine guidance. The hope of the better day is in a return to the teachings of Jesus. The present debacle may be traced to the ignoring of his teachings by men in the seats of authority, in the marts of trade, in the haunts of the money changers. The call is "Right About Face" to the things of the spirit and toward the further disregard of religious teachings.—Raleigh News and Observer.

SINS OF THE OLD.

The blackest chapters in human annals record not the sins of youth against age but of age against youth. In this catalogue of crime are the tyrants who in cowardice and cruelty slew the innocents of Bethlehem, the fanatics who slaughtered children by the millions in foolish and fruitless efforts to secure a shrine from an entrenched enemy, and the monsters of greed who will grind the flesh and bone of little children in the mills in order to fill their own coffers with gain. But these are not by any means all the sinners with gray hairs upon their heads. The young are open-minded and eager for the truth. Then along comes age guided by prejudice and slams the door of knowledge in the face of youth. The graves of all the battlefields of earth have been filled by young men. But the young men were not responsible for the wars. Older men than they and old men did it. If the men who start the wars had to fight the battles there would be no wars. The generation that goes before is in each and every instance responsible for the sins of its successor. The race has been damned by the very people who were old enough to know better. Gray hairs which ought to be a crown of glory may, and too often do, become the symbol of shame.—N. C. Christian Advocate.

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

- Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
- Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
- Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
- Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
- Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

- Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
 - Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00
 - Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
- (For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90.

- Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling).$22.00
- Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
- Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

- Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00
- Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00
- Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

If we could get our people interested enough to visit the Christian Orphanage and see their own institution, with a hundred little children in its care, who have been taken from helpless and needy circumstances, and are being trained to be of service in the communities in which they may reside, we believe they would get a broader view of what our church is doing in this work.

Those who do come seem to be pleased with the entire plant. Its cleanliness is very important—even the barn and dairy where the milk is handled. We try to impress on our children the idea of cleanliness. The children in one building do not want some other building to be kept better than theirs, so they put forth their best efforts to keep everything spotless and tidy in every department. The boys do not want the girls to get ahead of them, so they sweep the barn daily and wash the cow-shed where the cows are milked twice each day. The boys in the milk-house, where the milk is strained, bottled, chilled and churned, are careful to not fall behind in their department. So water and brushes are used freely each day. They are taught that cleanliness is next to Godliness.

We cannot get all our people to visit us; some do not have the time. It is not convenient for some, and some live quite a distance from us, so the best we can do is to take a sample of our work to the several churches. We are training a singing class that will visit churches from now until Thanksgiving, and we will be glad to visit any church that would like to have us. It may be we cannot come on the Sunday you want us, on account of previous arranged dates, but if you want us to visit your church, write us and we will be glad to work out a date. Our good friend, H. A. Carlton, of Raleigh, N. C., donated to the Orphanage last year a buss to carry the class, and we want to make good use of it. If you want us to visit your church, write us. We can visit any church within a radius of one hundred miles and return the same day. You would be asked to furnish lunch for the children.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR AUGUST 4, 1932.

Brought forward $ 9,117.52

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:

Greensboro, First $ 20.83
Third Avenue, Danville 4.30
Monticello 7.10
Union Virginia 2.30

34.53

Eastern North Carolina Conference:

Bethel (Wake) $ 2.00
New Elam 3.21
Henderson 3.45
Morrisville 1.27

9.93

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Mt. Carmel $ 6.80
Holland 7.50

14.30

Valley Virginia Central Conference:

Linville $ 6.02
Mayland 1.00

7.02

Alabama Conference:

Roanoke 1.00

Special Offerings.

Sale of bed $ 5.00
New Center, offering for singing class 4.59

Seagrove, offering for singing class	7.39
A friend	25.00
F. C. Owen, guardian for James Brown	12.50
A friend	5.00
Refund on gasoline by State.....	39.78
	99.26
Total for the week	$ 166.04
Grand total	$ 9,283.56

FAMILY ALTAR. (Continued from page 12.)

material is recaptured every year in this country, chiefly waste metal of different kinds, including a half million tons of copper, half a billion dollars' worth of iron and steel, and large amounts of gold and silver.

Let us honor the junk man, and let us all become of his trade. Saving a dollar is as useful as earning a dollar. And saving a soul is the most glorious salvage imaginable.

Spiritual economy includes the economy of time and health, and especially the utilizing of influence that might be thrown away. We owe it to God that the lives he gives us shall be made to count for as much as possible. To waste our mental and physical energies is sinful, but to waste the powers whereby we might "praise God and enjoy him forever" is to miss "the chief end of man."

Prayer—Teach us, O Creator, to follow thy ways whereby all operations and materials co-operate in thy vast designs. Make us prudent. Make us rich in all the resources of thy kingdom. In thy name. Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

Eiters Sunday School Maps.

On a Revolving Adjustable Steel Stand

The first 5 maps
are in Set No. 1,
with stand,
Price $15.00

Set No. 2
8 Maps,
Price $20.00

Fine large Maps, In 6 Colors 36x57, on linen finished Cloth. Mounted on a folding steel stand, which can be regulated, so that Maps may be seen to the best advantage. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Its large print and Cheerful Colors makes this set very instructive and attractive. Contains the five thoroughly up to date Maps necessary for the study of Bible History.
New Testament Palestine, — Old Testament Palestine, — Roman empire and Bible Lands, showing Pauls Travels by Colored lines, — Lands of the Old Testament, from the Great Sea, to the Persian Gulf. — The Exodus, Egypt, showing by Colored lines the wanderings of the Israelites.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN,

1536 East Broad Street,

Richmond, Virginia.

ALL
SELF-
PRONOUNCING

Holman Testaments

COMMAND
ATTENTION
AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2½x4½ inches

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there
was a marriage in
Cana of Galilee; and
the mother of Jesus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match gold titles. $.50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles.60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges.85

VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS
2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges.70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges.90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges. 1.10

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges.90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included. 1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4¼ inches x¾ inch
The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4¼ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2

The three wise men

carrying away into Babylon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Babylon unto Christ are fourteen

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges. $ 1.00

5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included. 1.50

5036PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms 2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET
SIZE
3¾x4½
inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type

CHAPTER 23.

THEN spake Jesus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3¾x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms. $.90

4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges. 1.35

4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included. 1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT

4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges. 1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT

4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms. 3.00

4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red. 3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print

Pica, 16mo. Size, 5¾x7¼x¾ inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines.

It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

Specimen of Type.
THE book
of Jesus

PSALMS INCLUDED
2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included. $ 1.50

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS

Same Large Print as Above

2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included. 2.95

RED LETTER EDITION

Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.

3913PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included. 3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

A SAD SPECTACLE.

It is distressing to many Christian citizens to note the persistent way in which many political candidates lug the booze question into their campaigns. It seems with many of these candidates the one supreme and potent campaign slogan is, "Repeal the 18th Amendment." There are many more serious questions facing these United States in these trying times, both at home and beyond. The stability and the security of this country—yea, its very existence—depends upon the way our statesmen handle these questions. But these questions are pushed aside in the presence of a more personal one, "Shall we repeal Prohibition?"

Our people at home are facing serious burdens unknown before. We are passing through revolutions. Our country is full of people out of work—want stalks our streets. Crime is powerfully entrenched. The fires of the Russian Reds threaten to flare up. The farmer struggles under his heavy burden, and needs a friend in all office-holders. The moral fiber and the religious foundations are threatened. But in the midst of these questions of great moment, about all we hear from many politicians, including some seeking the White House, is a loud appeal to overthrow Prohibition.

Any man qualified to hold any kind of office ought to know—and he does know—that the overthrow of Prohibition and the return to any form of legalized liquor would greatly increase all of these troubles. It would add to our criminal class, because a liquor-fired mind is always fertile ground for crime. It would add to the danger of city traffic and unload on the country people an army of drunken fools, menacing the land in gas motors. And yet the one big thing to which they are committed is the return of the legalized sale of liquor.

The United States never had greater responsibility as she faces a foreign policy. But these candidates are giving little thought and prayer to the part these United States should play in the family of nations. Their first big thoughts seem to be whether or not these States shall go back in the liquor business.

We might not be surprised to see some ruffian running for the City Council from the Bowery on a liquor platform, but it does seem that any man who thinks he is in the Presidential class, or whom anybody else thinks is in that class, would have too much dignity and maintain a higher standard of statesmanship than to try to ride to the White House on a booze wagon. But this is the big campaign powder that Governor Ritchie, Governor Roosevelt, and Al Smith are using.

Here is the wet platform of Governor Roosevelt recently given to the press:

"I have advocated the return of the control over the sale of liquor to the State. I want to point out that the States, which controlled the sales of every kind of intoxicating liquors would find for themselves a larger source of revenue."

The words of a man who aspires to the White House! He would again turn us back to the pagan custom of blighting the bodies of our citizens, destroying their homes and damning their souls for revenue. He would thrust this whole Union into civil strife that would be as bitter as war over what States should be wet and what States dry. He knows we could not have a nation half slave and half free. He also knows we cannot have some States wet and some dry. If New York is wet and the South dry, New York will do all in her greedy power to override the dry South and flood it with liquor. Since when has a wish of a dry community been respected by the wets in a wet community?

Why can't our would-be statesmen keep this question out of politics? Who is stirring up the trouble? Is it asking too much to ask that we have candidates who leave this question alone and support the Constitution?—Editorial in Richmond Christian Advocate.

THE BURDEN.

"To get Ourselves Off Our Hands."

In his story called "A Raw Youth," Dostoevsky puts these profound words into the mouth of an old saint: "A man who bows down to nothing can never bear the burden of himself." God is not a luxury: He is a necessity. When man loses faith in God he worships humanity; when faith in humanity fails, he worships science, as so many are trying to do today. When faith in science fails, man worships himself, and at the altar of his own idolatry he receives a baptism of boredom and a benediction of vanity. Hence the tedious egotism of our day, when men are self-centered and self-obsessed, unable to get themselves off their hands. Only God, the eternal Other, is equal to the need of the little, infinite human soul. Dostoevsky himself found liberty, at last, in a final prostration of his soul, stripped and humbled before God.—Joseph Fort Newton.

Without the Bible man would be in the midst of a sandy desert, surrounded on all sides by a dark and impenetrable horizon.—Daniel Webster.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

WHITLEY MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 15th. Freshmen register on Tuesday, September 13th, and upper classmen on the 15th. Expenses reduced for this session. Write for Catalog and application blank.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. Associate
W. W. STALEY, D. D. Contributing
S. C. HARRELL Contributing
C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. . . . Contributing
ELISHA A. KING, D. D. . . . Contributing
W. C. WICKER, D. D. . . . Contributing
J. T. KERNODLE Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When sending subscriptions for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of year.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

OBITUARIES

BOYD.

Miss Sarah E. Boyd, born July 10, 1881, died June 23, 1932. Miss Boyd professed faith in Christ in girlhood and united with the Ingram Christian Church, of which she remained a faithful member until the end.

The many beautiful flowers and large crowd gave evidence of the esteem in which she was held. The church and community has lost one of its most faithful and consecrated workers.

At the time of Miss Boyd's death, a brother, Mr. Ira Boyd, of Henderson, N. C., was in the hospital critically ill, has since gone to his reward, leaving to mourn their loss one sister, Mrs. L. E.

Carlton, of Paces, Va., and one brother, Mr. A. W. Boyd of Chase City, Va., and many other relatives and friends.

The services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary, Elon College, N. C.; Dr. T. S. Wilson, a life-long friend of the family, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Oak Level, Va., and Rev. J. E. McCauley, pastor of the First Christian Church, Richmond, Va.

Interment was in Pleasant Grove Cemetery. May the Lord comfort the bereaved.
H. E. CRUTCHFIELD.

BRADY.

Thomas Haywood Brady died July 10, 1932, being 77 years, 1 month and 28 days of age.

He had long been a member of Pleasant Grove Christian Church, and was

THE CONGREGATIONAL LATIN-AMERICAN INSTITUTE AND PILGRIM LATIN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH OF WEST TAMPA, FLA.—

Are helping give the Gospels, which is "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," to the forty thousand Latin people of Tampa. The evangelical forces working among the foreigners of Tampa are by no means covering the territory sufficiently.

Methodists have six preachers, Baptists two, Presbyterians one, Congregationalists one. Church workers and teachers must be supported for this great missionary work. Send check to

LESLIE S. BRAY, Treas.
Route 4, Box 468, - - Tampa, Fla.
Send boxes of clothing to Mrs. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

For literature, write Rev. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' EDITION FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear, Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type
"From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, 'The kingdom of heaven'"

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid. 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid. 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid. 10.65

faithful to his church and to his God to the end.

It may be truly said, a good man has passed to his reward.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. J. A. Cox, Ramseur, N. C., and four sons, H. M. Brady, Bennett, N. C.; H. T. Brady, Spartanburg, S. C.; N. E. Brady, Florence, S. C., and H. C. Brady, Washington, besides many other relatives and a host of friends. His burial was largely attended.

His remains were placed in Pleasant Grove Cemetery, by the side of his wife, who preceded him in death about four years ago.

T. J. GREEN.

"Whom God appoints he annoints."

RITENOUR.

Mary E. Ritenour was born May 1, 1874, and died May 30, 1932, making her age, therefore, 58 years and 29 days. She was a consistent member of Joppa Christian Church for about 40 years. She was the daughter of John K. and Jane E. Clem of the Fort Valley, and was married to Enoch Ritenour, October 1, 1896. She is survived by her husband, two children, four grandchildren, one brother, and two sisters. Funeral services were held at the United Brethren Church in Edinburg, Va., June 1, 1932.

A. W. ANDES.

SUMMER SESSION

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

JUNE 8 TO 20, OR AUGUST 10

An Accredited Summer School in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

Standard Courses in Fifteen Departments Meeting the Academic and Professional Needs of College Students, Teachers and Prospective Teachers.

Special Courses in Primary, Intermediate, High School and Rural Education; also in Public School Music and Art, Story Telling, Coaching of Plays, Southern Literature, Southern History, Geography, Religious Education, Piano, Voice and Violin.

Six to Nine Weeks of Profitable Study Combined with Delightful Vacation and Recreation.

For Catalogue, write
DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
Demorest, Ga.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

A Memorial of the Congregational-Christian Union.

FRANK E. JENKINS, Pres. MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD, Dean

Chartered by Southern Christian Convention, June 2, 1922, as Bethlehem College; renamed Southern Union, June 3, 1931.

Will function during the present financial depression as a Junior College only.

FALL TERM WILL OPEN SEPTEMBER 7.

DEPRESSION PRICES.

Depression prices during the coming year, made possible by extensive gardens, careful planning, organization and donations—Tuition, board and room, $192 for entire scholastic year; tuition alone, $48; each payable in six equal installments.

Unsectarian, but thoroughly Christian.

For Information, write—

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXIV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, AUGUST 11, 1932.

NUMBER 32.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

Salvagers Find Ocean Treasure.—

It is reported that treasure-hunters have located the Ward liner Merida, which was sunk together with the personal fortunes of refugees en route from Mexico to New York, some years ago, to the amount of $4,000,000 to $6,000,000. This is the fifth attempt that has been made to recover this vast fortune, and the hunters are hoping for success at this time.

A "Heavy" Bank Deposit.—

A cashier in the town of Onslow, N. C., recently received a cash deposit which required the better part of two days to count, if Associated Press reports are true. The deposit was made by an Onslow County man, who brought in between 110 and 120 pounds of coins of various denominations, the largest being a 25-cent piece. When the cashier had finished his arduous task he found that there was just $800.00.

Automobile Fatalities Increase.—

According to the statistics just announced by the United States Bureau of Census, deaths from automobile accidents increased from 24.5 in 1930 to 24.9 per 100,000 of population in 1931. For the country as a whole, exclusive of Utah, there were 29,547 deaths in 1931 against 28,950 in 1930. By geographic divisions, the Pacific group had the highest death rate in 1931 as well as in 1930, it being 34.6 per 100,000 for each year. The Middle Atlantic group came fourth on the list with 25.3 per 100,000. Nevada led the list of States with 68.5, and was followed in turn by Wyoming with 43, California with 36.8, and Florida with 34.4.

U. S. to Build Great Smoky Park Highways.—

It has been recently announced that $509,000 of the $3,000,000 carried in the emergency relief law for park improvement will go to the Great Smoky Mountains National Park. Of this sum $109,000 is to be spent for surveys and other incidental work. The remaining $400,000 will be used for construction. Every assurance has been given by those in charge that the surveys will be hastened to the utmost, and road contracts will be let as soon thereafter as possible. Day labor, with ex-service men receiving the preference, will be used on a considerable portion of this work. $50,000 of the money to be used for preliminary work is to be spent in conjunction with the North Carolina State Highway Commission. It is estimated that the cost of road-building in this area will ultimately amount to over $2,500,000.

Rooster Goes to Jail for Blocking Traffic.—

Its feet trussed tightly with string and guarded by two policemen, a two-pound Rhode Island Red rooster recently rode in a patrol wagon to the First Police Station, in Richmond, Va., there to face charges of playing havoc with Broad Street traffic, causing several near-wrecks, and upsetting the nerves and equilibriums of nearby pedestrians. The afternoon traffic, already bad enough, was made appalling when some unlucky Richmonder, crossing the street with his fat fryer for supper, dropped the rooster. Writhing and leaping in spite of its tightly tied legs, the fowl so congested traffic, that the patrol wagon was hastily summoned. After its capture the rooster was turned over to the patrolmen, and vigilantly guarded, went to jail to face charges of "careless and reckless flying, obstructing traffic, being a public nuisance, etc." We wonder if this is a capital offense when committed by a rooster.

Seabury Submits Rebuttal Against Walker.—

The Seabury Committee has offered a rebuttal of 20,000 words to the defense made by Mayor Walker of New York City, in which there are caustic charges of contradiction, evasion and falsification on the part of the Mayor in offering his defense. Governor Roosevelt is told that the Mayor has proven himself "unworthy of belief" about his official conduct, and that "the record now before you clearly proves the Mayor is guilty of the acts set out in the specifications." The Mayor's contention that he can only be removed for acts of the present term, drew the following arraignment: "It is a sorry sight, indeed, to see a person occupying high public office, whose honor is impugned, taking the position that the people must suffer him to continue in his public office because he was fortunate enough not to be caught in time." Governor Roosevelt has stated that no political consideration would influence his decision, yet it cannot but be an annoying situation for him. There is widespread speculation as to the effect this controversy and its outcome will have on the political situation, both State and National.

A Prohibition Research Committee.—

Probably the latest thing presented by "wets" in the present prohibition argument is a self-constituted prohibition research committee, said to be representing "students of more than twenty colleges and universities" scattered throughout the land. Their declared purpose is to discover the number of former drunkards who were reformed solely as a result of the prohibition law. To date they claim that they have not been able to find one, though they have visited welfare agencies, W. C. T. U. headquarters, and other places of like nature in thirty-five of the largest cities of the country and have traveled more than 9,000 miles in their quest. The chairman of this "committee" says that they "have found a number of reformed drunks, but that not one of them gave credit to the prohibition statute." Really, what does it matter to whom or to what the credit be given, just so the fact is accomplished. In direct contrast to their statements are those of such workers as Evangeline Booth, Jane Addams, who should know whereof they speak. A slum worker, a friend of the writer, when asked why he had closed his "hand-out" houses in the city in which he lived, made the succinct answer: "Prohibition has run me out of business."

Non-Resistance in China.—

A recent issue of The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty carries this story which was reported by Harold W. Robinson from the meeting of the North China Council in Tehesin: "The most dramatic hour was when one of the country delegates, a Mr. Wang, related his experiences with the bandits. He has long been a non-resistent, believing this to be the only logical position for a Christian to hold. Last fall our Mission Monthly published an article raising the question whether a Christian should use firearms to defend property and life. The question was quite a disturbing one to Mr. Wang. It had never occurred to him that there was any question about it. Of course he would not. Then his neighbors began to buy rifles to protect themselves from bandits. They wanted him to buy a rifle. He discussed the matter with his family, but since a rifle cost $115 Mex and he would have to sell land to raise the money, his son, who is also a non-resister, decided they buy a mule instead of a rifle. The rifle was not bought. One night in March, Mrs. Wang aroused her husband and informed him that some one was on the roof. He had already formulated in his mind a plan if bandits ever came to his house. He told the three men on the roof if they wanted anything which he had to come and take it, but he asked them not to frighten the family by firing. They came down, tied up Mr. Wang and his son, and led them away. After a while the son was released so as to go back and get money to redeem his father. Mr. Wang was nearly sick when he was captured, but was led several miles to another village where he was locked in a room. He was offered food and treated well, but he was so sick that he could not eat. Every night for ten days he was blindfolded and led to some other place. He does not know whether he was actually taken to other villages or was led around in the same one. During his captivity he was in constant prayer—praying that he might be released in time to attend the Tehesin meeting to which he had been elected a delegate. After two days of the meeting Mr. Wang suddenly appeared in our midst—like one risen from the dead, he said. We don't know yet just why he was released, nor does he. No ransom was paid. Mr. Wang's only explanation is that his prayers were answered."

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

J. T. Kernodle, managing editor of THE SUN, with his wife, left Monday for Massanetta Springs, to attend the Bible Conference. They will also attend the Valley Conference in Winchester.

Rev. C. Arthur Lincoln, Daytona Beach, Fla., has returned after a few weeks spent in New England. On August 7th, he preached at Holyoke, Mass., and on July 31st he preached at the South Church, Hartford, Conn.

Dr. Lillian B. Fulton, of Lake Worth, Fla., is spending a vacation of several weeks in Hendersonville, N. C. During July, Rev. Frederick Held, of Jupiter, preached at the Lake Worth Church for the morning service and at his own church in the evening.

News has just been received at this office that Dr. W. W. Staley, who has been ill for several weeks in a hospital, on account of an affection of the eye, is now resting very comfortably at his home in Suffolk. Hopes are entertained for his ultimate recovery, which will be most gratifying to his many friends.

If you have not done so within the past month, turn to page 16 and read, under the mast head, the directions as to Change of Address, Contributions, etc. It will facilitate matters for both the editor and the managing editor, and will insure more prompt attention to the business with which you may be concerned.

Rev. Frederick Held, Jupiter, Fla., visited the Jacksonville office recently en route to Illinois with his family, where they expect to visit with friends in former parishes during the month of August. Mr. Held reported the closing of a very successful Daily Vacation Bible School held in his church. The church was filled with visitors at the time of the closing exercises of the school.

Rev. and Mrs. R. T. Grissom report forty conversions during the month of July in their work at Elk Spur and Rock Ford, Carroll County, Va., and twelve members received into the church, several of these members being among the most influential persons of the communities. There has been organized a home nursing class at Elk Spur for young ladies and mothers, with deep interest on the part of those who have joined the class.

Dr. and Mrs. C. Rexford Raymond, of Chattanooga, Tenn., have been making a brief visit at Miami Beach, Fla., visiting their daughter, whose husband, Rev. Orville D. Ullom is supplying the pulpit of the community church for the month of August. Dr. Raymond has been supplying the pulpit of the Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va., during July and returned to his own pulpit for August 14th.

Mr. Chas. D. Johnston, superintendent of the Christian Orphanage at Elon College, N. C., with his wife and sister-in-law, Mrs. C. C. Jones, of the Eastern Shore, were visitors in the home of Dr. and Mrs. P. J. Kernodle for a short while the past week. Mr. Johnston's visits are always short, because his family of more than one hundred children, claims his attention and has his first consideration.

Rollins College, Winter Park, Fla., will receive $50,000 from bequests of $975,000 to educational, religious and charitable institutions as shown in the appraisals of the estate of Mrs. Ella M. Burke, Cleveland, O., widow of the late Stevenson Burke of that city. It is understood, but not officially announced, that Rollins will place the above bequest in her endowment fund and only the interest on the sum will be used for operating expenses.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found a list of those who have sent in payments on their subscriptions to THE SUN during the month of July. If, perchance, you sent in yours, and your name is not listed, look at your label, and if it, too, remains unchanged, write the managing editor a card giving him the date and amount sent, and it will receive his prompt attention. Every effort will be made to eliminate mistakes, but they some times occur in spite of all precautions.

We note that in addition to his position as Professor of Religious Education in the Vanderbilt University School of Religion, Dr. W. A. Harper has been appointed special faculty representative and campaign director in the endowment campaign which is now being waged. This campaign is an effort to give the School of Religion an endowment of one million dollars. Dr. Harper can be counted upon to make every effort that his duties be carried to a successful conclusion.

Among others who passed through Richmond Monday, on their way to attend the Bible Conference at Massanetta Springs, were Dr. C. H. Rowland, of the First Christian Church, Greensboro, N. C., and Rev. H. S. Harcastle, of the Christian Church in Suffolk. They spent a short time in the home of Dr. P. J. Kernodle, former managing editor of THE SUN, who has been confined to his home by illness for the past three years. It is a great pleasure to Dr. Kernodle that so many of his friends remember to visit him since he has become a shut-in.

The Georgia State Conference will meet this year with the Duncan's Creek Church, near Buford, on October 31st and November 1st. This will be a joint meeting of the Georgia and Alabama Annual Conference and the Congregational Conference. The executive committee of the former and the committee appointed for the purpose from the Congregational wing are planning a meeting the last of August to initiate plans for the merger of the two, forming a United Congregational and Christian Conference of Georgia, or whatever name may be adopted.

The Piedmont Young People's Leadership Conference, announced to be held in Demorest, at Piedmont College, will be held on the same dates, August 11th to 18th, at Owen Heights, near Zebulon and Meansville, Ga. This change is made in order to save delegates from South Georgia about three or four hundred miles of travel. Owen Heights is a beautiful, large farm home which has been used for years as a summer resort for people from Florida, Atlanta and other points. Beautiful shade trees, wide roomy porticoes, large modern rooms, plenty of level spaces for outdoor games, etc., all in all almost a perfect setting for this first summer conference for Georgia young people.

Our S. S. S. men are carrying on in splendid style. "Eddie" Dubois at Chapel Hill, during July, in conjunction with the pastor, Rev. Cleveland R. Dierlamm, made a survey in a general way of an area of twenty-five miles; they organized the young people in a most gratifying manner. And now Dubois is working with Rev. T. L. Leverett in Macedonia Parish, Georgia, during August. Arthur Swartz, with Rev. S. M. Penn, in North Carolina, Sophia Parish, preached many times in revival meetings with marked success. Bailey's Grove took on a wonderfully satisfying new lease of life. Mr. Swartz is now in Georgia, working with Rev. W. Carl Parker at Duncan's Creek Church, Center Church, Atlanta and Hampden Church, Lovejoy. John Chapman, at Asheville, is working hard on a similar program, and is acting pastor in all that means with much preaching. Gregory Williams is proving himself a very fine assistant to Rev. David W. Shepherd at Columbus and Phenix City. All in all a wonderfully satisfactory work is being done by all these S. S. S. men and women.

The Columbus United Congregational and Christian Church is increasingly reporting progress. One of the last forward movements is the organization of a Men's Bible Class in the Sunday School, with a great big policeman, Mr. J. H. Tyner, as teacher. But he is far from being "Tiny." It is reported that the Daily Vacation Church School this year, under the leadership of the pastor and Miss Dorothy Grigsby and Mr. Gregory Williams, was unusually successful. Not only was there a large enrollment of children during the day, but the young people, in large numbers, met each night for training in leadership. They put on two splendid pageants to the delight of the whole church. And in this connection less specific news tells an equally happy story of the same kind of work at La Grange, where Miss Annie Campbell and Miss Mildred Rister held sway. One hundred and five were enrolled in this school. Miss Rister and Rosie Gill are now engaged at Meansville, Miss Campbell is assisting at Wadley Summer Conference and Miss Grigsby is in the Friendship Parish in South Georgia, Pearson, Whitehall, Antioch and Friendship Churches carrying on valuable work.

TITHING EDUCATION MADE EASY.

Any church may now put on a ten-weeks' course of tithing education, right in the midst of its other activities, and at a ridiculously small cost.

The Layman Company, 730 Rush Street, Chicago which has distributed many millions of pamphlets on the tithe, now announces an attractive new series, at so low a price that distribution to an entire church through ten weeks costs only two and a half cents per family.

A set of samples and full particulars will be sent free of charge upon request. Please give denomination, also mention THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

I have looked the whole planet over, and I see no man but Jesus only who is able to take away the sin of the world. I have sat at the feet of the world's crowned religious leaders, and I have seen all the great religions in their homes, and I know that it is Christ or nobody. He has no competitor in the field! No one else has the slightest chance of winning the homage of the entire race. More and more he is to me what he was to Saul of Tarsus, "the image of the invisible God." More and more he is to me what he was to John the Beloved, "God made manifest in the flesh." More and more he is to me what he himself claimed to be, the eternal Son of the living God. To know him is indeed life eternal. To work with him in establishing on this earth the kingdom of righteousness and peace and joy, this is what makes my life more and more worth living.—Charles E. Jefferson.

SUBSCRIPTION REMITTANCES.

We have received remittances on their subscriptions to THE SUN from the following list during the month of July. We appreciate their cooperation, and hope that we may report a much larger list next month. The church paper should be in the home of every member of the Congregational and Christian Church in the South. Won't you do your part to help place it there?

RENEWALS:

Mrs. A. M. Atkinson, R. 3, Raleigh, N. C.
Lorenzo Bailey, Windsor, Va.
E. W. Ballard, Walters, Va.
Mrs. H. L. Bondurant, Norfolk (Berkley), Va.
S. A. Bennett, Carrsville, Va.
E. W. Beale, Zuni, Va.
R. T. Bowden, R. 1, Zuni, Va.
Mrs. L. H. Brantley, R. 1, Ivor, Va.
Miss Julia Brinkley, Suffolk, Va.
Mrs. Eliza J. Cook, R. 1, Altamahaw, N. C.
Rev. O. H. Denny, North Miami, Fla.
Dr. W. A. Harper, 2321 W. End Ave., Nashville, Tenn.
Mrs. W. H. Hines, Wakefield, Va.
Mrs. Jane Huffines, R. 1, Elon College, N. C.
Rev. Alfred W. Hurst, Elon College, N. C.
J. G. Johnson, R. 1, Zuni, Va.
Mrs. J. T. Johnson, R. 1, Zuni, Va.
Mrs. W. E. Jones, 205 4th Ave., Franklin, Va.
Otis V. Joyner, Walters, Va.
R. U. Laine, Wakefield, Va.
I. T. Lane, Ivor, Va.
Elihu Lankford, Carrsville, Va.
Mrs. Allen Lassiter, Sunbury, N. C.
Mrs. L. H. Liles, R. 1, Roanoke, Ala.
Mrs. J. J. Lincoln, Lawrenceville, N. J.
W. D. Lowe, Walters, Va.
Mrs. J. D. Luke, Suffolk, Va.
J. W. Pittman, 18 Albemarle Ave., Richmond, Va.
Mrs. Dora Steele, 711 Markham St., Durham, N. C.
Mrs. Susie V. Strickler, R. 3, Luray, Va.
Mrs. Mary E. Williams, R. 1, Ivor, Va.

NEW:

Rev. Elisha Bradshaw, Walters, Va.
R. L. Leggett, 3328 Patterson Ave., Richmond, Va.
E. L. Pittman, 2701 W. Cary St., Richmond, Va.
Dr. Hugh V. White, 14 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.

LOST: MY DESIRE TO DIE.

Eight years ago, when I saw the doors of knowledge closed in my face, and heard my doctor read the verdict: "Nothing but rest will save you," little did I know what I was facing. I had bright hopes for the future, and as I saw the tears in that dear old doctor's eyes, I felt more sorry for him than for myself. I was sure it would only be a "little resting," and I would be out again. Oh, how glad I am that I did not know—was not afraid.

In the fight I have mixed things up. I have not fought a good fight, nor have I won. I have seen my little world collapse about me. But when I came to the place where only God could save, He reached out and took my hand, saying: "Be still and know that I am God." My battle is simply one more that God has won. I failed, but God saw fit to win this very battle. That is the battle I spoke of as being between mind and soul. There is another battle between life and death, and I find that people want to know how this battle is going.

I have letters from those who are kind enough to read my writings, and all want to know about this life of mine. To those friends I want to say that I have lost my desire to die, and that fact in itself helps one to live. I no longer ask a doctor to say what he thinks of my case, but I believe I still have a chance. Though it matters little how long we live, for it is how we live that counts.

I can walk some, can attend a church service, and if any of you want to come to see me, don't look for someone who looks so much an invalid, for you won't find me, if you do. And please don't look for a long face, for I haven't that kind of religion. I believe if I can find something to do to help hold the cross of Christ before the world, I can still be just as happy as anyone. And I expect to hold to that statement even if I come out with one lung, or less. I feel that God has left me here for service, and may I find and do his will.

The writer of the letter to me in THE SUN said: "We believe God has placed us here for some special purpose." I am glad I can say that I think so, too. And I can say further that I think the same about us of these hills, also. My prayer is that our hills may yet be as great a blessing to you out there as you have been to the hills. I want to say here that I am now doing this writing, not to get before the public, or because I think I can write, but to do my humble part to make our hills a blessing to all. You want to know of life here, and I have lived my life here, so I can give you my life in its true colors. You can understand why I take my own life and not the life of others to put into the paper. And I trust that you can also understand that where I am there are others also. I would not ask you Christian friends to hold my hand any longer, for you have done enough for me, but there are those here who can do more than I. It is for them that I ask you to turn your thoughts toward the hills and your prayers to God.

I thank you for reading my little writings, and for the letters I have from you. All this gives me something to live for. You have shown me God and made me want to live on by telling me I can help in His work. So long as you wait with me thus, I can say that I have lost my desire to die.

I say, now, with Edwin Markham:

"I look to the future for my wine and bread,
I have hidden the past adieu.

I laugh and lift my hands to the years ahead,
Come on! I am ready for you."

"VICTORIA OF THE HILLS."

A CENTURY OF PROGRESS.

The story of mankind's amazing progress in the past hundred years will be dramatized in Chicago's 1933 World's Fair—A Century of Progress Exposition—which will formally open its gates to the world on June 1, 1933, and run for 150 days thereafter.

The Exposition will celebrate Chicago's 100th birthday, but what is even more important, it will celebrate the progress of civilization which has made the growth of cities like Chicago possible.

A century ago man moved on the surface of the earth only as fast as his own feet or the feet of animals could carry him; communication was possible only by messengers and depended on the speed of their legs; people lighted their homes with candles; open fireplaces provided warmth; privations and diseases claimed millions of victims yearly.

Today travel has been revolutionized on the earth by the railroad and automobile and man now invades the realms of the air and the depths of the sea; communication is instantaneous by radio, telephone or telegraph, to the remotest corners of the earth; electricity lights the nation's homes and runs its factories; radiators and furnaces heat our homes; medical science has developed new weapons for fighting diseases; commodities and conveniences undreamed of 100 years ago by even the most wealthy are now available.

As one of the outstanding features of the Exposition, a Hall of Religion, forming part of the Social Science Group, is being planned. In this building exhibits of various denominations and religious organizations will be located. It is also planned, in connection with the work of the Religious Committee to hold during the Exposition a series of world conferences and congresses on world peace, the labor problem and other phases of religious and civic activities.

The site of the Exposition is a beautiful stretch along the shores of Lake Michigan, within walking distance of Chicago's downtown business section.

METHODS CORNER

By REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.

Miami Beach, Fla.

In talking about motives for missionary work I wish to call attention to another of Dr. Stocking's remarks. He asks the question, "Do we love people?" Now, I rather think this is the crux of the matter. How many of us are deeply interested in other people's well-being? Are we sensitive to whatever hurts people—hunger, pain, child labor, etc? (Read in Dr. Patton's book, "God's World," the chapter on a hungry world.) Are you moved by the story of "The Young Revolutionist," by Pearl Buck? How can we help these people? Is there any way we can show our interest? Yes, there certainly is, because sensitive, benevolently minded Christian people have made the way easy for us. The vast system of missions provides the way. Missionary work opens up avenues of helpfulness. As individuals we may do little, but by combining our gifts and our efforts we can reach many needy people in a most helpful ministry. If we are able and capable, we may go ourselves.

I was interested some years ago in trying to find out what influence the church had in the lives of social service workers. I ran upon a statement from the director of a society in Boston. This man said that his organization was not a religious society, but most of the workers were Christians, because they were the only ones who could love the unlovely and stay put. That is a wonderful testimony, but it is the very thing that is at the bottom of our efforts in all lines of missionary labor. Of course, many people engage in mission work because they enjoy it, because they get a tremendous satisfaction in mingling with the needy and watching the effect of their generosity. I hardly think that is a high motive, but it is a motive just the same.

The motives to missionary effort are numerous and we are moved by them all in many ways. But at the bottom is vital faith in Jesus Christ as the revealer of the infinite love of God for all men everywhere. The most important "nerve" of missionary effort is religion—real, warm, radiant, practical. There must be a mixture of emotion and intellect and some serious appreciation of the values of life. In addition to the incentive there must be a goal. What is it all for?

GOOD EXAMPLES TO FOLLOW.

The obedience of Abel.—Heb. 11:4.

The piety of Enoch.—Heb. 11:5.

The perseverance of Noah.—Heb. 11:7.

The venture of Abraham.—Heb. 11:8-10.

The self-denial of Moses.—Heb. 11:24-26.

The courage of David.—1 Sam. 17:32, 47.

The patience of Job.—James 5:11.

The prayers of Elijah.—James 5:17, 18.

The spiritual force of Peter.—Acts 2:15, 37-41.

The missionary zeal of Paul.—Acts 9:19, 20.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. W. STALEY C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

W. C. WICKER

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

THE HIGH HILLS.

Editorial Correspondence.)

Hendersonville, N. C., Aug. 6, 1932.

The American Revision doubtless has the better translation: "I will lift up mine eyes unto the mountains; From whence shall my help come? My help cometh from Jehovah." (Psa. 121:1.) Now that is about right, I think. As one looks up at the mountains one just naturally feels that the great God Who made the high hills can and will give help to the needy and to all of us little ones who call upon him. He has the power, the might, the strength to help. I came up here for help. And thousands of others from the level and low lands of the Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Kentucky, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas—everywhere—have come also.

Hendersonville is alive with tourists seeking wholesome atmosphere, cool breezes, abundant ozone, and all the help of high altitudes. The town itself, like Asheville, its neighbor, is plateau enough; but ride out in any direction and before you know it you are all tangled up with hills whose elevation is 2,500 to 3,000 feet above sea level. And their green slopes, rocky ledges, dashing, gurgling waterfalls take your breath with wonder and adoration at the freaks, fancies, frills and wild variations of nature. We rode to Tryon and back last afternoon—and we had dreams last night of grandeur, majesty, glory, greatness. The Psalmist was right—the mountains suggest unmistakably that our health, and happiness, come from God. History teaches that most of the giant minds of the earth either come out of the mountains or from close to the sea—where God displays his might and majesty, with a full and free hand.

People from throughout the south and east in particular have come into these hills, built or bought summer homes, camps or lodges, and they are all here now. Automobiles throng the highways, health seekers throng the golf-links, seekers of rest and recuperation lounge in easy chairs and hammocks on shady lawns and in quiet, peaceful nooks. So we have come to the high hills and taken a cottage beside the road, and look on at the passersby, and up at the mountains which suggest and proclaim that God is good, as well as great, for these hills give health and relief and refuge and rest. Why shouldn't one rest when one is tired, and seek strength when one is weak? These high hills are God's invitation—and we accept with grateful hearts.

J. O. A.

ITS MORAL (?) ASPECT.

Appearing in the papers (as a paid advertisement—paid, of course, by the liquor interests) is a two-column statement from Ex-Governor Westmoreland Davis of Virginia. Commenting on the platform of his party, he says:

"The outstanding plank of this marvelous platform is its moral aspect, which promises the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. With the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, home teaching will replace home brew. Mothers who fought successfully the saloon, the barroom, so that they will not return, are now, through the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, again to protect their boys and girls from the pernicious influences and great menace of the bootlegger and speakeasy—the products of prohibition."

So our advocates of liquor have turned moral, and are pleading for the return of easy and abundant liquor so that we may be more moral and spiritual. The same day on which the Davis statement (paid advertisement) comes out, the daily press brings the information that a hotel in New York, long noted before prohibition days for its fine wines and liquors, in anticipation of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, has placed its order in France for an immense quantity of wine (the press gives the exact amount of the order) to be delivered next year. Also the daily press brings information that certain breweries, in anticipation of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, are repairing their plants and applying for new charters, that they may be ready to start at full blast as soon as the Volstead Act is modified and the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed. The faithful mothers, the sober fathers and the pulpit of our land, who fought valiantly for one hundred years to get the Eighteenth Amendment, must now be taught by the advocates of liquor, the "moral aspect" of abundant and easy wine and liquor. Possibly so. This writer had a friend, a deacon in a church, who was a consistent anti-prohibitionist, his argument being that the saloon and easy liquor afforded society temptations which it needed to kill out the weak-willed, the intemperate, and the addicts of liquor. He said such people ought not to live, and if one could not resist the temptations of the open saloon, he was too weak to be a member of society and should, therefore, be eliminated. Which position also is upheld by an outstanding English statesman and moralist, who says that prohibition is wrong, because there is no agency, not even war itself, that kills folks as rapidly as the saloon; that there are too many people anyway, and unless we have some agency to woo and win a large per cent of the population to early graves, the world's population will increase too rapidly. Those two were teaching the "moral aspect" of drunkenness and debauchery, as an easy means of leading those who are inclined to be morally strong to develop into stronger characters.

One can hardly believe that the United States is quite ready yet to open the flood gates of wines and liquors, and again legalize the awful curse that ever visited the human family, and again make respectable and lawful a trade that does more to impoverish homes and to destroy the virtue of human society than any other agency ever known among men. There may be a "moral aspect" of legalized liquor, but the world has yet to discover and prove it.

J. O. A.

RENEWED INTEREST IN CHURCH-GOING.

In a most interesting article in The Forum for July, 1932, there is a confession of renewed interest in church-going by an anonymous author which is worth reading. As a matter of fact, men and women have been leaving churches and returning to churches ever since they were established, and it is worth much to know why they act the way they do.

This article includes the man's wife, and one chief influence that took them back to church was their children. This often happens; "A little child shall lead them," still holds good. We do many things for the children's sake.

The author of the article was a "church product" in the beginning. A regular attendant, a Sunday School teacher, a young people's worker and a promoter of missions. Somewhere along the line he failed to adjust his simple religious belief, and his study of the Bible to modern knowledge. He had gotten the idea that all heathen "go to hell," to use his own language. That is, like many others, he forgot, or never knew, St. Paul's saying in Romans 2:12-15 that the Gentiles, which love not the law, do by nature the things contained in the law, these, having not the law, are a law unto themselves, etc. (See John 10:16.) Being very fond of the "Iliad," his sensitive heart was saddened to think of them (Agamemnon, Achilles, Hector and Ulysses) as being eternally lost, and the same thing happened in regard to Socrates. In other words, the young man went away to college and though his school was a center of Fundamentalism, he began to think for himself. He discovers that his father was not a church member and was skeptical about the Bible and church doctrines, though his mother was a devout orthodox Christian. His acquaintance with a Jewish boy was the cause of another strain on his belief. He began to realize that according to his religious teaching he would be eternally lost, too. He had been brought up on a "Plan of Salvation" and he began to suspect it was not altogether correct. As one might suppose, he gradually lost his belief in a personal God and then he just gave up going to church.

As a result of leaving the church, he was unhappy. When one of his boys was very sick, he prayed to God for help, and this made him realize that he still believed in God. Why deny Him when all goes well, and call on Him when in trouble? He got to thinking things through and he woke up to realize that his children needed ethical training. He must either send them to Sunday School or not allow them to go. There were many other things that made him feel that after all the church is about the best expression of religion and morals a community possesses. The whole family finally went to church, and went in for the whole program with some mental reservations. Better read the whole article and call it to the attention of some men in your community who do not go to church now. E. A. K.

THE HEALTHIEST AND HAPPIEST.

O. O. McIntyre, noted columnist, in his "New York Day by Day" column, wrote a fact worth repeating: "I am fortunate in knowing a number of earnestly religious people. They are the healthiest, happiest and most prosperous of my acquaintances. Certainly they are the most tolerant. I have always found the greatest bigotry among non-churchmen."

Our Lord, founder and head of the church, said: "The truth shall make you free," and the reason people go to church, patronize and support the church, is that they may know the truth, and thus find freedom for body, mind and soul. It is the word of inspiration that says: "The way of the transgressor is hard." It is usually the law-breaker, the one who disregards church, violates the Sabbath, abuses the law of the land, who, at the same time, violates the laws of health, the laws of happiness, the laws of prosperity. The best and wisest of all economists said: "The meek shall inherit the earth." The ungodly may prosper for a season, just as he who defies the law of health for the body may remain strong physically for a season, but the one road to health and happiness is the way of righteousness, loyalty to God, faithfulness in obeying the laws which he has written, not on statute books, but on the fleshy tablets of the heart, and the invisible page of the spirit.

If you want to talk to a bigot—one who feels that all good people are narrow, all righteous deeds are restricted, all church people are ignorant and limited in wisdom and knowledge—if you wish to find a real bigot who is intolerant of others, talk to the man who thinks the Bible is too dull or impractical, who seldom goes to the house of God, and who contributes nothing to the support of righteousness in the world. McIntyre told his New York audience and the hosts who read his column a whole volume when he said: "I have always found the greatest bigotry among non-churchmen." The church is today—has ever been—the breeding place of liberty, broad-mindedness, cultural insight, progress.

J. O. A.

WHAT IS NEEDED.

Roger Babson, in addressing a Federal Council Conference on Evangelism at Northfield, Mass., composed of representatives from over twenty denominations, said:

"For churches to close this summer is like hospitals closing during an epidemic. I say this because an epidemic of fear, such as is raging today, is as dangerous as an epidemic of 'flu' such as raged in 1918. The need of the hour is not more money, more real estate, or more stocks and bonds, but more self-control, more unselfishness, more faith, and more courage.

"Self-control, unselfishness, faith, and courage are spiritual qualities which cannot be secured from bankers or stores, but only from vital religion. In behalf of the discouraged business men, the unemployed wage-workers, and the millions of others in trouble today, I beg of ministers to minister to the wants of these people at this critical hour. An economic recovery is only awaiting a spiritual revival.

"Preachers wonder why they do not have better church attendance. Is it not because they are failing to give a message which will truly help the bewildered people of the present day? Business men, wage-workers, and mothers are today primarily interested in how to pray and how to trust God, and what to do that they might exist. Under ordinary circumstances it is all right to preach about abstract theological and sociological problems, but today men and women want personal and immediate help in solving pressing needs and in making momentous decisions. It is the ability to make decisions correctly which people really want, rather than any material thing, and this wisdom is a spiritual quality, which only religions can give.

"For a man to expect spiritual help in his time of trouble and yet not be willing to give an hour or two a week in attending and aiding churches, upon which he is absolutely dependent, is to me beyond comprehension. Such a man does not deserve help and cannot logically expect it. To get anything in this world we must make some sacrifice, and the first sacrifice people must make in order to get spiritual help is to give their time and support to the churches. At various times in past history different forms of sacrifice have been required. Once it was goats and bullocks; later it was one-tenth of one's income; today it may be giving up a game of golf or turning off the radio on Sunday morning.

"A minister who sees his congregation dwindling may be quite sure it is due to one or more of these four reasons: (1) To sermons which are uninteresting, unintelligent, and nonhelpful to the average man and woman; (2) To the fact that those who attend his church prove no more honest and kind than those who do not attend;

(3) To a lack of spiritual influence in the home and school and the bad example as to 'church-going' set by certain influential people in the community; (4) To the feeling that the church does not render a service important enough to call for support. By a carefully planned campaign to correct these four handicaps over a period of five years, church attendance and church benevolence could be easily doubled."

THUMBS DOWN.

Over 1,345 signatures, most of them merely inked thumb-prints, made up a petition received recently by the American Board from Indians in and around Vadala, asking the return of their "honored young sahib and madam sahib," Rev. and Mrs. Robert W. Fairbank. The Fairbanks' work throughout an area mostly rural and covering 1,000 square miles dotted with villages. Aiding the Indian farmer in raising better crops, better chickens and producing more and better eggs have been some of the practical features of Mr. Fairbank's work. He is taking special courses at Rutgers right now with an eye to doing even more when he returns. Mrs. Fairbank specializes in religious education.

Special Combination Subscription Offer!

A special arrangement has been made whereby those who desire to do so may receive both THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for just a little more than they now pay for one of these papers.

Beginning immediately, we will accept subscriptions for the two papers at the price of $3.75 for the combined subscription. This means to SUN readers that for only $1.75 additional they may receive the great wealth of knowledge that The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty brings weekly. Those who are already subscribers for the latter paper may add THE SUN to their list for only 75 cents for the whole year.

You do not have to wait until your subscription to one or the other paper has expired, but send in your subscription now. You will begin immediately to receive the other paper and that which you are already receiving will be marked up a year in advance.

While this offer is open to everyone, it should appeal especially to the pastors and lay workers in the Southeast Convention, and we beg them to take advantage of this opportunity.

It is, of course, understood that under this special offer all subscriptions must be in advance, and must be sent directly to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va., or to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

DEAR SIR:

Please (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my present subscription one year) to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my subscription one year) to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

(Please mark out the words not applicable.)

I enclose, herewith, check or money order for $3.75 to cover same.

M

Street No. or R. F. D.

City and State

CONTRIBUTIONS

THE BEGINNERS' DEPARTMENT.

The following was submitted by Mrs. W. H. Johnson, Superintendent of the Beginners' Department, at the Eastern Virginia Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention, recently:

Instead of a report of facts and figures, I desire to present some of the principles which are essential if the work of the Beginner's Department in the Sunday School is to mean what it can and should mean in shaping the lives of our little ones.

First, I appeal to the superintendents of the Sunday Schools, in placing teachers to remember the old adage, "as a twig is bent, the tree is inclined," and to provide for the Beginners the very best teachers at your command. "A teacher who is sympathetic with little children and who has a deep sense of their religious nature" (The Elementary Teachers' Standard for the Beginners' Department.) A kindergartner has the proper training and often the right spirit. A mother has often the knowledge and love of little children and the ability to guide them. Any one with the sincere love of God in their heart and the tender love for little children, by the proper study may fit herself for a Beginners' teacher. Young girls very seldom, if ever, realize the seriousness of this initial religious training and the patience and understanding that is essential, although they often make good helpers. If an inexperienced teacher must be used somewhere, let it be for men and women in preference to the little ones.

Some things that are essential for a teacher of Beginners are: Intelligence, consecration, sympathy, tact, perseverance and patience. We should remember, also, that no matter how much experience and training a teacher has had, there is always more to be learned and every opportunity should be used to make our teaching more effective. A teacher needs to be quiet and composed herself if she expects to quiet the restlessness of little children. "When teaching little children, go slowly, suiting the language and the lessons to the children's present needs." (Mrs. Anna N. Ross, in the Beginner's Teacher.)

It is essential that we watch every step of the way, as the "incidental or picked up" learning is oftentimes of more value in shaping the lives of the children than the lessons we have carefully prepared.

First and foremost, we should seek to give to them a sense of nearness to and dependence upon the heavenly Father. That thought should be in our minds in all our teaching. We want them to feel thankful for all things, that we are dependent upon him for all things. Lead them to talk of the heavenly Father naturally in their own words, rather than to say prayers. Their prayers should be not only prayers of thankfulness, but prayers for help. "Help me to share." "Help me to give up." "Help me to help others."

They should be taught that Jesus was God's Son, who lived on earth to show us how to live. That the Bible is a book about God and Jesus written by their friends. They should not be made to memorize a great many passages of Scripture for use in their future lives. Teach only such passages as they can understand and as will carry over into their lives now, and help them to live better. There are many such passages if we take the trouble to look for them, and to fit them into the pattern of their lives.

They should be taught right attitudes toward the church. They should be taught that the church is a place for reverence, that it is a place of fellowship, a place to learn about God and Jesus, a place to learn to help others, a place where we go because we want to go.

"To lead a child to God, a teacher must know the way herself. The richer her own experience in Christian living and fellowship with God, the richer she can make the religious experience of her pupils." (The Elementary Teachers' Standard for the Beginners' Department.)

A DIFFERENCE.

When the Emperor of Japan rides through the streets of the great city of Tokio in his red automobile, the people crowd the streets to wait for him and to see him pass. But no one at the crowded street crossings is allowed to come nearer than fifty yards to his auto. The purpose is, of course, to protect His Majesty from personal harm, as there are known to be many radicals in Japan who would not hesitate to throw a bomb and kill him if they could. But, even if that were not so, his person is regarded as so sacred that to the common people he is unapproachable.

When we open the Book to see what God is like, we find that "As a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him." While he remembers that we are but dust, he has set his love on us, and in his great desire to save us, has exhausted the treasures of heaven, because our Lord was his greatest treasure. With God, the common people, made in his image, are the most important things in the world.

The Emperor has too much pride and dignity to mingle with the common people, but it is God's great delight. He walked with Enoch three hundred years, then took him to heaven that he might walk with him forever. And so he wants to walk with us.

Nearly everything that Jesus did shows the divine fingerprints on it, while the doings of the disciples were mostly of the earth earthy. The disciples had no use for the noisy children, but Jesus took them in his arms and blessed them. The disciples told blind Bartimaeus to shut up because he was calling so loudly for mercy. He was only a beggar, anyhow, and blind at that! But Jesus stopped the procession, called him and gave sight to his blind eyes. In Matthew 15, the disciples would send away the hungry crowd, but Jesus fed them. The disciples would burn up a town in revenge for mistreatment, but Jesus went on to another town. The disciples could argue eloquently about who of them was the greatest, but Jesus shows them that only those of the child-like spirit are great, and that the chiefest of all is the one who serves the most.

Do not facts like these show that our Gospel came from the heart of God?

A. D. WOODWORTH.

PALESTINE.

The Jordan River is rolling to some purpose these days. Ten years ago a Jew named Pinhas Rutenberg, obtained a concession from the British authorities for a Palestine Electric Corporation. This company is now supplying light and power to Palestine and Transjordan from a hydro-electric plant in the Jordan Valley, just south of the Sea of Galilee, where the little Yarmuk River has been dammed, producing a lovely lake, through which most of the waters of the Jordan must flow, on their way to the Dead Sea.

Only one of the four turbines is now in use, but it is expected that the increased consumption of power will soon draw on the reserve. Long lines of electric transmission towers now stalk across the historic plains of Esdraelon and Sharon—adding no beauty to the scene. Jaffa, Tiberias and other towns are served, but not Jerusalem, which has a power plant of its own. An interesting irrigation prospect is opened by the development. The Jordan, whose bed lies so far below the surrounding terrain that its waters are not available for irrigation, will now be able to lift itself—by its own bootstraps, shall we say?—and make the surrounding desert bloom like the rose. When Doctor Weizman, the Zionist, was questioned some years ago by an eminent geographer as to the possibility of maintaining a large population in so arid a land, he answered that the Jewish genius would so enormously increase the fertility of the Promised Land that it would support more inhabitants than ever. Mr. Rutenberg's company is fulfilling his prophecy.—The Christian Advocate.

CLAIM, CLAIM, CLAIM!

The more abundant life—it is for you!

Christ still says, "I am come that you might have life"—have it "to the full"—happy life on earth and eternal life with joy unspeakable and full of glory in heaven.

To have this life one must be born again—born from above, born of the Spirit. "Except a man be born again, he cannot see (discern, understand) God." "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." "With the heart man believeth unto righteousness, and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation."

All true ministers and other Christian workers are members of the World-Wide Purity Legion. We wish all to help spread the Graded Purity Booklets world-wide that more souls may be saved to see God. This is a vital part of the church work. Times are close, but the church work must be sustained by the grace of God. Let each pastor and other Christians pray a little harder and practice a little more self-denial, and there will be few, indeed, who cannot give a dollar a year for helping to sustain this all-important part of the church work. Begin now to save a little each week to send the dollar.

We have started in July a new list of faithful helpers. The names will be kept standing to give credit to those who reply.

"If any have not the Spirit of Christ (practice self-denial) they are none of his."

We have written some persons of large means, asking that they take over this work and make it a success. They are not willing. God has this week strongly impressed that we are to have faith that the many sending a dollar each will bring success and that a great blessing will come to the churches. Let us have more faith in God and toil on. This is a very important part of the church work. We freely give our time to it.

ALBERT GODLEY.

Tenaflly, N. J.

ARTIFICIAL GOLD.

Sheffield, England, has long been famous as the city of steel and cutlery. Now it will become known as the city of artificial gold if the present new industry continues to boom. There they have succeeded in casting an alloy of aluminum and copper which has the appearance of gold. It can even be cast to imitate the various carats of gold in color. The alloy is stainless and can be washed with alkali solutions without injury. It is being made into various utensils which are sold at prices equivalent to those obtained for nickel silver.—Exchange.

THE BASIS OF PROHIBITION.

By G. MYKING MEHUS.

Of the Social Science Department, Northwest Missouri State Teachers College.

In 1914 a prominent speaker for the American Brewers' Association declared: "The so-called personal liberty argument loses more and more of its force. Consideration of the public welfare continues to grow and overshadow the rights of the individual. The drink question must be fought out upon the ultimate foundations of morals, hygiene, and social order."

In spite of this recognized principle we have a large number of folks who still argue that national prohibition should be abolished because it interferes with their personal liberty. They seem to forget that public welfare is more important than personal liberty. In every walk of life we have our personal liberty interfered with in order that the welfare of the group may be advanced. We have quarantine laws which prevent a person from leaving his own home and spreading contagious diseases. We have speed laws which prohibit us from driving at a reckless speed and thus endangering the lives of children. We have laws which specify the kind of buildings a person shall be allowed to erect on his own lot in the business districts in order that fire hazards may be minimized. We have laws which prohibit a person from shooting wild game out of season even on his own land in order that wild game may not be exterminated.

A parent cannot do as he pleases with his own children, for the law says that they must be sent to school and that they must not work in mines and factories under a certain age. One's life is not even one's own, for if a person becomes tired of living and tries to commit suicide and fails, he is arrested and put in jail.

A favorite argument with those who are opposed to national prohibition is that the law cannot be enforced. Anyone will admit that this law is not perfectly enforced, but neither is any other law observed to the letter. We have laws against murder and yet our newspapers are filled with lurid accounts of fiendish murders. Shall we, therefore, abolish our laws against murder and license murderers? We have fraud and theft. Shall we do away with our laws against these and make stealing respectable? Bandits ply their trade and racketeers are found in our large cities. Shall we regulate them or to try to exterminate them?

We should remember that other reforms came just as slowly as does the elimination of the liquor traffic. The slave trade was abolished in the United States in 1807 and in 1810 we find Madison calling upon the nation to put down the illicit traffic. Seven years later Monroe is urging the enforcement of this law and in the thirties the law is still violated and 200,000 slaves are smuggled into our country. It was not until 1871 that Congress passed the last act against the slave trade. It took more than a dozen years to stamp out the illicit slave trade—it took two generations.

Our federal constitution had a hard and bitter struggle during the first years of its existence. In 1787 our Constitution was adopted and then came the struggle to enforce it. Washington died in 1799 despairing that the Constitution would ever be enforced. John Marshall championed it in favor of federation and against decentralization, but when he died in 1835 he felt very pessimistic over the future of our Constitution. But it came through, although it took more than a dozen years. And in a like manner national prohibition will gain strength as the years pass.

We often hear that the Eighteenth Amendment was "put over" on the American people. A little history will show that it was not put over on the American people, but that it was put over by the American people. Since the founding of our government about 2,300 amendments have been proposed in Congress and of this number only 24 have been submitted to the States for ratification and only 19 have been ratified. The liquor question has been one of the dominant issues in politics since 1900. The Congress that passed the Eighteenth Amendment was elected in the fall of 1916 before our country had entered the war to "make the world safe for democracy" and "to end war." The Senate passed the amendment by a vote of 65 to 20 and the House by a vote of 282 to 128. The House passed it on December 18, 1917.

The amendment was ratified by 46 State legislatures and became a part of the U. S. Constitution in the manner designated in the Constitution itself. The vote in the legislatures was 4 to 1, as follows: Senate vote, 1,304 to 240; House vote, 3,775 to 1,025. By the time the amendment became effective on January 16, 1920, a total of 33 States had already voted dry. These States included 95 per cent of the area of the United States and contained 68 per cent of the total population. On the other hand, when the United States entered the World War 26 States had voted dry and over 80 per cent of our area (all but 305 of our 2,848 counties) inhabited by more than sixty million people, was dry territory.

The national election of 1930 resulted in a greater dry majority in the national Congress than there was at the time of the enactment of the Eighteenth Amendment. During 1931, 44 States had sessions of their legislatures. In eleven of these States there was not a sufficient wet strength to even call for the introduction of a wet bill, while in fifteen States bills calling for repeal of the state prohibition laws were defeated. New York State passed a bill asking Congress to provide national referendum on national prohibition; but five other States killed similar bills. Two States called upon Congress to call a convention for the repeal of national prohibition, while six States defeated similar bills.

The slander that is being circulated in regard to the drinking among our young people was effectively answered by Principal Stearns of

(Continued on page 15.)

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos.

01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75

01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4 1/2 x 1 1/4 inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

Nos.

1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5 1/2 x 3 3/8 inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.

10 Mercy and truth gather: righteousness kissed each other.

11 Truth shall spring

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6 1/4 x 4 1/2 inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.

Gen. 15. 1.

10 For a day in thy courts is better

17. 1.

20. all

No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

OUR LEADER Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 9 "Jō-hōi'-ā-chin was 8 years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk $9.50

head-bands and book-mark

A UNIQUE GIFT Bible

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

No. 03255x

As No. 03255x, with conco-dance.

No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 1/2 inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos.

04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and hand-some Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

PRAYER.

Eternal and Almighty God, how love I thy law, thy word, thy precepts, thy truth. It is my meat and drink, my light, my joy. Our burden is for all men to know God and enjoy him forever. Work thou in and through us, blessed Teacher, that by our labor Christian hearts may come to possess the strength, the blessing, the peace thou so freely givest. Thy Kingdom, O God, is a scepter of equity. For the sake of him who gave himself, teach us stewardship. And may thy Kingdom come. Amen. L.

POSSESSIONS.

For about two years, as stewardship secretary of the V. V. C. C. Conference, this humble scribe has been trying to promote the thought that evangelism is doing—winning souls, specifically “beginning at Jerusalem; that missions is sending—soliciting by proxy, souls that cannot be reached in person; and that stewardship is sharing—expressing through gifts of money personal salvation and the purpose to become a power in the salvation of others. The order, I believe, is evangelism, stewardship, missions; then some more evangelism, stewardship, missions; and on and on, rotating always, forever, until the kingdoms of earth shall become the Kingdom of our Lord Christ.

Through evangelism and stewardship, missions are to reclaim the world. Evangelism is the work of the Spirit through human instrumentality. As evangelism precedes Christian stewardship, so must Christian stewardship precede effectual missionary effort. Today, the trouble about missions is too little Christian stewardship.

Some of our richest possessions are not material. We miss the highest reach in Christian living if we do not recognize and use these unenumerated, unseen possessions. But if the blessings and benefits accruing to us from these possessions are to enrich life by multiplying to others more and more of their kind, underlying and perfecting their use, there must be structural preparation for, and a vivid experience in, the Christian sharing and giving of all that is tangible and real. This is stewardship, in other words, “the Christian use of possessions.”

MRS. J. J. LINCOLN.

THE BIBLE—A CURE FOR DEPRESSION.

By ROBERT E. SPEER.

When days are dark, men need its light.

When times are hard, men need its comfort.

When the outlook is discouraging, men need its confidence.

When despair is abroad, men need its word of hope.

There are luxuries that may well be spared. There are even necessities that can be curtailed. But the Bible, indispensable at all times, is still more indispensable in times like these today.

The Bible is not a book of political maxims or of economic theories. It is not a book of maxims or theories at all. It is a book of living principles. Its spirit is the spirit of brotherliness and good-will. It is a summons to helpfulness: “Bear ye one another’s burdens.” It is a summons also to self-respecting independence: “Let every man bear his own burden.” It teaches charity, but also justice. It calls us to the giving and serving which the strong owe the weak, and those who have to those who lack; but it also strikes straight and clear at the moral defects in individuals which are responsible for a large part of the poverty and suffering of the world; and also at the moral and economic defects in society, in business relations, and in the distribution of the common resources of the world, which are responsible for the remaining part.

Christ is the only hope of individuals and of society. And the Bible is the only book which tells his story. It alone preserves his words, which are spirit and life. It alone records his deeds by which he saved the world, and would save it now if it would obey him.

The best thing men can do is to spread the Bible and to get it read and obeyed. This would be the end of hard times, of poverty, of unemployment, of injustice, of wrong, of war.

ARROWSMITH TRUE.

Those who have read “Arrowsmith” by Sinclair Lewis, or seen the motion picture, may have accepted the horrors of the plague scenes as more or less dramatic incidents in a book or play. But again this year, as previously, comes word of the service rendered by Dr. Percy T. Watson and his associates in stamping out the Black Death in Shensi and Shansi. The National Health Minister at Nanking sent Chinese and foreign doctors to aid. Rats carry the germs. Says the Taiku Hospital report: “If it were not for the patient and faithful watchers at these frontiers the vials of this devastating pestilence might at any time be poured forth on the civilized world.”

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING AUGUST 6, 1932.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 3,133.21
Howard's Chapel, Wentworth, N. C.	1.00
Henderson, N. C.	3.23
Antioch, Harrisonburg, Va.	2.00
Mt. Zion, Mebane, N. C.	1.00
Elon College, N. C.	6.25
Holy Neck, Holland, Va.	6.93
Wood's Chapel, New Market, Va.	1.00

Total $ 3,154.62

Individual and Church Offerings.

Previously acknowledged	$ 2,803.43
Mrs. Jane Huffine, Elon College, N. C. .	1.00

Total $ 2,804.43

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$ 2,603.49
Ladies' Bible Class, Rosemont, Norfolk..	12.50

Total $ 2,615.99

Coin Card Offering.

Previously acknowledged	$ 226.33
Ether Sunday School, Star, N. C.	10.00
Mrs. N. F. Brannock, Elon College, N. C.
(Elon Christian Church)	1.00
Leaksville Luray, Va.	8.00

Total $ 245.33

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$19,750.94
Sunday Schools, regular, August 6, 1932	21.41
Individual and church offerings August 6	1.00
Specials, August 6, 1932	12.50
Coin Card Offering, August 6, 1932	19.00

Total to date $19,804.85

J. O. ATKINSON, Mission Sec'y.

SO YOU DON'T BELIEVE IN FOREIGN MISSIONS.

By STANLEY HIGH.

I had read a good deal about the offensive American tourist, but I had to travel to Central Africa to meet him. I won't say that he was worth the trip. But he did prove to be valuable. He gave me the “low-down” on foreign missions at a time when I needed it. I have never needed it since. In fact, it still works to stimulate my enthusiasm for foreign missions just to recall his booming generalities as we sat there on the wide portico of the Victoria Falls Hotel.

He had come out to Africa, as he said, “to have a look around;” spent a week in Johannesburg (“it's obvious what's wrong with the mining industry”); stopped off for three days in Bulawayo (“these Rhodesians have got a lot to learn about farming”); and, when I met him, had just come back from a quick look at the famous falls of Zambesi (“don't hold a candle to Niagara”).

All these things he told me. And, then, with the sudden entrance of a missionary family from the cut-rate hotel annex, he told me all about foreign missions. “Why, some people,” he said, “give good money to support these missionaries is beyond me. They're bad for the natives and bad for the whites. The only trouble with Africa is the African, and the African's worst trouble is the missionary. He was happy enough until we started to jam religion down his throat. Now look at him. He wants higher wages, schools and a six-day week. No wonder business is bad. What's the idea of sending our good American money out of the country anyway. Charity begins at home. The whole outfit ought to be sent back, bag and baggage. That's what I think of the missionary.”

Well, I never met that particular American again. But I have met his arguments repeatedly. In fact, what he thought about the missionary seems to be what a lot of people think—a lot of people much closer than he to the missionary collection plates of the Western church. This man's one-paragraph dismissal of the missionary, “bag and baggage,” is a pretty good summary of the currently popular case against foreign missions. And for plain, unadulterated shortsightedness, that case probably has no parallel in the whole roster of our popular misconceptions.

There are plenty of strictly evangelical reasons for foreign missions. But there are others, also. Quite apart from evangelical arguments it ought to be plain that our world cannot afford to dispense with foreign missions. We could get along without almost any other agency of international intercourse more readily. And with less ultimate cost. We can follow the advice of the American tourist and take up “home-work” as a substitute for foreign missions; but the net results, for ourselves, are not likely to resemble charity. The churches, sometimes cheerfully, often with reluctance, have built up a world-wide missionary enterprise. And now, when in its support there seems to be less cheer and more reluctance than ever, that enterprise begins to loom up as the world's most significant international asset.

That's partly the result of the kind of a world we live in. It is a congested world, with congestion on the increase. Already elbow room is at a premium. If it's not elbow room for farms that's wanted, then it's elbow room for trade. Everybody lives next door to everybody else and is likely, now and again, to tread on almost anybody's toes. We thought, back in my home town in 1914 that Sarajevo, Serbia, was a long way from the Mississippi valley. But it turned out to be tragically close. Manchuria and Shanghai are separated from us by a safe six thousand miles of water. But six thousand miles of water do not provide safe separation for anybody from anybody else—not in our kind of a world.

Economists seem to agree that the recent pain in our pocketbook was caused, not so much by industrial illness at home, as by industrial illness abroad. I asked a stock broker one day what accounted for the market's latest drop. "Adolf Hitler," was his reply. When the President of the United States desires to explain why we have emerged no more rapidly from the depression, he lists—not our bank failures or our over-production, or our hoarding, alone—but, one after another, the uprisings of the last three years in South America, the nationalist unrest in India, the economic chaos in Europe. When a British reporter set out to find why twenty-five thousand unemployed textile workers had suddenly gone back to the looms at Lancashire, he discovered that the answer was in China. A boycott of Japanese goods had obliged China's merchants to buy their textiles from the British.

That's the kind of world we live in. It's a bit like life in a New York apartment house. You live at close quarters with your neighbors—too close quarters, perhaps. You may not like the way the baby across the hall cries all night, or the kind of music that the folks downstairs turn on on their radio. But, like it or not, there you are. And the whole sensible and safe thing to do is to get on as amicably as possible. Naturally, if any of them start storing dynamite in their particular three rooms and kitchenette, that fact immediately becomes everybody's business. In that kind of dwelling, as in our kind of world—you can't blow up one apartment without damaging all the rest. In short, what happens to anybody, matters to everybody.

Whatever else it is, the foreign mission, in such a world, is sound sense. It provides one way for neighbors to get acquainted. And a good way. In fact, if all the contacts between the East and the West had been of the foreign mission kind, we probably would have avoided most of the suspicion and distress with which the Orient eyes the Occident. But contacts haven't been all of the foreign mission kind. Far from it. The Orient's first look at a Westerner, too frequently, was from the wrong end of a gun. Most of our early and too many of our later "Get-Acquainted Tours" used grape, cannister and shrapnel as the official calling cards. Africa, India, China, and Japan—the record is the same in each case.

On the heels of militrists come the traders. Their purpose, and they made no bones about it, was to come in under the bristling shelter of the guns, and, by whatever process worked fastest and most profitably, make a quick fortune and a quick getaway. Friendliness had no more place in their scheme of things than it had in that of their gun-bearing predecessors. If you wonder why hate of the West smoulders and now and again flames forth in the hearts of intelligent, non-white people, you can find the answer written across the face of the earth in the white man's exploitative enterprises. You can get your answer at the diamond mines and the gold reefs of South Africa, in the copper hills of the Belgian Congo, and in all too many of the factories and mills of Bombay, Calcutta and Shanghai.

No, it's a good thing—if you believe that friendliness in our kind of world is good sense—that the whole history of the West's acquaintance with the East wasn't written by governments or by commerce. It's a good thing—if we count it valuable to get along with two-thirds of the human race—that we provided some proof that there was more to our Western civilization than big guns and big profits. And foreign missions did just that. Foreign missions represent the Western world putting its best foot forward.

I'm aware that there have been mistakes in foreign mission policies, and that not all foreign missionaries are eligible for haloes. But with generous allowance for these, it's still true that the missionary enterprise presents the one uniformly unselfish contact between the white and the non-white world.

It's all right, I suppose to talk about withdrawing the missionaries. But it's all wrong to attempt to pass off such talk as anything but ridiculous. I sometimes wonder—to put it on the crassest basis—if gib critics, like my Victoria Falls friend, ever heard of "good will" as a commercial asset. And I wonder, too, just what kind of world they think these people are preparing for our children to live in. It's not only uncomfortable to be hated by two-thirds of your neighbors. It's dangerous.

But that's not the whole story. Foreign missions were not begun in order to prove that there were nice Christians as well as bad ones. They couldn't be continued for any such reason. All that I have said I suppose many of the critics of missions would agree to. They'd give the glad hand to the missionary as a promoter of goodwill. But they would limit his activity. They'd say, "All right, let the missionary carry on. But tell him to stick to dispensaries and hospitals and industrial schools. This business of converting these heathen to Christianity is no good."

And, there again, they'd be wrong; more wrong than ever. A good bit of the world, right now, is in process of conversion. If the conversion isn't to Christianity, it will be to something else. And the something else certainly won't be nearly so good.

I was a victim of the give-them-medicine-and-tools line of thought when I went to Africa. I didn't stay victimized. For what I saw convinced me that the African was being "educated," whether he liked it or not, by processes which the missionary hadn't started, and which he couldn't stop. I stood one night outside a white man's saloon in a little town on the edge of the Belgian Congo. The inside was packed with drunk and drinking Westerners. The doorway and windows were packed with wide-eyed, staring Africans. The African public school system—or one department of it—was in session. You could load all the missionaries on homebound steamers and close up all their schools. But the education of the African wouldn't be stopped by that. Only the hopeful part of his education would stop. Every contact with a white man, good or bad, would serve as his continuation school. We have it not within our power to stop these "educational" processes. But, through the missionary we have it within our power to say that some portion of those processes shall have as their aim the development, not only of healthy bodies and clever hands, but of strong characters.

And in the long run what happens to Africa or to any other part of the world, will probably depend at least as much on character as on muscles and mechanical handiness. It's what may come to the world for lack of the first, not for lack of the latter qualities, that ought to worry us.

But, as I've said, the non-white world is not only being "educated," it is being converted. And that is more important. The missionary isn't responsible for this. He is only responsible for trying to make the conversion Christian. That's the point, I suppose, where the "jam-our-religion-down-their-throats" argument comes in. Well, I have seen a lot of missionaries at work. But I have never seen that presumably widespread practice in operation. And the new Christians I have met never appeared to be suffering from any such treatment. In fact, most of them acted like men in bondage who had just heard about the Emancipation Proclamation. This is getting sentimental. But, if you'd like to see a bit of real joy and gladness in its purest state, I can recommend an hour in the presence of a class of the missionary's converts. If that's what coercion does, then I'm no longer a pacifist.

Now this business of conversion, of one sort or another, is going forward, at present, at a fast pace. If it weren't, the job of running the world would be simpler. But a lot of sleeping giants, right now, are coming to life. They are suddenly discovering that they are giants, and that they have been treated as pygmies.

That is what is happening in India. It's beginning to dawn on three hundred and twenty million people that they are too big to be consigned to so small a place in the sun. The same movement has stirred the life of China into turmoil. There are indications that a similar tide will begin to run, one of these days, in Africa. And no one, I suppose, is so foolish as to believe that once India and China start to march, there will be any stopping them. Moreover, it's not nearly so important to know that they are on the way as it is to know where they are going. It's likely that most of the major issues of the next century or two will revolve around the question as to what these people who are getting power purpose to do with it.

Well, they are getting all sorts of advice. Don't think that the Christian missionaries are the only missionaries. They aren't. And don't think that the Christian's gospel is the only gospel that is being preached. It isn't. Christianity isn't being offered because it's the only way of life that's open, but because a few, old-fashioned people believe it's the best of life that's open.

One gospel that has its missionaries at work in every market place of the world is the gospel of militaristic nationalism. And this, being interpreted freely, means a world headed for another world war. Mahatma Gandhi has found it hard of late, to control many of his disciples. Young China has about made up its mind that if it expects fair treatment it must fight for it. The same missionaries again have been making converts.

We may be the original skeptic about foreign missions, but we can't exactly be unconcerned at the prospect of the Eastern world going militarist. And some of our skepticism may fade out a bit when we realize that the weakening of the Christian missionary means added strength to the missionary of militaristic nationalism. The Christian missionary and his work are simply evidence that there are still some people willing to stake their lives on the advantages to the world of a gospel of good-will over one of hate. There's too little of that kind of evidence to dispense with any of it.

If we don't like this business of making converts, well and good. But let's not be under any silly illusions as to what we'll accomplish by withdrawing the missionaries. We won't stop the making of converts. We'll only stop the making of converts to Christianity.

As a matter of fact, the main trouble with our arguments against foreign missions seems to be that our minds skip a beat or two when we make them. We're all for converting the world to our automobiles and our toothpaste and our chewing-gum. Every good American is. Even the government chips in, now and then, to help the process along. But a good many of us are dead against trying to convert it to Christianity. We call that "meddling" and "interference." "Why try to change the habits of people who are well enough off, anyway?"

Well, I've wondered the same thing about other less important commodities. It has always seemed to me that not only is our Christianity worthy of export, but that it is the kind of export on which the Western World can least afford to put an embargo.—Christian Herald.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, Waverly, Va.

YOUTH FELLOWSHIP TO MEET.

"The Youth Fellowship" of the Western North Carolina Christian Conference of Congregational and Christian Churches, will hold its first annual meeting, Sunday, September 4th, beginning at 2:00 P. M., at Hank's Chapel Christian Church east of Ramseur, in Randolph County.

Immediately after organizing under the guidance of the Convention Youth Fellowship in 1931, the Executive Committee set out to become familiar with the purpose and the value of the organization. Feeling that they have learned a little at least, they thought it wise to make a beginning. And, as a result a certain amount of publicity was begun last week, and plans for a worthwhile meeting are nearing completion.

We ask not only cooperation of the pastors and key-workers of the Congregational and Christian Churches, but the presence of all others who may be interested in this type of work. Come and share your smiles and handshakes with us.

Watch THE SUN for further plans and a complete program soon. There will be some splendid addresses which you will no doubt like to hear.

CARL R. KEY, President.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS MEET.

The Three "S" Christian Endeavor Union, composed of Sussex, Surry and Southampton Counties of the Tidewater District of Eastern Virginia, held its regular Rally at the Dendron Christian Church, July 31st. Their theme was "The Love of Christ."

The program began in the usual manner with the different societies, namely: Wakefield, Salem, Dendron, Claremont and Waverly, taking part. A very timely, and inspirational address was given by the President, Miss Elizabeth Sharpe, of the Waverly Society. She used the topic, "The Love of Christ Constrains Me." Echoes from the State C. E. Convention were given by delegates, and the splendid way in which they spoke of the Convention indicates that young people receive much of value from such meetings.

The President explained the uses and worth of the Program of Progress to the session. Two banners were awarded, one going to the Wakefield Society for attaining the most points toward the goals of the Union, and the other to the Oak Grove Society for having the largest attendance at this meeting of the Union.

This writer has been in several vesper services, but the service rendered by the Dendron Society on this occasion could not be surpassed by any of the previous ones. You could almost see God there in the great outdoors. The outstanding event of the vesper service was an address on the "Problems of Youth on the Mission Field," by Rev. Carl R. Key.

After the opening of the evening session Rev. C. E. Gerringer, pastor of the Wakefield Christian Church, introduced Dr. Charles Eldredge Shelton, pastor of the Portsmouth Congregational Church with an unusual flow of oratory and fervor. Both of these brothers seemed to be happy over the fact that these two great churches have been united in holy wedlock, fellowship, and understanding. Dr. Shelton put the climax on a snappy and well planned program with an address on "The Vanity of Vivacious Voting." He is very much concerned about the future of our country; and he challenges the young people to pray and study over the duties of a Christian citizen, voting this fall as Christ would. He positively opposes the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

May all who chance to read this, launch out with these comrades of Christ and help to do "Greater things than these."

AS YOUTH SEES IT.

For over two and a half years the world has been passing through the greatest business depression that has ever been known. Many things have been stamped as true causes and cures and all seemed to have fallen short, and why? Because no one thing can be pointed out as its true cause. But one of the greatest factors was a "depression of spirit" in the Christian nations, followed by the World War, which caused everyone to go mad spiritually, mentally, morally, socially, economically, etc.

This writer is of the opinion that we will still be cursed with depression until we seek some more simple cure than has yet been offered. The public tries to make the problem greater than it is. Even a simple remedy does more good sometimes than any you can find. It's time we stop sitting on a stool and letting up a howl because we feel a little pressure. The young people have learned a great lesson which will mean a lot to the world of tomorrow.

Emerging from this state of fear and bewilderment which the war left us in we are beginning to get our feet on solid ground again. What would you say if youth should suggest a simple cure for depression or readjustment? My opinion is that as wages near the pre-war level, we must lower prices to reach normalcy again. Doesn't that sound reasonable? CARL R. KEY.

"HOW TO TAKE LIFE."

(A contribution, passed on to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, by Carl R. Key.):

Take it just as though it were—as it is—an earnest, vital, and important affair. Take it as though you were born to the task of performing a merry part in it—as though the world had awaited your coming. Take it as though it were a grand opportunity to do and achieve, to carry forward great and good chances to help and cheer a suffering, weary, it may be, heartbroken brother. Now and then a man stands aside from the crowd, labors earnestly, steadfastly, confidently, and straightway becomes famous for wisdom, intellect, skill, greatness of some sort. The world wonders, admires, idolizes; and it only illustrates what others may do if they take hold of life with a purpose. The miracle of the power that elevates the few, is to be found in their industry, application, and perseverance under the promptings of a brave, determined spirit.—Mark Twain.

SAM JONES SAID:

It takes a first-class preacher and a first-class hearer to get up a first-class sermon.

The grandest period in a man's life is when he walks up and gives himself to God.

What the world needs today is less criticism of the Bible and more religion from the Bible.

God will never listen to a man who has done one a wrong that he refuses to right.

Some people talk about choosing between two evils. When I find two evils I take neither.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

"OUR FATHER'S WORLD."

It would not be amiss to use the hymn: "Day is Dying in the West," with this program for it has inestimable values to a true Christian, and along with it, "An Open Bible for the World," "Far and Near the Fields are Teeming," "For the Beauty of the Earth," "Light of the World," and "God, that Madest Earth and Heaven." The Eighth Psalm will give a splendid passage of Scripture for our topic.

In keeping with the general idea running through all our topics for this month it is suggested that this be an outdoor program. We are seeking the presence of God by staying close to nature. It is plain that the Psalmist was very, very close to nature when he said, "When I consider thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which thou hast ordained, what is man that thou art mindful of him." And as we think of the stars as a part of "Our Father's World," we discover a few characteristics of the stars to which all Christian Endeavorers ought to adhere:

Shining with Constancy and Fidelity.—As we serve our Christ we must shine brightly as the stars. We must do our best, always, in any place, anywhere, for God counts what we do more than how and where we serve.

"Is your place a small place?"

Tend it with care,

He set you there

Whate'er your place, it is

Not yours alone, but His

Who set you there."

Shining Faithfully.—The stars never fail to shine whether cloudy or fair. So we must always do our bit, for the success of anything depends on whether everyone does his part. Use your own talents as best you can. Be faithful in attendance at church, Sunday School, and Christian Endeavor. Your presence may create an inspiration that would go a long way in church work. Don't allow a channel of blessing to be cluttered up with personal desires, selfishness and other obstructions. Do you fear that you will be missed in His service?

"I serve

Perchance the greater heroes

Scorn my part,

Seen from their loftier altitude

It may

Appear ignoble. Be it so, I say

Their smiles derisive shall not

Vex my heart.

"I serve

From my appointed path,

What tho' Eternal Wisdom did

Accord

Mean use of me? His love is

My reward,

If in mine own allotted sphere,

I serve."

Shining Forth with Brightness.—"Let your light shine before men, that they may see." Don't you know we must shine for people out of Christ? We are the only Bibles a lot of people read. "What is the Gospel, according to you?" Isn't it a lot easier to talk Christianity than it is to live it. Is your life buttressed with a staunch faith and hope in the Son of God.

These characteristics of the stars and of a Christian life are serious questions—let's think them over, then let our actions speak for us.

Do you own a book that you are willing to put under your head for a pillow when you are dying? Very well; that is the book you want to study while you are living. There is but one such Book in the world.—Joseph Cook.

Sunday School Lesson

By Rev. Stanley C. Harrell.

THE TENT OF MEETING.

LESSON VIII—AUGUST 21, 1932.

LESSON TEXT: Exodus 32 and 33.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Jehovah spake unto Moses face to face, as a man speaketh unto his friend."—Exodus 33:11.

TIME: B. C. 1491.

PLACE: Mount Sinai.

The lesson for today links up very closely with the two previous lessons. They contained a detailed study of the Ten Commandments that were given to Moses for the guidance of the children of Israel, and for all those who would seek to walk in the ways of the Lord. The facts related in the thirty-second chapter of Exodus emphasize the necessity for just such commandments.

While Moses was on the mountain peak in conference with the Lord, the people fell into a grievous lapse of faith. Moses did not come down from the mount as speedily as they had expected. The people immediately jumped to the conclusion that something serious had befallen him and that he would not come back. They realized the dire situation in which they were placed, and their minds immediately turned to their vast experience in Egypt. They had seen the Egyptians worshipping the sacred bull, and now since they seemed to be without a god to lead them, they would make an image of the god of the Egyptians. It is likely that they used some of the gold that they had received at the hands of the Egyptians when they were about to take their departure from Egypt.

Putting the very best possible interpretation upon their idolatrous act, it was an effort to secure the favor of the gods that seemed to have abundantly blessed the Egyptians. There is a darker side to the picture, however. There is only a brief allusion to the nakedness of the people as they entered into their revelings in the name of religion; but it bears witness to the fact that they had abandoned themselves to all that was most horrible and degrading in pagan religions.

The burning indignation of Moses at what the people had done is an eloquent witness as to the purity of his faith. He was amazed and horrified that they should have done such a thing. He was seeing their act in the light of what forty years' sojourn in the wilderness had done to his ideals. He saw it in the light of his expanding vision of the righteousness and purity of God.

There are many things in this lesson that are fraught with grave danger for the iron-clad literalist. We must call your attention to what was said just above about Moses' expanding vision of God. It does not seem to me that there is the slightest warrant for assuming that God approves of one man killing another because the other had been guilty of a terrible sin against God. We will probably come nearer to the truth if we assume that Moses had a clearer idea of righteousness and justice of God than he did of his love and mercy.

Nor should we be too quick to condemn Moses. Only Jesus seems to have been able to see God's holiness and his hatred of sin and at the same time realize his compassion and love for the sinner. And with us, even after all that Jesus has taught us, we have only been able to appropriate his teachings as an intellectual conception. Few of us have been able to make it a working hypothesis of life. It is a decided step that we have ceased to cut off the heads of sinners with the sword; but we shall not progress very far until we have learned to practice Jesus' way of delivering the sinner from his sin.

There seems to be considerable difference of opinion among students of the Bible as to why the Tent of Meeting was established outside the camp. Some see in it the withdrawal of the Lord from the midst of a people that was so desperately wicked. Others see in it the fitting and appropriate thing to do in separating from the work-a-day world the seeking of contact with the divine. It is probably a concession to the weakness of man. It is certainly the divine ideal that religious principles and practices shall permeate the affairs of everyday life. But for many reasons man is not yet able to attain unto the high ideal. We must have churches because man is not yet able to make the home as holy a place as it ought to be. We must continue to have churches that they may help to sanctify the things of home, society, and business.

The casual reader may get the impression from the reading of this lesson that Moses is more compassionate than God; that Moses has more patience and interest in the people than has God. The facts, are, I believe, an evidence of how hardly man may believe in the love and mercy of God. It was just too much for Moses to comprehend that God would forgive, and continue his love and mercy toward those that had dishonored him. We have the same difficulty today. We are able to catch only shadowy and fleeting glimpses of the glory of God, while all the time he is seeking to lead us into a fuller understanding of his nature and into a closer communion with himself.

STEWARDSHIP.

It's doing your job the best you can—
And being fair to your fellowman;
It's figuring how and learning why,
And looking forward and thinking high,
And dreaming a little and doing much:
It's keeping always in closest touch
With what is fine in word and deed:
It's being thorough, yet making speed,
It's daring blithely the field of chance,
While making labor a brave romance;
It's being clean and playing fair,
It's laughing lightly at Dame Despair,
It's sharing sorrow and work and mirth;
And making better this good old earth.
It's serving, striving through strain and stress,
It's trusting Him and doing our best,
That is Stewardship.—Author Unknown.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 $\frac{7}{8}$ x7 Inches, and 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 $\frac{7}{8}$ x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold.....$1.60

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 $\frac{3}{4}$ x7

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.50

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges.....$6.00

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 $\frac{3}{4}$ x5 $\frac{3}{8}$ Inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 $\frac{3}{4}$ x5 $\frac{3}{8}$ Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps.....$2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 $\frac{3}{8}$ x8 $\frac{1}{2}$ Inches and 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools.....95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond Virginia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."—II. Chron. 7:14.

MONDAY.

THE ART OF GETTING AWAY FROM THE CROWD.

"And when he had sent them away, he departed into a mountain to pray."—Mark 6:46.

As surely as anything else, quiet, meditation and prayer are necessary for Christian strength and growth. It is taught by Jehovah in the days of Israel and it is emphasized in the life of Christ. It is the natural normal condition of acquirement in anything. However, in these days, if one is to have solitude for meditation and prayer, he must do just what Christ did in this instance—voluntarily and positively, in the interest of replenishment of his own soul, dismiss the crowd, and go deliberately to the place of solitude.

The weakness of many people is that they want always the excitement of the crowd and being in the habit of it, they are satisfied in nothing else. They want to be in the milling throng and have no hungering for the deep springs of thought which invigorate, strengthen and clarify vision.

"Commune in thine own heart and be still."

"Be still and know that I am God."

Without this retirement, the mind becomes like a public waiting room of a railway station—a scene of bustling movement and confusion, not unified in any one object or purpose.

Prayer—Our Father, we feel the need of thy guidance. We pray for the obsession of thy spirit that we may find much time to draw into our own souls all of heaven's refreshing thought meditation and prayer. Amen.

TUESDAY.

CHRISTIANITY BY DISCIPLINE.

"Every one shall be salted with fire, and every sacrifice shall be salted with salt."—Mark 9:49.

Christianity is a discipline. "Discipline" is not a popular word. It sounds like prison life, or some hard task-master; or perhaps the so-called narrow Blue Laws, including all the "Thou shalt nots" of moral reform, expressing itself in the spirit that feels that it is oppression to suppress instincts.

"Fire" is a figure used to represent refining, eliminating dross, setting free from the ore the pure mineral. It is used throughout the scripture to represent the discipline and consecration necessary to eliminate evil from the life, curbing instincts into righteous function, purifying the soul into holy living.

Holy living cannot be realized without this burning of the unholy self. To illustrate—a motorist may love fast driving. To go slow may seem unbearable, so he decides to speed through the city at sixty miles an hour. Does that liberty set him free? No, it binds him. He is subject to the fear of officers, the courts and jail. On the contrary the man who drives at 20 miles may have a dozen cops halt him, but he has no fear. He can defy them all, for he has disciplined his feelings to righteous and lawful action. The curbing of his liberty has set him free.

If we are to believe our text today, we conclude that Christianity, like everything else good, or masterful, comes only by fire, the burning of discipline. And it is not a power outside of us compelling us, but a growth within.

Prayer—

O Lord, "Teach us to rule ourselves alway, Controlled and cleanly, night and day, That we may bring, if need arise, No maimed or worthless sacrifice."—KIPLING.
Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

DOWN GRADE.

"They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength. They shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run and not be weary; and they shall walk and not faint."—Isa. 40:31.

The very noise in which we pass our days disintegrate poise and power of soul. We slide in the habit until the possibility of deep feeling and communion with God is impossible.

Amiel's classic plea for solitude and prayer is beautiful: "Like the rain of night, it restores color and force to thoughts which have been blanched and wearied by the heat of the day. . . . It awakens within us a thousand sleeping forms, and . . . gathers materials for the future."

Jesus dismissed himself from the crowds to reinvigorate his soul and thereby be a stronger friend to man. He left off work that when he returned to it he might do it better. He drew away from the world regularly that he might gather strength to overcome it and redeem it.

Prayer—O Lord, our Father, we have work to do, and we rest to do it. Have we thy work to do? Teach us by thy spirit how to do it, and give us the courage to climb the hill to do it. Amen.

THURSDAY.

GOD ALONE.

"And I saw a great white throne, and him that sat upon it, from whose face the earth and the heaven fled away; and there was found no place for them."—Read Revelation 20:11-15.

What a majestic picture is this! When we see God, it will be God alone, so glorious, so comprehensive, that there will be no space for anything else. He will be All-in-all.

Not very different, save in the vital respect that it is impersonal, is Einstein's conception of space as the origin of matter, and as now gradually absorbing matter back into itself, so that there will be only space.

Let us so meditate upon the majesty of our Father that the things of time and sense will have less and less weight with us, and we shall live more and more fully in him. Let us set our affections on the things above. Then we shall not care if earth and sky do fly away, for our heavenly Father will remain.

Prayer—In thee, O God, we live and breathe and have all our being. Thou art all of earth and of heaven forever more. Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

FRIDAY.

A WEEK-DAY VISIT TO THE CHURCH.

"And he entered the temple; and when he had looked around about upon all things . . . he went into Bethany."—Mark 11:11.

This was Jesus' last visit to the temple before his crucifixion. He seems to walk around and look at everything. No one knows what he thought as he looked at these things of the temple. It must have been with genuine love and admiration. His Father's house meant so much to him. It must also have been with some criticism. It was a little later he stood on the mountain overlooking Jerusalem and wept for her. He must have laid the actual conditions alongside the original purpose of the temple. Before this he said, "My house shall be a house of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves."

What does your church mean to you? Would Christ recognize it as his, were he to come? Would he be pleased with you and what you are doing for your church were he to come? Is Christianity with you and with your church according to the original idea? What can you do that you are not doing to make you and your church acceptable unto him?

Prayer—O Lord, God, we are ashamed of our shortcomings: They have blocked thy way and hindered thy progress. As for us and our household, this day, and forever we hope, we will serve thee and strive to be all that would be pleasing in thy sight. Forgive us our sins and so bless us. Amen.

SATURDAY.

CANNED MUSIC.

"I will sing a new song unto thee, O God."—Read Psalm 144:9-15.

Mechanical or "canned" music soon becomes tiresome. It is far better than no music at all; but as it has increased, people's love for music has decreased. Formerly sweet songs, such as "Annie Laurie," or "My Old Kentucky Home," were heard everywhere; but now the streets are dumb except for auto horns.

Nothing can take the place of fresh human expression. If Pippa had sung over the radio all that bright day, would her lovely spirit have had any effect on darkened lives? New songs must be sung to God and to men. A song sung yesterday will not move me today, however perfectly the rubber disk reproduces it, half so deeply as the far inferior musical outgiving of a girl in my house today. So it is that books will never supersede preaching, and newspapers will never take the place of conversation.

Prayer—Put new songs in our mouths, O Christ. Cause our faces to shine with fresh understanding of thee and ever vivid love of our fellowmen. Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.

PIPE LINES.

"Their sound went out into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world."—Read Romans 10:16-21.

The distribution of oil, gas and gasoline through pipe lines is reaching vast proportions. Enormous lines cross the country in many directions carrying the products of one section quickly and cheaply to other less-favored sections.

Christianity is the most extensive of all pipe lines. Its system of distribution reaches to the ends of the world. One person is vitalized by the gospel, and he passes the invigoration on to his neighbor, and so the light and life of the world flash and course over land and sea.

Every Christian is a necessary link in the process. There must be no stoppage in any life. The blessed current must flow on, and we must count it our deepest disgrace, having received the love of God through our Saviour, not to pass it on to others.

Prayer—Make us generous, our Father. And may we never forget that it is only through us that thy truth can go out into all the earth. Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

SEEING GOD.

"Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God."—Matt. 5:8.

The teacher of a Sunday School Bible class startled his class with the question: "Why do not men see God today as they did in burning bush and smoking mountain in Moses' day? He was a business man connected with a nationally manufacturing concern. His question and subsequent comments would place him in that class of materially minded Christians who wish a "sign." Jesus has been asked for signs, you remember. The comments of that class of laymen were most interesting, and the question well aimed, and was useful in bringing out a very fine discussion.

That question is not to be directly answered in this discourse—not directly. I cite it as marking the place where this discourse was first thought of. The text: "Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God," seems to be a very good answer to it. These are days when men do wish to see God. Sometimes some of them wonder if he is in his heavens, and if things are right with the world. There is fear, hunger, privation, and often great skepticism where a vision of God does not obtain. For that reason, my friends, and not to reply to a Sunday School class question, I take up this text today, and incidentally I use the same context—the stories of Moses.

Moses is the one man in Holy Writ like unto whom God promised his chosen people to rear up a Son! Looking across the sons of time God saw Moses and promised a Son from among the chosen race like him! That in itself is a most remarkable comment on Moses—perhaps it sheds a bit of light in his visions of God. Perhaps it was in the mind of Jesus, when he said: "Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God." Moses, being pure in heart, saw God.

Moses was a man like we are—passions like ours, impulses like ours, heart like ours. What fires burned on the altars of his life to lift all dross from his soul? What fires purified his heart. How learned he to keep the sentiments of his soul with all diligence, knowing that out of them were the issues of life? What made the human pattern of his life so like a divine pattern? What made him stronger than the armies of Egypt? Stronger than the voice of the people? A pure heart.

"My good blade carves the casques of men,
My tough lance thrusteth sure;
My strength is as the strength of ten
Because my heart is pure."

My friend, carry a pure heart to your tasks; carry a pure heart to your family; carry a pure heart to your fellowmen; carry a pure heart to your God and feel your strength multiply.

I.—One of the purifying fires that burned on Moses' altar of life was memory.—Memory of his mother, Jochebed; memory of the faith which lay like an immovable portion in her soul; memory of the teachings she whispered in his ears through the days of servitude, while her son was free. Memory of the stranger-than-fiction truth that her son was the greater slave than she, even though he had all royal liberties; for her freedom was from Jehovah of hosts! Memory of a royal court, and the power of government; memory of sight which his tender, mother-taught soul witnessed when he was a lad looking upon the burdens of his own brothers; memory of the sweet prayers in secret prayed with his slave mother; and memories of Abraham, and God's sure promises to him. These are some of the fuel of that purifying fire of memory.

What will your lad remember about you? What fires are you lighting in his soul now? Yours is the opportunity to set a flame which will never go out; and will help your boy or girl to see God. Does he see God in you? Chosen Israel was promised that it would see God in Moses. Can your children see Jesus in you?

I sat with five thousand others to see four hundred young men and young women receive their diplomas not long ago. Out of the two big ante-rooms, into the long aisles, to the melody of pretty music, they marched. What a beautiful procession of youth it was! What memories must have filled their thoughts that evening—and the thoughts of their parents, too! I watched for Lucille to come into that long procession. I wanted to see how she looked now! A few years ago her mother had died—her pretty, sainted, young mother. Two years ago her father, a fellow-minister of the gospel, had died—on Christmas Day. Six of them had been left in the care of a step-mother. See her in that line? How serious and sweet is her face! What a glow of beauty, consecrated to noble thinking, and beautiful living, played upon her face. As I looked upon that uplifted face, I thanked God for memories, and the teachings of childhood. I thanked God for the consecrated young woman, likewise of consecrated Christian parents, who had been a real mother to her, and had not turned her nor her younger brothers and sisters down in their need. May I not reverently say: In the year that Lucille graduated, I saw God, high and lifted up! Why do men not see God today? "Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God."

II.—Another fire for purifying souls is that of experience.—Experience is a great teacher. Moses had many tutors, and one of the greatest of them was his experience. Born of a slave mother; cast into the River Nile, but very gently, and in an ark mother-made and, therefore, secure, and at the feet of Pharaoh's daughter; reared as a crown prince; learned in all the knowledge of the Egyptians; slayer of an Egyptian (a tragedy which must have greatly humbled him in later years); forty years a keeper of flocks in the quiet, meditative fields of Midian; and now experiencing the supreme task of deliverer of his people from bondage. Such an education, such a demand, and a devotion! If Moses was about to be discouraged, or driven back memory of his parental teaching and his own experience of God stood him in good stead; on the other hand, if success tended to puff him up, memory of his mother and his own poor self humbled his soul back again into purity of heart, where once more he could "talk to God face to face."

In that procession with Lucille was another girl whom I knew well. In five successive years she had had to quit school in her senior year. Now, she was finishing with a rather fine degree of health, and her diploma in her hand. Against tuberculosis she had faithfully fought, and successfully, and a smile of sweet victorious triumph played on her face. She believed in God and trusted him, and as she marched with the others, I could seem to hear her say: "See what God hath done!" Why do men not see God today as in Moses' day? "Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God." My young friend, are your experiences worth having? Are you leaving God out of your life? Are you frittering the fair days of flowerhood away? Say, make your daily devotion to duty an experience never to be forgotten.

III.—The other fire that helped keep Moses' heart pure was responsibility.—His was a supreme responsibility, and under God yours will be, too! What devotion to his call to deliver his people! When so greatly they had sinned that God threatened to "blot them out," Moses fell on his face and cried unto God to forgive them, or to blot him out forever! That sort of manhood in church, in state, in nation, in business, in the home, in every walk of life, would make a new heaven and a new earth. After that kind God would fashion his own Son! That kind can see God now! "Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God."

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 plain glasses $22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling) $22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90... 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00
Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Our financial report this week is the smallest in sixteen years, $48.40. If you will make a calculation you will find that would be 48 2/5 cents per child per week. That would be a little less than 7 cents per day per child. We now have in our care 100 children. When our income runs so low, it means that our expense account is necessarily far more than our income. That means that we must go in debt. These children are here. It is the duty of each member of the Christian Church to give something to help support them. They cry to the children of God to give them food and shelter. Will the church and Sunday Schools answer their pleadings or will you turn a deaf ear?

Jesus said: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto me." Is it a fact that when a depression comes and money is scarce, we cut down on our giving first? The Orphanage can suffer. The pastor can live without his salary. The church expenses can be neglected, and the Lord's work can drag along. We can drop all that, as many do. On the other hand, if we want to take a pleasure trip, if we want a new suit of clothes, or a new dress, a new hat, or anything for ourselves, can't we always find some way to get it? Do we really make any sacrifice when it comes to self? These little fatherless children are here. They are dependent on the church for support. Will the church make use of the opportunity to serve? If we have plenty, and to spare, is it any sacrifice to give? Is it? But when we give of our meager savings, when we need every dollar of it and we feel it, then we give out of our love for God's little ones, and it always brings us closer in touch with the Master. Let us not forget the church and its institutions in these strenuous times.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR AUGUST 11, 1932.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Brought forward	$ 9,283.56
North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Elon College	6.25
Eastern North Carolina Conference:
Piney Plains	2.70
Western North Carolina Conference:
Smithwood	2.56
Eastern Virginia Conference:
Holy Neck	$ 7.18
Newport News	12.63
Union, Surry	3.00
Liberty Spring Sunday School and
Classes	8.00
	30.81
Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Mt. Lebanon	$ 7.18
Bethlehem	1.96
Antioch	2.57
Wood's Chapel	1.00
	6.08
Total for the week	$ 48.40
Grand total	$ 9,331.96

Truth has no gradations; nothing which admits of increase can be so much what it is as truth is truth. There may be a strange thing, and a thing more strange; but if a proposition be true, there can be none more true.—Johnson.

MATTER FOR REJOICING.

Dr. John R. Mott, addressing a gathering in England recently, urged that we should rejoice greatly that we were allowed to live in times of such stress and difficulty. Merely to tabulate his reasons for this exhortation may be suggestive:

1. Such times make possible the development of humility on Mission Boards and elsewhere.
2. They facilitate readiness to allow the Spirit to examine us.
3. They enable us to understand each other as we meet the common difficulties.
4. They make us think of new ways of doing things.
5. They lead us to a wiser use of resources of men and money.
6. Leaders are needed for difficult times and leaders are raised up.
7. They generate hope.
8. Advances in policy are made possible.
9. They afford special opportunities.

It is vain to have these advantages unless we use them; and the price to be paid is:

1. More and better thinking—creative, comprehensive, and conclusive.
2. More dedicated and allocated personalities.
3. Sharing one another's burdens.
4. Cooperation between societies and missions.

LIFE.

The deeper men go into life, the deeper is their conviction that this life is not all. It is an "unfinished symphony." A day may round out an insect's life, and a bird or a beast needs no tomorrow. Not so with him who knows that he is related to God and has felt "the power of an endless life."—Selected.

Eilers Sunday School Maps.

On a Revolving Adjustable Steel Stand

The first 5 maps
are in Set No. 1,
with stand,
Price $15.00

Set No. 2
8 Maps,
Price $25.00

Fine large Maps, in 6 Colors 36x57, on linen finished Cloth. Mounted on a folding steel stand, which can be regulated, so that Maps may be seen to the best advantage. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Its large print and Cheerful Colors makes this set very instructive and attractive. Contains the five thoroughly up to date Maps necessary to the study of Bible History.

New Testament Palestine, — Old Testament Palestine, — Roman empire and Bible Lands, showing Paul's Travels by Colored lines. — Lands of the Old Testament, from the Great Sea, to the Persian Gulf. — The Exodus, Egypt, showing by Colored lines the wanderings of the Israelites.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN,

1536 East Broad Street,

Richmond, Virginia.

ALL
SELF-
PRONOUNCING

Holman Testaments

COMMAND
ATTENTION
AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2 3/4 x 4 1/2 inches

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there
was a marriage in
CANA of Galilee; and the mother of Jēsus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles.....	$.50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles.....	.60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....	.85
RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS
2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges.....	.70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....	.90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges.....	1.10
With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.
13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges.....	.90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included.....	1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2 1/2 x 4 1/4 inches x 3/4 inch. The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its unique quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2 1/2 x 4 1/4 inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2

The three wise men

carrying away into Egypt
fourteen generations;
and from the carrying away into Egypt
unto Christ are fourteen

ing interpreted is, God
with us.

24 Then Jēseph being raised from sleep did as
the angel of the Lord had

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....

5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included.....

5036PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms.....

$1.00

1.50

2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET
SIZE
3 3/4 x 4 1/2
inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type

CHAPTER 23.

THEN spake Jēsus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3 3/4 x 4 1/2 inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms.....

4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....

4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included.....

1.90

1.35

1.90

1.50

3.00

3.25

in Red

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print

Pica, 16mo. Size, 5 1/2 x 7 1/4 inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines.

It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

Specimen of Type.

THE book of Jēsus

2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included.....

1.50

2.95

2.95

3.10

3.10

3.10

3.10

3.10

3.10

3.10

3.10

3.10

3.10

3.10

3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

THE BASIS OF PROHIBITION.

(Continued from page 7.)

Phillips, Andover, who sums up a nationwide investigation of the secondary schools in these words: "The schools reporting are practically unanimous in their testimony that drinking among the undergraduates is steadily on the wane, while a number emphasize the fact that the past year has proved the best on record." The Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association meeting in Detroit in February, 1931, passed this resolution with but three dissenting votes: "We reaffirm our belief in the Eighteenth Amendment as the most effective means yet devised to curtail the distribution and use of alcohol."

Heads of colleges are practically unanimous in saying that drinking among college students has greatly decreased. In a recent poll of 213 American colleges conducted by the Literary Digest, the following conclusion was reached: "There are actually fewer drinkers in the colleges now than in the days when there were only one-third the present number of students." The president of a great California university made this statement: "Compared with the period before the present laws were put into effect, I should say that we have only one-tenth of the problem we had at this time in connection with liquor."

We often forget the pernicious influence of the old saloon in ruining the lives of boys and girls. Therefore it might be well to call to mind a statement made in the February 25, 1914, issue of the Chicago Tribune, which says: "The back rooms of 445 saloons in Chicago contribute to the delinquency of more than 14,000 girls every twenty-four hours."

It is rather amusing to hear some argue that prohibition came as a result of the "ravings" of fanatics—long-haired men and short-haired women. I believe that we owe a great deal to the men and women who courageously exposed the evils of intemperance when it was an unpopular thing to take a stand against the liquor evil. But I also am firmly convinced that we should never have had national prohibition if it had not been for the fact that business men began to realize the effect of intoxicating liquor upon efficiency in industry and came out in strong opposition to the liquor traffic.

We all remember the famous Rule "G" of the railroads: It was as follows: "The use of intoxicants by employees while on duty is prohibited; their use, or the frequenting of places where they are sold, is sufficient cause for dismissal." There were similar rules written not by fanatics, but by business men. One leading American industry had the following rule: "Any employee found using intoxicating liquor—either during or after working hours—is warned that it will not be tolerated and urged to discontinue its use completely. If the promise is given, then the man is given another chance; otherwise, he is discharged at once."

The liquor people realized the strength of this ally of prohibition and did everything possible to counteract it by bringing pressure to bear to get the firms to change their attitude. In April, 1915, the organized liquor traffic went so far as to issue a black list of 49 American firms. In the list were the following corporations: Pennsylvania Railroad Company, United States Steel Corporation, Pittsburgh Coal Company, John Wanamaker's, Western Union Telegraph Company, Hershey Chocolate Company, Goodyear Rubber Company, Reo Automobile Company, S. S. Kresge Company, J. N. Gamble of Proctor & Gamble, and H. J. Heinz of H. J. Heinz Company.

A typical poster of the United States Steel Corporation read: "The last man hired, the first man fired: the man who drinks." Henry Ford has repeatedly said: "Booze had to go when modern industry and the motor car came in." Before the world-wide depression, business men attributed the efficiency of the American working-man to a great extent to national prohibition. The absence of the saloon will help America to recover sooner than she would have done with 200,000 legalized drinking places to ruin the health, steal the savings, and corrupt the morals of our citizens.—The Christian-Evangelist.

OUR FAITH IS PRECIOUS.

Walter Lippman, the newspaper man, concluding his imaginary dialogue between a Modernist and a Fundamentalist, makes the Modernist ask that the question be discussed without heat. But the Fundamentalist says, "Has it ever occurred to you that this advice is easier for you to follow than for me?" "How so?" says the Modernist. "Because for me an eternal plan of salvation is at stake. For you there is nothing at stake but a few tentative opinions none of which means anything to your happiness. Your request that I should be tolerant and amiable is, therefore, a suggestion that I submit the foundation of my life to the destructive effects of your skepticism, your indifference and your good nature. You ask me to smile and to commit suicide."—The Herald of Holiness.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

WHITLEY MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 15th. Freshmen register on Tuesday, September 13th, and upper classmen on the 15th. Expenses reduced for this session. Write for Catalog and application blank.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D.....Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D.....Associate
W. W. STALEY, D. D.....Contributing
S. C. HARRELL.....Contributing
C. R. RAYMOND, D. D....Contributing
ELISHA A. KING, D. D....Contributing
W. C. WICKER, D. D....Contributing
J. T. KERNODLE....Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year$2.00
Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization; three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When sending subscriptions for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of year.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

MARRIAGES

KISLING—SHIFLETT.

Mr. Amos A. Kisling and Miss Minnie K. Shiflett were quietly married at my home on July 9, 1932. They are from near Shenandoah City, and will reside there for the present. They are a splendid young couple.

A. W. ANDES.

OBITUARIES

KENNEY.

Mrs. Mary Bray Kenney was born May 7, 1881, and died June 24, 1932, making her age 51 years 1 month and 17 days.

Sister Kenney was a member of the Woods' Chapel Christian Church and was well thought of by all who knew her. She is survived by her husband and two daughters.

Funeral services were held at Woods' Chapel, June 26, 1932, and in the absence of her pastor, Rev. B. J. Earp, were conducted by the writer.

A. W. ANDES.

JOHNSON.

Luther F. Johnson was born August 22, 1882, and died June 22, 1932, aged 49 years and 10 months. Bro. Johnson had been a great sufferer for about two years and death came as a sweet relief from his afflictions.

He was a member of the Timber Ridge Christian Church, a good husband and father, and a man well liked in his neighborhood. He is survived by his widow, three daughters and one son.

Funeral services were held at Timber Ridge, June 24, 1932.

A. W. ANDES.

BOYD.

The God of Love and wisdom has seen fit to take from us our friend and beloved secretary, Miss Sadie Boyd. In her going we feel deeply our loss, but realize our loss is her gain.

The Missionary Society of Ingram Christian Church offers this tribute of love and respect in memory of her. Be it resolved:

First: That our church and our Missionary Society has lost one of their most faithful and loyal members.

Second: That we cherish her memory and that we bow humbly to the will of our Heavenly Father.

Third: That we extend to the family our deepest and most heartfelt sympathy.

Fourth: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the sorrowing family, one to be published in "The Christian Sun," and one recorded on the minutes of the Missionary Society.

MRS. MABEL LANDRUM,
AVIS DUNN,
PATTIE ADAMS.

SUMMER SESSION

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

JUNE 8 TO 20, OR AUGUST 10

An Accredited Summer School in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

Standard Courses in Fifteen Departments Meeting the Academic and Professional Needs of College Students, Teachers and Prospective Teachers.

Special Courses in Primary, Intermediate, High School and Rural Education; also in Public School Music and Art, Story Telling, Coaching of Plays, Southern Literature, Southern History, Geography, Religious Education, Piano, Voice and Violin.

Six to Nine Weeks of Profitable Study Combined with Delightful Vacation and Recreation.

For Catalogue, write
DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
Demorest, Ga.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

A Memorial of the Congregational-Christian Union.

FRANK E. JENKINS, Pres. MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD, Dean

Chartered by Southern Christian Convention, June 2, 1922, as Bethlehem College; renamed Southern Union, June 3, 1931.

Will function during the present financial depression as a Junior College only.

FALL TERM WILL OPEN SEPTEMBER 7.

DEPRESSION PRICES.

Depression prices during the coming year, made possible by extensive gardens, careful planning, organization and donations—Tuition, board and room, $192 for entire scholastic year; tuition alone, $48; each payable in six equal installments.

Unsectarian, but thoroughly Christian.

For Information, write—

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA.

THE CONGREGATIONAL LATIN-AMERICAN INSTITUTE AND PILGRIM LATIN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH OF WEST TAMPA, FLA.—

Are helping give the Gospel, which is "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," to the forty thousand Latin people of Tampa. The evangelical forces working among the foreigners of Tampa are by no means covering the territory sufficiently.

Methodists have six preachers, Baptists two, Presbyterians one, Congregationalists one. Church workers and teachers must be supported for this great missionary work. Send check to LESLIE S. BRAY, Treas.

Route 4, Box 468, - - Tampa, Fla.
Send boxes of clothing to Mrs. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

For literature, write Rev. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' EDITION FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear, Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type.
"From that time Jesus to preach, and to say, 'I the kingdom of heaven'"

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 10.65

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXIV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, AUGUST 18, 1932.

NUMBER 33.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

The Difference!—

Says Sir J. Arthur Thompson, noted scientist: "Much of the controversy between science and religion would disappear if men would recognize that science is fundamental description in terms of the lowest denominator, while religion is supreme interpretation in terms of the greatest common measure, which is God."

American Athletes Lead in Olympiad.—

After sixteen days of unprecedented competition, the forces of the United States emerged with the greatest collection of victories in the last twenty years. Winning eight of the seventeen competitions, they had quite a great lead, Italy being next with three championships to her credit. Many of the events were quite close, and many former records were shattered by the contestants, not less than 13 world's records being broken. The attendance also surpassed all other records, the paid attendance for all events having passed the 1,000,000 mark. The next Olympiad is to be celebrated in Berlin in 1936.

The World's Population.—

For the first time, there has been an attempt to make a complete census of the population of the world. The figures for this census were supplied by 103 countries, and the Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C., from a study of these statistics, finds that there are now living on the earth approximately 2 billion people. This gives an average population of thirty-nine and two-tenths persons for each square mile of land area of the world and a much denser population for the land area that is now inhabited. There are vast stretches of territory that are practically unoccupied, but the human race continues to spread and continues to multiply. Theoretically, at least, there is at the present time sixteen acres of land for each man, woman and child in the world, or around fifty acres for each family. There are those who fear for the overcrowding of the earth, but that event must of necessity, be far distant.

Education a Failure in Character Moulding.—

If Warden Lewis E. Lawes, of Sing Sing Prison, New York, is right, then the American educational system is virtually a total failure in so far as character moulding is concerned. He says that "not only have the schools failed to fulfill their functions in preventing crime, but criminals springing largely from the grammar and high schools are more brazen, more vicious and more desperate than ever before in the history of any civilized community." He further adds: "The splendid and costly educational programs, the pride of our government, have done nothing to mould the character of our people," because "there is no moral force in the classroom." If his statement is true, it is a terrible indictment of religion in the public schools, for without religion morality is easily corrupted. What a challenge is offered the Christian colleges of the nation in the preparation of teachers for our public school system! What a challenge to the people of our land to support the church schools of their own denominations. The economic depression through which we are passing is an incident only compared to the moral depression which is facing us. What will the Christians of America do about it?

Christians Attend Massanetta Conference.—

The Massanetta Bible Conference for Ministers, in session at Massanetta Springs, four miles east of Harrisonburg, Va., opened on August 8th and continues through this week. Although operated under the auspices of the Presbyterian Church, it has become almost inter-denominational in its character, if this may be determined by the speakers and the attendants, all of the major denominations being represented. From our own church there was a goodly representation, including both ministers and laymen. Among them were: Dr. C. H. Rowland, of Greensboro, N. C.; Dr. and Mrs. I. W. Johnson, and Rev. H. S. Hardcastle, of Suffolk, Va.; Rev. J. F. Morgan and family, of Norfolk, Va.; Rev. O. D. Poythress, of South Norfolk, Va.; Rev. E. B. White, of Windsor, Va.; Rev. John G. Truitt, of Dayton, Ohio; Rev. Alfred W. Andes and Rev. Ben Joe Earp, of Harrisonburg, Va., the writer and his wife, of Richmond, Va. Others were expected during this week, but we are not sure of their attendance, as THE SUN and other matters compelled our return to Richmond at the end of the first week. We can thoroughly recommend the Massanetta Bible Conference to the ministers of our Church, and we appreciate the spirit of welcome which the Presbyterians show upon the occasion of these conferences. Dr. W. E. Hudson, who is in charge of these conferences, is a genius in the performance of his arduous duties.

Where Linguists Are Legion.—

When it comes to learning languages, we Americans are bracketed with the British as the world's worst linguists. In Buenos Aires they tell of the Englishman who exclaimed: "These people do not understand me any better now than they did forty years ago!" It is the people of the little nations who master many tongues. Consider this statement from Alford Carleton, acting director of Boys' High School of Aleppo, Syria: "Not only from choice, but from necessity, languages are one of our specialties. The coming of Monsieur Bille from Switzerland and the conversion of all our higher history classes from English into the French language have set forward this branch of our work until the time will soon come when students can speak one as easily as the other—to say nothing of our regular use in meetings and services of Arabic, Armenian, and occasionally Turkish. As a mere American, I feel hopelessly tongue-tied in Syria with my students speaking five or more languages, while I can muster only one—and two halves!" The writer was once saved from buying a shirt several sizes too small in a store in Rio de Janeiro by a Syrian interpreter, who confessed that he spoke nine languages and sang a tenth—his native Syrian! Nowhere have populations been more mixed than in the Near East, and probably nowhere is linguistic ability more highly developed.—John R. Scotford, in The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

No Let-Up in Enforcement Considered.—

While both wets and dries work to elect members to Congress this fall who will represent their views, Attorney-General Mitchell intends that there shall be no let-up in Federal Prohibition enforcement. He says that he can see no reason for relaxation of enforcement, "because some changes are under discussion and may be adopted." It is also noted that John R. Saunders, Attorney-General of Virginia, has announced that in spite of salary reductions and reductions in dry law fees, every effort will be made to uphold the efficiency of the Prohibition Department, of which he is the head. He has also stated that, regardless of the action of the Federal Government, he will continue to uphold the Virginia laws so long as they are on its statute books. Col. Saunders deserves great credit for the work he has done in this department. In striking contrast to his attitude is that of the wet element as led by Delegate Vivian Page of Norfolk. The Richmond Times-Dispatch quotes him as saying, when told that Prohibition enforcement had been crippled in Virginia by lack of funds, that he "had hoped it was dead." At least, Mr. Page is frank; most of the wets hide behind the pillar of States' Rights, but he acknowledges that he would like to see State enforcement swept into the discard along with the national program. The attitude of those in control of the wet forces today is well expressed in an editorial from the Brewers' Journal, written in May, 1910: "No matter what laws may be made to cripple the beverage industries of our present times, they cannot and will not be observed by those managing those industries." No matter what the wet leaders may say at the present time, their ultimate aim is the return of the saloon. Yet there are many good—we would even say, Christian—people who have been deluded by their promises and are following their lead. If our present liquor laws are ever changed, they must be changed by their friends, and friends of temperance should see that they remain on the statute books until better laws are evolved.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Rev. Walter Metcalf, of Tampa, Fla., will supply the pulpit at Winter Park, Fla., during August.

We are sorry, indeed, to learn of the illness of Mrs. C. D. Johnston. We have not heard from her in the past few days, but certainly hope for her a most speedy recovery.

Mr. R. L. Leggett, former superintendent of the Richmond Sunday School, who has been absent from the city for several weeks on vacation, returned Sunday after visiting relatives and friends in Wheeling, W. Va., and Cleveland, Ohio.

Rev. A. N. Reynolds, pastor of the Mattaponi Indian Baptist Church, West Point, Va., has been supplying for Rev. J. E. McCauley, at our Richmond Church, during the latter's vacation. The attendance has been very good, and Mr. Reynolds has been very favorably received.

Rev. R. Lee House writes: "Having spent a few days in Urbana with Rev. J. M. Fix, he, Rev. J. E. McCauley of Richmond, and I, are now off to the Winona Lake Bible Conference. We had a most pleasant and helpful stay at the University of Chicago Conference."

We acknowledge, with appreciation, the following: "Mr. and Mrs. Junius Edgar West request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Margaret Beale, to Mr. Henry Bowen Frazier, Jr., on Saturday, the third of September, at eight o'clock in the evening, Christian Church, Suffolk, Va."

We were sorry to miss Revs. J. C. and J. W. Barrett, who called at the publishing office of THE SUN last week while we were attending the Valley Conference. Rev. J. C. Barrett is now pastor of Kensington Congregational Church, at Philadelphia, Pa., and we understand that he is making quite a success of his pastorate.

Dr. C. C. Ryan, who for the past year has been at Elkhart, Ind., has quite a number of friends among readers of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and they will be glad to know that he has had a most successful year at his new charge. He has had many additions to the church since going there and has been a busy man the entire year. He reports that he and Mrs. Ryan are enjoying good health.

From Newport News comes the following: While our pastor, Rev. R. L. House, is away attending the Bible Conferences at the University of Chicago, and later at Winona Lake, our own church boy, Howard Smith, is preaching for us, and we are very proud of him. Our pastor recently conducted a revival at Pope's Chapel (his home church) in Franklin County, N. C., and three were added to the church.

Rev. O. H. Denny, pastor of the North Biami, Fla., Church, reports that on July 10th, his birthday, he received twenty-two new members into the church. A new Sunday School class composed of young single men and women, known as the Star Bible Class has been organized with sixteen members. The attendance at the Sunday School on August 7th, was reported as 120, a splendid record for mid-summer. Mr. Denney is conducting early morning devotions over station WQAM each Friday during August.

Rev. P. H. Fleming, D. D., reports that Rev. A. W. Andes, of Harrisonburg, Va., was with them in meetings at Long's Chapel and Union. The meeting at Long's Chapel began on the third Sunday in July and at Union on the fourth Sunday. The meetings were well attended, interest good and we believe much good was accomplished. Bro. Andes preached to good acceptance. His sermons were plain, practical, pointed, forceful. He is an interesting and helpful preacher. It is good to have such a co-laborer of the Gospel with one. There were seven additions to church membership and seven baptisms.

Prof. A. R. Flowers, Sims, N. C., addressed the Sunday School and Y. P. U. at Noble's Chapel Baptist Church, near Sims, July 29th. The pastor of the church made the public statement: "He did not know a man in Eastern North Carolina who was doing more good than Prof. Flowers." On leaving Wendell recently, where he had been for ten days, he was presented with a nice watch and chain. Prof. Flowers was principal of Wendell Academy for eight years and is held in high esteem by the people there. Prof. Flowers is devoting his life to the help and encouragement of young people in the Christian life.

Rev. S. M. Penn, Bailey's Grove, N. C., reports a new life at this good country church. Revival meetings conducted by the pastor and Arthur Swartz, S. S. S. helper, together with a systematic calling from house to house campaign resulted in many who had dropped out, coming back into active duty. That is the kind of revival that counts. One that "revives." One that brings new life back into those who have lost their way, or their interest—sometimes their very life. To bring only one back is a great service. Mr. Penn and Mr. Swartz report that many were made happy at these meetings and this kind of house-to-house work.

Albemarle reports 152 enrolled in the Daily Church School. Something doing there. They also had over 150 enrolled at Southern Pines this summer. This church is carrying on an educational program all through the summer. The pastor is on his vacation and his assistant is likewise enjoying a well deserved rest. But Miss Simons, a young lady of unusual ability and attractiveness, is taking charge of the morning Sunday School service, and in the evening at 7:00 o'clock, she conducts a vesper service out-of-doors, which is enjoyed by many. Of course, in the fall, a full-time preaching service will be in vogue and the winter will bring its full quota of strong visitors and helpers back from the North.

First Christian Church, Portsmouth, Va., has extended to Rev. H. C. Caviness a unanimous call to remain as their pastor for the seventh consecutive year, and the church, at the urgent request of the pastor, has decided to discontinue any request to the Mission Board to aid further financially, in the support of the work there. This church has, through great struggle and under many handicaps, made wonderful progress under the ministry of their present faithful and beloved pastor, and great results have been shown and many victories won during the six years of their service together. Both pastor and people have shown a spirit of self-denial for their church and their Lord, and a spirit of cooperation and fellowship that never fails to win victories for righteousness.

An Immokalee Echo Meeting will be held at Sanford, Fla., August 20th and 21st, to which are invited delegates from all the surrounding churches, not only those who attended the Florida Young People's Conference at Camp Immokalee, but other representatives of the Young People's Societies of the churches. Ten are expected to attend from even as far away as Jacksonville. The delegates will be entertained by the local church, of which the pastor is Rev. J. Bernard Root. The program will include a supper Saturday evening, with after dinner speakers, a vesper service, followed by a party at San Lanta Springs. On Sunday morning there will be a Young People's Service at 10:00 o'clock, followed by the morning service devoted to the young people. The Young People's Society of the Sanford Church, is an active organization and they have organized an orchestra this summer.

Elon College will open its doors for registration of incoming freshmen on Tuesday, September 13th, when the new students will arrive for a two-day program of orientation. The registrar announced that the prospects are for an enrollment of approximately 300 students, substantially the same as of last season. During the summer extensive renovations of college buildings have been carried forward and are now nearing completion. North dormitory, occupied by men, has been repaired, repainted, and recalcimined. A new dining hall has been prepared on the second floor of the west dormitory annex. This dining hall, which will be operated in connection with the original dining hall on the first floor of the same building, will take the place of both the men's and women's clubs, which will no longer operate. President L. E. Smith is convalescing rapidly from his recent operation, and is expected to be back at the college at an early date.

The many friends of Dr. W. F. Blackman will regret to learn of his death, which occurred in Winter Park, Fla., on August 10th. Dr. Blackman served as President of Rollins College from 1902 to 1915 and during his administration the institution made great progress. He came to the college from Yale University, where he was a member of the faculty of the School of Divinity. He was the author of a number of books. Education was the principal endeavor of Dr. Blackman, but he found time to be interested in various other lines. He had been president of the Bank of Winter Park, president of the Wekiwa Ranch Company and had served as head of the Florida Audubon Society and of the Confederated Charities, and the State Livestock Association. Dr. Blackman was born in 1855 in North Pitcher, N. Y., and was educated at the Oberlin College, School of Divinity at Yale, Cornell and Berlin University. In 1910 the honorary degree of doctor of Laws was conferred upon him by the University of Florida. He was a devoted member of the First Congregational Church of Winter Park. Surviving him are his wife, a daughter, Mrs. G. O. Wallace, of Moore Haven; two sons, Berkeley Blackman, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Worthington Blackman, of Portland, Ore. Funeral services were held on August 11th in the Congregational Church, Dean A. D. Enyart, assisted by Rev. Charles DeW. Brower, officiated, and the interment was in the Winter Park Cemetery.

NOTICE.

Any churches contemplating a change of pastor for next conference year within reach of my home, desiring my services, I would be glad to correspond with the same. I have done pastoral work since 1916.

L. L. WYRICK,
Elon College, N. C.

MIDDLE GEORGIA ASSOCIATION MEETS.

Middle Georgia Association is made up of the following churches: Barnesville, Fredonia; Columbus, United; Crest, Hebron; Gaillards, Pleasant Hill; LaGrange, United; Meansville; Roberta, Walker's Chapel; The Rock, Bethany; Woodbury, Jones' Chapel; and when the Christian Churches of this region are thoroughly organized with the Association, there will be added: East LaGrange, Hillside, Lagrange; Chipley, Oak Grove; Richland, and perhaps others with which the writer is not cognizant.

This group of churches met in annual session July 27th, at Meansville. This church is one of our best in Georgia. It dedicated its beautiful new brick building a little more than a year ago. This is the first time many people of the Association have been privileged to see it. Needless to say, that everybody was greatly pleased and happy. The opening session found the auditorium practically filled with visitors and delegates. A very cheering welcome was spoken by Miss Rosie Gill, who just graduated from Piedmont College. She was very glad to see such a fine crowd, as was the pastor, Rev. L. L. Stanley, who followed in his own impressive way. There was nothing lacking in the welcome from beginning to end. Meansville folk know how!

The program was well carried out. Miss Annie Campbell and Miss Mildred Rister gave splendid suggestions on young people's work. Miss Marjorie Askins, in her worship service, gave one of the telling addresses of the meeting. It was a real sermon. Mr. John Bush conducted the song services with his usual vigor. Rev. J. H. Dollar, who was re-elected Moderator, spoke on "Evangelism for Today." He expressed the conviction that the old-time method of having the date set for an annual revival when it must be begun at a certain month, week, day and hour might be worn out so far as usefulness is concerned. People are apt to think, "Well, we must have the revival." Then afterward, say, "Well, we have had it." And there might not be much genuine "revival" after all. He felt that more and more we must come to the "all-time revival," which day by day goes about seeking to do good and to help the community grow in grace and blessing. It was a timely and helpful address.

There were reports from the two conferences, one from the Women's Division and the other from the Men's. Both seemed to have dwelt chiefly on the advantage of close organization. The men, especially, emphasizing the review of the uniting of the two denominations and the relationship of the local church thereto.

The pastor-at-large, M. J. Sweet, presented the cause of our "Wider Fellowship," bringing the people to the point where they might find themselves a very vital part of the whole organization, clear through to the General Council. Payment of the per capita contribution and the apportionment was urged and the need explained. He also tried to help churches to be careful to answer every question in the annual report blanks which will be sent out in December to clerks and pastors.

There was a characteristically helpful though brief message from Dr. W. Kington Bloom read by Mr. Stanley. The scribe was appointed to give a suitable answer for the Association. The evening sermon was given by Rev. J. H. Dollar, United Church, LaGrange. "This did Jesus begin to do and to teach." A worthy sermon, enjoyed by all.

The following resolutions were read and were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, The highest scientific authorities are agreed that alcohol is a poison which decreases personal efficiency, shortens the span of life and deadens the sense of moral sensibility, and

Whereas, The church by virtue of its moral and social mission must ever be an avowed enemy of the liquor traffic in every form, and

Whereas, Licensing the liquor traffic places the government as a participant in the crime of making drunkards, a defender of the greatest enemy to the home and to the individual, and tends to make drinking respectable by such sanction of the law, and

Whereas, The prohibition law has made the liquor traffic an outlaw and has proved to be more effective than all plans for liquor control heretofore, and

Whereas, Prohibition has increased the safety of life, reduced crime and pauperism, decreased alcoholic insanity, and has given us a generation of youth who have never seen a legalized saloon, and

Whereas, Prohibition has done all this and infinitely more in spite of the subtle and sinister propaganda of the Association Against Prohibition, the subsidized daily press and movies, corrupt politicians, and the presumptuous and farcial Literary Digest poll in their fight to repeal the law for the purpose of giving the liquor traffic free rein in its effort to damn youth and promote its corrupt practices in politics, and

Whereas, Our nation, with prohibition, is far better off than the nations without prohibition, and as these days of all days demand sober thinking and sober living, it would seem contemptible to be calling for beer when millions are calling for bread; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Middle Georgia Association of Congregational and Christian Churches endorse the position of the General Council at Seattle on this question, and notwithstanding the fact that the enforcement of the prohibition law is not satisfactory that nevertheless we believe the principle of prohibition in dealing with the liquor problem is right, the possibilities challenging and unlimited, and that observance and enforcement of the prohibition law and not repeal are the need of the hour, and be it further

Resolved, That we urge the maintenance of the prohibition laws, while redoubling education in church and school concerning the physical, social and economic evils which result from the use of alcohol.

THE W. C. T. U. REPLIES.

John D. Rockefeller's statement against prohibition will be answered by the Womna's Christian Temperance Union all over the country this summer, particularly in county fairs where the women will exhibit a series of posters answering the charges of the oil magnate against the Eighteenth Amendment.

A large edition of these posters has just left the presses of the W. C. T. U. publishing house at Evanston, Ill., and are being sent rapidly throughout the country. The posters are simple and direct, six in number, in large readable type:

"Drinkers—Not Drys—Make the Gangster!"

"Prohibition Has Outlawed the Biggest Competitor of Legitimate Business!"

"Personal Liberty Ends Where Public Safety Begins—A Drink May Cost a Life!"

Two other posters illustrate the Census Bureau figures reporting a nearly 50 per cent reduction in alcohol death rates under prohibition; and the government statement that drinking has decreased 65 per cent.

The remaining poster is based on the report of the National Education Association of a tremendous increase in high school enrollment largely due to bettered home conditions under the Eighteenth Amendment.

Women of the W. C. T. U. intend to make the Rockefeller statements an issue in every county, carrying their educational work through the churches and educational institutions.

The peace of him that has lived near to God is like the quiet, steady luster of the lighthouse lamp, startling no one, ever to be found when wanted, casting the same mild ray through the long night across the maddest billows that hurl their crests around the rock on which it stands.—Frederick W. Robertson.

Kind words do not cost much. They never blister the lips. We never heard of any mental trouble arising from this quarter. Though they do not cost much, they accomplish much. They make other people good-natured and produce their own image on men's souls, and a beautiful image it is.—Pascal.

METHODS CORNER

BY REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.

Miami Beach, Fla.

If anyone is to become enthusiastic over a movement of any kind he should know what it is all about. He should know the goal, the purpose of operations. And this is true of our missionary endeavor. In the beginning we said that the old motive of saving men from perdition had been largely given up. There must be another reason. We have been listing reasons for engaging in missionary work, and there are many of them. We are not going to repeat them here, but refer the reader who has not been reading these "Corners" in order, to the previous seven papers.

As I see it, we are endeavoring to build up the kingdom of God on this earth. That is we are endeavoring to aid in the development of a race of friendly men who will live the brotherly life. This means that we have a social aim. Christianity is more than a sentiment, more than a creed, more than the fitting of souls for eternity. This is important, to be sure, but we desire to take Jesus at his word. We wish to bring peace to the world. A part of our program is to promote peace. We wish to rid the world of everything detrimental to the physical, mental and spiritual life of the people. We desire to destroy illiteracy and to do away with strong drink. We would do everything possible to make the children of the world healthy and happy. We would do all in our power to rid the world of disease. We would banish superstition and in its place put knowledge. We would make all working conditions wholesome and help all people to work and earn a living wage. And we would teach them the love of God and the Golden Rule and the Lord's Prayer, the program of Christianity as Jesus presented it and we would like to see the principles of the Sermon on the Mount practiced by the followers of Jesus.

This is some program, surely, and some people feel, naturally, that it is way beyond the purpose of the church. However, this great program is what catches the imagination of youth and in the name of Christ they enlist for the great crusade. It is the greatest task in the world—it challenges all our powers. And, of course, we can never accomplish it all in our age, but it is glorious to have some part in it now. Our little efforts, no matter what they be, have their places and will count in the long run. If we cannot go ourselves we can send. We can give to the cause.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. W. STALEY C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

W. C. WICKER

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

VACATION.

Editorial Correspondence)

Hendersonville, N. C., August 13, 1932.

One of the joys of vacation is the privilege of reading, at leisure, what one has wanted to read, but could not because there was so much else to do—and to read. This scribe has a fondness, a loafing, lazy indulgence, in fact, for history. It is a sort of hobby which he feels he can't hide so much when business presses or duty calls. But let vacation come! Then how sweet, and how swift, the hours spent with peoples who lived, labored, laughed, played their little part on the stage of action, centuries ago. The reason for this is apparent. If you live with people now living, you must keep step, be up and about, listen and be listened to. On the other hand, pick up your Gibbon, your Greene, or better still, your Plutarch, and the people are all silent now whom they write about—and you don't have to hurry, neither do you have to talk or be talked back at.

Some of them have waited a thousand, two thousand years, for you to get acquainted with them; and they are ready and willing for you to wait another thousand years or so if it suits your indolence and convenience. People in history who lived and died a millenium or so ago are not in a hurry any more. They are with you, and fit in, on a vacation, because by now they have learned to wait, don't mind waiting in fact, until you go walking, or riding, or sleeping. They will be right there where you left them, and will be just as ready when you return, to give you their wisdom, or folly, as they were yesterday, or last year, or last century.

I was reading yesterday of the Spartans by Plutarch, peoples and events accruing eight hundred and twenty years before the beginning of your Christian era—twenty-seven hundred and fifty years ago. Now, these Spartans, though two and a half milleniums dead, have a message for us. Lycurgus, their Moses (Law-Giver), prohibited the use of gold and silver as money, and substituted iron instead. He said iron was so heavy the financial wizards and money grabbers would not try to hoard it; and then the people could give themselves to seeking wisdom, culture, character, instead of breaking their necks and wrecking their nerves trying to get rich and lord it over their fellows. Now let the ancient Plutarch tell in his own seasoned language what happened, and from this we will see how this little Greek city-state endured for more than six hundred years and produced warriors, scholars, statesmen who are still teaching the nations and influencing the whole human family. We quote:

"Upon the prohibition of gold and silver, all lawsuits immediately ceased, for there was now neither avarice nor poverty amongst them, but equality, where everyone's wants were supplied, and independence, because those wants were so small. All this time, except when they were in the field, was taken up by the choral dances and the festivals, in hunting, and in attendance on the exercise-grounds and the places of public conversation. Those who were under thirty years of age were not allowed to go into the market-place, but had the necessities of their family supplied by the care of their relations and lovers; nor was it for the credit of elderly men to be seen too often in the market-place; it was esteemed more suitable for them to frequent the exercise-grounds and places of conversation, where they spent their leisure rationally in conversation, not on money-making and market prices, but for the most part in passing judgment on some action worth considering; extolling the good, and censuring those who were otherwise, conveying, without too much gravity, lessons of advice and improvement."

And so Lycurgus bred a citizenship on iron instead of gold, on the exchange of ideas instead of the exchange of silver, on culture rather than covetousness, and thus produced a State whose prowess, courage, patriotism, have never been surpassed, if ever equalled, since that far distant date of nearly three thousand years. When an inspired writer in our Bible said, "The love of money is the root of all kinds of evil," he was evidently thinking of avarice, greed, gambling, inordinate desire and passion for that which passeth with time and robs man of his soul.

I am living among the high hills these days. They endure. They abide. They defy time and embrace eternity. And so, like the Spartan character, they reveal the soul of their Creator, laugh at the follies and fancies and foibles that fade with the day. Thus, I am not taking any more vacation than these hills are, for they seem just to rest, and renew their youth and keep cool and composed all the time. Who ever heard of a hill getting weary, a mountain getting restless, or a peak getting nervous? God dwells among the hills, and shows His might, majesty and eternity here.

J. O. A.

PROVIDING FOR THE FUTURE.

A devout widow in one of our Christian Churches wrote THE SUN's editor recently: "My estate is not large, but after I am gone I want it used where it will do the most good in the name of our Lord. I shall, therefore, will it to Missions, believing that in this way it will do more than in any other to help build up his kingdom on earth." The most needy and pitiable people on the earth are those who are without the privileges of the Gospel of the Son of God, and so when one decides to help give, or send, the Gospel to others, in that act one is doing the divinest and most unselfish deed that one can do. This widow has, indeed, chosen wisely, for years after her voice is silent in death she will be telling through living voices the saving message of her Lord and Saviour.

Recently a prominent and successful business man, and churchman of New England, dying at the age of 80, left $10,000 to the Home and Foreign Mission organization of his denomination, in order that his annual subscription to Missions might be kept up. He was a wise man. "He that winneth souls is wise," and the one object of Missions is to win souls, even those souls who without Missions would die in their sins, never having had a chance to hear and know the Gospel.

In making your will, why not do as this widow is doing, and as this business man has done, namely, provide for preaching the Gospel to others long after you are gone? Could any act be more divine, more unselfish, more to the glory of God and the cause of His Kingdom?

J. O. A.

WEAKNESS (?) OF OUR SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

Every now and then someone writes an article about the weakness and inefficiency of our Sunday Schools. We do not doubt their interest and sincerity, but it often happens that such criticisms are made from the standpoint of old-time schools that no longer exist. The most inefficient school today has, or may have, the very best teaching literature and modern helps. And as a rule the people who teach are lovers of children and are earnest in their efforts to help them. This is half of teaching anyway, and with a teacher who tries to live the Christian life in the community where the children are growing up there is a stimulating background that gives a tremendous personal influence.

Without doubt we should do everything possible to improve our Sunday Schools by grading them, and by using modern pedagogical methods, but more and more it is becoming a conviction that the Sunday School provides an environment, a subtle influence that tells upon both life's outlook and character. Every school endeavors to teach the contents of the Bible to the children. There are the commandments and promises, the Psalms and prophecies, Golden Rule, and working Christian principles. The life of Jesus and the life of Paul are all that. It is possible for a child to know all these facts and yet not be a Christian. A child may have much of this on tongue's end, and yet have missed the best thing the school has to give.

The writer has asked many a teacher what he remembered of his Sunday School life and the answer has come quickly, little or nothing of facts, but each one remembered the teacher and the influence of his or her life upon the pupil. The influence has been lasting. There is something about a happy, efficient Sunday School where good, patient child-loving teachers preside Sunday by Sunday that impresses itself upon child life and it lasts forever.

It should be a privilege to teach in Sunday School, with modern methods, present-day textbooks and school helps, anyone of average intelligence may teach. And it is a fact, the teacher may get more out of it than the pupil. A teacher can multiply himself many times over with a class of interested, open-minded boys and girls. If you have never taught such a class offer yourself and get busy. It is one of the richest experiences the church can give.

E. A. K.

THE CHURCH ON PROHIBITION.

By S. EDGAR NICHOLSON.

Secretary Anti-Saloon League of America.

Can the charge be sustained that in supporting the movement for the prohibition of the traffic in intoxicating beverages, the church is going into a type of politics that is repugnant to its nature and purpose?

The question is no longer an academic one, but is an important factor in the present-day discussions of the Prohibition movement. Unquestionably the continued and somewhat vehement affirmation of the liquor contingent, and not a few members of the church itself, that a distinctly religious body like the church must keep out of politics has been widely confusing.

A letter from a fellow minister in my own denomination, received a few days ago, deplored the entrance of our church into the field of politics," while former Governor Cox of Ohio, presidential nominee on the Democratic ticket in 1920, in a recent public attack on Prohibition, warned the South to send their "political parsons" back home, and keep them there.

The attitude of the church on this question should be determined by two fundamental factors: (1) The nature and purpose of the Prohibition issue; and (2) The character of the realm in which its solution must be determined.

1. Is the traffic in intoxicating beverages in any form a good thing, an asset or a liability, a virtue or a sin, a help or a hindrance to the spiritual life or the best welfare of the nation, of any state, of any community, of any home, of the church itself?

Mind you, I am not asking whether or not individuals may drink intoxicants and remain Christians. That question is only indirectly involved in the Eighteenth Amendment. All too many people have been confused in regarding the liquor problem as a question of habit, to be solved by the adoption and practice of total abstinence principles or by a refusal to become intoxicated. There are others who regard religion as solely a matter of personal salvation, and who fail to understand the extent to which social evils like the liquor traffic re-enforce the power of sin in individual life.

There are not a few who argue that the church can go no further than the teaching of personal temperance or abstinence as a Christian virtue. When an occupied building is on fire, or a flood is devastating vast regions, or a ship is sinking, or a railroad train is wrecked, is the only question that of immediate individual rescue? Rescue work of any kind is always praiseworthy, but in any calamity, is the greater question not that of determining whether or not the disaster might have been prevented, as a basis not only of determining guilt, but of taking steps to prevent a recurrence thereof?

The church today is on trial, not for its theology half so much as for its attitude toward those questions of social behavior, which are so directly reflected in individual life. The church must make it clear in unmistakable terms that it stands for a religion that can be applied to the farthest reach in which evil has taken possession of the human order. To do less is to set a limit on its own faith and purposes.

The liquor traffic—both in the manner of its operations and in the contribution it has made to the use of its products—has always been a chief sinner against man's highest and holiest relationships, and has left behind a trail of ruin, shame and debauchery in every land. Whatever else religion stands for in the way of moral transformation and righteous living, it is incomprehensible that it should not devote itself directly to the problem of the liquor traffic as such. That brings us to the second division of our major question.

2. Is the realm in which the solution of the liquor problem must evidently be determined of such a nature as to debar the church as a religious agency from active participation therein? It is here where the greatest confusion has arisen. The traffic in intoxicating beverages was a creation of the law, first by the rule of common consent, and, later, as its evils multiplied, by virtue of licenses granted by some governmental authority. Either the traffic had to go on or the laws authorizing it had to be changed or withdrawn. From time to time there were changes in abundance, in the hope that regulations and control would lessen or cure the wrongs. But evils multiplied, until after a century and more of solid thinking and planning, the people, by overwhelming action, determined to withdraw their authorization of the agency producing these evils.

Menacing groups are now set upon the repeal of Prohibition. What is the church to do about it? Are ecclesiastical forms so sacred and binding that evil must be given right of way, while the church looks on helplessly and helplessly? When a mad dog is turned loose on the highways, will good advice and teachings of avoidance be sufficient alone to furnish adequate community protection? In an emergency like that which now confronts the United States, is the church, which has assumed the right to be sponsor and advocate of spiritual righteousness in the world, to stand aside, wrap its ecclesiastical clothes about itself, and say in effect to the liquor contingent: "You have taken the Prohibition issue into a realm where we are forbidden to go. Take it and do with it as you will. We will be content to salvage some of the victims from the inevitable wreckage."

The attitude of the general public, including no small part of the church membership, both cleric and laic, would be greatly simplified by learning to differentiate between "partisanship" and "politics." Plainly ecclesiasticism and partisan politics are not compatible. So far as I have knowledge, no denominational body or local congregation has ever endorsed or condemned any political party as such, and for its own sake, or endorsed or opposed any candidate for public office because he was the representative of a particular party. Here the line of demarcation is distinct and unmistakable.

There is also a rather clear line of cleavage
(Continued on page 9.)

Special Combination Subscription Offer!

A special arrangement has been made whereby those who desire to do so may receive both THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for just a little more than they now pay for one of these papers.

Beginning immediately, we will accept subscriptions for the two papers at the price of $3.75 for the combined subscription. This means to SUN readers that for only $1.75 additional they may receive the great wealth of knowledge that The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty brings weekly. Those who are already subscribers for the latter paper may add THE SUN to their list for only 75 cents for the whole year.

You do not have to wait until your subscription to one or the other paper has expired, but send in your subscription now. You will begin immediately to receive the other paper and that which you are already receiving will be marked up a year in advance.

While this offer is open to everyone, it should appeal especially to the pastors and lay workers in the Southeast Convention, and we beg them to take advantage of this opportunity.

It is, of course, understood that under this special offer all subscriptions must be in advance, and must be sent directly to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va., or to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

DEAR SIRs:

Please (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my present subscription one year) to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my subscription one year) to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

(Please mark out the words not applicable.)

I enclose, herewith, check or money order for $3.75 to cover same.

M

Street No. or R. F. D.

City and State

CONTRIBUTIONS

A JOYFUL REFUGE.

They were evidently talking of the delights of the seashore and trying to convince one of their number, who might have been timid, that there is safety and pleasure in venturing into the water. Whatever may have been the topic of their conversation we could not know, but all at once the words came clearly: "Hang onto the life-line and let the waves go over you; you will enjoy it." The words gave me a thrill of joy, for I took them in the spiritual sense and the thought blessed me.

The sea is tranquil at times, with the waves softly lapping the shore, giving a sense of peace, of security, beautiful to behold. Children and grown-ups rest at ease and enjoy its coolness. Again the sea is tempestuous and the waves dash high, bringing destruction to weak crafts, and making even the strong to strain and creak in dismay; then is the time when the life-line is invisible and the beach is deserted. There are also the times when the sea is just rough enough to give zest to the bathers who like to have the waves buffet them and carry them where they will—a delightful pastime and inspiring.

Yes, the sea is peaceful, awesome and inspiring, moody to the extreme. We, as individuals, stand upon the shores of time and watch the circumstances which surround us. Sometimes every thing seems so peaceful and we bask in the enjoyment of the hour with no thought for that which might come to destroy our happy sense of security. Like the parable of the rich man, we too may say to our souls, "rest, eat, drink, and enjoy life." But in a moment of time all may be changed, the billows of circumstance may sweep away every vestige of our security, and our bark may be a wreck of its former self. Then is the time that we look for something to take hold upon which will steady our frail craft.

There is a life-line which spans the space of our time upon earth and links us to the heavenly—Jesus Christ, who came to be our peace through all the storms of life. He is our Rock of Ages, and as we cast our anchor we know it will hold however the storms may sweep, even though they bear away the things which we may think are so essential to our earthly life. The storms may strip us of material things, but they cannot touch the spiritual unless we let go of the life-line.

It has been said that every trial draws us closer to God or sends us farther away. We need not be defeated if we but trust in the Lord and wait patiently for him to work out his plan for us. The Apostle Paul exhorted the Philippians to rejoice always, in fact he called upon all men to rejoice. "The joy of the Lord is our strength." Though the storms of life threaten to overwhelm us, we can still rejoice in the Lord if we are firmly anchored upon the Rock, Jesus Christ.

"Jesus, my heart's dear refuge,

Jesus has died for me;

Firm on the Rock of Ages,

Ever my trust shall be.

"Here let me wait in patience,

Wait till the night is o'er;

Wait till I see the morning

Break on the golden shore."

W.

NEWS FROM THE FIELD.

Commencing Sunday, July 17th, I started a series of revival services at Bethlehem, Alamance County, N. C. Rev. O. D. Poythress, of South Norfolk, Va., assisting. Bro. Poythress did the pulpit work, to the great edification of the church, conviction of the unsaved and unification and confirmation of the believers. And added to this, his altar calls for the unsaved were potent in appeal, freighted with sympathy and dominated with love. The people came to the filling of the large auditorium, and the annexes were opened. They listened in rapt attention to the Gospel messages from this man of the pulpit, in his masterful appeals, to repent, to believe, and to be saved.

Visible results: The church was greatly revived, souls confessed, and nine additions to the church.

From Bethlehem I went to Kallam's Grove, and the following Sunday commenced a revival series at 11:00 A. M. That evening L. A. Wall came and did the pulpit work until Friday night, three services per day. He, too, presented the Gospel in its beauty, simplicity and power, to the delight of God's people. There were confessions from over thirty souls, of whom twenty-two joined the church at that place. I am expecting more to join at my September appointment.

The youngest to join—and there was but one of his age—was twelve years old. His father and mother both professed and joined. Grown men and women, up to fifty years of age and over, came to the altar, plead for mercy, were happily converted, and united with the Kallam's Grove Christian Church. After the close of this series of meetings, the people filled Bro. Wall's car with good things for his larder, besides money for his purse. The pastor left over some things for his car until the next time. Yes, the people of Bethlehem almost crowded Bro. Poythress out of his car with eats for his larder, as well as money for his purse. It is true Christianity that unties the purse-strings more liberally, when nothing else will do it.

Directly from Kallam's Grove I went to, and began a series of services at Mt. Bethel, the fifth Sunday in July, at 11:00 o'clock. Rev. Wall came to my assistance and that evening, under the power of the Spirit, preached the Gospel to the glory of God. And so he did, three times per day, until Friday night, when the series of sermons closed.

May the seed of the Kingdom sown, have fallen on good ground, may it produce fruit to the glory of God, to the unity of spirit and also to the salvation of precious souls for whom Jesus died.

There were some 20 professions of faith, and fourteen accessions to the church. I had received one before, this year, into the church.

Here, Bro. Wall received a nice purse and his car was filled with good things to eat.

May God wonderfully bless all the people of these three churches is the heart's desire of a pastor who loves them every one.

J. W. PATTON.

REVIVAL AT LEE'S CORNER.

Friday evening, August 5th, marked the close of the greatest revival we have had for many years at Lee's Chapel Christian Church in Lee County. God moved mysteriously upon the hearts of men and women. The Holy Spirit descended with mighty power upon the people individually and collectively.

We had Rev. R. T. Grissom, of Fancy Gap, Va., to assist us in our meeting. Bro. Grissom did the preaching for the first week and the pastor, Rev. J. Ray Dickens, did the preaching the second week, while Bro. Grissom took charge of the singing. Bro. Grissom is one of the most consecrated boys of God that I have ever worked with. I have learned to love him, who is only a boy preacher, like myself. As he goes back to his own people in the hills he leaves many, many friends behind who will never forget the bright face and happy greetings, the pleasant smile of the boy preacher, that they have learned to love, and their prayers will follow him.

The attendance was very good, the interest inspiring, and the Lord did great things at Lee's Chapel. There was a great rejoicing when the Lord brought more than sixty to the altar to take Christ as their personal Saviour.

We had ten additions to the church, and are expecting six more later.

Christians have been greatly blessed and the church greatly revived. We want to thank the Christian people for their prayers. They have been answered, and souls have been saved.

I thank God for giving us this revival, which was so greatly needed.

J. RAY DICKENS, Pastor.

PROHIBITION AND POLITICS.

My Dear Dr. Atkinson:

In reading your valuable paper, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, I am so much impressed with the attitude it takes toward Prohibition, I cannot refrain from writing you some expressions of approval.

You are in line with other religious papers, one of your near neighbors especially, Charity and Children. Much responsibility rests upon those who wield the pen in the defense of righteousness. It has so much influence upon those who read and helps to mould character and create the religious stamina of the people. Your position, too, is in line with all national and local religious bodies who, in no uncertain terms, warn politicians of their non-support, if men are nominated who will use their influence to tear down the successful structure made by advocates of temperance and sobriety.

Yet, in the face of all these religious leaders, the conventions of the political parties ignore these warnings, and apparently say, "We can get along without you. The bootleggers, their friends and sympathizers, will help us to ride into office." I can but imagine that his Satanic Majesty is pleased by this procedure, as his greatest agency for the destroying of the spirituality of the people is being boosted.

Men who are marshalling the forces for beer dispensing, know it is but a stepping stone to stronger drink. It is only a compromise, and a bid for votes.

Can any man of conscientious scruples, who will agree to abide by his conscience, after offering prayer to Almighty God, and asking His guidance through the power of the Holy Spirit, say that his convictions are that it is the right thing to do, namely, offer to the youth of the land this soul-destroying drink in the form of beer, or otherwise? I do not feel like such a man can be found in this enlightened country.

I would prefer to see my boy placed beneath the sod, rather than suffer the woes that are set forth in Holy Writ: "Woe unto the man that putteth the bottle to his neighbor's mouth, and maketh him drunken also."

My observation as a citizen of my city for nearly half a century is that intoxication on our streets is rare. Those who are caught in the byways and hedges are not rebuked as they should be.

Go on in your good work, Mr. Editor, and in the end the saying will be, "Thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee a ruler over many."

W. B. BAGWELL.
Durham, N. C.

THE VIRGINIA VALLEY CONFERENCE.

The Virginia Valley Central Conference met with Winchester Christian Church on Wednesday and Thursday, August 10 and 11, 1932. The meetings were presided over by Rev. R. L. Williamson, president of the conference, and the entire session was filled with good things for those fortunate enough to be present.

The annual address was delivered by the president on the morning of the first day, and the writer was unfortunate in not being able to be present until after it was over. We understand that it was well received and did credit to Bro. Williamson and the conference. Dinner was served by the church, and shortly after it was over, the writer with his wife arrived.

In the afternoon the report on Religious Literature was presented by the chairman of the committee, Mr. Alfred Dofflemyre, and pending its adoption, a very excellent address on "Our Publications and Our People," was delivered by Dr. W. P. Minton, of Dayton, Ohio. At the close of this address, Rev. B. J. Earp happened to see the managing editor and his wife among those present and insisted upon them having something to say to the convention. They, together with Dr. I. W. Johnson, Dr. C. H. Rowland, Revs. H. S. Hardcastle and J. G. Truitt, who were also present, having driven over for the day from Massanetta Springs, were accorded the privilege of deliberative members.

After the adoption of the report on Religious Literature, there followed reports on Evangelism and Social Service by Mrs. A. W. Andes and K. B. Hook. These were quite interesting and were spoken to from the floor.

Mr. C. D. Johnston, who was to speak on "Our Orphanage," was detained at home on account of the sudden and serious illness of Mrs. Johnston. This news was received with much regret by those present, and wishes were expressed for her early recovery.

The final report was that on Conference Missions, by the chairman of the committee, Mr. R. O. Rothgeb. After the benediction was received the visitors and delegates went to the various homes to which they had been assigned for their evening meal.

We were sent to the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Oates, on Loudoun Street, and received there a most gracious welcome. At the evening repast, the table was literally crowded with good things to eat. It was, indeed, quite a task to decide which things we should leave, for it was impossible to partake of all.

Returning to the church at 8:00 o'clock that evening, we were entertained by a very fine program by the young people of the church, presided over by Miss Frances Richards, the president of the State Christian Endeavor Union. This was to have been followed by an address by President Leon E. Smith of Elon College, but due to his enforced absence because of an operation, the address was delivered by Rev. F. C. Lester, of Waverly, Va., the chairman of the Board of Religious Education of the Southern Convention. His remarks were timely and to the point, and we are sure that anyone who heard him was more than repaid for their attendance at the night session.

After the night session we returned to the Oates' home, where we enjoyed visiting with them until a late hour, when we went up-stairs to what proved a most pleasant night's rest. After a hearty breakfast the next morning, leaving the good wife in the care of Mrs. Oates, we went with Mr. Oates on a tour of inspection around the city.

At 9:30 o'clock we, in company with Mr. and Mrs. Oates and Mrs. L. F. Johnson and her daughter, again found ourselves at the church.

After the report on Education by Rev. A. W. Andes, who is chairman of that committee, as well as secretary of the conference, we listened to a scholarly and dramatic appeal for Elon College by Rev. F. C. Lester, who again substituted for Dr. L. E. Smith. Mr. Lester was in earnest, and when he is in earnest, few can surpass him in his power of appeal. Immediately after the close of his address, the conference voted to endorse the Elon Dollar-a-Month Plan and instructed the ministers to carry the plan to their churches in an effort to help place the college on a sounder financial basis.

Following this was the meeting of the conference Missionary Society, the report on Foreign Missions, by Mr. R. O. Rothgeb, and a masterly address by Dr. Minton.

The treasurer, Mr. Samuel Earman, made his report, and the conference adjourned for dinner, which was again served in the church.

Immediately after dinner we left for Massanetta Springs, having had a most enjoyable and edifying visit to the Valley Conference at Winchester.

While we were not present to hear the report of the Committee on Nominations, we understand that the same officers were re-elected, as follows:

Rev. R. Lee Williamson, president; Rev. Ben Joe Earp, vice-president; Rev. A. W. Andes, secretary; and Mr. Samuel Earman, treasurer. J. T. K.

THE SECRET ANSWER.

A somewhat whimsical rich man once called to him a servant who was noted for his contented disposition and genial humor. "John," he said, "you have been working for me a long time and never have received more than your board and clothes. Now, how would you like to trade places with me?"

"I don't think I should like it," was the unexpected reply. "You have all the work and worry of your great property, yet you don't get anything more than your board and clothes out of it, either."

John was right. No one realizes so keenly the limitations of merely material things to broaden and enlarge one's life as he who gives his entire life to them. The saddest slaves are those who are bound to the revolving wheels of golden chariots, the wheels of which are forever turning but never going anywhere.—Methodist Protestant-Herald.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4½ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Israel, years old and upward, thro

Nos.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5½ x 3½ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for thee, O living God.
10 Mercy and truth
11 together: righteousness
12 kissed each other.
13 Truth shall sprin

Nos. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¼ x 4½ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.
10 For a day in thy courts is better
11 than all

Nos. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers Nos. 03272x $5.00

OUR LEADER Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 1¼ inches.

Specimen of Type

8 Take the sum of all the years old when he began t

Nos. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark $9.50

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

No. 03255x $5.50

As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1½ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and hand-some Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

PRAYER.

Eternal and Almighty God, how love I thy law, thy word, thy precepts, thy truth. It is my meat and drink, my light, my joy. Our burden is for all men to know God and enjoy him forever. Work thou in and through us, blessed Teacher, that by our labor Christian hearts may come to possess the strength, the blessing, the peace thou so freely givest. Thy Kingdom, O God, is a scepter of equity. For the sake of him who gave himself, teach us stewardship. And may thy Kingdom come. Amen. L.

A COIN CARD RECORD.

(How many pastors have handled their coin cards more successfully than the following indicates?—J. O. A.):

My Dear Dr. Atkinson:

I have been delayed in making a report on the coin cards, because I wanted to make a complete report, and it has been difficult to get a complete check of those who were responsible for the cards. Only recently I sent out a notice to those who had been a little slow in returning their cards, and as the result we received a few more of them. I think, however, that practically all of the cards are in that we can reasonably expect, and I am enclosing herewith our check for $81.50. We put out 92 of the 100 cards you sent us, and thus far have reports on 83, with the enclosed amount of $81.50. I think that is a very high percentage of returns on the cards which we distributed, and I feel very much gratified that we had such a fine response, for it is just that much for Missions which otherwise we would not have received. I am sure that the Mission Board can use this money to good advantage at this time.

Mrs. Hardcastle and the children and I will spend our vacation at a delightful country home near Henderson, N. C. I shall go to the Masanetta Bible Conference for at least a week. We are looking forward to a pleasant and profitable vacation.

With all good wishes and kindest regards,

H. S. HARDCASTLE.

Suffolk, Va.

STEWARDSHIP.

If I have strength, I owe the service of the strong;
If melody I have, I owe the world a song.

If I can stand when all around my post are falling;

If I can run with speed when needy hearts are calling,

And if my torch can light the dark of any night,
Then, I must pay the debt I owe with living light.
If heaven's grace has dowered me with some rarer gift;

If I can lift some load no other's strength can lift;
If I can heal some wound no other hand can heal;
If some great truth the speaking skies to me reveal,

Then I must go, a broken and a wounded thing,
If to a wounded world my gifts no healing bring.
For my gift God gives to me I cannot pay;
Gifts are most mine when I most give them all away.

God's gifts are like his flowers which show their right to stay

By giving all their bloom and fragrance free away.

Riches are not in gold or land, estates or marts;
The only wealth worth having is found in human hearts.—Author Unknown.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS. WEEK ENDING AUGUST 13, 1932.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 3,154.62
Lawrence Memorial Bible Class, Elon College (N. C.) Sunday School.....	3.97
Noon Day, Wedowee, Ala.....	1.30
Ebenezer, Raleigh, N. C.	1.00
Randleman, N. C.	1.00
Ingram, Va.	3.00
Lanett, Ala.	2.50
Zion, Sanford, N. C.	1.05
Mt. Bethel, Summerfield, N. C.	.66
Newport, Stanley, Va.	1.43
Suffolk, Va.	25.00
United Christian, Lynchburg, Va.	3.87
Smithwood, Liberty, N. C.	.80
Linville, Va.	5.90
Mt. Olivet (G), Dyke, Va.	3.98
Ramseur, N. C.	2.50
Liberty (Vance), Henderson, N. C.	1.42
First Christian, Richmond, Va.	4.48
Ocean View, Va.	3.50
Winchester, Va.	2.83
Total	$ 3,224.81

Individual and Church Offerings.

Previously acknowledged	$ 2,804.43
Friends, Hopewell, Va.	1.00
Sanford, N. C.	1.77
Total	$ 2,807.20

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$ 2,615.99
First Christian Sunday School, Portsmouth	16.72
First Christian Sunday School, Portsmouth	20.00
First Christian Church, Portsmouth	4.00
Total	$ 2,656.71

Coin Card Offering.

Previously acknowledged	$ 245.33
Catawba Springs Sunday School, Apex, N. C.	5.00
Suffolk Church, Suffolk, Va.	81.50
Linville Church, Harrisonburg, Va.	4.00
Antioch Church, Harrisonburg, Va.	3.00
Bethlehem Church, Harrisonburg, Va. ...	1.00
Miss Lydia Creswell, Hook's Mills, W. Va.	1.00
Mt. Olivet (G) Sunday School (The Sunshine Workers' and Young People's Class), Dyke, Va.	4.60
Berea (Norfolk) Sunday School, Berkley, Va.	15.00
Total	$ 360.43

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$19,804.85
Sunday Schools, Regular, August 13, 1932	70.19
Individual and Church Offerings.....	2.77
Specials, August 13, 1932.....	40.72
Coin Card Offering, August 13, 1932....	115.10
Total to date	$20,033.63

J. O. ATKINSON, Mission Sec'y.

AMERICAN BOARD ENDS YEAR.

The fiscal year of our American Board begins August 31st. The books for the year actually close September 8th.

1. Apportionment gifts to what we are accustomed to call our foreign missionary service have decreased in five years $347,553 and already this fiscal year shows a net loss in total receipts of more than $150,000.

2. After severely cutting each item of expense at home, and reducing the work abroad, the accumulated deficit on September 1st, last, was $162,000 and a careful estimate of increased deficit to date places the amount at not less than $125,000 more.

3. Forced to desperate action by present conditions, the Prudential Committee has now ordered that, on the basis of present financial conditions, within one year six stations and six institutions must be closed, and 68 missionaries withdrawn. Directions to this effect, and information to the missionaries have been sent to the various stations and comprise the most tragic message ever sent from the Homeland to the workers overseas.

In order to do our part in meeting this emergency, we are earnestly asked to give the matter such immediate consideration as will result in the regular apportionment of our churches being paid in full up to August 31st, so that the American Board may receive its share. Then, if in addition to such share, something can be added to the regular giving, it will be heartily welcomed. In this way the special needs of our overseas work will be advanced, and those of the Homeland also cared for.

A CASE OF SITTING TIGHT.

"It seems to me that this is a time when the Christian and liberal forces must sit tight until the flurry is past and more sober reflections of nations at large indicate a different course," said Harold W. Hackett, treasurer of the Japan Mission, Kobe, Japan, as he spoke of the way in which Japan's recent actions have brought about almost universal criticism from the world. This consideration, however, seems to have succeeded in boosting nationalistic feeling. "After the Jerusalem Conference the Japanese leaders who returned were imbued with the idea that Japanese Christianity itself must contribute something definite and forward-looking to the world-wide Christian enterprise," points out Hackett. "Today they are almost inarticulate in their own land, but I do not believe they have in the least surrendered the ideal and undoubtedly the present difficulties and trials will only emphasize the needs of their most earnest efforts toward their own country. There are many individual Christians and liberal thinkers who are thinking, and thinking straight these days. We are certainly living in an interesting time and place and the next five years may be vital ones in this part of the world. It is easy to condemn Japan but the harder, and undoubtedly the more important job, is to befriend her with every possible influence that will shape the future in more peaceful ways."

VOLTAIRE'S NURSE.

The story is told that a French nurse was called upon to wait upon a dying Englishman. She promptly asked: "Is he a Christian?" "Yes, a very devout one. But why do you ask?" was the reply. The nurse replied: "I waited upon Voltaire as he died, and I would not for all the wealth of Europe witness the death of another infidel." This seems to confirm the saying that "Infidels live, but do not die;" and another saying, "There will be no infidels in hell." One who denies God all his life invariably renounces his unbelief when he comes to die. And in hell no one will be doubters of the wrath and vengeance of God! You are yet to hear of the one who has trusted Jehovah and his Christ till the end, and in the end renounce that trust and hope. And you have not yet heard of the infidel who did not express fear in the face of death, unless he was snatched suddenly by death and not given time to renounce his infidelity.—Paisley.

A VITAL PROGRAM AT PLEASANT HILL.

By REV. EDWIN E. SMITH.

"I went to a party once with a crowd of country fellows like myself. We had a great time. When they brought out a fine, big cake and cut it and passed a big piece to one of those boys, he wanted to express how he felt. But he was not good at talking. What he managed to say was: 'This is just what I need.' That's the way I feel. This is just what we've been needing."

So said a man to a crowded schoolhouse full of his neighbors at the close of a week-end "Chautauqua," the seventh we have held this summer. The three nights and two afternoons had included two demonstrations on the best uses of garden vegetables, with stress on eating for health; a demonstration in home nursing; two addresses on practical, immediate phases of better farming, one by the Pleasant Hill teacher of agriculture, one by the county agent; a health program by local boys and girls, coached by one of our extension workers; play and story hours for the children; a program of magic by an accomplished amateur magician; quartet music by Pleasant Hill young people—all enforcing the theme of the opening address, "Live at Home and Make Home a Great Place to Live."

That has been our theme for months. Meeting after meeting has stressed the need for every family to grow its own food and store it for winter. Quantities of garden seeds were distributed to families that could not buy their own; 59 big family packages supplied by the Red Cross, 70 more provided by the gifts of friends. Men were aided to make federal farm loan applications. We pushed in our region the county agent's project of growing vegetables for market to be sold cooperatively. More than 2,000 fine baby chicks were distributed in a credit plan. We have handled the distribution of Red Cross flour over a wide area. Pig-chains to help boys start raising pure-blooded hogs have a long waiting list of boys. Now we have a summer worker, a high school home economics teacher, to do home demonstration work for women and girls, with special emphasis on canning vegetables.

"The children cannot go to school unless we can get clothes for them." A succession of callers who have walked for miles and a stream of laboriously penciled letters tell the same story. "There isn't any work. We can hardly get food, let alone clothes." Conditions get worse and worse as more and more men lose what little work they have had. For a year and a half we have worked with school teachers and other leaders in numerous communities and have helped keep a good many boys and girls in school. One extension worker, an experienced and able woman, is giving her time to this work this summer, calling on families in many communities to learn actual needs, and working to get women to sew for the children of their own neighborhoods. The women in one community have been meeting each week to sew, while a fine start has been made in other places. We are in a position to do a very constructive piece of work if we can only secure materials: cloth (or clothing that can be made over), thread, buttons, etc. Even one bolt of cotton goods—domestic, shirting, print, or the like—would make a very helpful contribution to a community. At present prices it can be secured for a very small sum.

The "Gulf," the deep gorge through which the Caney Fork River works its way out of the mountains, is a great place to hunt and fish, a far-away place to live. Church, Sunday School, and even day school, are too far away from a large part of that narrow valley to be often attended. This summer came our chance to do some continuous work in the Gulf. Late one dark night we deposited Harry Wellons in Mobrey with good company to guide him the rough six miles from there. They would send a wagon back for his bulky equipment—material for Sunday School, young people's meetings, church services, and vacation Bible schools, and text-books, pencils, paper, chalk, and improvised blackboards for an informal day school. The neighbors helped Harry make a meeting-house out of an old saw-mill shack. He walked four miles each way to hold a vacation Bible school at Bethesda, farther down the Gulf, with the aid of volunteer helpers. Sunday School and other services are prospering.

The Gulf is one extreme; perhaps the place where the nineteenth Bible school of the summer is now being held is the other. Ravenscroft is our largest mining center. 120 boys and girls have been crowding the Bible school there. In between are a great variety of places—mining towns, country villages, schoolhouses on the highways, scattered neighborhoods far off in the hills—each a situation of its own. The work must be adapted to the needs of each place. If only a handful of boys and some of their mothers attend in the afternoons, as at Flatrock, night sessions may attract a throng of young people from far and near.

The work of the vacation Bible schools rejoices our hearts. The program, prepared especially for us by a leader of unusual experience, is the best we have had. Already something like 600 boys and girls have been in regular attendance. Bright-eyed Geneva, aged ten, "toted up the water for the washing" the night before wash-day, so that she would not have to miss a day from her beloved Bible school. Such stories are frequent. Certificates for regular attendance and seals for the second or third year of attendance are eagerly awaited when the closing program of each school is held, with a large part of the community in attendance.

There is no time to tell of scout activities, rich with meaning for the boys of numerous communities—two workers who are Eagle Scouts and one a Life Scout, have made this part of the work better than ever before—nor of 4-H Club work for girls and work with children of surrounding communities that we plan to do in preparation for the Community Fair, nor of our hopes for at least brief camps for both boys and girls, with all that such experiences would mean for them.

We ought to tell of the regular religious activities—Sunday School, church service, Christian Endeavor, Girl Reserves, and children's club at Pleasant Hill; preaching at six other places with large attendance; weekly Bible study and prayer service at DeRossett; weekly young people's meeting at Eastland. If you could only see the crowd of young people that gather for any meeting, even if it means walking miles, you would feel something of the challenge we face.

Needed the year 'round, this work is possible in summer because workers are available. What a company it is this summer—thirteen in all—teachers, college students, our own Academy young people. Berea, University of Tennessee, Smith, Nebraska Central, Guilford (N. C.), Penn (Iowa), North Carolina College for Women, Greenville Teachers College (N. C.), and Milligan (Tenn.), are represented. Possessing a surprising array of abilities, they do an astonishing amount of work as if it were fun; and the material return is barely more than maintenance. What they are meaning in the lives of folk is beyond calculation.

A fine company of local young people has co-operated with these workers. Here is a real cause for rejoicing. At one time twenty were helping in the Bible schools that were going on; the total is much larger. More than one Bible school has been brought into being by them, they have done most of the work in several, and they are leading in other activities.

Like others in these times, we wondered last spring whether it was possible to go ahead. If ever we could do anything to help people live, now was the time to do it. But how? The generous gift of one friend put an end to that. There was nothing to do but start out to try to help meet the increased needs and opportunities. Other friends sent encouraging help. It has cost a good deal and the summer is only half over. But we are hoping that the friends who have made this work possible in the past and many new friends will want to have part in this best summer of all.

WHAT IS THE MATTER?

One author has intimated that the Roman empire failed because it became tired! It was weary of building, colonizing, reconstructing, and of practicing the "old Roman virtues." This may point a warning to America. In the World War the people were exalted, idealistic, strenuous. Following the armistice they found themselves reacting. They were spiritually and nationally bored. They were fed up with excitement and sacrifice. They were, as one has written, "sick of duty to humanity." Isolation became an obsession. Intense intolerance persecuted broad-mindedness. Provincialism flourished. The people seemed to wish to get out of everything that extended beyond American shores. Foreign missions especially suffered. Reforms and reformers were ridiculed. An orgy of sex literature, unwholesome brooding, and conversation with disregard for former restraints and conventions was started. Love, marriage, fidelity, modesty, self-control, prohibition, religion—all were smirched, at least in attempt, by those who sneered at former standards and limitations. Many motion picture reels made the people callous to embarrassment. It seemed that many women and girls lost the power to blush. Cocktails and cigarettes were deemed evidences of smartness. Law-breaking was excused. Certain groups of youth became reckless. In loud speaking or cynical writings it became something of a fashion for God to be forgotten, to be disobeyed, or to be denied. He was made, not a heavenly Father, a Creator, but an impulse or fancy within ourselves.

It is not poverty alone that is the matter. That is evidence of far greater and deeper wrong and misery. It is godless living in pleasure, spending, voting, in brutelike indifference, and greed towards others; in "man's inhumanity to man." It is forgetting God! That is what is the matter. The nation that does that will perish.—Exchange.

THE CHURCH AND PROHIBITION.

(Continued from page 5.)

within the field of non-partisan political activity. Many issues possess no direct moral status and affect spiritual life little, if at all. Evidently, the church as such has no function to perform here. In the writer's opinion, however, no religious body can ignore its plain obligations to any human problem that greatly affects private or public morals, and consequently man's spiritual life, even though its operations carry it into the realm of the sort of politics I have just defined.

It is a crime against the highest and the best in human society to permit the advocates of the liquor traffic to drag the determination of the Prohibition issue into a field from which the church is to be barred. Religion has the right to be heard in any forum that concerns the moral and spiritual betterment of mankind.—The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."
REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, Waverly, Va.

YOUNG PEOPLE IN ALABAMA.

July 28th to August 4th was a great week for young people of Congregational and Christian Churches in Alabama. Choice persons from the churches of that area met at Southern Union College, Wadley, Ala., for a week of fellowship and training in order that they might become bigger and better persons and increase their efficiency as workers in their churches. The number was only about twenty, but the quality was the best.

At the first evening program the group worked out certain agreements as to conduct, or rules, which were to be followed while at Wadley. It was interesting to see how careful the individuals were to stick to those agreements. I have never seen a more cooperative group. If this same spirit goes back into the churches, Alabama will surely be blessed by such lives.

Dr. Ensminger, Miss Dorothy French, Miss Lillian McKee, Miss Annie Campbell, and Miss Marguerite Davison won their way into the hearts of the students by their friendly guidance in the search for truth and the best way to live. The writer was richly rewarded by sharing with a class in the study of the life of Christ and the whole group including the Summer School of the college in chapel services which were made up of worship, talks and discussions.

Unless I miss my guess, both teachers and pupils will remember for many days the happy moments of friendship, the beautiful visions of life at its best, and the rewarding time of worship were shared at Southern Union College, and we shall all be the better and happier because of those experiences. Often will we say, "Is that the Christian thing to do?"

By vote of the group the school for next year will begin on July 27th and close August 3rd. Plans were made for a larger group next year to share in this soul-developing experience.

YOUTH FELLOWSHIP IN THE VALLEY.

The young people of the Valley of Virginia Central Conference met in connection with the Annual Conference at Winchester last week. The Wednesday evening program was in charge of the young people and was led by Miss Margaret Richards, president of the State Christian Endeavor Union. Miss Richards, ably assisted by the young people, led the Conference in worship that was richly rewarding.

Information concerning Missionary and Christian Endeavor Societies was given by the young people. In the absence of Dr. L. E. Smith who, because of sickness could not be present, the writer had the pleasure of speaking to a choice group of young people and members of the Conference on "Our Heritage and What We Can Do About It."

After the evening service the Winchester young people entertained the entire group at the good home of the Hook brothers. The games, good-fellowship, and ice cream brought much pleasure into the evening and made the adults ready for sleep. But the young people were still wide awake and convened a business session of Youth Fellowship. Reports were made, plans discussed and officers elected. This group is young in the work, but they are seeing visions of what can be done and they are eager to undertake for Christ and the church. Some of them will work through Christian Endeavor and some in other ways, but all will join hands and hearts as a Conference group in seeking to develop better people and better churches.

Officers elected were, president, K. B. Hook, of Winchester; vice-president, Alfred Dofflemyer, of Elkton; secretary, Miss Margaret Earp, of Harrisonburg, and secretary of publications, Miss Irene Headley, of Winchester. With this fine list of enthusiastic workers it is certain that the Youth Fellowship in the beautiful Valley of Virginia will move forward. So may it be, and God bless them.

PROGRAM.

Following is the tentative program for the First Annual Session of the Youth Fellowship, of Congregational and Christian Churches, of the Western North Carolina Conference, to be held at Hank's Chapel, September 4, 1932, at 2:00 o'clock, P. M.:

Theme: "Youth's Present Day Calls to Service."
Call to order President
Invocation.
Song Service
Worship Service Mr. Rowland Farrell
Welcome Address Mr. Ralph Riddle
Response.
President's Message Rev. Carl R. Key
Special Music.
Address, Purpose of Youth Fellowship.
Business Session.
Recess, (10 minutes), Planned Recreation.
Special Music.
Address, "The Call of Youth" Rev. E. C. Brady
Roll Call of Churches.
Report of Committees.
Installation of Officers.
Closing Service Rev. Carl R. Key
(Note.—There was a mistake in the location of the place of meeting. Hank's Chapel Christian Church is east of Pittsboro, in Chatham County, about three miles out on Highway No. 90. Don't forget the place, and come. We hope to have a complete program for the next issue.)

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS MEET.

"QUALITIES OF A CHRISTIAN."

The leader should invite young people who are home from school to take part in this discussion, making all the necessary preparations and have the program outdoors if desired.

Select hymns which suggest qualities of Christian living. Ask members of the group to repeat favorite Bible verses for your Scripture reading, and let the leader conclude by reading Romans 12:9-18 and Philippians 4:18. "O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee," is an appropriate prayer hymn. Pause after the singing of each verse for silent prayer. After a moment or two have a soloist sing softly the old hymn, "Take My Life and Let It Be," and the prayer hymn, "More Love to Thee, O Christ," or "Draw Thou My Love, O Christ."

From the reading of Romans 12:9-18 we can see plainly several qualities of Christian living as set forth by Paul. These qualities are of immense value because they grew out of years of Christian experience by Paul and his companions. The members of the society may be able to add some other qualities. Some of Paul's qualities of a Christian may be listed as follows:

Love.—Not only Paul, but Christ, emphasizes love in Christian living. Even the Bible is a book of love; God himself is love.

Faithfulness.—Faith is one of the qualities of Christian living. It helps us to believe. It helps us to dispel all fear. It helps us to be still and know that there is a God, who has kept men's souls from utter ruin and despair.

Hopefulness.—This characteristic seems to be closely related to faith and love. But we must certainly hope for "greater things than these," and mention them to God in our prayers. In other words, we must "hitch our wagon to a star." Paul says in his letter to the Corinthians that love is the greatest of these first three qualities.

Kindness and Meekness.—It is evident that these two are closely related. And a kindly deed, a friendly word, cheerfulness, and a smile help a lot. It reminds us of the old adage: "A friend in need is a friend indeed." And the Beatitude says: "Blessed are the meek for they shall inherit the earth."

Consistency.—It seems that most people will not depend on the other fellow if he is not consistent. Dependability, trustfulness, etc., goes a long way in most instances.

Patience.—A man without patience is almost as ungovernable as a ship without a rudder. Our emotions have a lot to do with our conduct, and must be kept under control at all times.

Hospitality.—Every Christian home always has an air of hospitality about it. If man is Christian, possessing many of the other characteristics, he is sure to be hospitable.

Honesty.—A man or woman cannot be Christian without being honest. A Christian never covets his neighbors' property, consequently, dishonesty could not hide in a Christian heart.

Temperance.—For many years America has been known as a Christian nation, but if we add this to the qualities of Christian living, under present conditions we are no longer Christian. However, we can not speak from the standpoint of whiskey, beer and wines alone. The Scripture says, "Be temperate in all things."

Questions for Discussion.

"What is the most important mark of a Christian? Going to church? Prayer? Unselfishness? Interest in the welfare of others? What?"

"How may we test our own Christianity? How may I know whether the qualities of my life are Christian or not?"

"Are some people more Christian than others? How?"

"How far can one judge the Christianity of another?"

"Can one be a Christian and not believe in Foreign Missions? Why?"

"What is the relationship between church membership and one's being a Christian? Between church attendance and Christian qualities?"

"What answer do you think Jesus would give to the question: 'What are the indispensable qualities of a Christian character?'"

"Is America a Christian nation? Why?"

"What is the way to build up a Christian world? What part have young people in achieving this goal?"

"How can one live up to his Christian ideals?"

Closing Thought.

An old Bishop said one time: "What I can do, I ought to do, and what I ought to do, I must do, and by God's help, will do." Can one say it this way: "What I can be, I ought to be, and what I ought to be, I must be, and by God's help, I will be."

The greatest privilege in all the world is building a Christian life with God's help, and with it goes the honor of partnership with him in helping others grow in Christian qualities of living.

How can our society help us to measure up to this trust and task?

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. STANLEY C. HARRELL.

GIFTS FOR BUILDING THE TABERNACLE.

LESSON IX—AUGUST 28, 1932.

LESSON TEXT: Exodus 35:4 to 36:7.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Honor the Lord with thy substance, and with the first fruits of thine increase."—Prov. 3:9.

TIME: B. C. 1491.

PLACE: Near Mt. Sinai.

The thirty-fourth chapter of Exodus intervenes between the lesson for last Sunday and the lesson for today. It is taken up with explanations of certain of the Ten Commandments, and with things pertaining to religious ceremonies and duties. The chapter closes with a most interesting account of the way the face of Moses shone when he came down from the mountain after his forty days of communion with God.

As the lesson for today begins, the time had come for the preparation of a place of worship to which all the people might repair, and in which all the people would have a part. Up to this time religion had been mainly a matter for the individual and the family. But God was planning to make a great nation of the children of Israel. And it was God's plan that the unifying power that should draw and hold the people together should be religion. It was more than that, however. They were to be a nation organized and administered according to the commandments of God.

God gave to Moses specific plans for the building of the Tabernacle, even down to the materials that were to be used in every part of the building. The Temple which Solomon built at Jerusalem many years later was built according to the plans which God gave to Moses for the building of the Tabernacle. The Temple was much larger and was built of more substantial material. The Tabernacle was intended to be taken down when the camp was moved and was set up again as soon as camp was pitched for a season.

God commanded Moses that the people be given an opportunity to contribute that which was necessary for the building of the Tabernacle. All sorts of materials were to be used, from the most costly precious metals, down to the coarse cloth woven from the hair of goats. There were no requisitions made, and no assignments of that which should be given by any individual. It was to be entirely voluntary on the part of the individual whether he should give or not, and what he should give. God desires only willing service and free-will gifts.

The very plan of the building made it possible for everyone to have a part. The rich could bring their offerings of gold and precious stones, while the poor could bring that which was just as necessary, but which was within the reach of their humble means. Those who were too poor to make contributions of materials might give of their labor. And if an individual were a skilled workman his labor would probably be more acceptable and important than if he had contributed material.

It may have been necessary because of the limited means of many of the people that this plan should be followed. But no other plan could possibly have done more to bind the hearts of the people to the place of worship. It belonged to all those who had a part in the building, no matter how humble that part may have been. Many people say they are too poor to have a part in the work of the kingdom. But those who are really poor cannot afford not to have a part in the Lord's work. The rich can buy the pleasures of this earth. But there is no other place where the poor may secure such rich returns for his meager investments as in the Kingdom of God.

The way that the people responded to this call for free-will offerings is one of the finest things to the credit of that company that came out of Egypt. They gave so lavishly that soon there was enough and more than enough for all the needs. And the commandment was sent forth that nothing else should be given. It had never happened before, and so far as is known to this scribe it has never happened again that people had to be restrained from giving for the support of a religious enterprise. We sometimes talk as if there were nothing commendable in the lives of those that God led out of Egypt, arguing that it was necessary for God to wait until they had all died off and a new generation had been raised up. But the new generation was the children of those who had been slaves in Egypt. And while those that died in the wilderness were surely lacking in many things; they had some of the foundation virtues upon which to build. This magnificent liberality was one of the foundation virtues upon which God was building a great people.

One cannot help being impressed with the contrast between these ex-slaves and many Twentieth Century church members. Hard times is a sufficient excuse for many church members to turn down any appeal no matter how worthy it may be. Here were men who were receiving their daily bread as a direct gift of God, but knowing this fact they were still willing to give liberally and lavishly. We, too, are dependent upon God for our daily bread, though we may not acknowledge the fact; but many of us are unwilling to relinquish that which we have in our hands or in our pockets for fear that we may starve.

At the foot of the rainbow is a pot of gold, says the fairy to childhood. And to the dreams of youth the fairy's story is a joyous truth. But the search for that illusive pot of gold becomes a vain quest. Yet the child of dreams in quest of the treasure at the foot of the rainbow is far richer than the miser who hugs to his bosom a pot of the yellow metal, but is devoid of dreams and in whose sky is no rainbow of promise and of God's unfailing mercy. If compelled to choose between the two, give us the world of dreams rather than the sordid things of life with no bow in the clouds.—North Carolina Christian Advocate.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 $\frac{7}{8}$ x7 Inches, and 1 $\frac{3}{8}$ Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75
India Paper Edition, Size 4 $\frac{7}{8}$ x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00
Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold.....$1.60

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 $\frac{3}{4}$ x7

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.50

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges$6.00

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 $\frac{3}{4}$ x5 $\frac{3}{8}$ Inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 $\frac{3}{4}$ x5 $\frac{3}{8}$ Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps$2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 $\frac{3}{8}$ x8 $\frac{1}{4}$ Inches and 1 $\frac{3}{8}$ Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold$4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold$3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond Virginia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."—II. Chron. 7:14.

MONDAY.

THEY TOLD ME OF JESUS.

"They all speak of the glory of thy kingdom, and talk of thy power; to make known to the sons of men his mighty acts, and the glory of the majesty of his kingdom."—Ps. 145:11, 12.

This scripture refers to all the saints of the Lord. Christendom believes that the time will come when all the saints will do this very thing, yea, when "every knee shall bow and every tongue shall confess that Jesus is Lord."

But we question very seriously that all saints are such witnesses today. Thousands are silent witnesses, and by their silence are hindering the progress of salvation.

Has anybody ever been saved except by some saint telling others of Jesus? This was the only way in the pre-Christian era when the prophets spoke the word of God and the people told one another. It was the way in Christ's day when they who were saved went and told others. Is it not the way and the only way today?

For instance, ask any Christian why he is, or how he came to be, a Christian: would not the answer be the story of the Sunday School, and the Sunday School class, and the teacher, and this fact: "They read to me the Bible and told me of Jesus, and I believed."

If it was not the Sunday School, it was some one who told them of Jesus.

This is an appeal for every Christian to tell others of Jesus, and let the life speak louder than the words. If all Christians would do this, what a difference we can imagine it would make.

Prayer—Our Father, make us Christians that shine. Wilt thou make us true and make us light, and make us thy saving children today and for life. O God, have mercy—forgive our sins and bless us. Amen.

TUESDAY.

A CHRISTIAN WITH THE WHOLE PERSONALITY.

"I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service."—Rom. 12:1.

The completion of creation did not satisfy God. Creation was good, but it lacked something. Something better was to be done. Creation could not share in goodness; it takes a living soul. Creation could not share in God's likeness; it takes a living soul. Creation could not share in God's wisdom; it takes a living soul. Creation could not share in God's holiness; it takes a living soul. Heaven and earth were filled with the thought, the majesty and the glory of God, but this was not complete; it takes a living soul to complete his glory. Therefore, God said, "Let us make man in our own image." Thus, the making of man in God's own image makes it possible for creation to have added to it love, joy, peace, goodness, longsuffering, gentleness, meekness, holiness. His likeness.

This perfection does not come by any outward appearance of conformity, but by an inner life endowed with spiritual life; with reasoning power to think above nature; with power to commune with God; with power to rise above sense, time, and material; with a pure heart; and the whole church challenges us that God may dwell in our hearts.

Salvation then, is not putting man in God, but putting God in man. It is not putting man in heaven, but putting heaven in man. It does not tell us to be good and get to heaven, but to do good and thus make the world good.

To do this takes the whole personality down to the last wink of the eye, for the wink of the eye, or the shrug of the shoulder may be false and sinful.

Prayer—Our Father, we acknowledge that the day is all ours—all that thou art is ours, and we want to be all thine. Make us thine own this hour, this day and forever. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

HE COULD NOT BE FOOLED.

"The Pharisees went out and held council against him, how they might destroy him. But when he knew it, he withdrew himself from thence."—Matt. 12:14, 15.

The number of people who tried to trick Jesus would make an interesting Rogues' Gallery. However inventive and clever, something always went wrong in their plans. The innocent Galilean peasant was too keen to be trapped.

Christian people need that same power of apprehension: To love folks as Jesus did and believe in their possibilities, but at the same time to have the power to plumb a straight line in every step of life. Often we fall for everything told us, or else we are cynical and believe but little. Jesus was neither.

We cannot hope for this power of Jesus to the extent Jesus had it. But we certainly can have the wisdom and prudence of the guileless. We certainly can embrace truth and honesty that has no false alternative. We certainly can have faith and "add to our faith virtue, and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; to temperance, patience; to patience, Godliness; to Godliness, brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness, charity. For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ." (II. Peter 1:5-7. "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask God, that giveth to all men liberally—and it shall be given unto him." (Jas. 1:5.)

Prayer—O Lord, our God, as we examine our own wisdom, we are nothing. What we have comes from thee. Grant unto us the blessing of thy wisdom to be as wise as a serpent and as harmless as a dove. Amen.

THURSDAY.

UNANSWERABLE LIVING.

"He answered them well."—Mark 12:28.

"No man was able to answer him a word."—Matt. 22:46.

In both these instances, Christ had answered argument, and with such sheer common sense, truth and love, that there was no come-back. They were speechless. There was nothing else to be said.

Can we so live the truth, the life, God's love, and with such common sense, that no one can lay any charge at our door? If God's word is true, we can. If what we know about the security and power of an honest, upright, truthful, loving life is true, we can. Here is what he says: "What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, love me only, and walk humbly with the Lord?"

"Christ is the end of the law." (Rom. 10:4.)

"The fruit of the spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance; against such there is no law." (Gal. 5:22, 23.) All of these anyone can live.

The secret of such a life, however, is first in Christ-like living, and then (as He) to the point. These Christian traits explain the nature of God, the meaning and the destiny of life, and the goal of human effort.

Prayer—O Lord, our God, we all see the beauty and glory of the Christ-like life. We all want that kind of living. O, why do we all not have it? God help us; and compel us to this consecration and bestow upon us this Christian power. Amen.

FRIDAY.

FALLING AND NOT FALLING.

"Did they stumble that they might fall? God forbid."—Read Romans 11:1-12.

A certain lady once fell from a balcony that was under construction some twelve feet to the floor. She was uninjured by the fall because she was very lame and had had many falls, so that she had learned to fall in the easiest way.

If person finds himself falling forward, he should not throw up his hands, but throw them forward, so that his arms will form a buffer between his body, especially his head, and the earth. If he is falling backward, his head should be raised, his arms thrown out, so that he may fall as flat as possible but prevent hitting the ground with his head.

Of course, the ideal for the spiritual life as for the physical, is not to fall at all; but if temptations are pulling us downward, we must so live that a fall will not be a fall. Peter, for instance, fell, but soon rose again, having sad memories, but a soul still unharmed and the wisdom to give his followers, and all Christians to come after them, the admonition, "Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall." Judas, when he fell, plunged to the death of his soul. The prayer for the tempted Christian ever is, "Lord, I believe thee; help thou mine unbelief."

Prayer—Yea, Lord Jesus, may we never fall when we fall. If, sinning, we hate sin, the devil has no real grip on us, but if we love sin, then do we sin indeed. Save us, O Christ, from the love of sinning. In thy name. Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

SATURDAY.

COURTESY CARDS.

"Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamor, and railing, be put away from you, with all malice; and be kind one to another."—Read Eph. 4:25-32.

One of the annoyances of motoring is the great diversity of regulations as the traveler passes from town to town. The signals are overhead or on posts. They are at the right or the left or in the middle and the rules for parking are different in each town. When a motorist, as is inevitable, fails to observe some of these multifarious rules, he is likely to be "bawled out" by a policeman, and perhaps haled before a judge.

But we are becoming more civilized. In some towns, when a car from another State is observed wrongly parked, a "courtesy card" is fastened to it, politely stating the automobile rules of the city. These courtesy cards make friends for the place.

(Continued on page 14.)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

THE MOST FUNDAMENTAL WORD.

A MISSION SERMON.

(Reprinted from an old issue of THE SUN.)

Not the Saviour's "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature," but his "Come unto me and drink," is the greatest missionary text in the Bible. "Go" is fundamental to missions; but "Come" is yet more fundamental. Before you can "go," clothed with power, you must "come" in broken-hearted humility. Before the saint can obey the great commission, the sinner must yield to the great Commander.

A young college graduate, "Praying Hyde of India," as today he is known, on the day that he sailed as a missionary to India, found in his cabin a letter from a bosom friend of his father—a fellow-minister whose life had been consumed with a passion for missions. The purport of the letter was this: "I shall not cease praying for you, dear John, until you are filled with the Holy Spirit." Hyde crushed the letter, threw it in a corner and stamped out on deck. He was angry, he did not like this implication that he was not fitted for his work. As he paced the deck, the battle raged within. But slowly the conviction bore in upon him that he was not fitted for his work. He went back to his cabin, got the letter, smoothed it out, and reread it. Days passed—still the battle raged. He could stand it no longer. His father's friend was right. He needed a baptism of power. As he prayed, he resolved at whatever cost to be possessed of this heavenly gift. Prostrate before his Lord, he sought his face for an infilling of his Spirit.

India will never forget "Praying Hyde." So mighty was his ministry, so fruitful, so far-reaching in its holy efficacy, so irresistible, so marvelous that a great deepening of the spiritual life of the Church ensued. Rivers of living water flowed from his innermost being. To have him present at a convention was to have the pledge that the windows of heaven would be opened and the Spirit of the living God poured out.

Hyde almost made the fatal mistake of "going" before first "coming." He knew a lot about Jesus, but he did not know Jesus. The form of godliness was his, but not the power thereof. If, arrested by a searching letter, he had not first "come" and waited in lowly fashion at the Saviour's feet for an infilling of His spirit, his "going" would have meant far less to India.

If our "going" is to be effective, our "coming" must be a perpetual recapitulation, a never-ending process. Only God dare say, "I am that I am." When our efforts to serve, whether on the mission field or at home, in the pulpit or in the slums, or however it may be—when our efforts to serve, I repeat, are not preceded by a sincere coming of Jesus for a fresh infilling of His spirit that in our service we may impart the very life of God, we act as if we were, we say in effect, "I am that I am," and of all the lies this is the most heinous. Man's very breathing ought to remind him that he is forever receiving. In the face of his overwhelming insufficiency and utter dependency, what could be more blasphemously silly than his pride?

Because I came to Jesus a year ago, I am not, therefore fitted to preach Him today. Because last month I received from Him power, I am not, therefore, in a position to do miracles in His name today. Because last week He poured His love into my heart, that does not make it possible for me, in the present moment, to communicate the heavenly flame to others. I must always "come" before I can "go."

Frank Boreham, in his "A Handful of Stars," tells of a teacher who had lost his way in one of the great desert areas of Australia. In vain he searched for water. Desperate, he cast himself under a tree. He could go no farther. His faithful dog gazed at him sadly through glazed eyes while his parched tongue hung from his jaws. The traveler fell asleep. When he awoke, a great change had come over his dog. His eyes sparkled. He leaped playfully about, indulging in every conceivable dog hilarity. In a few moments he dashed away, and upon his return was yet more boisterous. The traveler summoned what strength remained, and when the dog again dashed away, he followed. What was his joy when the dog led him to a spring of clear fresh water. He drank. He was saved.

Dogs are exceedingly smart, and we know that many a dog has saved his master. But the natural supposition in this case is that the dog just went for more water, while his master followed. He followed because he saw that the dog had found water. The dog's joy, his playfulness, his pranks, his vivacity, these told the story in a way in which no language could have told it. It wasn't that. What happened after that was a perfectly natural and one, might say, inevitable consequence.

In our effort to get famishing souls to the spring of life, the one thing necessary is that we ourselves drink. We must first come—we must find—we must drink, and we must drink every time thirst returns. In the great crusade for world redemption, everything hinges upon that. The Samaritan woman could not have done otherwise than what she did after the discovery at Jacob's well. She drank, and the very surge, the very throb of the new life carried her all aglow to Samaria to tell the story. If we will but drink, the rest will take care of itself. If we will just do that, souls will be saved, regardless of everything else. We may not be able to go to a foreign land, we may never have much to say—but elemental forces, cosmic forces, divine life, a heavenly mien, God's own spirit will work and woo and win. What was it that made the apostles irresistible? It was the fact that they were drinking from the fountain of everlasting life, and that they were all unconsciously the conductors of the rivers of God's grace.

James Chalmers, the great apostle of light who ushered in a new day for New Guinea, as a boy delighted to romp and play by the shores of the sea close to his home at Inverness, Scotland. Altogether unmindful of spiritual things, he squandered his time adventuring in the lagoons along the beach. One night his attention was arrested by a text. Friends had induced him to attend a revival meeting. The wondrous text reverberated in his inmost soul.

Years later, Chalmers was killed on the island of New Guinea, where his life had been spent in the preaching of the gospel. "Greatheart," as they called him in that far-off island, was literally eaten by cannibals. It was found that a text, a precious text, had through the years been the lodestar of the great missionary's very existence. He had lived by it. It had been through the years the source of his strength. It was constantly before him. The darkest night of trial and suffering—and he passed through many—could not dim its luster. It was the same text which as a boy brought him to Jesus. "And the Spirit and the bride say come. And he that heareth let him say come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will let him drink of the water of life freely."

Chalmers came and kept on coming. He drank and continued to drink. He came to know Jesus and came to know him better and better. Deeper and deeper the roots of his life penetrated into the rich soil of Christ's love. What was there to keep him from triumphing over all obstacles, overcoming all obstacles, overcoming all things and winning multitudes for the kingdom?

That marvelous career of "Greatheart," the glory of which shall never fade from New Guinea, was a perfectly natural consequence of the fact that Chalmers never wearied of coming to Jesus. —World Call.

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses	$7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses	6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses	6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10.....	2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10.....	2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim.....	1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses	$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85.	11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85...	16.00

Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling)	$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90..	16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.	14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....	$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim.....	9.00
Filler—Silver Lined.....	6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

An easy job can always be accomplished without much effort. But it always takes perseverance to accomplish something that is difficult. Last year we put up a lot of pasture fence and took in right much land including branches that had grown up in thickets filled, with bramble briars and all kinds of briar. It was quite an undertaking to clear away the briars and bushes and the weather has been hot. But the boys have tackled it with a vim and the work is practically finished. No easy task.

When we undertook the first of the year to collect enough Octagon wrappers to buy a refrigerator plant for our milk house, we knew it was not an easy task at all; but for the sake of our little children we undertook the task. Our people have responded beautifully and at the time of writing this letter we just lack 5,200 of having enough to pay for the outfit. If everybody will come to our rescue right quick we will soon have the undertaking finished and we will all be very happy.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON.

REPORT FOR AUGUST 18, 1932.

Brought forward $ 9,331.96

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:

Mt. Bethel, August and July.....	$ 2.75
Longs' Chapel	1.70
Berea	5.00
Happy Home	2.40
Lebanon	95

12.80

Eastern North Carolina Conference:

Catawba Springs	$ 7.71
Cary	1.85

9.56

Western North Carolina Conference:

Burlington	$ 3.14
Ramseur	3.57
Pleasant Hill	3.80
Hank's Chapel	5.00
Liberty	1.44

36.95

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Rosemont	$ 6.95
Suffolk	30.00
First, Portsmouth	21.73
First, Richmond	4.81
Berea, Nansemond	10.00

73.49

Valley Virginia Central Conference:

Mt. Olivet (G)	$ 6.20
New Hope	1.16

7.36

Alabama Conference:

Pisgah	$ 2.11
Noon Day	1.05

3.16

Special Offerings.

R. J. Miller, support of children.....	38.10
--	-------

Total for week	$ 181.42
----------------------	-----------

Grand Total	$ 9,513.38
-------------------	-------------

FAMILY ALTAR.

(Continued from page 12.)

Thus let us go through life handing out courtesy cards. If some one is doing what he should not do, there is a pleasant way of setting him right which keeps him right, and there is an ugly way which merely confirms him in the wrong.

Prayer—There is no doubt which is thy way, our Saviour, and so which is the Christian way. May we walk in love, and thus daily walk with thee. Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.

SIN HIDING SIN.

"Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred shillings, and given to the poor?"—Read John 12:1-8.

Judas, as John tells us, made this sneering comment on Mary's lovely gift to Jesus, not because he cared for the poor, but because he was the thievish treasurer of the Twelve, and would have pilfered Mary's gift if it had been made in money form. John significantly reminds us that this was the Judas who betrayed the Saviour. May we not imagine that the apostle's terrible treachery started at that very time?

How often we commit one sin in order to hide another, or drive another from our thoughts! One is reminded of the owner of an old car who said to his companion, "You don't notice that knock in the engine so much now, do you?" "No," was the reply; "how did you manage it?" "Oh, I just loosened one of the mud-guards."

No one is in so dangerous a condition as when he begins to ignore an acknowledged sin. He is probably smothering it with other sins. When we are riding in a well-conditioned automobile, the least squeak is an annoyance, and must be remedied at once. So should it be in life.

Prayer—Make our conscience sensitive, O thou Holy Spirit! May we never acquiesce in evil. May nothing short of perfection be our goal. Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

Eiters Sunday School Maps.

On a Revolving Adjustable Steel Stand

The first 5 maps
are in Set No. 1,
with stand,
Price $15.00

Set No. 2
8 Maps,
Price $20.00

Fine large Maps, in 6 Colors 36x57, on linen finished Cloth. Mounted on a folding steel stand, which can be regulated, so that Maps may be seen to the best advantage. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Its large print and Cheerful Colors makes this set very instructive and attractive. Contains the five thoroughly up to date Maps necessary to the study of Bible History.

New Testament Palestine, — Old Testament Palestine, — Roman empire and Bible Lands, showing Pauls Travels by Colored lines. — Lands of the Old Testament, from the Great Sea, to the Persian Gulf. — The Exodus, Egypt, showing by Colored lines the wanderings of the Israelites.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN,

1536 East Broad Street, Richmond, Virginia.

ALL
SELF-
PRONOUNCING

Holman Testaments

COMMAND
ATTENTION
AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2 5/8 x 4 1/2 inches

Specimen of Type.

AND the third day there
was a marriage in
Cana of Galilee; and
the mother of Je'sus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles.....	$.50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles.....	.60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....	.85

2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges.....	.70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....	.90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges.....	1.10

13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges.....	.90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included.....	1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2 1/4 x 3 1/4 inches x 1 1/2 inch
The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller. It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength. One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2 1/4 x 3 1/4 inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2 The three wise men

carrying away into Babylon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Bab'ylon
unto Christ are fourteen

ing interpreted is, God
with us.

24 Then Je'seph being raised from sleep did as
the angel of the Lord had

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....	$1.00
5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included.....	1.50
5016PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms.....	2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET
SIZE
3 3/4 x 4 1/2
inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type

CHAPTER 23.

THEN spake Je'sus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3 3/4 x 4 1/2 inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms.....	$.90
---	--------

4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....	1.35
---	------

4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included.....	1.90
--	------

4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....	1.50
---	------

4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms.....	3.00
---	------

4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red.....	3.25
--	------

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print

Pica, 16mo. Size, 5 3/4 x 7 1/4 inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines.

It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

Specimen of Type.

THE book
of Je'sus

2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included.....	$1.50
--	--------

2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included.....	2.95
--	------

Same Large Print as Above
---------------------------	--

RED LETTER EDITION
--------------------	--

3813PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included.....	3.10
--	------

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

MARRIAGES

GORE—BUSH.

On June 25, 1932, Mr. Tyler M. Gore and Miss Kathleen Bush came to my home and were married in the presence of a few friends.

They are from Front Royal, Va., although the bride has spent some time in Dayton, Va., and is a graduate of the high school there. They have the best wishes of their many friends.

A. W. ANDES.

NEWMAN—PARK.

The First Christian Church, Henderson, N. C., was the scene of a very pretty wedding Thursday morning, at 9:00 o'clock, May 26th, when Miss Lizzie Belle Newman was married to T. A. Park. The ceremony was witnessed by a large congregation of relatives and friends of the contracting parties.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Immediately after the ceremony, the happy couple left for a wedding trip to Washington, D. C., and other points.

They are at home to their friends on Andrews Avenue. Both are members of the Henderson Church, and active workers in kingdom service. Mrs. Park is president of the Young People's Missionary Society and Mr. Park is church treasurer. We wish for them a long, useful and happy life.

R. A. WHITTEN.

OBITUARIES

LINCOLN.

Mrs. Alice A. Lincoln relict of the late lamented Dr. J. E. Lincoln, of Lacey Spring, Va., was born June 9, 1859 and departed this life June 21, 1932, aged 73 years and 12 days.

Sister Lincoln was a woman of sterling Christian character and was highly respected by all who knew her. She held membership with Bethlehem Christian Church, and was faithful to the end.

She is survived by two sons. Funeral services were held at the home, June 23.

A. W. ANDES.

McPHERSON.

William McPherson, aged 82 years, died at his home near Liberty, N. C., July 22, 1932, after an illness of several months. His wife and three children survive him. The funeral services were conducted by the writer, from Pleasant Hill Christian Church, July 24th, and his body was laid to rest in the church cemetery. Members of the Jr. O. U. A. M. had charge of the committal service at the grave. The Lord bless and comfort the bereaved.

P. H. FLEMING.

KIRK.

Henry Clay Kirk was born March 22, 1845, the son of Lewis Jackson and Purity Kirk. He died at his home in Salisbury, July 31, 1932, aged 87 years, 4 months, and 9 days.

Surviving are his widow, Alice Elizabeth Brown Kirk, to whom he was married over 64 years ago—6 children, James Henry Kirk, Miss Josephine Kirk, Mrs. S. E. Davis, John R. Kirk, T. W. Kirk, and Mrs. A. W. Gore. Two children, Mrs. Belle Gardner and William Lewis Kirk, have preceded him to his grave. There are 42 grandchildren, great-grandchildren, and 1 great-great-grandchild, also surviving to mourn their loss. One sister, Mrs. Sara Ann Brown, age 92, of Cooleemee, also survives.

Henry Clay Kirk was a Civil War veteran, serving under Captain Overman. He has been active in the Confederate Veterans' organization, and was a charter member of the P. S. O. A.

He was also a member of the United Congregational-Christian Church of Salisbury, being a charter member and senior deacon. He loved and served in his church until declining health forbade active service.

Grandpa Kirk, or Uncle Henry, as he was fondly known by his many friends and loved ones, was confined to his home during the past five years.

Grandpa Kirk was patient and uncomplaining in his illness, unselfish in his life, and Christian in his conduct. His life was victorious, and so is his death. We should not grieve for him in his passing. The weight of years bore heavily upon him. "He walked with God and He took him."

The services were conducted from the home, August 2nd, by the writer, who was assisted by a grandson of the deceased, Rev. Sam Kirk, Rev. C. A. Rhyne, of the Baptist Church, and Rev. Theron Zimmerman.

WM. T. SCOTT.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

WHITLEY MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 15th. Freshmen register on Tuesday, September 13th, and upper classmen on the 15th. Expenses reduced for this session. Write for Catalog and application blank.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. Associate
W. W. STALEY, D. D. Contributing
S. C. HARRELL, Contributing
C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. Contributing
ELISHA A. KING, D. D. Contributing
W. C. WICKER, Contributing
J. T. KERNODLE, Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When sending subscriptions for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of year.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Through divine and infinite wisdom, which we often fail to comprehend, the all-wise Father having seen fit to take from this scene of her earthly labors our beloved friend and faithful co-worker, Mrs. Florence Miller Brinkley, a true member of this, the Ladies' Aid Society; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Ladies' Aid Society of Cypress Chapel Christian Church, at its regular monthly meeting, July 6, 1932:

First: That we most sincerely recognize our loss in the death of Mrs. Brinkley, whose life was an inspiration, and that we again attest our most genuine respect and love for her.

Second: That our deepest, most heartfelt sympathy be conveyed to the family of the deceased, by a copy of these resolutions.

Third: That a copy hereof be spread upon the Minutes of this society and a copy be sent to "The Christian Sun," for publication.

MRS. C. W. ROUNTREE,
MRS. R. M. JONES,
MRS. F. E. HARRELL.

BOYD.

Sarah Elizabeth Boyd was born July 10, 1881, and passed quietly and peacefully to the spirit world on June 23, 1932, from her home at Carlbrook, Paces, Halifax County, Va. She was the daughter of the late, lamented T. A. Scott Boyd and wife, Eugenie.

THE CONGREGATIONAL LATIN-AMERICAN INSTITUTE AND PILGRIM LATIN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH OF WEST TAMPA, FLA.—

Are helping give the Gosper, which is "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," to the forty thousand Latin people of Tampa. The evangelical forces working among the foreigners of Tampa are by no means covering the territory sufficiently.

Methodists have six preachers, Baptists two, Presbyterians one, Congregationalists one. Church workers and teachers must be supported for this great missionary work. Send check to LESLIE S. BRAY, Treas.

Route 4, Box 468, - - Tampa, Fla.
Send boxes of clothing to Mrs. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

For literature, write Rev. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' EDITION FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear, Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type.
"From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, 'I the kingdom of heaven'"

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 10.65

Early in girlhood, she made a profession of faith in Christ and became a member of the Christian Church, to which she remained true and faithful till she was transferred from the Church Militant to the Church Triumphant. She leaves to mourn their loss one sister, Mrs. Luther E. Carlton, Paces, Va., and one brother, A. W. Boyd, of Chase City, Va. Another brother, I. W. Boyd, Henderson N. C., followed her to the spirit world on July 28th. The funeral services were conducted at Pleasant Grove by her pastor, Rev. H. E. Crutchfield, and a memory that time will not efface other ministers assisting, on June 25, and eternity will make steadfast and immortal. The floral designs were beautiful, mortal.

J. O. A.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

FALL TERM—SEPTEMBER 7

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

Cost for Board, Room and Tuition, including also Entrance, Activity, and Infirmary fees reduced to $273.50 for the College Year. Personal expenses as low as student and parent wish.

All who seek an "A" grade college training for their sons and daughters in an atmosphere of Christian culture, and at minimum cost, are invited to write for the college catalogue and admission blanks.

Address: DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

A Memorial of the Congregational-Christian Union.

FRANK E. JENKINS, Pres. MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD, Dean

Chartered by Southern Christian Convention, June 2, 1922, as Bethlehem College; renamed Southern Union, June 3, 1931.

Will function during the present financial depression as a Junior College only.

FALL TERM WILL OPEN SEPTEMBER 7.

DEPRESSION PRICES.

Depression prices during the coming year, made possible by extensive gardens, careful planning, organization and donations—Tuition, board and room, $192 for entire scholastic year; tuition alone, $48; each payable in six equal installments.

Unsectarian, but thoroughly Christian.

For Information, write—

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXIV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, AUGUST 25, 1932.

NUMBER 34.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

Silk and Hosiery Business Improves.—

During the past week three silk mills and a hosiery mill announced wage increases. These were Southern Silk Mills, employing 225 persons, raising wages from 10 to 12 per cent; Stehli Silk Corporation, employing 1,200 persons in mills at Lancaster, Pa., and Waynesboro, Va., raising wages 10 per cent; Butterfly Mills, Sidney, New York, raising wages 5 to 15 per cent for its 100 employees, and Durham Hosiery Mills, employing 2,000, and announcing a flat 10 per cent wage boost, due to "general improvement in business."

Minus Saturday Ablutions.—

Last Saturday night was Saturday night and nothing else to the inhabitants of Muskogee, Oklahoma. Baths were banned and citizens were warned to draw only water for drinking purposes. Peculiar as it may seem the cause of the ban was too much water. A rise in the Arkansas River, which backed the red waters of that stream three miles up the Grand River, carried them past the city water-intake, and thus reduced the city's water supply so greatly that precautionary measures were necessary. While not so bad off as the Ancient Mariner, there was "water, water everywhere, and not a drop (except) to drink."

Ponder This.—

"New York—The Great White Way, Fifth Avenue, Broadway. A million electric signs, all telling something, all selling something—but not one telling or selling intoxicating liquor. NOT ONE. From the Gulf of Mexico to San Francisco, from the Atlantic to the Pacific—upon thirty-five thousand miles of public highways, not a single bill-board, displaying a single picture, sentence or word, advertising intoxicating liquor. NOT ONE. Millions of young people all over the United States know nothing at all, through advertising, of this or that brand of liquor. The return of beer would open the flood gates of modern advertising to the liquor interests." Weekly World News, Santa Anna, Calif.

Utilitarian Uses for Chromium Plating.—

Chromium plating has utilitarian as well as purely decorative purposes. In machine shops, its value is being recognized. It is said that drills, punches and other tools which are dependent upon accuracy for their usefulness, stay accurate longer when plated with chromium. The plating provides a renewable surface which is nearly as hard as steel itself, and when the gauge or punch becomes worn or inaccurate, it can be built up again to its original size by simply replating it with chromium. This replating process is naturally less costly than the replacement of the tool itself, and where large replacements have formerly been necessary, there is now possibility of great savings in depreciation costs.

The State and Public Schools.—

At the last session of the Legislature of the State of North Carolina, the entire public school system was virtually taken over by the State. At the present time an attempt is being made to forward like action in Virginia. While there may be some advantages in this action, they are far outweighed by other disadvantages, and Virginia is lucky in having for its Superintendent of Public Instruction, Sidney B. Hall, a champion of local control of its public schools. According to statements recently issued, Dr. Hall stands squarely behind his previously-announced policy of State aid and cooperation between the State and the localities in establishing a minimum education program. After outlining in detail the program, Dr. Hall concludes: "By dividing the responsibility of the public school system between the State and the localities, the problem of local self-government is absolutely preserved. . . . Also, the responsibility of control would remain with the localities as it rightly should." Under the program as outlined, the State guarantees a minimum wage for the teachers of every locality, which may be increased as the locality may see fit. The locality assumes all responsibility for buildings, equipment, general operation and maintenance.

Dr. Pierce Accepts Call to Norfolk.—

Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, of Nashville, Tenn., accepted a call to the pastorate of the Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va., the first of this week. Dr. Pierce was formerly pastor of the First Congregational Church, Washington, D. C., but more recently has been dean of the Department of Theology at Vanderbilt University. He has for years been regarded as one of the really outstanding men of the Congregational Church, and those of the Christian Church who have been with him at various conventions since the merger have been captivated by his pleasing personality and genial manner. Christian Temple has enjoyed a period of material and spiritual growth during the past thirteen years, under the leadership of Dr. Leon E. Smith. During that time it has not only erected a beautiful church edifice, but has increased its membership from a few hundred to over twelve hundred. It was only characteristic of the people of this church that they should sacrifice their own wishes upon the altar of the whole church when Dr. Smith was called to the presidency of Elon College. However, we believe that they have found a worthy successor in the person of Dr. Pierce, and we bespeak for him and them an ever-increasing life of service for the church and its Christ. The action of the Norfolk Church is one more link in the final unification of the two great denominations.

Cotton Goods that Shrinks.—

It seems probable that cotton garments that will shrink will soon become a thing of the past. Patented processes for pre-shrinking of fabrics are now on the general market, and it will be hard to sell merchandise which has not received one or the other of these treatments. The first of these processes, known as Sanforizing, is accomplished by an ingenious and elaborate machine, which in the process of dying the fabric, steams it and brings it to a mathematically predetermined length and breadth, representing what technicians call "zero shrinkage"—in plain English to a point where it will shrink no more. Introduced and patented by one of the largest manufacturers of men's shirts in the country, this process is now licensed to various manufacturers and is becoming widely used. Two more processes have recently been introduced, one of which wets the goods and then passes it through a high pressure steam press which removes creases and wrinkles and shrinks both warp and woof. The other has been perfected by a North Carolina company, and offers a process especially fitted to the better grades of cotton goods, especially those which have been mercerized and bleached or dyed. General adoption of one or the other of these processes will materially add to the lowering of sales resistance in the cotton goods industries.

Curtis Against Repeal.—

Vice-President Curtis, in making his speech of acceptance on last Thursday, left no room for doubt as to where he stood in regard to the Eighteenth Amendment. Although he readily agreed that he felt that the people should at all times be given full opportunity to express their opinion on the Constitution or amendments thereto. He emphasized the fact that he personally stood on dry ground. He said: "I am opposed to the return of the saloon, and I am opposed to the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment." We feel, without meaning to put words in Mr. Curtis' mouth, that he links repeal of the amendment with the return of the saloon as cause and inevitable effect. The more we study the question the more convinced are we that this is true. The wet daily press pretends to believe that Mr. Curtis has weakened the Republican cause by his statement, but this can hardly be so, for he is sure to rally more of the even-minded, clear-thinking voters who are not hide-bound to either party than he is to drive away Republican wets. It is a disgrace to either party that Prohibition, which is truly a social and not an economic problem, should become a major political issue. It is still a greater disgrace that one of these parties has gone so far as to force endorsement of absolute repeal upon those who would wish to vote for the economic issues for which it stands.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Remember the opening day of our Elon College this year is Tuesday, September 13th. This marks the beginning of Elon's 42nd year, and should be the best of all its years so far.

Dr. W. Knighton Bloom has been spending a short vacation at Ocean Grove and has now gone to the Isles of Shoales, where he is attending the annual Congregational Conference at Star Island.

President L. E. Smith, of Elon College, has sufficiently improved from his recent surgical operation as to be able to return to Elon College and again enter actively upon the great task that awaits him.

There were sixty-eight present in the Windsor Christian Sunday School last Sunday. Though a small school, it is quite active. The managing editor enjoyed talking for a short while to the Men's Class, of which Mr. J. W. Roberts is the teacher.

In Rev. J. W. Patton's "News from the Field," in the August 18th issue of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, a typographical error spoke of "Rev. L. A. Wall," who assisted in the meetings, whereas the name should have been "Rev. L. A. Nall."

Mrs. C. D. Johnston, wife of Superintendent Johnston, of the Elon Orphanage, underwent a major operation in a hospital ten days ago, and stood the ordeal well. She is improving and indulges the hope that she can be returned to her home at Elon this week.

THE SUN's editor enjoyed a two-weeks' stay in the high hills of Western North Carolina, feels much benefited, not a little refreshed, but glad to be back again at his desk and the daily routine. The joy of vacation is returning home and the privilege of beginning again.

Duncan's Creek recently received thirty-four new members, the result of a revival conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. Carl Parker, assisted in the closing days by Rev. Arthur Swartz. This is a record which excels any other report coming from Georgia in recent times.

The Sardis Church, Rev. T. L. Leverett, pastor, rejoices in the fine work of all in that they recently held a revival, resulting in the addition of nine members to the church. It is said that this result is due to a careful program of preaching, not only at the revival services, but by careful pastoral work—cultivating and building for many months.

We learn with deep regret that Mrs. L. W. Stagg, Norfolk, Va., secretary of the Woman's Missionary Conference, Eastern Virginia, and well known throughout the church, has been quite ill the past two weeks. Many prayers are being offered for her recovery. Last reports are that she is slowly improving, and this improvement will bring hope and cheer to many hearts.

Rev. O. T. Anderson, of Fort Myers, has been appointed by the Rotary International as speaker for the thirty-ninth district on economic subjects. During August an itinerary has been arranged for and he is speaking at the Rotary Clubs in a number of Florida cities. His topics are "What Has Happened to the World, and Why."

"What May Happen in Our World Crisis," and "Banks and the Banking Situation," and "The Morning of International Service."

Rev. Simon A. Bennett writer from Tuscola, Ill., August 15th: "At Craigsville, Mass., we had a very enthusiastic group of young people in the leadership school, about 150 in all, including the faculty. Some have already registered for next year's session. We have been visiting recently with relatives and friends in Indiana and Illinois, but we miss our friends at Elon and the visits of THE SUN. We are expecting to return to Elon shortly." Prof. Bennett is open for engagements as pastor and will be glad to correspond with any church or churches desiring his services.

At the close of August and the Georgia Young People's Conference, Miss Annie Campbell will take a few days of well deserved rest with her father in Winter Park, Fla. She has done a piece of praiseworthy work in planning, carrying to a successful conclusion this first attempt in Georgia to hold a Summer Leadership Conference. Too great praise can scarcely be given her for this heart and brain and body work which she has given to this magnificent initiation of this kind of work in Georgia. If flowers are to be given to the living, let us pass her a floral offering while we may. Here we are "doing it with words."

Passing through Wakefield, Va., last week end, the managing editor stopped for a short visit with Mr. W. H. Hines, who is connected with the local ice company there. In talking over different things, we, as we often do, asked for frank criticism of THE SUN, for we believe that constructive criticism is necessary if our paper is to be continually improved. Bro. Hines had only one criticism to offer, and it is one which we ourselves have often made—there is not enough news from the local ministers. With him, we wonder how the layman can be expected to take interest in a paper, when his local pastor is not enough interested to write for it at least once in a while. Let's see if we cannot correct this fault.

An editor relates this experience recently: "In one discussion, after a farmer had portrayed the disheartening conditions relating to prices of farm products, a visitor made the remark 'that apparently farmers do not know the terrible conditions prevailing in some cities, when every now and then a business man or capitalist so-called leaped from ten and twenty-story windows and ended their lives. A farmer naively replied, 'Our windows are not high enough to do any good.' Then, realizing that undue importance might be attached to this witty observation, he stated, 'We farmers live and work near to nature, and therefore we have a more wholesome outlook on life.' And that farmer told a truth or two worth considering. In return for a lack of money for what he produces, the farmer who keeps his eyes and mind open to facts gets that which no amount of money can buy."

Reports from our S. S. S. workers in Georgia continue to be very successful. The Barnesville Parish reports that the best work done there for some time was done by Miss Mildred Rister, Piedmont College girl. They want her for four full weeks next year. Similar reports come from Friendship Parish where Miss Dorothy Grigsby, full-time S. S. S. leader, is at work, assisted by Miss Dorothy Overstreet, both of Piedmont College, and Miss Bernice Davis, winner of the H. H. Club prize this year at Waycross. The young men, too, are responding to the needs of the communities where they are working splendidly. Du-bois at Macedonia Parish, Swartz at Lovejoy, Duncan's Creek and Center, also assisting at the Georgia Young People's Conference, held at Owen Heights, Zebulon. Williams continues at Columbus and Phenix City with increasing devotion and success. John Chapman is still at Asheville and hard at work on a city program for a city church.

An item of interest to SUN readers will explain why the Suffolk letter is still missing from THE SUN, and at the same time brings the hope that this familiar column will soon reappear. Mrs. Calhoun, writing to the editor under the date of August 17th, says: "Father is improving and gaining strength slowly. He goes for a ride occasionally and sits on the porch several hours each day. He does not suffer any pain from his eye now, but is not permitted to read any." Last week the managing editor was in Eastern Virginia, and on Saturday evening drove with his wife to see Dr. Staley. It was 8:30 when we arrived, and Dr. Staley had just retired. However, he had retired under protest, and was quite ready to receive visitors. It was the first day he had been out all day, and quite a busy day it was. He reported that he felt better than he had felt for over seven weeks, and he certainly looks good. The short visit was indeed a most enjoyable one.

Our heartiest congratulations, three cheers and a hurrah, to our neighbor, High Point College. Like our own Elon, this college has had hard going financially and, with great difficulty has thus far kept open its doors and gone forward with its work. Recently, in order to meet operating expenses for the coming year, it put on an emergency campaign in High Point and vicinity, with a goal of $50,000.00. On August 15th, the last day of the campaign, the college announced that it had gone over the top with $1,017.00 plus, thus raising for operating expenses of the college for the coming year $51,017.00 in the locality of the college. This is, indeed, cause for rejoicing not only among our Methodist Protestant friends, but among the friends of Christian Education everywhere. We most heartily congratulate President Humphreys and Mr. T. Wingate Andrews, leader in the campaign, and the others who co-operated so successfully with them. There are yet those who realize that the church college has its place in the world, and are willing to deny themselves that a college instituted by the church and for the church shall not pass away, but shall live and carry on.

FROM WAKEFIELD, VA.

Beginning August 7th and continuing through August 12th, I was with Bro. J. M. Roberts, at Oak Grove, Gates County, N. C., in a revival service. Then, from August 14th to August 19th I held a meeting at Barrett's. Mrs. Mason, of Lynchburg, was present and spoke at the services to the delight and uplift of a large crowd.

This pastorate has extended me a call to this field for my seventh consecutive year, but I have not decided yet what I will do.

C. E. GERRINGER.

NOTICE.

Any churches contemplating a change of pastor for next conference year within reach of my home, desiring my services, I would be glad to correspond with the same. I have done pastoral work since 1916.

L. L. WYRICK,
Elon College, N. C.

A BABY CHURCH IN A BIG CITY.

(The following excerpt from the 1932 Guest Book will be of much interest to CHRISTIAN SUN readers, particularly since it tells of the labors and achievements of Dr. W. S. Alexander, whose last pastorate before going to Brooklyn, was that of the Elon College Community Church. Dr. Alexander was held in high esteem and beloved by community, faculty and students of Elon College, who will rejoice, and not be surprised at, the victory he is winning in his consecrated ministry.—J. O. A.):

Putting the skyscrapers of Manhattan behind us, we worshipped this morning in a wee church far out in Brooklyn. Why bother to look up a small church in a large city? For the same reason that friends call to see the baby. No one is cast down because infants come small; why should a young church apologize for its slight beginning?

We visited the Hyde Park Christian Church, an ecclesiastical infant in arms receiving financial aid from the Middle Atlantic Conference of Congregational and Christian Churches.

The pastor, Warner S. Alexander, was our guide. Tall, rather spare of frame, but with a kindling smile, Mr. Alexander knows both life and people. He originated in Illinois, farmed, taught, preached, pioneered with several churches and a ranch in Wyoming, served as pastor at Union Christian College, Merom, Indiana, and at Elon College N. C., and graduated to Brooklyn three years ago.

The houses of the Hyde Park neighborhood remind one of soldiers standing at attention, their walls evenly spaced and roofs rising to a common height like the heads of a military company whose members had been chosen for their uniform stature. Mr. Alexander explained, "Our people are the clerks and under-officials of banks and other institutions. Most of them are buying a house on the installment plan."

The church itself proved to be a temporary wooden structure with a brand-new brick addition. "Our enlarged building is a monument to hard times," Mr. Alexander continued. "We needed more room. I discovered that free labor was available from the Emergency Work Bureau, which supplies jobs for the unemployed, and that some money could be borrowed from the 'Revolving Fund' of the New Jersey Christian Conference, and so we built. The trouble with our 'free labor' was that some one had to show them how to work, and the only pace-setter available was the parson. Fortunately, I am no novice with either a pick, shovel, saw or plane."

The little building swarmed with church school children who sang lustily and gave remarkably good attention during the lesson period. The same spirit marked the morning service. The worshippers were obviously neither rich nor very poor, but they were much in earnest. This was their church, they were proud of it, and they intended it to succeed. It was a small-town group in the middle of a large city!

"Are you not over-shadowed by the large churches of Brooklyn?" we asked Mr. Alexander, after the service.

"Not at all," he replied. "We are in a considerable district in which no other churches are located. Some day we will build a real church on the corner, but in the process we will be training men and women of depth and breadth and capacity for Christian service."

NORTH GEORGIA ASSOCIATION.

From the standpoint of a high-grade program, the North Georgia Association, meeting at Trinity Church, near Lawrenceville, was a satisfying success. The minister, Rev. T. L. Leverett, was exceedingly happy in his preparation for the large delegation which filled the church the very first session. Practically every church in the Association was represented. Everybody was delighted with the fine entertainment furnished by the whole community for all, including Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, and others, opened their doors in fine hospitality to all who came.

The opening sermon was given by the pastor-at-large, on "The Purpose of the Church." The opening morning service, August 2nd, included the election of officers, resulting in the choosing of Mr. James Mahaffey, of Macedonia Church, as moderator, and Miss Ruth Lott, as scribe. Then followed three masterly addresses on "The Church in the Community":

1. "Religion and the School," by Chaplain A. G. Axtelle, formerly of Piedmont College.
2. "The Boys and the Church," by Rev. H. B. Mowbray, of Demorest.
3. "Christian Citizenship," by Dean J. C. Rogers, of Piedmont College.

In each address there was noted a steady emphasis on the closer relationship of the church in every activity of the community. Dr. Axtell brought the audience close to personal duties and relationships which stirred the tender emotions of all. He advocated the teaching of religion in our schools from the lowest grades up. We can't begin too early.

Mr. Mowbray, a Boy Scout specialist, dwelt on the psychology of training boys. It was evident that he knows how to lay deep foundations for doing work with boys which will be permanent. His address would need to be read in order to get it. The same might be said of Dean Rogers' address on "Christian Citizenship." He longed for leaders like Washington, Lincoln and Woodrow Wilson and the audience seemed to agree with him. Our problems—local, national, and international, are demanding a larger type of leadership than we seem to be able to bring to the task. Men who are not afraid of losing votes and are willing to suffer for the right they champion. All felt the pull of new challenge and were ready to reach up to it with faith and courage.

Mrs. J. A. Aldrich, of Atlanta, represented the women's work, and gave a thrillingly important program for the churches to work out. Literature was suggested and programs for local meetings outlined.

The Young People's work was presented by Arthur Swartz and E. L. Dubois, our S. S. S. workers now in Georgia. This work was splendidly illustrated both by speech and open conferences in groups.

The second evening sermon was preached by Mr. Swartz, who has just finished his course at Vanderbilt University. It was a very earnest appeal for an active response to the program of Jesus. He said the early disciples began their ministry by passively gazing up to the departing vision of Jesus. But Jesus said, "Go; why stand ye here looking up?" The times demand action, on-going programs, not passive acquiescence in good things, but movement, going forward, conquering.

M. J. SWEET.

TRANSLATING THE GOSPEL.

The Gospel, as it has come to us, was written largely in Greek, and it still remains Greek to many. It has had to be translated into the myriad languages of mankind. Many eminent scholars have devoted their talents to the prodigious task of making the Gospel available to the peoples of the earth.

There is a real sense, however, in which the Gospel must be perpetually re-translated by each one of us today. It is relatively easy for scholars to translate Greek into English, but not so easy for us, who may not be scholars, to translate that English into character and action.

The Gospel is not mere language—it is life. It is not mere axiom—it is action. Jesus, above all, uniquely translated cold principles into warm life. He dared to carry out in his own life eternal principles which remained only impractical theories to others. The task of the modern Christian is, it would seem, to be a translator of the Gospel into terms which mean abundant life to him, and to translate his genuine living experience into terms of character and action which will affect his fellowmen and society in general.

The Gospel needs a fresh translation in each heart, which no scholar can give. It needs a new rendering into the language of the individual soul. It is often easier to know what the ancient words mean than to know what the thoughts involve as we interpret them in our own day.

Jesus made a perfect translation of the will of God as applied to him, and he remained faithful to that translation. Any Christian ultimately has to make his own translation of the Gospel if it is to mean life to him.—Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

METHODS CORNER

By REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.

Miami Beach, Fla.

In writing of the program of Christianity last week, I was reminded of the platform of our church. We have formulated an order for the reception of new members and have included in it a goal for our labors. Perhaps it will be of interest to the readers of this "Corner" if it is reproduced here. It links the church with this great Christian task as we see it. Joining the church is not simply a matter of personal salvation, of individual safety, of spiritual enjoyment. All of these things are bound to enter the thought of membership, but when a person enlists in Christian effort through the church he ought to have set before him a real task worthy of his effort. Not everyone is moved by this outline as I am myself, but it is an honest statement of our idea of the work of the Church. Here it is:

"In presenting yourself before this church you indicate your earnest desire to become one of its members and to enjoy with us the fellowship of the Gospel and to walk with us in all the Christian way, according as God shall make known unto you his will.

"This church welcomes any to its membership who love the Lord Jesus Christ and who propose to live according to his law of love and service.

"While declaring in a general way our steadfast allegiance to the common faith usually held by Evangelical Christians, we feel it incumbent upon us to specifically state that we hold it to be the mission of the church to proclaim the Gospel to all mankind, exalting the worship of the one true God, and to labor for the progress of knowledge, the promotion of justice, the reign of peace and the realization of human brotherhood throughout the world.

"While we believe that the Christian Bible contains the will of God and while we undertake to live according to its teachings in so far as we understand them, we nevertheless believe in the freedom and responsibility of the individual soul, and the right of private judgment, both of which are in keeping with our basic principle of democracy in faith, policy and fellowship."

Not everyone in the church is enthusiastic about Missions, but the church carries an item of a thousand dollars a year in its general budget, so that every contributor does give something to Missions. It would help a lot if the benevolence apportionment were put into the annual budget and paid as other bills are paid monthly or quarterly.

"Every time we break a law of health, we drive a nail in our own coffin."

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. W. STALEY C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

W. C. WICKER

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

A VOICE FROM HEAVEN.

The revelation of Jesus Christ, given by his angel unto his servant John on the Isle of Patmos, is vibrant and vital with a voice. John, from a human point of view, was on a very lonely island, but he was not lonely, for there was a voice repeatedly speaking to him. John cannot tell in human language the penetrating and persuasive power of that voice, but again and again he refers to its utterance, until one feels like it is a voice speaking rather than a pen writing the Book of Revelation. Here, indeed, is a significant utterance of that voice: The scene was heaven, during and immediately following a fierce battle in that holy place. He that is called the Devil and Satan, "the deceiver of the whole world," was cast down to the earth, and his angels were cast down with him and then John heard a great voice in heaven, saying: "Now is come the salvation, and the power, and the kingdom of our God, and the authority of his Christ: for the accuser of our brethren is cast down, who accuseth them before our God day and night." And then John tells how the heavenly hosts and angels of God overcame, conquered and cast out the devil and his angels: "And they overcame him because of the blood of the Lamb, and because of the word of their testimony."

From the day John heard that voice until this good hour in our world's history, the church on earth has been overcoming the devil and his hosts in the very same way that they did it during that war in heaven: "because of the blood of the Lamb and the word of their testimony."

We are getting reports these days and weeks from revival meetings, evangelistic services, of churches built up, of God's people reconsecrated, of souls born into the Kingdom of our Lord. How did that revival come about? What were the weapons in that conflict? The very same that the angels of God used in heaven, viz., "The blood of the Lamb, and the word of their testimony." When a preacher and faithful pastor tells his congregation, in no unmistakable terms, about the power of the blood, the saving power, the forgiving power of our Lord, and when his congregation takes that message to heart and begins to give the word of their testimony and tell others about it, then something takes place in that church and that community. The very same thing takes place there that took place in heaven as it was revealed to John. There is only one power in this world that can overcome Satan and his hosts—drive him out of the church and the community—and that is the power of the blood of the Lamb, and the willingness of those who accept that power as a gift of God in their own lives and are willing to tell about it to others. Our Saviour foretold this when he said (Acts 1:8): "But ye shall receive power, when the Holy Spirit is come upon you: and ye shall be my witnesses both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth."

According to the writer of Acts, this was the last word spoken by our Lord before he was taken up and "a cloud received him out of their sight." And those last words are sealed and made secure by the life he lived, the deeds he wrought, and the death he died. This is that which the voice uttered out of heaven to John and which John declared that he heard. If the written record were all we had in the matter, some might doubt, but the testimony of the saved and righteous through all the ages is unmistakable, and the witness of millions confirms the truth revealed out of heaven to John, and the voice that spoke out of heaven and through him to the world.

J. O. A.

THE "MISSING LINK" IN EDUCATION.

The following is taken from the heading of a book review in the magazine section of the New York Times, for July 21, 1932: "In an address before the recent convention of the National Education Association, the warden of Sing Sing Prison said that the school system had done nothing to mould character, and that there was a 'missing link' between education and character!"

This is a serious indictment for present-day education, coming from one who is in position to speak with some understanding. The warden of Sing Sing Prison handles all sorts and conditions of men and women, and in that number are hundreds who have been educated in colleges and universities. He has observed that education has not built character, and this is that for which education is intended. It matters little how much learning one has, if one has not character with it, it is worse than ignorance. Education is a sharpened tool, and a person without principle or character is far more dangerous and can produce more fatal results than one with a dull and unwieldy instrument.

This indictment from the warden of Sing Sing Prison is one with a declaration this writer heard the warden of the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., made some years ago. This warden said if every member of the faculty of a great university, from president to janitor, or from janitor to president, were to resign, so far as scholarship and intellectual equipment were concerned, he could supply from the Atlanta penitentiary every member of the staff immediately. He had prisoners then with college and university degrees and diplomas that would entitle them to head a great university and to teach in every department of the same—languages, sciences, philosophy, literature, and all the rest.

All this means that getting a college diploma, desirable as it is, is not sufficient. Something more than training and equipment are essential. The one thing needful is character, and it certainly is the function of a college or a university to give such direction and influence to character that it cannot be deflected, when matured, from the way of true wisdom and right living. It was a very wise man who said most truly: "The fear of Jehovah is the beginning of wisdom; and the knowledge of the Holy One is understanding." That education which leaves God out is not really education—is not wisdom—and there is certainly no knowledge as valuable as that of the knowledge of God. Our colleges and schools must supply the "missing link," that link which binds character to culture, learning to life, and that link is a knowledge of God, and the wisdom that comes from him. True education leads us to the fountain of life and helps us to drink from that fountain daily. It was the same wise one who said again: "The fear of Jehovah is a fountain of life, that one may depart from the snares of death." The only real and true education is Christian education, that teaching, training, culture, which brings one to a knowledge of him who said: "I am the way, the truth and the life."

J. O. A.

ORDINATION TO THE MINISTRY.

Regular entrance into the Gospel ministry is through ordination, but this special act of setting aside a man or a woman for the work of the ministry cannot well come until the candidate is sure that he is actually "called" to the ministry. Candidates are sometimes mistaken or are moved by motives or desires not quite in keeping with the holy calling. It is the business of an ordaining council to discover these motives and if it is clear that the candidate has been called of God to preach the unsearchable riches of Christ the brethren may confirm it by the laying on of hands.

Considerable discussion has arisen in recent years as to the object and time limit of ordination. In some quarters young men are ordained for specific purposes and for a limited time. It is a question whether anyone can be ordained to the Gospel ministry for a specified number of months or years. The call to the ministry is a call to service for life. Usually the person so called has had some kind of spiritual experience, a consciousness of a sense of obligation or duty to God and mankind, a longing or a "pulling" of heart that compels one to leave all else and follow this clear leading.

We know, of course, that some men are ordained who cannot give such a clear-cut experience as this, who cannot say, "Woe is me if I do not preach the Gospel." But they do feel and say honestly that they think they can spend their lives best in the ministry, because through the ministry they can be and do the most good. Their conviction is earnest and sincere, but of a rather different type from the other. We ordain such young men and women because of their Christian lives, their noble character, their positive convictions, their evident energy and their personal loyalty to Christ and the promise they give of usefulness in the church.

We ordain them for life. Ordination is a sacred rite, or we so consider it in our churches. It is not, however, a mysterious something that changes the character of the candidate. The men who lay their hands on the candidate's head while the consecrating prayer is uttered contribute little or nothing to the ceremony except their approval, their Christian love and good will, and altogether the ordaining council acts in approval of what God himself has done with the candidate. When we know that the young man or woman is sufficiently equipped for the ministry, has had some experience in actual church work, has some personal knowledge of Christ and has received the approbation of good men and women, then we ordain them to be ministers of the Gospel for life, not for a series of months or years. The Gospel ministry is a life commitment.

E. A. K.

THE GUEST BOOK.

One of the valuable assets of the merger of Christians and Congregationalists is the Guest Book. This is an annual publication which undertakes to acquaint the people of our united constituency with our missions and missionaries at home and abroad. The Guest Book for 1932 is now ready for distribution to Missionary societies, churches, Sunday Schools and individuals who may desire it. It is entitled, "A Journey of Discovery." It presents a panorama of service from the Atlantic to the Pacific, in our own land, and then throughout the world in those lands where we have missions and mission workers: Japan, China, India, Africa, the Near East, the Isles of the Seas. This Guest Book gives us a glimpse—a mere glimpse—of nine of the ninety-seven mission stations of the American Board. A glimpse, also, at the eighty-two hospitals and dispensaries where 1,200 cases are treated daily, of the educational institutions of the American Board, with its 85,000 students in school, including 5,700 enrolled in 39 colleges and training schools. On the journey of the Guest Book, the reader will have the privilege of worshipping with a few of the 705 organized churches on the foreign field, many of which are independent now and self-supporting. As one reads the Guest Book, one is impressed with the spirit of ministry in the name of our Christ our missionaries are manifesting. As we read, we will ask questions like these: Are these missionaries laying their hands upon the sick, touching the eyes of the blind and bringing blessings to little children, as did our Lord when on earth? If not, we will be in a position to criticize knowingly; if they are, why should we not give them our loyal support?

The Guest Book for 1932 gives twenty-one visits with our representatives throughout the world who are seeking with zeal and consecration to hold high the banner of our Lord and to proclaim the good news of his saving power among those who need him most. It is certainly a valuable publication and one that can be had for the asking. It contains twenty-four pages of valuable and very engaging and beautifully printed reading matter. It is devoutly hoped that every church into which THE CHRISTIAN SUN goes, will, through one of its organizations—the Missionary Society, the Sunday School, the Christian Endeavor, or the church itself—order, distribute and read the book. Many claim that they do not help Missions because they do not know about Missions. The Guest Book gives the most valuable sort of information, in that it makes the reader personally acquainted with the missionaries.

J. O. A.

SUNDAY SCHOOL GROWTH.

The World's Sunday School Convention met for the first time in a South American country, meeting this year in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, July 25th to 31st. It was a great gathering, and one which, considered in the light of its modest beginning less than 150 years ago by Robert Raikes, brings home the truth which our Lord gave in the parable of the kingdom of heaven and the mustard seed. In the World's Convention, just closed, there were reports from 113 countries which showed a total of 330,874 schools with 3,294,720 teachers and officers, and 32,014,598 pupils.

During the past quadrennium, there was an increase of 2,294,366 in enrollment, thus giving an increase in Sunday School enrollment throughout the world of more than six per cent. When one contemplates the great army of officers and teachers who go every Sunday without pay, or any expectation of pay, to their work, and who in their labor of love are accomplishing so much in building up the kingdom of our Lord, one is encouraged to take heart and to say with fresh faith that "the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdoms of our Lord and of His Christ."

J. O. A.

A HEAVY DRINK BILL.

Dispatches tell of that Great Britain's drink bill is $25,000,000 per week. This amount, for which there is no return in character, culture, achievement, material, moral or spiritual benefit, about equals the amount Great Britain spends for education, pensions, old age and support of its orphan homes. With this amount of money Great Britain could provide all the milk and all the bread now consumed by her people, pay her war pensions, her police protection, and have nearly $5,000,000 left.

There are those in our country who complain of the high cost on the part of our government for the enforcement of prohibition. The fact is that it costs less than nine cents per year per person in the United States to administer our prohibition laws. And yet, the very amendment that this pittance pays to help enforce closed 170,000 saloons, 1,247 breweries, 507 distilleries and put completely out of business 224 of the 275 liquor cure hospitals. So far as cost is concerned, that of prohibition enforcement is a mere pittance in comparison with that drink bill which is worse than wasted through the agency of the legalized saloon and distillery.

J. O. A.

However high authority lies behind any teaching—church, scholarship, or personality—test it by the Scriptures! The men of Berea after they heard Paul preach went and searched the Scriptures daily to see whether those things were so. They were not going to be led even by Paul. Test all modern preaching by the oracles of God! There is no better way. Charles R. Brown.

Special Combination Subscription Offer!

A special arrangement has been made whereby those who desire to do so may receive both THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for just a little more than they now pay for one of these papers.

Beginning immediately, we will accept subscriptions for the two papers at the price of $3.75 for the combined subscription. This means to SUN readers that for only $1.75 additional they may receive the great wealth of knowledge that The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty brings weekly. Those who are already subscribers for the latter paper may add THE SUN to their list for only 75 cents for the whole year.

You do not have to wait until your subscription to one or the other paper has expired, but send in your subscription now. You will begin immediately to receive the other paper and that which you are already receiving will be marked up a year in advance.

While this offer is open to everyone, it should appeal especially to the pastors and lay workers in the Southeast Convention, and we beg them to take advantage of this opportunity.

It is, of course, understood that under this special offer all subscriptions must be in advance, and must be sent directly to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va., or to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

DEAR SIR:

Please (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my present subscription one year) to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my subscription one year) to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

(Please mark out the words not applicable.)

I enclose, herewith, check or money order for $3.75 to cover same.

M
Street No. or R. F. D.
City and State.

CONTRIBUTIONS

MY PRAYER BOOK.

The little Testament which I carry with me so much has been spoken of as a Prayer Book at different times; and as I have meditated upon the thought I have come to the conclusion that it might be so considered. Though the prayers are not as long and not as numerous as in the Old Testament, yet they may well be patterned after by all men, and must be the heart cry of all Christians.

Early in life we learn the prayer which Jesus taught to his disciples, yet it takes mature thought to realize the deep meaning of the words and phrases. Some times it seems as though people in religious services repeat this prayer merely as a form and not as coming from the heart. Before we can really pray this prayer we must pray the prayer of the Publican: "God be merciful to me a sinner." All must realize that they are sinners in the sight of God before salvation can be obtained, for Christ said, "I am not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance." We cannot say the words, "Forgive us, as we forgive," until we have prayed the prayer of Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane: "Not my will, but thine be done," for it is not human to forgive, only the divine love in the hearts of men can forgive. Jesus upon the cross prayed the supreme prayer of forgiveness for those who had placed him there. Stephen, as he was being stoned, echoed it because the love of Jesus was in his heart.

The prayer that Jesus gave his disciples as a pattern prayer is not a selfish prayer, for as we say the words: "Thy Kingdom come," we should include all men who believe in the saving grace of Jesus Christ and all who shall yet believe. The wonderful prayer of Jesus in the 17th chapter of the Gospel of John is the greatest example of intercessory prayer. The Apostle Paul also gives us an example of intercessory prayer in Ephesians 3:14-21.

Yes, the New Testament is my Prayer Book, for I want all my prayers to be like unto the prayers which are found therein. There are the benedictions or blessings which are found in the epistles: they are also a form of prayer. My favorite is found in Jude 24:25: "Now unto him that is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy, to the only wise God our Saviour, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever. Amen." W.

REVIVALS AT BEREA AND HAW RIVER.

We began our revival meeting at Berea July 3rd, and continued one week. Rev. T. L. Hill, of Colfax, did the preaching throughout the meeting, to the edification of the church and the conviction of the unsaved. His messages were well thought out, forcefully delivered, and as visible results, more than twenty-five surrendered their hearts to the Lord Jesus Christ, and at this time fifteen have united with the church.

The church was greatly revived and we feel that much good was accomplished. The crowds were large and interest was deep.

On the closing night of the service—well, you should have seen our Ford. Pounded? Yes, yes, with everything that a family can use in the way of eats. Space will not permit us to name them one by one. May God richly bless these good loyal folk. They are a great people to serve, and may pastor and people ever stay near to the blessed side of the Lord.

We began our revival at Haw River July 24th, and continued until August 3rd. Rev. O. D. Poythress of South Norfolk, Va., did the preaching throughout, and it is enough to say that he did it, for all who know him know with what power and persuasion he stands up to preach. Not only did Bro. Poythress bless the hearts of his hearers with his sermons, but likewise in song. As visible results a number reconsecrated their hearts to the Lord in service, more than a dozen surrendered to Christ, and at this writing, three have united with the church. During the meeting we ordained three new deacons. We feel that much good was accomplished for the Master in this meeting, as attendance and interest were good throughout the meeting.

The church has recently built a new choir loft and done much work of improvement, which has increased the beauty of the interior, and the best part of it all is that the work is paid for. Well, as at Berea, so at Haw River. On the closing night we had to look a second time to see if it was our Ford, loaded down with provisions until there was hardly room for the driver to sit. God bless these good people, for they are splendid people to serve. May God keep us all by his grace. G. C. CRUTCHFIELD, Pastor.

SALEM CHAPEL.

The annual evangelistic services at Salem Chapel were held beginning with Sunday, August 7th and closing August 12th. The first Sunday in August is always a great day for Salem Chapel when hundreds of members, former members and friends gather for the services. It is on that day that the annual meetings begin, and this year was one of the most successful seen in many years. Some 500 people were present for the Sunday services, and each evening during the ensuing week the house was filled almost to capacity for the services. The pastor, the writer, did the preaching, and many members of the church expressed themselves as feeling that the meeting was the best one held in years. During the week a large junior choir was organized. There were many reconsecrations, several confessions, and five additions to the church, one by transfer and four by confession of faith. Others are expected to join the church on the first Sunday in September.

Salem Chapel is rejoicing in the new arrangement under which they are working. Trinity Parish, in which the new church in Winston-Salem, the church in Salisbury, and Salem Chapel are pastored by the same minister. It is most regretful that conditions have not warranted the residence of a pastor in Winston-Salem long before this.

A branch Sunday School of our Winston-Salem and Salem Chapel Churches has been organized by the writer and members of the Salem Chapel Church, at Dennis, in Forsyth County. There are fifty members and there has been an average attendance of about forty each Sunday since the organization on July 10th. The school meets over a store on Sunday afternoons, and while it is only about two and one-half miles from Salem Chapel Church, there are many little children who are not in Sunday School elsewhere. It is not the purpose of the organization to effect a separate organization, but by the arrangement the work of Salem Chapel and Winston-Salem Churches is extended. We feel much encouraged by the response in this new work.

WM. T. SCOTT.

REVIVAL AT CONCORD.

Our revival meeting at Concord included the dates of July 24th to 29th. The services were all held in the day time with lunch in the spacious grove. The congregation was better in number than last year. There was good interest throughout the meeting.

Rev. J. S. Carden, of Durham, N. C., a beloved minister and former pastor of this church, was with us and did the preaching very acceptably. His messages were highly Scriptural and inspired to a deep interest in spiritual things. Bro. Carden is a consecrated man, and one who loves his Bible and adheres closely to its teachings in his sermons.

He has been in active ministerial work for forty years continuously, yet with age climbing upon him, he still preaches with the same vim and energy that he did when we first became acquainted. We wish for him many more years of activity. We enjoyed his fellowship and appreciate his earnest effort put forth in our meeting.

On Sunday afternoon, Rev. J. T. Underwood, one of our licentiates, brought a very timely and practical message for the day. He would be glad to preach for some church or churches within his reach at Yanceyville, N. C., R. 1.

Many people reconsecrated themselves for a closer walk with God during the revival services. Four made public confession of Christ as their personal Saviour and there were four accessions to the church.

There was a growing interest in spiritual things from day to day. A brotherly feeling was highly evident in the meeting. For all the good done and blessings enjoyed, we thank the Lord and praise his holy name. L. L. WYRICK.

FIRST CHURCH, NORFOLK, HOLDS CONFERENCE.

The Quarterly Conference of the First Christian Church, Norfolk, was held Wednesday evening, August 17th, immediately following the mid-week prayer service, with the pastor, Dr. P. Houlder Brown, presiding. The conference was well attended by members of the church, and the spirit of harmony which prevailed at the meeting was commented on, especially because of the fact that a number of important subjects were brought up for attention.

The election of a Sunday School Superintendent was a matter of interest and importance to the church, and Mr. C. E. Warrington was unanimously elected by the conference to fill this position for the coming year.

Messrs. J. S. Kagey, S. T. Ballard and B. F. Morgan were elected to serve on the Board of Deacons and Mr. W. H. Bell was elected as trustee to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Geo. H. Frey, a prominent and valued member of the church for many years.

Selection of a pastor was the final matter of importance to come before the conference, and Rev. P. Houlder Brown, of Chicago, who has been acting as supply pastor at the church for the past year, and under whose leadership the church has prospered, was unanimously voted as the pastor for the coming year. Dr. Brown explained that he had planned to accept a call for mission work in Chicago beginning October 1st, but that he would be glad to continue as supply pastor of the church for the time being at least. Plans for future activities are being made in all departments of the church, and its members are looking forward to a successful year, and great spiritual activity.

"THE WHOLESOME PERSONALITY."

The above is the name of a book recently written by William H. Burnham, and published by D. Appleton & Co.

So much has been said about the abnormal that it is positively refreshing to have the normal approach to personality development as set forth in this constructive volume by the Professor Emeritus of Education and School Hygiene in Clark University.

It is normal for personality to be wholesome, integrated, insists Dr. Burnham. A correct understanding and employment of mental hygiene which means prevention rather than cure of personality problems, should yield the integrated personality. Parents and teachers are especially in need of the knowledge and technique of mental hygiene—one fundamental requirement of which is that we should never do for a child what he can do for himself. He may not do it as well as his parent or teacher can, but let him do it. In the doing of it is his personality's integration rendered possible.

The essential characteristic of integration, Dr. Burnham conceives to be the power of adaptation or coordinated activity in relation to any situation. Personality is the sum total he insists of an individual's reaction tendencies—the expression of a man's inner life, while character is the expression for what he does. He adds "that the term personality is coming to be used more and more for the totality of an individual's abilities and traits," and he might have added that character is becoming more and more the term to denote the subjection of that totality which personality is to judgment in terms of a standard which the individual or some group accepts as proper or legitimate as a gauge for conduct.

The book's theme, which is emphasized again and again is "that the prime means of preserving and developing an integrated personality is coordinated purposive activity in the doing of significant tasks." (p. 436.) The search for truth is described as the noblest of all tasks. The attitude toward religion is friendly and appreciative, but the treatment inadequate.

The viewpoint insisted on throughout is that personality is developmental, epochal, congruent, articulated, relative, genetic. It is best summarized in this paragraph which begins in page 645: "The vigorous advocates of absolute standards in social development delude themselves and foster their prejudices by assuming that anything in the animal world is bad, that some rigorous distinction between the crude animal and materialistic development and higher social, intellectual and spiritual development exists, that the lower stages must be fought instead of developed into something higher, and that the only salvation for humanity is this conflict against the lower and the upholding of this absolute standard. To some this becomes a life and death principle. Evidence from the genetic facts, however, suggest an intelligent relativity as the only possible hygienic conception."

This is G. Stanley Hall's recapitulation theory under another guise, bereft, however, of its fatalistic elements requiring all stages of the racial experience to be repeated in personal life. There is evidence, however, throughout the book that the thrall of the great psychologist still lingers around Clark University and influences unduly the thinking of some who knew him to love and appreciate. To Dr. Burnham, Hall was a superman.

The wholesome personality is achievable to Dr. Burnham through six fundamental conceptions or principles: integration (the whole organism in relation to the whole environment), a responsible task (the means of integrating the individual personality and unifying the social group), the objective attitude (toward all our problems, including our own age), persistence, freedom for initiative, and the genetic viewpoint.

And just as the task through demanding concentration of purposive attention integrates the individual, so it is the "task that integrates the group." "Purposive activity for the welfare of the family," for example makes it a social integration. And so "the ideal democratic group today is one where each member of the group has the opportunity to become superior in something according to his special ability, and where the leader does not determine the group but merely coordinates the different superior abilities for the common purpose of group welfare."

No book is perfect, nor will any volume satisfy all. Here is an honest attempt to set forth a constructive theory of personality development, leading normally to wholesomeness, to integration. As such, the book deserves a careful and judicious consideration. We need more books that treat life thus normally and constructively. Religious educators can learn much from a volume such as this.

W. A. HARPER.

A believing love will relieve us of a vast load of care.—Emerson.

GOOD CITIZENSHIP.

There were eleven members of the Wickersham Commission. Nine believed that Federal Prohibition has contributed to the general welfare of the nation and that its contribution must be preserved. These nine members declared that it would be a colossal mistake to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment without putting a constructive substitute in its place.

Four other recommendations are also worthy of careful consideration: (1) The saloon must never come back. (2) The Federal Government must not give up control of the liquor traffic. (3) The government must not go into the liquor business. (4) Wine and beer must not be exempted from the amendment.

The Commission found objective and reasonably trustworthy proof of the industrial benefits of prohibition. Quoting from this report: "Increased efficiency in labor; elimination of blue Mondays, and decrease in industrial accidents . . . increase in savings, and decrease in demands upon charities." In addition to these economic gains, the Commission also asserted that "there is general agreement among social workers that (Continued to page 14.)"

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4½ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible
"Take the sum of all the years of the children of Israel, from of old and upward, thro"

No.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine $2.95 Bibles

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5¼ x 3¼ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for thee, O LORD.
10 Mercy and truth have gathered together: righteousness and peace have kissed each other.
11 Truth shall spring out of the earth, and righteousness shall look down from heaven.

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¼ x 4½ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.
10 For a day in thy courts is better than a thousand elsewhere.
a Gen. 15. 1.
b Ps. 136. 1.
c 2 Cor. 1. 1.

No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

OUR LEADER
Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 1½ inches.

Specimen of Type

8 9 "Jē-hōi-ā-chin was 8 years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk $9.50 head-bands and book-mark

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

No. 03255x

As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1¼ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos.
04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and hand-some Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one thick

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

PRAYER.

Eternal and Almighty God, how love I thy law, thy word, thy precepts, thy truth. It is my meat and drink, my light, my joy. Our burden is for all men to know God and enjoy him forever. Work thou in and through us, blessed Teacher, that by our labor Christian hearts may come to possess the strength, the blessing, the peace thou so freely givest. Thy Kingdom, O God, is a scepter of equity. For the sake of him who gave himself, teach us stewardship. And may thy Kingdom come. Amen. L.

THE CALL TO EVANGELISM AND MISSIONS.

As has often been pointed out in these columns, when one tells in person the good news of our Lord to another, and that other accepts and receives Him, that is evangelism—personal testimony for our Lord. When one sends by proxy, or through possession, that same message to another, that is Missions. For the sake of convenience, we use the two terms—Evangelism and Missions—Evangelism being personal; Missions being a sending of the Evangel of our Lord to another in need of that saving message.

A resolution, unanimously adopted by the Committee of the International Missionary Council recently meeting at Hernnhut, gives emphasis to this fact, and declares a truth which CHRISTIAN SUN readers and all of us need to bear in mind, as follows:

"We are convinced that our missionary task is to proclaim in word and life God's revelation and redemption in Jesus Christ. If we have anything to bring in the name of God to a world in need, it is certainly not our own piety, our own way of life, our own modes of thought, or our own human help. What the church has to give in its world mission is the good news of a divine act in history, of the Word made flesh. In face of the powerful anti-Christian forces operating in the world today we reaffirm our faith that the revelation of God in Christ is the only way of deliverance for mankind."

"The world is in desperate need of regeneration. Christianity calls men to a complete conversion of the mind and a radically new life. Our evangelistic task is so to present Christ to men that they will be confronted with the necessity of a real decision. We desire to call the churches and missions to immediate cooperation in a more earnest evangelistic endeavor. Our aim is personal conversion of men to a new life in Christ, to complete surrender to God and to new relations of love with their fellowmen."

MOUNTAIN AND SEA RELIGION.

In summer days many seek the sea or the mountains. Both are exceptional privileges. They speak messages of the Spirit with persuasion. To mind and body they bring healing, rest, and strength. They are sources of unlimited good. The mountain holds the winter snows within its clefts and recesses like embracing arms, until summer heat changes them into streams of water for the valleys and the plains below. The sea ever makes possible the rains upon the parched places and affords wealth from its depths and shores. Both are symbols of God's grace towards his children. His righteousness is like the great mountains and his mercy has the wideness of the sea.

Religion is for the heights. Visions and transfigurations are there with heavenly scenes and conversations. Many times human eyes need to be lifted up to see the silent yet eloquent summits with their slopes often clothed with stately trees, and reaching up to the heavens. For the highest longings and farthest reaching visions, religion is a constant helper.

Religion is for the breadths. All the world is within redeeming love. The "Great Commission" is for all persons, in all lands, in all conditions. It spreads the boundless love of God over all the breadths of human need. It claims dominion over all affairs not to rule, but to redeem them from their insufficiencies and failures. The greatest affairs of today—government, commerce, finance, industry—sorely are in need of religious presence and wisdom. They are failing without God.

Religion is for the depths. Distresses, sorrows, and sins are experiences, deep, deeper, deepest. The waves overflow. The pits engulf. The valleys are low within almost constant shadows. "For Him no depths can drown." He brings deliverance from any gulf or darkness.

For all these—exaltation of joy, depression in sorrow, helplessness in sin—God's daily loving redemption is given. To forget him in the glens and trails of mountains, or on the expanses of the sea, would be a sad mishap. To return from such travel or vacation privileges without stronger faith would be misuse of opportunity.

To those at home, perhaps weary with toil or burdened with worry, the literature of mountain and sea, in the Bible and elsewhere, will bring a refreshing sense of lofty heights and grace sufficient for all depths.

The gospel of Jesus is not an average redemption. It knows no middle class exclusively. It reaches all extremes. It redeems and renews all to the uttermost.—Western Christian Advocate.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING AUGUST 20, 1932.

Sunday School Offerings.

Previously acknowledged	$ 3,224.81
Hines' Chapel, McLeansville, N. C.	3.00
Pleasant Grove, News Ferry, Va.	8.68
Timber Ridge, High View, W. Va.	3.69
Parks' Cross Roads, Ramseur, N. C.	6.15
South Norfolk, Va.	12.58
Franklin, Va.	5.91
Oakland, Suffolk, Va.	3.00
Dry Run, Seven Fountains, Va.	2.09
Third Avenue, Danville, Va.	5.14
Mt. Carmel, Zuni, Va.	2.84
Wadley, Ala.	2.13
Holland, Va.	7.50
Mayland, Broadway, Va.	3.94
Total	$ 3,291.46

Individual and Church Offerings.

Previously acknowledged	$ 2,807.20
Miss Ethel Friddle, Summerfield, N. C., Mt. Bethel Church	1.00
Salem Chapel, Walnut Grove, N. C.	15.00
Mt. Lebanon, Shenandoah, Va.	3.00
Total	$ 2,826.20

Coin Card Offerings.

Previously acknowledged	$ 360.43
Pleasant Grove S. S., News Ferry, Va.	6.00
J. O. Atkinson Missionary Society, Liberty (Vance), Henderson, N. C.	3.00
Linville Church, Linville, Va.	1.00
Franklin S. S., Franklin, Va.	16.00
Antioch (C), Pittsboro, N. C.	4.50

Hayes' Chapel, Garner, N. C.	8.50
Cary Church, Cary, N. C.	3.00
Christian Chapel, Corinth, N. C.	11.00
Shady Grove Church, Ether, N. C.	3.00
Mrs. Jessie Tuttington, Mebane, N. C., Mt. Zion Church	1.00
Mrs. George Bradley, Mebane, N. C., Mt. Zion Church	.60
Miss Georgia Bradley, Mebane, N. C., Mt. Zion Church	1.00

Total $ 419.03

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$10,033.63
Sunday Schools, regular	66.65
Individual and church offerings	19.00
Coin card offerings	58.60
Total to date	$20,177.88

J. O. ATKINSON, Mission Sec'y.

FROM THE PHILIPPINES.

Dear Folks:

Well, Pharaoh must have had a heart of stone sure enough, for how anyone could harden their hearts after a locust plague is more than I can see. About noon one morning last week we heard shouts of: "The locusts are coming, the locusts are coming," and before we realized it the sky had become darkened as with heavy clouds before a thunder storm, and great hordes of locusts deluged the town. They began to settle on the tall cocoanut trees, the bamboos and the grass everywhere, until everything looked brown. Some people were running wildly about trying to fight them off; others were busy on the tennis court holding large burlap bags trying to catch enough for a good meal. Some claim they make a delicious dish, cooked with a little vinegar added. But I am not going to try them until they eat everything else up that is eatable. They can certainly do that, too, from reports from all over the islands of crops destroyed. Some people are refusing to plant again, saying it is "no use any more." The government has spent, and is still spending, lots of money on the fight against the locusts, and scientists and airplanes have been sent many places over the islands to help. The coming of the locusts was as much like a hail storm as anything I ever saw. After they left the cocoanut trees were ragged and the bamboos and the more tender plants were stripped bare of leaves.

In spite of the hard times people are still getting diseases and come to the hospital for treatment. They have averaged 30 patients all this month. I do not know all the cases now on record, but besides the operative cases there are many with dysentery and tuberculosis, and we usually have one or two typhoid patients. Our new pastor is holding services every Sunday afternoon for the patients and he usually brings some good singers to help with the services. Many of the patients have expressed their appreciation of these meetings and I think they are doing some good. One of our T. B. patients who has been here for 5 months and who has been reading his Bible was baptized in the hospital last Sunday. Two new nurses have recently been added to the force to replace those who dropped out, and I believe we have the best group of Christian nurses we have yet had.

We received the news recently that 68 missionaries of the American Board had been dropped, and if such things continue, we may not serve our full term. However, I am hoping we will be able to stand by even with cuts in salaries and appropriations, for we are becoming more interested in this work all the time.

Kindest wishes to all,

(MRS.) RITA T. WHITE.

VIRGINIA VALLEY CENTRAL WOMAN'S MISSIONARY CONFERENCE.

Friday, August 5th, at the Linville Christian Church, the Woman's Missionary Conference met in a one-day session. The day was beautiful and the attendance larger than for several years. Mrs. A. H. Bell of the local Society gave a cordial welcome which we all felt was sincere, and it was responded to by Miss Tracie Liskey of the New Hope Society. The roll call of the churches and Societies showed eight churches represented, all of which have Societies.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, president of the North Carolina and Virginia Woman's Conference, was invited to a seat as a deliberative member, and responded with appropriate remarks. Three of the ministers of the Conference were present and took an active part during the day. Mrs. Rowland gave an interesting and helpful address in the morning and helped by her wise counsel during the day.

The treasurer, Miss Verdie Showalter, reported a total of $292.14 raised during the nine months since our last Conference (Conference last year being held later than usual).

Mrs. E. Lena Rothgeb gave an interesting report of the Burlington Woman's Conference. The ladies of the church loaded the long table on the lawn with an abundance of good things to eat. The noon hour was happily spent. After opening prayer by Rev. R. L. Williamson, we had an inspiring address by Rev. I. S. Long of the Church of the Brethren. He is a returned missionary, having spent 28 years in India.

Mesdames B. J. Earp, R. L. Williamson and A. F. Kite gave brief reports from the District Rallies. Mrs. A. R. Hosaflook, superintendent, reported eight Woman's Societies with a total of 209 members. The Young People's Societies, reported by Mrs. O. A. Hoover, superintendent, showed five Societies, with 138 members. Superintendent of Cradle Rolls reported four Cradle Rolls, with 75 enrolled. The Superintendent of Literature, Miss Ella Pickering, had reports from four Societies, where a total of 31 persons had read mission books, and 592 mission leaflets had been read.

The Committees on Points of Excellence, Finance, Resolutions, Selecting Place of Meeting, and Nominations made their reports.

The officers for the coming year were called up to the front, while Mrs. Rowland offered a prayer of consecration.

Societies were urged to send all funds through their treasurers and a motion passed authorizing the treasurer, Miss Verdie Showalter, to close her books July 10th, to finish up her report for the year.

The program was interspersed with music and prayer. The day was profitably spent and was greatly enjoyed by all present. The next session will meet with the Leaksville Church.

MRS. B. F. FRANK.

ANNUAL REPORT.

Annual report of the Woman's Mission Board, Virginia Valley Conference, from October 10, 1931, to August 5, 1932:

Balance in treasury, October 10, 1931...	$ 4.90
Women's Societies.
Bethel	$ 15.54
Bethlehem	6.15
Dry Run	11.50
Leaksville	39.41
Linville	39.57
New Hope	18.60
New Port	7.00
Mayland	7.25
Winchester	42.45
	187.47

Young People's Societies.

Antioch	$ 35.63
Winchester	22.20
	57.83
Cradle Roll Societies.
Antioch	3.65
Linville	6.85
Leaksville	1.10
	11.60
Rally Offerings.
Dry Run	$ 5.50
New Port	4.05
New Hope	6.00
	15.55
Mrs. Newman's expenses	14.79
Total	$ 292.14

Disbursements.

Burk & Price, bond	$ 2.50
Mrs. H. S. Hardeastle	106.23
Verdie Showalter, postage	.50
Mrs. B. F. Frank, postage	1.00
Mrs. B. F. Frank, programs	1.50
Mrs. H. S. Hardeastle	22.44
Mrs. H. S. Hardeastle	108.48
	242.65

Balance in treasury, August 6, 1932.. $ 49.49

VERDIE C. SHOWALTER, Treas.

THE BIBLE IN THE GREAT DEPRESSION.

A total of 9,745,356 volumes of the Scriptures, issued by the American Bible Society during 1931 across many lands and in many tongues, was reported at the 116th annual meeting of the Society, held Thursday, May 12th, at its headquarters, Bible House, Astor Place. These circulation figures for 1931 bring the total for the 116 years of the Society's service to 237,979,404 volumes. The purpose of the Society to make the gospel available to every man in his own tongue was furthered in translation, publication, and distribution activities in 182 different languages and dialects.

The most notable increase in the circulation of the Scriptures was in Japan. The distribution of Bibles and Testaments held up well to the level of last year, while that of Gospels and other Portions (parts of the Bible) rose from 700,000 to just over 1,000,000 volumes. The economic situation, which was serious in Japan, was met by a new edition of Gospels priced at the smallest Japanese coin, one sen a copy. To this was added the splendid cooperation of a fine staff of native colporteurs who vigorously pressed the work in the cities and towns. In China the great flood dominated the year's history. Yet throngs of people sought solace and guidance in the Book of books and colporteurs and workers prosecuted the distribution with energy—even in flooded, bandit-infested districts! The sale of the entire Bible increased 58 per cent and Testaments 35 per cent above 1930.

The Near East, although sharing in the economic difficulties of the year, is another area in which the circulation of the Scriptures showed an advance, a large gain being made in the area about ancient Thessalonica now known as Salonika. In the Arabic-speaking lands at the eastern end of the Mediterranean there was a notable increase in distribution in which a new Arabic edition helped materially.

In the West Indies Agency the sale of complete Bibles was nearly twice as great as in 1930, and in the republics at the southern end of Latin America, in spite of difficult conditions, distribution held up well, especially of Bibles and Testaments. The closing of the doors of North America to European immigrants has turned great numbers to the wide areas of the Argentine Republic, where in many communities the annual visit of the colporteur is the only spiritual ministry that occurs.

"We do not make any special efforts to increase demands for the Scriptures; for, under existing circumstances, we cannot satisfy all the requests that are coming to hand," was the report from the Society's secretary in Brazil. One colporteur's journey occupied seventy-eight days by rail, walking, and by canoe. A colporteur's visit to a colony of Japanese immigrants required a journey of sixty miles afoot.

From Mexico there have come reports of religious confusion due to the conflict between the authorities of the State and of the Roman Catholic Church. In the state of Tabasco one of the Society's colporteurs suffered a term in jail for his zeal in Scripture distribution while a valiant colporteur in Yucatan was received by a flourishing church where two years before he had been threatened with death. Some of his persecutors had become its members.

CHURCHES APPROVE DISARMAMENT.

The highest officials of nearly a score of national church bodies have joined in a message to President Hoover, expressing "most hearty approval" of his "courageous proposal" for the reduction of armaments. The church leaders described the proposal as "highly prophetic" and expressed the judgment that the President's "constructive leadership" will be enthusiastically welcomed by the members of all the churches.

The message addressed to President Hoover was as follows:

"Your courageous proposal to the World Disarmament Conference that the nations reduce their armaments by one-third meets with our most hearty approval. We rejoice in your broad-visioned leadership in a matter which bears such a vital relation to peace and human welfare. Your proposal to the Conference we regard as a highly prophetic note in international relations.

"We believe that the great body of the membership in our churches will enthusiastically welcome your constructive leadership and will hope that its general acceptance may herald the opening of a great epoch in our world life.

"We are particularly pleased to note the primary emphasis you place on the Kellogg-Briand Pact. We believe that the pledges given by the nations in Articles I and II of this Pact should be continuously stressed as a basic world policy and the international procedures should be constantly shaped in the light of these pledges and principles.

"While we are expressing only our personal convictions and satisfaction, they are, we believe, in harmony with those of our church bodies, most of which have officially expressed their desires for drastic reduction in armaments by all nations."

The statement was sent out from the office of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America and was made public by Bishop Francis J. McConnell, president of the Council.

Government is the expressed will of the majority of the people, which is expressed in the Constitution and in our laws. Government can do anything for us that the people will.—New York World.

True joy is a serene and sober motion, and they are miserably out that take laughing for rejoicing; the seat of it is within, and there is no cheerfulness like the resolutions of a brave mind that has fortune under its feet.—Selected.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, Waverly, Va.

GEORGIA YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONFERENCE.

At Owen Heights, Zebulon, Ga., on August 11, 1932, there gathered as fine a group of young people and their teachers as one would care to know. Not a large crowd, but an excellent beginning of this kind of work in Georgia.

To Miss Annie Campbell, our Extension Worker in Georgia, belongs the credit of laboring early, long and hard to bring about this event, of such moment to young people in this State in years to come. She was the heart, the persistent spirit and the prayerful genius which brought about this conference.

M. J. Sweet, pastor-at-large, was honored by being invited to act as Dean. Miss Priscilla Chase, Extension Worker and writer and critic of missionary materials, was one of the teachers, taking her group on a tour of "World Friendship," mostly through China. Miss Race, of Jacksonville, Fla., was happily able to give the fine touch of drama and pageantry so much in use in wide-awake churches today.

Assistant Dean, D. A. Atkinson, of Piedmont College, was conference pastor and preached the sermon Sunday morning, August 14th, in the beautiful Meansville Congregational Church. Rev. Jesse H. Dollar, pastor of the United Church of LaGrange, was instructor in methods; Rev. Alan Jones, pastor of Friendship Parish, South Georgia, taught the class in Bible Study, using the Sermon on the Mount as the basis of this work.

Miss Ruth Lott, of the Macedonia Church, gave a course in "Hand Craft," and Arthur Swartz had charge of recreation, while Mrs. J. H. Dollar acted as camp mother. Of course, Miss Campbell was "Over All." And let it be said that the whole Owen family, including their guests from Florida and elsewhere, were most helpful in every detail of the conference. And the eats—no where any better!

Besides the regular class periods, there were many recreational and social features. Among the most enjoyable, perhaps, were the Camp Fire Circle, the Vespers in charge of Mrs. Alan Jones, the story-telling evenings and the reading of poetry selected for the purpose; the funny stunts and the political burlesques put on by the three leading "Parties." There was also baseball, horse-shoes in which Mr. Dollar almost won a game, some croquet and improvised roque, many sings and a fine swim in a nearby pool and a trip to Indian Springs.

One of the most notable events was the pageant put on by Miss Race and her group on Sunday afternoon. Neighbors and friends came to see this pageant, based on the poem, "Sacraments," by John Oxenham. It was beautiful and effective. In this connection, "The Virgins" was dramatized by moonlight on Tuesday evening.

The last night of the conference was devoted to a communion service, celebrated in the open near a wood, conducted by the Dean. A final testimony meeting in charge of Miss Campbell and a beautiful candle-light service directed by Miss Race. By the light of the beautiful moon and the candles they carried, the group marched to their quarters, thus closing for the day and the conference one of the most far-reaching experiences in the United Church life of Georgia.

It has been customary in conferences of this type to select individuals who best typify various sides of camp life. For this year the following were designated:

The physical, Herman Kite, of Pearson; social, Thelma Percy, of Demorest; mental, Mary Florence Moore, LaGrange; spiritual, Thelma Fleming, of Bowman; social, Susie Elder, Columbus; faithfulness, W. N. Lott, Hoschton; consecration, Mary Skelton, LaGrange. M. J. S.

THE TWO "COMES."

Those who are looking most eagerly for Christ can make him most inviting to others. A writer in the Keswick Calendar calls attention to the two "Comes" in the last chapter of the last book of the Bible, Revelation. The next to the last verse gives us the word of the Lord Jesus Christ himself, "Surely I come quickly." This is followed by the response of the inspired writer John, speaking for the Church, "Even so, come, Lord Jesus." A few verses earlier we read: "And the Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take of the water of life freely." The comment on this is made: "This closing passage of the Word of God presents the Church as the Bride in right relation to Christ. And when the Bride can say 'Come' to Christ, she is ready to turn to the world around and say, 'Come'." There are two "Comes." We can turn from saying with longing hearts to our Lord, "Come," and say to our unsaved neighbor, "Come unto him who alone can save you. Christ is coming soon, will you not come to him now so when he comes again you will be ready to receive him?" We can say "Come" with power to the unsaved, if we say "Come" with pleading to the Saviour.—Sunday School Times.

PROGRAM.

Following is the tentative program for the First Annual Session of the Youth Fellowship, of Congregational and Christian Churches, of the Western North Carolina Conference, to be held at Hank's Chapel, September 4, 1932, at 2:00 o'clock, P. M.:

Theme: "Youth's Present Day Calls to Service."
Call to order President
Invocation.
Song Service
Worship Service Mr. Rowland Farrell
Welcome Address Mr. Ralph Riddle
Response.
President's Message Rev. Carl R. Key
Special Music.
Address, Purpose of Youth Fellowship."
Business Session.
Recess, (10 minutes), Planned Recreation.
Special Music.
Address, "The Call of Youth" Rev. E. C. Brady
Roll Call of Churches.
Report of Committees.
Installation of Officers.
Closing Service Rev. Carl R. Key

(Note.—There was a mistake in the location of the place of meeting. Hank's Chapel Christian Church is east of Pittsboro, in Chatham County, about three miles out on Highway No. 90. Don't forget the place, and come. We hope to have a complete program for the next issue.)

What our country needs most just now is not a gold standard, but a God standard in its daily affairs.—Milton Lee.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

"WHY DO SOME APPROVE OF CHRIST, BUT REJECT ORGANIZED CHRISTIANITY?"

In your worship service use for your theme: "The Wondrous Christ." Open with hymns like the following: "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me," and "What a Friend We Have In Jesus." The leader may read I. Corinthians 3:1-7, or Isaiah 9:6-7; John 3:16.

"Seeing Jesus." Different young people may read John 8:12; 10:14-15; 15:1, 2, 7, 8; 15:14-16.

"Hearing Jesus." Have these verses repeated slowly by a member of the group: Matthew 5:14-16; 6:33; 7:7-8.

"Answering Jesus." Matthew 25:34-40.

Then the following hymns may be properly interspersed along with prayer: "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," "My Jesus, I Love Thee," "More Love to Thee, O Christ," "Jesus Calls Us," and "O Jesus, I Have Promised."

Discussion.—Why do some approve of Christ, but reject organized Christianity? List the evidence in your own community that this is really so, and a problem similar to prohibition which you should face. When these have been listed, discuss them pro and con and try to arrive at some conclusion. Is it true that some approve of Jesus Christ and his way of life, but reject organized Christianity or the church of our day? Did not Christ first live a Christian life himself?

Doesn't every ill in our modern society come because of lack of brotherhood and a failure to try the way which Jesus taught men when he was on earth? Did not Jesus live what he was and teach what he was? Is this really true? Think of war. "Can a nation which accepts Jesus' way for the world go to war?" Trace causes of other sources of unhappiness today. What is their root?

Consider the Beatitudes and look about to see how many people conform to Jesus' way of life, but ignore the church altogether. What does it really mean to "Approve of Christ?"

On the one hand, we have a man who uses the name of Jesus in profanity, and yet he tries to rear a noble family. On the other hand, there is one who wants his children to go to church and Sunday School, but never goes himself. "The unwillingness of the people to support organized Christianity is an evidence that they are rejecting the church?" In connection with the question of evidence that one accepts a cause, discuss the relative merits, as proof of regular attendance, active participation in the program, liberal giving of money, enthusiasm which spreads to other people, loyalty to the cause for which the church stands, and any others that you may wish to add.

Why do people fail to take up the challenge for service and higher living? Why do folks reject the church? Why do they criticize it and yet take no part in its program of work to know what they are talking about? Have we not failed to live up to the teachings of Jesus?

Should the church folk spend their time arguing over doctrines and church practices, or should they be interested in social problems? Why? What is the business of the church, anyway? How does it help us to look at our church program as those who criticize it, see it? Are we so accustomed to the things that we do that they seem right and the only way to carry on the work? Try to see your church through the eyes of a critic and seek to discover ways to strengthen your work.

The fire of a forest will burn out, but you cannot arrest the effect of a cruel word. It will go on slaying, poisoning, embittering beyond your control forever.—Dr. Kirk.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. STANLEY C. HARRELL.

EVILS OF INTEMPERANCE.

LESSON X—SEPTEMBER 4, 1932.

LESSON TEXT: Fifth chapter of Isaiah.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Drink no wine or strong drink."
—Lev. 10:9.

TIME: Latter half of the eighth century, B. C.

PLACE: Jerusalem.

In the lesson for today we turn aside from the study of the era of Moses for the quarterly lesson on temperance. The lesson text is taken from the prophecy of Isaiah. There is a striking contrast between the problems with which Moses had to wrestle, and the outstanding social problems of Isaiah's day. Moses was faced with the fundamental needs of a people who must be provided with food and drink. He was engaged in teaching the first lessons in law and order.

When men attain a more complicated social order, there are certain problems that inevitably arise. The evil of intemperance seems to be such a problem. Give men a certain amount of leisure, and they turn to the stimulant of strong drink. The evil of alcohol is as old as civilization itself. And the more complex the social order becomes the graver the evil of intemperance. There seems to be no power adequate to deal with thirst for liquor save the power of religious convictions.

It would seem reasonable to expect that man's common sense would be sufficient to restrain him from indulgence in the drinking of intoxicating liquors. Everyone knows that alcohol is poison to the human system. In the old days of the open saloon every community had its object lesson in the terrible effects of alcohol on the human body. The drunkard, with his red nose, his bleary eyes, and tottering frame was a constant reminder of the effects of drink. Such miserable specimens of humanity have all but disappeared.

Even more terrible than the effects upon the drinker, were the sufferings and hardships of the family of the drunkard. Such families, in the best of times, were barely able to keep body and soul together. When sickness came, or the rigors of a severe winter such families became the charge of the kind-hearted members of the community, or they must needs be cared for at the expense of the government.

It would be hard to imagine anything more dangerous to health, more wasteful of economic resources, and more inimical to spiritual progress than intemperance in the matter of drink. Indulgence in alcoholic beverages has always been a religious problem. It stands as a constant barrier and threat to all religious effort. It is constantly undoing the work that the church has been doing for centuries. It is not surprising that the Bible has so much to say about the evils of strong drink, and that it teaches that the drunkard cannot hope to enter the kingdom of heaven. It destroys everything that makes for righteousness and spirituality.

It is a tragedy of the first magnitude that men were beguiled into thinking that government by its own power could uproot the evils of drink. That does not mean that I believe the government should relax one single restriction or effort to suppress the traffic in alcoholic beverages. But it is to say that the liquor problem is more than a political problem. Every agency and organization that works in the name of religion should be constantly engaged in the task of teaching the effects of alcohol and in building in the minds and hearts of men an abhorrence of the liquor trade.

When people discuss the liquor question today, the argument revolves around the question as to what method of liquor control is better or worse. It needs to be carried back to the fundamental issue of right and wrong. No legal enactment can ever make the liquor business respectable or law-abiding. The manufacturers and sellers of alcohol for beverage purposes are prospering by pandering to that which is weakest and most vicious in human nature. They are in a class with the "pimp" and the "white slaver." They are seeking profit at the expense of the bodies and souls of their fellowmen. And our government has been a partner to this sort of thing; and there are those who would have the government go back into partnership with this iniquitous business.

Many of those who are advocating the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment have taxes as their excuse. They do not hesitate for a moment to put money ahead of human beings. They would shift taxes from the shoulders of the rich, and have the government secure income from the purse of the drinker. This would not be so bad if the drinker were the only one to suffer. But the real burden will be borne by the innocent and helpless little children whose means of subsistence will go largely to swell the profits of the brewer and distiller, and a small part to the government.

On the side of intemperance stands the weakness of humanity and the greed for gain. On the side of temperance stand righteousness and the desire for the mental, moral and spiritual development of the race. There can be no question as to which side the Lord favors. There can be no question as to which side all people who are Christians, ought to stand.

There is a tradition of the old King Redwald, who built two altars of worship and he dedicated one to God and the other he dedicated to the devil. He zealously offered sacrifices to God on the one altar; and then he hastened away to the other altar and just as zealously sacrificed there to the devil. That old heathen, King Redwald, said to himself, "God has wonderful power and so has the devil. These are both mighty Lords, and the best thing for me to do is to keep on the good side of both of them." Whether the devil accepted his worship or not, who can tell? But we can feel sure that God never did. What did Jesus say, "No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon."—From the "Heights of Christian Living," by Doremus A. Hayes.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7/8 x 7 Inches, and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 7/8 x 7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 1/2 Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold.....$1.60

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 3/4 x 7

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.50

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges.....$6.00

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 Inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps.....$2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 1/2 Inches and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament. Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools.....95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond Virginia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."—II. Chron. 7:14.

THOUGHTS FOR CHILDREN.

MONDAY.

CHRIST AND CHILDREN.

"Suffer little children to come unto me; and forbid them not; for of such is the Kingdom of God."—Mark 10:14.

Little children, this is for you. Our text is a story of Jesus' attitude toward little children and thus it is his attitude toward you.

This is a very beautiful chapter. First Jesus talks about and dignifies marriage, next he blesses the fruit of matrimony—little children. Next he loves a young man. Then he closes the chapter by talking about the highest duty of a man—a consecrated life for God.

Children are innocent. They take things as they are and act accordingly. They believe the things they see and hear as the truth until they are deceived in them. Their whole being radiates love and they look for love in return. They trust implicitly until they are deceived. They are just plain so—simplicity itself, until they learn the wiles of affecting. Their soul-life is as near heavenly as we can imagine, and so nearly so that Jesus said to the older ones, "Except ye become as little children ye shall in no wise enter the Kingdom of Heaven." He also said, "Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings thou hast perfected praise."

Here we see Jesus shielding the children from unkindness. He bestows upon them his love; he sanctified them with his blessing; and makes them the text of his teachings to all men.

This is very encouraging to childhood and to youth, that they live on in this purity and innocence, and possess the same character when older.

Prayer—O Lord Jesus, we are thy children. Let thy richest blessings come upon us to keep us so, to be lead on in the same life, and may this blessing be renewed beyond the grave forever. Amen.

TUESDAY.

CITIZENS OF HEAVEN.

"For of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."—Mark 10:14.

What can these words mean? We know nothing better nor less than that little children, and all who are like them, possess the essential qualities of Christianity and are members of the Kingdom. Anything else is not in harmony with the mind of Christ.

It is obvious that no one would wish grown-ups to act like children. There are graces children cannot exhibit; there are feelings they do not have; there are sorrows they do not know; there are restraints they cannot understand; there are considerations they are not capable of. These things are reserved for older ones who must teach them the proper action in them. That children are born heathens, no doubt, is partly true, but at the same time their virtue, the possibility of their lives being an open field where God can work and be everything; the example of taking everything as it is; all make the child the example of the right spirit, and of taking God at his word. Thus, the child represents all the hidden powers of life both here and hereafter. Their soul life is that from which springs all that makes the Kingdom of God and Heaven.

Prayer—

"Lord, forever at thy side
Let thy place and portion be;
Strip me of the robe of pride,
Clothe me with humility.
"Humble as a little child,
Weaned from the mother's breast;
By no subtleties beguiled,
On thy faithful word I rest."

Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

GOD'S POEMS.

"Lo, the children are an heritage of the Lord."
—Ps. 27:3.
"The glory of the children are their fathers."
—Prov. 17:6.
"Her children rise up and call her blessed."
—Prov. 31:28.
"Be ye, therefore, followers of God as dear children."
—Eph. 5:1.

Often we hear the exclamation, "Isn't nature grand?" How grand it is, when we really appreciate its wonders! From the formation of the mineral of the earth's bosom, through all of its kingdoms, the vegetable, the animal and the celestial—they all tell of the glory of God. Almost anything you may select of this universe is not only a divine poem, but also an oratorio, full of celestial harmonies that inspire the soul to God. The precious stones have been called the poems of the mineral, the flowers the poems of the vegetable, the young the poems of the animals, and children the poems of God's Kingdom.

"Come to me, O ye children,
And whisper in my ear,
What the birds and the winds are singing,
In your sunny atmosphere.
"For what are all our contrivings,
And the wisdom of our books,
When compared with your caresses,
And gladness of your looks.
"You are better than all the ballads,
That ever were sung or said;
For ye are living poems,
And all the rest are dead."

Prayer—O Lord Jesus, may thy spirit abide in our lives and keep us living poems and heavenly harmonies until we are called to thee eternally. Amen.

THURSDAY.

OBEDIENCE.

"Children, obey your parents, in the Lord; for this is right."
—Eph. 6:1.

However to the contrary it may seem to us, it is believed that fundamentally the instinct of a child is to obey. He who recognizes that instinct and keeps it in constant exercise will obey. This exercise must be guarded and guided in every action that it may not fail at any point of going wrong. Every instant of childish trouble, or fret of temper, is the supreme opportunity for the exercise of this responsibility, and parents or guardians are the ones to see that guardianship does not fail. If the life at the point of going wrong is not so guarded, other instincts which the child also possesses, will rise at the suggestion of caprice, fancy or temper, and obedience will fade out more rapidly than the natural instincts of grace and innocence will obtain. By such intelligent constant unfailing care a child's instinctive impulse responds to superior appeal, and he learns to keep the best that is in him.

Blessed is he who looks back on life with some satisfaction that he has kept it.

Prayer—Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name, help us, young and old, to so follow the spirit of the Lord Jesus in all our actions that we may never miss the mark when we would go wrong. Amen.

FRIDAY.

PATTERN FOR CHRISTIANS.

"Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven."

"And whosoever shall receive one such little child in my name receiveth me."
—Matt. 18:4, 5.

Little children, when you are grown, you are not to think that the best thing you can do is to always be as little children, nor should you look back upon your own childhood as the only balmy and best days of life. Although cares, responsibilities, sorrows and great travails fall upon you, it is to be remembered that in all experiences, such is life, and Christ's function in your life is to keep open the springs of life within you with special joys which belong to you in those experiences.

In this way it is one's privilege to be a child with the heart of a child always. This is a privilege which God bestows upon one for endeavoring to live such a consecrated life. We cannot always be children in the home and in the care of our earthly father, but we can never pass from the home and care of our heavenly Father.

Such a sweet life does not prevent us from being gay, free, hopeful and truthful. Such a life never ceases to love or to question love; it never questions the power and wisdom of parents, but trusts in such wisdom and rejoices always. Such a life is like removing rocks from the springs that water may bubble up afresh. "To receive life and the kingdom as little children—that is the secret of perpetual joy."

Prayer—

"Let me no more my comfort draw,
From my frail hold of thee;
In this alone rejoice with awe,
Thy mighty grasp of me.
"Lay hold of me with thy strong grasp,
Let thine almighty arm;
In its embrace my weakness clasp,
And I shall fear no harm."

"The purpose of eternal good,
Let me but surely know;
On this I'll lean, let changing word
And feeling come and go."

"Glad when thy sunshine fills my soul;
Nor lorn with clouds o'ercast;
Since thou within the sure control
Of love doth hold me fast."
—Barbour.

Amen.

SATURDAY.

CHILDREN IN PUBLIC WORSHIP.

"Wherefore receiving a Kingdom that cannot be shaken, let us have grace, whereby we may offer service well-pleasing to God with reverence and awe."
—Heb. 12:28.

Tomorrow is Sunday School and church. That means that the church of God calls one and all to learn of the Lord and to worship him. If little children are of his kingdom, that means that they have a place in the Sunday School and the church to fill. The Sunday School and the church are the one big and almost only organization for putting God in the life. We must be filled and we must work to fill others with him, so that in our daily actions all may live as he would have them do, unto his glory.

(Continued on page 15.)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

THE GOSPEL AT CANE RIDGE.

By A. W. FORTUNE.

The sermon which is reproduced here was preached in the old Cane Ridge meeting-house on June 26, 1932, and was printed in The Christian-Evangelist of July 14th. Barton Stone, together with Abner Jones in New England, and our own James O'Kelley, has been looked upon as one of the pioneers in our faith, and it is quite interesting to know that he had quite a following years before the Campbells went to Kentucky. It was at a later date that some of the churches founded by Stone united with those later to be known as Disciples, and it is through this union that those officially known as Disciples lay claim to the denominational name of Christians. Some of the Christian Churches failed to ratify this union, and these same churches were represented for the first time in the Southern Convention at Burlington, N. C., last May, having heretofore been an independent conference:

For several weeks I have been looking forward to this hour. I would rather speak at this service than at any convention that might be held. I would rather speak in this old log meeting-house than in any cathedral or auditorium to which I might be invited. This is the most historic building of the Disciples. It was erected in 1791 when Kentucky was a pioneer section. There are few buildings in the state as old as this. It was here that the great revival at the beginning of the nineteenth century reached its climax. The preaching of the gospel on these grounds in 1801 changed the moral and spiritual condition of central Kentucky. The church was one of the four that constituted the Springfield Presbytery in 1803. Barton W. Stone, its pastor, was one of the five ministers that withdrew from the Synod of Kentucky, because they were not permitted to preach the gospel as they understood it. It was here in 1804 that the Springfield Presbytery was dissolved and Barton W. Stone and five other ministers and the churches they served launched out upon an independent basis. They designated themselves as Christians, and took the Bible as their only rule of faith and practice.

That was the beginning of the Christian Church in Kentucky. That was five years before Thomas Campbell wrote the Declaration and Address. It was nineteen years before Alexander Campbell preached his first sermon in Kentucky or before there were any adherents to his views in this state.

It is fortunate that this historic building is in such a fine state of preservation. We are greatly indebted to those who have been restoring it to its original condition. This is one of the finest old log buildings that I have seen. We must have a fund to guarantee the perpetuation of this old meeting-house. I hope during the next few months through an enterprise upon which I have been working for three years to add a substantial amount to this permanent fund. When I tell you that I have spent all my spare time for three years on a history of the Disciples in Kentucky and have been living with Barton W. Stone and those pioneer leaders of the early days you will understand why I am so much interested in this occasion. This book is to be dedicated to the old Cane Ridge Meeting House and the profits from the sales are to be devoted to the preservation of this historic building.

I have selected as the subject of my message this afternoon, "The Gospel at Cane Ridge." My text is the 16th verse of the 3rd chapter of John's Gospel: "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have eternal life." In 1798 Barton W. Stone became pastor of this church. During the first part of his ministry spirituality was at a low ebb. The people were occupied in clearing the forest and building their homes, and religion was much neglected. The deism of Thomas Jefferson and the infidelity of Thomas Paine had dominated the thinking of the people.

Because of this lack of spiritual interest Barton W. Stone made a trip to Logan County, in West Kentucky to investigate a revival that was in progress there. There were some strange physical manifestations in connection with the revival concerning which he was uncertain; but he became convinced that the work was of the Lord. After his return he preached at Concord, relating the experiences he had witnessed in Logan County. While he was relating these experiences there were the same physical manifestations that he was describing. These became more pronounced in the meeting the following Sunday here at Cane Ridge. There is in the College of the Bible library an old book, "Narratives of the Revivals of Religion." This book contains a chapter, "Great Revivals of 1801, in Kentucky." This chapter is an extract of a letter from the Rev. G. Baxter, principal of Washington Academy, to Dr. Arch Alexander of Prince Edward, dated January 1, 1802: Rev. Baxter at the request of Dr. Alexander had visited these revivals and had written his impressions. He said before the revival "Kentucky was remarkable for vice and dissipation." As the result of the revival he "found Kentucky the most moral place he had ever been in." In describing the revival at Cane Ridge and the number present, he said, "Many are of the opinion that there were at least twenty thousand. There were one hundred and forty wagons, which came loaded with people, besides other wheel carriages. Some persons had come two hundred miles."

One wonders why that crowd could have gathered so quickly and people could have come so far. This chapter in this book gives some intimation of the explanation. These revivals, of which the Cane Ridge Revival was one, began in connection with the communion service. This Sunday in August, 1801, was the communion at Cane Ridge, and Barton W. Stone's visit to Logan County and the beginning of the revival at Concord made the people expectant. They came to that August communion service in 1801 expecting a manifestation of the Spirit. The meeting began on Friday and continued until Wednesday evening, night and day. As many as seven ministers were speaking at one time in different parts of the ground. Swept along by the spirit of the revival they preached a gospel of salvation for all who were willing to accept it.

Most of the ministers who participated in the revival were Presbyterians and this gospel which they preached was not acceptable to those who held to rigid Calvinism. They were summoned before the Synod which met in Lexington in 1803 to answer to the charge of heresy. When it was evident that they would be condemned they withdrew from the jurisdiction of the Synod, declaring that they would not be judged by the Westminster Confession of Faith.

Barton W. Stone, in his autobiography, gave an account of the gospel which they preached, and in my judgment it is the gospel that is needed today. This gospel which they preached on these grounds in August, 1801, is the gospel that

I want to preach at the first service in this restored log meeting-house.

I.

The first element in that gospel is the love of God. Mr. Stone said, "The distinguishing doctrine preached by us was, that God loved the world—the whole world, and sent his Son to save them."

That seems commonplace to us, but it was not for them. Calvinism emphasized the wrath of God and limited his love to a few. This message of a God of love, who is the Father of all men, drew the masses. This message that God sent his Son to reveal his love and be the Saviour of men overcame deism and infidelity and viciousness and changed the life of Kentucky.

We can scarcely understand the conception of God that was current in that day. It was the (Continued on page 15.)

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling). $22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90... 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00
Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

The rains have been very light this year and far between showers. The consequence is our crops will be short. We planted twice as much silage corn this year as we did last year and have worked it well; but on account of the very dry season, we will not make half as much. Our hay crop will be very short, too. We are cutting our silage corn now, a month earlier than usual, in order to save what we have. It now looks as though we will have to cut our soy-beans before they burn up and salvage what hay we can. Feed is never so good when we are forced to harvest it before maturity. It is like eating a green apple or plum. Farmers can plant and cultivate, but have no control over the weather, and when the rains fail us our crops fail—out of our sixteen years as superintendent of this institution, we have only had one year so dry. We have faith to believe we will not suffer—the Lord will provide. While we have suffered this year on account of dry weather, we are not as bad off as some sections we have visited. Dry weather and a falling off in our income makes it doubly hard. Then, too, we are swamped with applications. Many of them need a home and help, but we cannot take more until our financial condition gets better.

We want to urge all our Sunday Schools to do their very best for the Orphanage. We squeeze every dollar mighty hard before we turn it loose, and do not spend one that we can help. But to care for 101 children costs some money—however economical we may be. We have always tried to make every dollar count and we are using our years of experience in trying to stretch them a little farther this year.

We want all the Sunday Schools that are not on the list of monthly contributors to come to our rescue, even if the offerings are small, they will be appreciated and will help.

We just need 2,800 soap wrappers to carry us to 75,000. Just a little more effort and we will reach our goal.

C. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR AUGUST 25, 1932.

Brought forward $ 9,513.38

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:

Lawrence Memorial Bible Class...$ 4.52
Ingram 5.00
Third Avenue, Danville 5.13
New Lebanon 2.00
Hines' Chapel 6.00
Pleasant Grove 8.68

31.33

Eastern North Carolina Conference:

Youngsville$ 1.00
Wentworth 7.25
Piney Plains 3.45

11.70

Western North Carolina Conference:

Biscoe$ 1.48
High Point 1.30
Pleasant Ridge 1.81
Parks' Cross Roads 5.24
Randleman 1.25
Ether63

11.71

Valley Virginia Central Conference:

Newport$ 1.40
Dry Run 4.18

5.58

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Barrett's$.47
Holland 7.50

Oakland	3.00
Wakefield	1.68
Franklin	7.23
South Norfolk	12.58
	32.46

Special Offerings.

Mr. Roberts, support of children..$ 20.00
Special collection, Elon Church, for singing class	2.00
A. J. Morgan, support of children	30.00
	52.00

Total for the week $ 144.78

Grand total $ 9,658.16

GOOD CITIZENSHIP. (Continued from page 7.)

there has been distinct improvement in standards of living among those with whom such workers come in contact, which must be attributed to prohibition."

I am in agreement with the nine members of the Wickersham Commission. Until there is submitted a substitute for the Eighteenth Amendment which shall conserve the gains of Federal Prohibition and at the same time improve the present system of liquor control, it is good citizenship to make no change in our Constitution.

A READER.

A religion of effortless adoration may be a religion for an angel, but never for a man. Not in the contemplative, but in the active, lies true hope. Not in rapture, but in reality, lies true life. Not in the realm of ideals, but among the tangible things, is man's sanctification wrought.

—Henry Drummond.

Eiters Sunday School Maps.

On a Revolving Adjustable Steel Stand

The first 5 maps
are in Set No. 1,
with stand,
Price $15.00

Set No. 2
8 Maps,
Price $20.00

Fine large Maps, in 6 Colors 36x57, on linen finished Cloth. Mounted on a folding steel stand, which can be regulated, so that Maps may be seen to the best advantage. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Its large print and Cheerful Colors makes this set very instructive and attractive. Contains the five thoroughly up to date Maps necessary to the study of Bible History.

New Testament Palestine. — Old Testament Palestine. — Roman empire and Bible Lands, showing Pauls Travels by Colored lines. — Lands of the Old Testament, from the Great Sea, to the Persian Gulf. — The Exodus, Egypt, showing by Colored lines the wanderings of the Israelites.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN,

1536 East Broad Street, Richmond, Virginia.

ALL
SELF-
PRONOUNCING

Holman Testaments

COMMAND
ATTENTION
AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2½x4½ inches

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there
was a marriage in
Cana of Galilee; and
the mother of Je'sus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published. In size, 2½x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles, round corners, gold edges. $.50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles.60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges.85

VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS
2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges.70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges.90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges. 1.10

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS
With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.
13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges.90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included. 1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4½ inches x ¾ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made. The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller. It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength. One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together. The size, 2½x4½ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2 The three wise men
carrying away into Babylon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Bab'ylon
unto Christ are fourteen

ing interpreted is, God with us. 24 Then Je'seph being raised from sleep did as
the angel of the Lord had

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges. $1.00
5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included. 1.50
503PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms included. 2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET
SIZE
3¾x4½
inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type
CHAPTER 23.
THEN spake Je'sus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3¾x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms. $.90
4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges. 1.35
4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included. 1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT
4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges. 1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT
4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms. 3.00
4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red. 3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print
Pica, 16mo. Size, 5¾x7¼x¾ inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines.

Specimen of Type.
THE book
of Je'sus

It is the most readable edition of all large print
Testaments.

PSALMS INCLUDED
2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included. $1.50

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS
2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included. 2.95

RED LETTER EDITION
Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.
3913PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included. 3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

FAMILY ALTAR.

(Continued from page 12.)

The church that works according to the wisdom of God will arrange its worship so that the children may share in it. Songs will be selected in which children's fresh voices may bear a part of their melodies; prayers will be so said that they will convey the needs of the children to the throne of grace; sermons will be delivered so that the essential facts of God's truth may be comprehended by them; everything will be done so that none may ever say, "I don't know what its all about," but they may know, at least, the essentials, and be brought to know God.

"Reach down, O Lord, to the sunless days,
Wherein our guides are blind as we,
And faith is small and hope delays
Take thou the hand of prayer we raise,
And let us feel the light of thee"—Jones.

Prayer—O Lord, help us parents to do our part in making the way clear for children to find Jesus and worship. In his name we ask it. Amen.

SUNDAY.

SPIRITUAL EXPERIENCE.

"Verily, I say unto you, whosoever shall not receive the Kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein."—Mark 10:15.

"Jesus answered and said, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes."—Matt. 11:25.

Does a child understand Jesus? By intellectual attainments, by power to distinguish between system and system, no. But by mere innocence which the Lord blessed, they can. Jesus showed how these qualities were channels of his own blessings in children by which they could understand.

Mr. Spurgeon, we are told, used to say, "I have more confidence in the spiritual life of the children that I have received into this church than I have in the spiritual condition of the adults thus received." He went further than that. It is written that he said, "I have usually found a clearer knowledge of the Gospel and a warmer love to Christ in the child-converts than in the man-converts."

It is quite occasional that some older person will say, "The boy is sixteen years old; he speaks with such insight in Divine truths." No responsibility is greater than that. We should teach and train every child in the things of the Lord. Give them freedom in Christian service and encourage them fully in worshipping God.

Prayer—O Lord, our God, give us all insight into Divine truth as true children. Keep us upon our knees of humility, submission and petition until we shall have that blessing. Amen.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT.

(Continued from page 13.)

same conception that Martin Luther had protested against, a conception which blights religion. As a boy he sat in the Mansfield Church and shuddered at the picture in the window; it was a picture of "Jesus sitting on a rainbow, with frowning countenance and drawn sword in his hand, coming to judge the wicked." That conception would strike a man with terror, make him rebellious, or lead him to infidelity. It misrepresents God, for John tells us that God is love. It maligns the character of Jesus, for he is represented as the compassionate one. It misrepresents his purpose, for John tells us that God sent not his Son into the world to judge the world, but that the world should be saved through him.

Barton W. Stone protested against the conceptions of the atonement that were current in his day. Instead of Christ's death being a punishment he insisted it was a manifestation of his love for wayward humanity. Instead of calling it the atonement he said it should be the at-onement. He said Christ died upon the cross to bring sinful humanity to a realization of the love of God. Because of this gospel which he preached he was called an Arian and a denier of the atonement, but this gospel gave him power with the people and made him one of the great religious leaders of America.

That gospel which Barton W. Stone preached in 1801 is needed at the present time. There is a type of thinking that is common in our day that is not unlike the deism which destroyed the spirituality of his day. The philosophy of naturalism eliminates any need of God. The universe is self-existent and self-running. Natural law determines what has been and what shall be. This philosophy has so dominated our thinking, that many who believe in a Creator do not feel that he is interested in the lives of individuals. They do not ask God to help them solve their problems and meet their difficulties because they do not think that he cares. Our age needs the message that God loves the world, the whole world, and because of that love he sent his Son to save the world.

(To be concluded.)

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

WHITLEY MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 15th. Freshmen register on Tuesday, September 13th, and upper classmen on the 15th. Expenses reduced for this session. Write for Catalog and application blank.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. Associate
W. W. STALEY, D. D. Contributing
S. C. HARRELL Contributing
C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. Contributing
ELISHA A. KING, D. D. Contributing
W. C. WICKER, D. D. Contributing
J. T. KERNODLE Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When sending subscriptions for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of year.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

OBITUARIES

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas, the Death Angel has visited our community, and taken from our midst a good and honored member of our church, Mrs. Alice Cline Lincoln, widow of the highly esteemed Dr. J. E. Lincoln, of Lacey Spring, Va., these resolutions are respectfully submitted:

Resolved, That we submit to the will of God, who is too good and too just to do anything wrong, and that we feel assured He has taken her whom he gave to reign in glory.

Resolved, That in her death the community and the church have lost an honored and respected member, a devoted Christian worker, and her sons a devoted mother.

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in "The Christian Sun," and a copy kept by the church and a copy sent to each of her sons, accompanied by our heartfelt sympathy and best regards, hoping they will meet her in heaven.

LYDIA PICKERING,
M. H. THOMAS,
RUBY MARTZ.

HAND.

Miss Fannie Seymour was born March 12, 1856. She united with the church when a young girl. She was a charter member of three churches. She was married in 1881 to W. M. Hand. To this union were born four boys and seven girls. She had thirty-one grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

She leaves to mourn her passing nine children, thirty-one grandchildren, six great-grandchildren and a multitude of relatives and friends.

Her's was a most beautiful Christian life. She was always cheerful even in her last sickness. No one could be gloomy in her presence. With reference to her going, she once said to the writer, "When the Lord gets ready for me, I am ready for Him." Her smiling face that was always radiant with the glory of God, will be greatly missed.

pastor, the writer, at Vanceville Christian Church, of which she was a member, and interment was in Lawrence Cemetery. We earnestly exhort the bereaved to emulate "Aunt Fannie's" life, and may, one by one, the family be reunited as death translates them from this life.

Let us humbly bow in submission to the Lord's will, who saw fit to take this lovely saint away from us, after being here nearly four-score years, and whose "hoary hair was a crown of glory."

W. C. CARPENTER.

Good will, like a good name, is won by many actions, and lost by one.—Jeffrey.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

FALL TERM—SEPTEMBER 7

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

Cost for Board, Room and Tuition, including also Entrance, Activity, and Infirmary fees reduced to $273.50 for the College Year. Personal expenses as low as student and parent wish.

All who seek an "A" grade college training for their sons and daughters in an atmosphere of Christian culture, and at minimum cost, are invited to write for the college catalogue and admission blanks.

Address: DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

A Memorial of the Congregational-Christian Union.

FRANK E. JENKINS, Pres. MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD, Dean

Chartered by Southern Christian Convention, June 2, 1922, as Bethlehem College; renamed Southern Union, June 3, 1931.

Will function during the present financial depression as a Junior College only.

FALL TERM WILL OPEN SEPTEMBER 7.

DEPRESSION PRICES.

Depression prices during the coming year, made possible by extensive gardens, careful planning, organization and donations—Tuition, board and room, $192 for entire scholastic year; tuition alone, $48; each payable in six equal installments.

Unsectarian, but thoroughly Christian.

For Information, write—

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA.

THE CONGREGATIONAL LATIN-AMERICAN INSTITUTE AND PILGRIM LATIN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH OF WEST TAMPA, FLA.—

Are helping give the Gospel, which is "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," to the forty thousand Latin people of Tampa. The evangelical forces working among the foreigners of Tampa are by no means covering the territory sufficiently.

Methodists have six preachers, Baptists two, Presbyterians one, Congregationalists one. Church workers and teachers must be supported for this great missionary work. Send check to

LESLIE S. BRAY, Treas.

Route 4, Box 468, - - Tampa, Fla.
Send boxes of clothing to Mrs. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

For literature, write Rev. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

HOLMAN BIBLES

LARGE PRINT
TEACHERS' EDITION
FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS
AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear, Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type.
"From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, 'The kingdom of heaven'"

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid 10.65

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXIV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1932.

NUMBER 35.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

Shenandoah National Forest.—

One cannot but regret that President Hoover has seen fit, by presidential proclamation, to change the name of the Shenandoah National Forest. The largest National Park in Virginia, it lies approximately 100 miles south of the Nation's capital, and stretches along the summit and slopes of the Shenandoah Mountains and the smaller Massanutten Range. One does not revere the name of George Washington less because of regretting the change, but there could certainly be no name better fitted to that beautiful territory than that of the "Daughter of the Stars."

Premium on Cotton Baled in Cotton.—

While others are theorizing on how to help the cotton grower, the Martha Mills, of Silvertown, Ga., textile division of the B. F. Goodrich Company, have made a practical offer to aid them. The company offers to add to the regular amount paid for each bale the price of 7 pounds, provided the bale is delivered in cotton instead of jute wrappings. These mills use nearly 75,000 bales a year, and this becomes an offer to pay for a half-million extra pounds of cotton each year. Not only is there provided a market for this much additional cotton, but the farmer saves the cost of the jute wrapping. It is claimed that if cotton wrappings were to replace jute throughout the entire cotton belt, there would be an increased consumption of nearly a million bales annually, and that due to greater compression possible with the use of cotton, there would be much saved in freight and handling charges.

Japan and Christian Missionaries.—

No matter how prejudiced she may otherwise be against the West, Japan recognizes the debt which she owes to Christian missionaries. In referring to a celebration marking fifty years of missionary endeavor in Japan, the Osaka Mainichi, says: "One is struck by the outstanding proof of the great debt owed to the foreign missionaries whose generous devotion has played an important part in medical relief, care of orphans, prison reform, and temperance movements. . . They have risked their health, indeed their lives, in helping victims of tuberculosis and leprosy, something even the countrymen of these unfortunates had not attempted on a large scale." The Home Minister of Japan, Dr. Susuki, adds his desire that these foreign workers will continue to pursue their humanitarian work in order that they may further contribute toward the peace of mankind and the happiness of society."

Russia Bans Radio Jazz.—

America might well take a musical cue from Russia, for by government order there is "a total absence of jazz on the Russian air waves." There would certainly be some opposition to such an edict, yet what a relief it would be to the more musically minded if they might turn off the crash-bang which forms the majority of American broadcasting today. Nor has Russia suffered from this ban, for, according to Albert Coates, now conducting the Philharmonic - Symphony Orchestra at the Lewisohn Stadium in New York, "Radio has been developed to a remarkable degree in Russia during the past few years. . . The finest musicians of the country are heard in frequent broadcasts, and the popularity of the programs has increased appreciably." It is more than a shame that two of the greatest factors for education in our country should have sunk so low as have the radio and moving pictures.

It Should Have Been Figured Out Sooner.—

What a pity someone did not give the figures of this German mathematician publicity before they happened! It has been recently stated that the World War resulted in casualties of 11,000,000 killed and 19,000,000 maimed, and that the total monetary expenditure was in excess of 500 billion dollars. The value of the lives lost and the other casualties cannot be estimated, but the money expended would be sufficient, he figures, to buy a $2,500.00 home in a five-acre plot, with $1,000 worth of furniture, for each and every family in the United States, Canada, Australia, England, Belgium, France, Russia and Germany. There would be enough over to provide a university, schools and hospitals, for each 20,000 inhabitants. While this money is gone, the amounts now being spent by these countries for armaments, if applied to the betterment of economic conditions would soon dissipate the world-wide depression.

"Artificial Silk" that Is Real.—

Rayon, or "artificial silk," has made many inroads upon the domain of the silk-worm, but it has never pretended to be the real article. Now comes a real silk that is artificially produced. Science Service thus describes it: "The real artificial silk is regenerated silk. The silkworm is a necessary factor in its making. Unlike rayon, which is not silk at all, the new fibre is real silk. It is artificial, however, because it is formed into fibre in much the same way as rayon. In making regenerated silk, the silk worm's cocoon is converted into a solution of liquid consistency, just about that which occurs within the body of the silkworm before it spins its silk filament. It is a solution of real silk." From this point on the same process of forming the yarn is used as is used in rayon manufacture. The product, however, approaches the silk of the silkworm much more closely than any existing synthetic fibre. The regeneration process was perfected by Japanese, and it is understood that the Japanese Government will not permit its commercial utilization for fear of seriously affecting the established silk industry. American and European inventors are working out other processes, and real artificial silk may come into commercial prominence in spite of present curbs.

Was Shakespeare Shakespeare?—

At various intervals the above question is asked by one literary critic or another, and the dedication of a memorial theater at Stratford-on-Avon lately seems to have again given rise to the question. Among those who have been given credit for writing the plays which are universally recognized as "the plays of Shakespeare," are such claimants as Francis Bacon, Sir Walter Raleigh and Christopher Marlowe. Claim has also been made for the "Sweet Swan of Avon," where Shakespeare is incarnated in a woman. Among the most plausible substitutes for Shakespeare, if we must have one, is one advanced by Oliver Herford of the New York American. According to Mr. Herford, the "real" Shakespeare, that is the writer, was Edward de Vere, Seventeenth Earl of Oxford. "This (other) Shakespeare was a Stratford villager of whose education and culture nothing is known; whose signature was an illiterate scrawl; who knew no language or country but his own; who became an actor in a small way, but had other and more lucrative connections with the theatre which in a few years enabled him to return to his 'home town,' and give his entire attention to the buying of land and the selling of malt, and never another thought to the production or publication of the plays he was supposed to have written." Having thus disposed of the Bard of Avon, he proceeds in orderly fashion, showing why the Earl would be the likely author; showing that of necessity the author was an aristocrat, that he was at home in the company of princes and kings, but at a loss when it came to portraying the common people; that he was a Lancastrian in sympathies; was a lover of music and of the sports common to the ruling classes. He leaned toward Catholicism rather than toward Puritanic Protestantism, yet was somewhat of a skeptic. Even the Earl's picture bears out his contention, and one looking at it "would suppose it to be one of the accepted likenesses of William Shakespeare." The writings of the Earl were published by his daughters after his death under the pen name of "William Shakespeare." Mr. Herford gives as his authority, J. Thomas Looney, who has a "masterly presentation of irrefutable evidence that Edward de Vere was the author of the plays and other works attributed to William Shakespeare," and has "started . . . a revolution to depose the Stratford imposter whose fantastic usurpation of the throne of genius has befuddled the world for over three hundred years." Literary critics may deprive the world of its "Shakespeare," yet it is a lucky world in that it will still have "Shakespeare's works."

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

We are not sure that the world needs more business in religion, but we are sure that it needs more religion in its business.

A little Miami boy recently told his mother that he heard a song about Andy at church. In time the mother discovered the song was "In the Garden," and he meant the chorus, "And he walks with me, and he talks with me."

Mrs. Sue A. Williams, who is secretary in the Jacksonville office, has been having two weeks' vacation, which she spent visiting her daughter in Cincinnati. Her other daughter has been assisting Dr. Gillette in her absence.

He who walks through life with an even temper and a gentle patience—patient with himself, patient with others, patient with difficulties and crosses—he has an everyday greatness beyond that which is won in the battle or chanted in cathedrals.—Dr. Dewey.

Many busy pastors have had a much-needed and well-deserved vacation, and now return to their charges and duties with renewed strength, energy and consecration. Here is hoping that all their churches will respond to their eager desires for quickened and deepened interest in all church work.

It is a joy to report that Dr. W. W. Staley, of Suffolk, Va., is on foot and going again, not strong yet, but able to visit friends, carry a word of cheer to the sick, and comfort to the bereaved. He attended and had part in three funeral services last week, among the many other duties that engaged him.

Miss Margaret Harrell, secretary, reports 23 new members to our Ocean View Sunday School during July and two members added to the church. The last Sunday in July, there were 140 at Sunday School, and 110 present at the morning worship service. The church and Sunday School are doing good work and making progress under the leadership of the pastor, J. H. Warren. There are great possibilities and bright prospects for a school and church of permanence and power at Ocean View:

Rev. W. T. Scott, pastor, writes under date of August 25th: "We are having a fine Vacation Church School at Salem Chapel this week. Miss Priscilla Chase is directing it, and we are having a good group in attendance. There are two sessions daily. The children come from 2 to 4 in the afternoon and the young people come in the evening. We have upwards of a hundred in attendance. There are great possibilities at Salem Chapel, if we can only develop them, as well as in our other rural churches."

President L. E. Smith, of Elon College, attended the annual meeting of Church Related Colleges and Schools at Asheville, N. C., August 25th, and reports a meeting of interest with all the church college presidents and a member of the Board of Trustees of each institution, at which meeting, plans, purposes and prospects of Church Related Schools were discussed. Dr. Smith is not fully recovered, but is able to work and go several hours a day, and is now giving his full strength and time to the duties and requirements of Elon College.

Rev. George D. Owen, pastor of the church at Ormond Beach, Fla., was recently the pastor at the union service of the three hill churches in Hartford, Conn. They were the Asylum Hill Congregational Church, the Immanuel Congregational Church, and the Asylum Avenue Baptist Church. The service was held in the latter church. Mr. Owen preached on the text, "Abraham Was Called the Friend of God." The sermon was quoted in the Hartford press on the following day. Mr. Owen was greeted by many old friends, especially friends from his former church at Thomaston.

Dr. Geo. T. Winston, former president of the University of North Carolina, also later president of the University of Texas and of North Carolina State College, died in a Durham hospital August 26th, in his 80th year. Dr. Winston, retired in 1908 from educational work and made his home with his son, Prof. Winston at Chapel Hill. He was a member of the well-known Winston family of North Carolina and a stalwart figure in the educational world for many years. He is remembered by many SUN readers and Elon College students because of his visits to and lectures at Elon in the busy days of his educational career.

Miss Pattie Lee Coghill, in a recent letter, describes an experience of an outdoor vesper service at the convention in Gregoryville, Ky. As she was leading the service a cow walked up behind her, and she says the bell around her neck (meaning the cow's neck) was keen competition and just about broke up the meeting. She remarked further, that the humor of the situation saved it from being a tragedy. Miss Coghill reported a fine vacation school at Muse's Mills. The public school gave the entire afternoon to the use of the school-house. There were one hundred children in the vacation school. The County Superintendent of Schools attended the closing session and was most enthusiastic. After a week visiting churches in West Virginia, Miss Coghill and Miss Jean Fullington plan to leave for North Carolina. Miss Coghill will have a vacation at her home in Henderson, N. C., and Miss Fullington will return to her home in New Port Richey, Fla., for a brief vacation before returning to Rollins College.

The following from the Greensboro Daily News, August 27th, will be of regretful and sympathetic interest to many SUN readers of personal acquaintance: "Messages were received here Friday, telling of the death of Mrs. Sadie Jones, which occurred Friday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. A. Ledbetter, in Charlotte. She had been in ill health for several months. Mrs. Jones made her home here for several months a few years ago. She often visited Mrs. D. H. Everett, 2423 Camden Road. For several years she made her home at Elon College, having served as matron at the college there, and was well known to hundreds of former students of Elon. Surviving Mrs. Jones are three daughters, Mrs. Ledbetter, Charlotte; Mrs. M. H. Judd, Dalton, Ga., and another who lives in South Carolina. She was a sister to Dr. J. O. Atkinson, of Elon College. Her husband died many years ago. The body was taken to Wake Chapel, 12 miles from Raleigh, Sunday morning and the funeral was held there Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock."

The following items from the Elon correspondent of the Greensboro Daily News, August 27th, are of deep and abiding interest to SUN readers and all friends of Elon: "Elon College will open its fall term September 13th, with the promise of a splendid enrollment. Registration day for the upper classmen will be September 15th from 9:00 o'clock to 6:00 o'clock. Regular class work will begin Friday morning following. Freshmen will begin their work immediately upon registration. Many new members have been added to the college faculty. Dr. W. C. Wicker, a resident of Elon College community, and a former member of the college faculty, will be head of the mathematics department and psychology, in which he has specialized. He is a graduate of Elon College and has done extensive work at Columbia, Johns Hopkins, University of North Carolina and University of Virginia, Duke and other leading schools. He is also a minister of the Christian denomination. Miss Madie Lee Walker, M. A., Lexington, Ky., will be dean of women, and assistant in education. She comes highly recommended and is a graduate of Columbia University. Prof. Dwight Steere, A. B., M. A., Ann Arbor, Mich., will be head of the music department, and many new features in the study of music will be added. Miss Helen Chamblee, Red Oak, will assist Mr. Steere in the music department as teacher of voice and other subjects. She is a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, Mass. Prof. Coleman C. Gulley, A. B., M. A., Fort Worth, Tex., becomes head of the business administration department. Miss Floyd Childs, A. B., B. O., LaGrange, Ga., will teach expression and physical education for women."

The young people of the Congregational Church at Sanford, Fla., entertained young people from a number of the churches in the State at an Imokalee Echo Meeting. There were eighty-five in attendance from the churches outside of Sanford, and with the large and active young people's group in the Sanford Church, the meeting was a most successful one. The entertaining young people had planned a fine program beginning with a dinner on Saturday afternoon, at which there were interesting after-dinner talks. Following this was a vesper service, conducted by Rev. Walter Metcalf, of Tampa. This was followed by a frolic and swim at Palm Springs, several miles from Sanford. On Sunday there were two services, both of which were conducted by young men of the Sanford Church. The first one was held at 10:00 o'clock and was conducted by Henry Witte, and the speaker was Superintendent Gillette, of Jacksonville. The second service was held at 11:00 o'clock, and was conducted by Charles Gantt. Prayer was offered by A. Craig Bowdish, of Babson Park. The talks were all by young people who were at Camp Imokalee, as follows: Forbes de Tamble, of Coral Gables; Elizabeth Conwell, of St. Petersburg; and Milton Holt, also of St. Petersburg. The gathering ended with a bountiful dinner at the Parish House. The pastor of the church, Rev. J. B. Root, is to be highly congratulated on the splendidly trained and efficient group of young people. Not only had they made effective plans but had worked up great enthusiasm. Five came as far as from Coral Gables and Miami Beach, fourteen came from St. Petersburg, and sixteen from Jacksonville. It was voted by all an enjoyable and worthy affair.

NOTICE.

Any churches contemplating a change of pastor for next conference year within reach of my home, desiring my services, I would be glad to correspond with the same. I have done pastoral work since 1916.

L. L. WYRICK,
Elon College, N. C.

SUMMER CAMP FOR THE MIDLAND CITY GROUP OF CHURCHES, ALABAMA

There recently gathered from three of the four churches of the Midland City group pastored by Rev. N. A. Long, forty-three young people, eager for their second summer camp. This year the camp was held from Monday, August 15th, to Thursday afternoon, August 18th, but next year they demand a camp of a whole week's duration.

The campers are indebted to the kindness of the American Legion of Abbeville, which lent the use of its recreation park to the young people. The Legion did not need to fear for its property, for these campers know how to keep a clean camp and to leave everything in better condition than they found it. The swimming pool, the bath-houses, and the roomy pavilion were all used by the campers, and were left ship-shape for the next group that might take advantage of the excellent equipment. The young folks slept on the ground under the pine trees, where they could watch the full moon through the branches. They cooked all of their meals over a campfire and brought enough food from home to more than satisfy their healthy appetites. Each morning the whole camp went to work shelling peas and beans for the noon meal. Some had the pleasure of preparing chickens for frying and others made appetizing dishes from the sweet and white potatoes. Under the direction of Miss Lillian McKee, a former S. S. S. girl and teacher at Thorsby Institute now, squads of the young folks took charge of the meals in turn, and gave that group more than it could eat. Sleeping on the ground without a mattress, swimming in cold spring water, and lively games can give a group a real appetite, we found.

The program of the camp was planned by Miss Ethel Bond, a sincere friend of the group from a sister church at Headland, Blackwoods community. The camp met before breakfast for morning devotions beautifully led by Miss Annie Lou Arthur of the S. S. S. This was a perfect beginning for our day. After camp chores were done and breakfast out of the way, the groups met for classes. They were divided according to age and attended classes in Stewardship, taught by Miss Ethel Bond, in Leadership, taught by Miss Marguerite Davison, and group discussions, led by Miss Lillian McKee. After dinner and quiet hour, recreation held sway. One afternoon an exciting mixed baseball game held the attention of the group, and the next, three groups vied for first place in a field meet. Swimming always followed the athletic activities, and meals usually followed the swimming.

The evening meetings were vesper services, conducted by different leaders, but the messages were brought by Rev. N. A. Long. The last meeting of the day was the campfire, the big opportunity for home talent to show itself. Stunts, songs, and various programs added to the festive occasions. Always before closing we had a brief devotional service and "taps." Our last evening session was a candle-lighting service. It was a lovely sight to see the group standing in the moonlight with lighted candles ready to take out into the world that all might share the love of Christ. The young people who attended the camp all through its sessions, those who could spend only a short time there, and the older folks who came to visit, all felt closer companionship with each other and with the heavenly Father who seemed so much nearer when they were out-of-doors, they said.

The camp committee for 1933, appointed by the group, is as follows: Marguerite Davison, chairman; Rev. N. A. Long, pastor; Bertha Long, Clio representative; Lois Rister, Blackwoods representative; and Rex Brannan, Christian Hill representative.

DR. SMITH AND ELON COLLEGE.

The following is taken from the press reports of the week:

"Dr. Leon Edgar Smith, who has been acting president of Elon College since December 1, 1931, has tendered his resignation as pastor of the Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va., where he served for thirteen years, and will move his family to Elon during the coming week.

"Dr. Smith comes to the institution after a successful career as minister and executive. He possesses the following degrees: A. B. from Elon; M. A. from Princeton University, and D. D. from Elon. He did his graduate work in the theological seminary at Princeton, majoring in comparative religions.

"He graduated from Elon in 1910 with a blanket average of 93 per cent on all his studies, having also held a regular pastorate at the Graham Christian Church, during his four years as a student. He was later pastor of the Christian Churches at Ramseur, O'Kelly's Chapel (near Durham), and at the First Christian Church at Huntington, Ind. He came to Norfolk thirteen years ago.

"The Christian Temple had a membership of 236 and occupied makeshift quarters at Norfolk when Dr. Smith became pastor. Upon his resignation after thirteen years of service, the church had a membership of 1,600 and the present building was erected at a total cost of $310,000, seating 2,000 people. It is one of the largest churches in Norfolk, and the largest church in the Christian denomination.

"The new president has traveled widely in recent years. In 1927 and again in 1930 he spent considerable time abroad, visiting England, France, Belgium, Switzerland, Germany, Ireland, Greece, Turkey, Poland, Egypt, and other countries. While abroad in 1930 he witnessed the last presentation of the Passion Play.

"In his new connection at Elon, Dr. Smith has also agreed to serve as pastor of the college church. He will, under the arrangement that has been made, conduct the services one Sunday each month and secure leading ministers from throughout the South to fill the pulpit during the remaining Sundays."

ECHO FROM THE GEORGIA CONFERENCE AT OWENS HEIGHTS.

Miss Martha Race, of Jacksonville, who has been active in Camp Immokalee work for several years, and who was a guest teacher at the Young People's Conference at Owen Heights, writes that while she has seen a number of such gatherings, she has never attended one more inspiring. She writes this description of the closing service:

"The communion service and candle-light service were in a cedar grove about a quarter of a mile from the house. The council ring was near it, in a higher and more open space. Dr. Sweet led a beautiful service, in the twilight. Then they went to the council ring for the testimonial meeting, while the circle was made ready for the candle-light service. Then the moon came up over the trees, and it seemed very much like the Immokalee service. When it was over, the girl chosen to light the central candle led the whole group off, in single file, to the road and along the road home. Dr. Sweet and I waited to pack up the candles and other things, and as we came out of the gate into the road, the line was going up the hill to the house singing, "Follow the Gleam." Dr. Sweet stopped and said, "Now, isn't that the most beautiful sight you ever saw?" The tapers burned until they reached the house, so they stood in a group before the front steps and sang the good-night song. The lights were noticed in the houses on hills a mile and more away."

METHODS CORNER

By REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.

Miami Beach, Fla.

We give our money for those things that we really want. We pay attention to the things that interest us. And we are not usually interested in anything we know nothing about. Ignorance is the deadening force that kills. How can people be interested in missionary endeavor without information? How can a church be expected to give largely to the benevolence budget when they do not know where the money goes or what it does? Let somebody declare that other religions are good enough for the "heathen," and the uninformed Christians agree. Let somebody say that it takes the larger part of the dollar given to get it on the field, and plenty of people nod their heads and say, "I told you so!" However, it is a matter of great pride with us that it costs only about twelve cents to get our dollar to its destination. All the missionary funds are administered carefully and economically. Occasionally a "world-traveler" will say: "I have seen the Missions and since then do not believe in them!" Strange thing this is, for it is the general testimony of thoughtful, unprejudiced people that having seen the Missions at work they become enthusiastic supporters of such work.

In that wonderful book, "New Life Through God," by Toyohiko Kagawa, of Japan, Prof. Kenneth Saunders says in his introduction, "And if people ask, what is the good of Missions? or what Has Christianity done in Asia? let them find here the answer?" You know who Kagawa is, of course. It was Dr. Myers, a local American missionary, who took Kagawa into his home when he was groping his way from darkness to light. It is a wonderful story, and no one should speak slightly about Foreign Missions until he has read Kagawa's story.

And then, there is Pearl Buck's, "The Young Revolutionist," that sums up the passion of the young heart to be useful and is a strong word for Medical Missions. And there is that eye-opener, "The Story of Agricultural Missions," by Hunnicutt and Reid, as well as Bishop McConnell's "Human Needs and World Christianity."

Once more I refer to Dr. Albert Schweitzer's recent book (1931), "The Forest Hospital at Lambarene." There are many other sources of information. The Missionary Herald is a delightfully illustrated magazine full of articles each month, and the missionary section of The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty overflows with facts. Read! Learn! Give! Go!

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

On the closing day of the meeting at Concord, we found our car loaded with good things for the pantry. In face of the depression we received a very liberal offering. Among the articles received were: jellies, corn, peas, sugar, honey, molasses, eggs, butter, a large quantity of bacon, flour, etc.

This is a very loyal congregation to its pastor. They endeavor to show their interest in the work of the church by something besides paying the pastor's salary. We wish more of our country churches would take up the custom of "old Concord church." Our pastors would not have to worry so much about getting bread and meat, but could devote more time to the study of the Word.

We take this opportunity to thank all who so kindly remembered us. Wife and children join in to acknowledge gratefully what was given. May the Lord abundantly bless all in their Christian conduct, and help us to be a more useful servant.

L. L. WYRICK.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. W. STALEY C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

W. C. WICKER

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

WHO DIE IN THE LORD.

"Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord. They rest from their labors." So read and so spake Pastor N. G. Newman in the presence of a thousand or more people at the Holland Christian Church, August 24th, at the funeral of Elisha Thomas Holland. And the people who heard his pastor speak those words in reference to the deceased knew well, all of them did, that they had come now to do homage and honor to the name and memory of a man who, verily, had died in the Lord. He had so lived, so labored, so served that all of us knew full well that this man died in the Lord, and was resting now, and will ever rest, in the safekeeping of the God to whom his life had been dedicated from early years. Bro. Holland was not an ordinary man, neither was he an extraordinary man, except in that sense in which the giant oak of the forest, adapted to the soil in which it is planted and in turn extracts from the soil, the air about and the heavens above, all those qualities and elements that make it strong, stalwart, steadfast, immovable. Of his deeds in detail, of his family and achievements, his pastor tells our readers elsewhere this week.

"My beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, immovable, always bounding in the works of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord." "Once he had found that which to him was right," says his pastor, "he was steadfast and immovable, regardless of consequences to himself." And so this man walked with God, and to him God was as real as the most intimate loved one or friend with whom he associated daily—more intimate, in fact, because he sought the wisdom and the way of God, then gave his strength and effort to live in that wisdom and walk in that way day by day.

Born sixty years ago, the son of the late John and Nancy Austin Holland, of Nansemond Co., he leaves the priceless legacy of a life of righteousness to his loved ones and to the world made richer and better because of his living in it. He gave to his church, to his country, and to the kingdom of God, a life unsullied by the work and wearing of these sixty years, strengthened and made powerful by constant conquest and victory through the Christ he loved, the God he worshipped.

He served his county as a most efficient member of the Board of Supervisors; his community as president of the Farmers Bank of Holland, his church for thirty years as deacon, and, for several years, an honored and esteemed member of the Board of Christian Education of the Southern Christian Convention.

Here, then, was a man in whom was fulfilled the high destiny and demands of a trusted father of a family, an efficient and a capable official of his county, a true, trusted servant of the church, and one who in every capacity measured up to the high standards of a Christian gentleman.

DR. LEON EDGAR SMITH.

Dr. Smith has just accepted the presidency of Elon College after several months as acting head of the denominational college. In going to Elon, Dr. Smith resigns a pastorate at Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va., the largest church in the denomination, and the presidency of the Southern Christian Convention.

The world seems poorer when the voice of a man like this is silenced in death; and yet there is compensation, and there is comfort. Compensation in the challenge that such a life gives to those who knew and loved him. That which is done well makes that thing seem worth while, and Bro. Holland did that which he undertook so well that the challenge abides if his voice is silent. Comfort to his loved ones and to all of us for his contribution of wise counsel, or good example, of righteous living, of victorious achievement. And so Elisha Thomas Holland shall yet make contributions to us, and we to him. When the writer of the eleventh chapter of Hebrews had finished the long list of the faithful, he added these words: "And these all, having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise: God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect." And so this man who had obtained such good report through faith will yet provoke us to good works and challenge us; challenge all who knew him, to that life of faith in God which made his life immortal, and his name honored, esteemed, beloved, as long as memory shall last, and righteousness reign. Here, indeed, is a man who died in the Lord, because he lived for the Lord.

J. O. A.

DR. SMITH ACCEPTS.

The following news item, carried in the daily press of August 29th, explains a fact which will carry satisfaction and gladness to many hearts:

"Dr. E. L. Moffitt, chairman of the board of trustees of Elon College, has announced the formal acceptance of Dr. Leon Edgar Smith as president of Elon College.

Dr. Smith, who has been acting president since December 1, 1931, has tendered his resignation as pastor of the Christian Temple, at Norfolk, Va., and will move his family to Elon during the coming week.

"Following the resignation of Dr. W. A. Harper as president of the institution a year ago, Dr. Smith was tendered a call to the post. He agreed to go to the college under a temporary arrangement. He has now consented to continue as president of the institution."

It need not be stated that Dr. Smith has had a struggle to come to this conclusion. The pathway to this decision was, indeed, at times a dark and doubtful one, and it may be said now that Dr. Smith has cast his lot with Elon, not for earthly reward or the hope thereof, but because of the difficulties that he knew faced him and the task which he realized was beyond his strength.

It takes the impossible and the insurmountable to provoke and challenge the heroic heart and to stir to full depths the courage of the brave. Dr. Smith realizes that God alone can give him the strength for the task that is now his, and that from God must come the wisdom which will enable him to walk in the way of security and safety for the College and for the Church, to which he is and has been through the years, devoted.

To this end he will need and must have the constant prayers of the people of his Church, their loyalty, sympathy and support in his undertakings, and their faith in the institution to which he now turns his entire strength, his whole heart and his strong hand. This, a loyal people will give him, in season and out of season, for the sake of our own Elon and the Church, of which it is an essential part. Every loyal soul of the Church should now rally to the support of Dr. Smith and Elon College and together, through our sacrificial service and self-denial, help to make Elon what it is destined to be, a great institution, representing a great people, dedicated to a great cause.

J. O. A.

INCREASING BURDENS.

In 1913 the total tax of Federal, State and local governments of our nation, was $2,900,000,000. Then came the World War, and a general debacle of extravagant expenditure by governments and individuals. When the War ended, however, we did not curtail, but in every direction increased our extravagance in taxation and expenditure. (How difficult, indeed, it is to come back from extravagance to thrift, from indulgence to economy, from expenditure to saving.) Hence, within seventeen years from the time we began our reckless waste and indulgence, we had increased our tax burden and governmental expenditure more than four-fold, actually spending during 1930 for government a tax burden of $12,200,000,000. Our extravagance in government still continues and it is estimated that this year the total tax for all government bodies in America will be approximately $15,000,000,000.

As always happens, the payment of debts is demanded when money is hard to get, and tax burdens are always heavier when the people are least able to pay them. Out of unemployment and want, we must now bear the burdens that we have through extravagance piled up on ourselves. In 1913 the per capita cost of all government in our country was $26.30, while in 1930 it was $110.00 for every man, woman and child in this country. This $15,000,000,000 cost of government is more than four times the value of all farm crops raised and sold in 1930, and is approximately three times the amount of all the United States currency in circulation today.

And yet we hear people wondering why "hard times" have come. It is with government as with individuals—extravagance and indulgence destroy the very sense of thrift and saving, and pay-day comes when there is least to pay with. By our folly, short-sightedness and extravagance, we have spent our money for that which was not bread, and our earnings for that which satisfieth not. So goeth the folly of man.

The safest, sanest and most penetrating economist who ever lived said a long time ago: "Seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and these things shall be added unto you." We, as a nation and a people, have been blind to this injunction and have gone contrary to the teachings of the wisest and best of all mankind. We have sought the kingdom of finance and the things of this world, and these are they which have increased our burdens and have not decreased our woes. The world will one day learn, it may be a long time hence, that God, through his son and his church, is building up a kingdom of heaven on earth. That kingdom does not add to the burdens, but simply multiplies the blessings and benefits to mankind. As we seek to build up that kingdom, our burdens become bearable and our tasks more tolerable, and our labors more abundant, beneficial, blissful. The church of the living God, and it alone, can and will solve, safely and securely, the distracting problems of this world. The one institution on this earth that is a blessing and not a burden is the church, of which Christ is the head.

J. O. A.

COOPERATION IN HOME MISSIONS.

Hopeful, indeed, is the movement toward cooperation in the Home Mission field. For many years the Christian Churches, through their own denominational agencies, have pressed forward with an eye to denominational growth as well as the propagation of their particular message of gospel truth. This has led to rivalry, overcrowding and duplication of work.

The first efforts were to evangelize the Indians. The next was to provide the new West with preaching, Sunday Schools, and eventually with churches. This was the age of the covered wagon. These efforts developed into the multiplication of organizations national in scope, but independent and still competitive. In modern times, however, it has dawned upon many leaders and missionary statesmen that such a policy is wasteful of time, energy and money. They are seeking to bring about a new era in Home Missionary strategy. This is now the age of cooperation. The present methods are re-making Home Missions.

Various Home Mission Boards have combined in conducting surveys of certain types of fields and the returns have brought out a remarkable set of facts. For example, in the Maine survey 485 communities were studied. Thirteen of these were found to be solidly Roman Catholic, 131 towns were inadequately churchied, 153 towns were over-churched, and 188 towns seemed to be adequately churchied.

Only 62 per cent of the village churches and only 19 per cent of hamlet and country churches have resident pastors. In the country only one-fifth of the churches have the full time of a minister. One township with a population of 1,300, has ten churches, and so on.

We are not so much concerned here with the facts brought out as with the method involved. All denominations are coming to see the value of finding the facts, and are searching for them jointly. When the reports are all in then the various denominations will adjust their work in cooperative fashion and the Kingdom of God will grow faster.

E. A. K.

WHAT FREEDOM MEANS.

The warm and glowing possession of the Congregational and Christian Churches has always been our common love of freedom. Both groups originated in times of revolt against tyranny. We have learned through the years to trust the leadership of the risen living Christ. His Spirit brings to us the infinite and ongoing purposes of God. No creed or program of yesterday can fully state for us the mind of Christ in the enlarging life of today.

Being thus free to follow Christ means many things. We speak at this time of one of these marks of freedom. We in these free churches are free to differ among ourselves in our intellectual statements of religious truth. We cannot have freedom and uniformity at the same time. When we make a particular interpretation of Christianity a test for fellowship and say that the acceptance of some particular shibboleth is essential, we become sectarian. Religious experience and religious opinion are matters of individual insight. We must each cooperate with all in our search for truth. This freedom is essential to the laboratory method of finding the truth.

Each will declare his own convictions with complete honesty and at the same time be modest enough to respect the opinions of others. That is, free Christians will agree to disagree agreeably. They will not merely tolerate differences, for nothing is worse than tolerance except intolerance. Rather, they will be in warm fellowship with those with whose opinions they may differ.

C. R. R.

Special Combination Subscription Offer!

A special arrangement has been made whereby those who desire to do so may receive both THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for just a little more than they now pay for one of these papers.

Beginning immediately, we will accept subscriptions for the two papers at the price of $3.75 for the combined subscription. This means to SUN readers that for only $1.75 additional they may receive the great wealth of knowledge that The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty brings weekly. Those who are already subscribers for the latter paper may add THE SUN to their list for only 75 cents for the whole year.

You do not have to wait until your subscription to one or the other paper has expired, but send in your subscription now. You will begin immediately to receive the other paper and that which you are already receiving will be marked up a year in advance.

While this offer is open to everyone, it should appeal especially to the pastors and lay workers in the Southeast Convention, and we beg them to take advantage of this opportunity.

It is, of course, understood that under this special offer all subscriptions must be in advance, and must be sent directly to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va., or to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

DEAR SIR:

Please (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my present subscription one year) to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my subscription one year) to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

(Please mark out the words not applicable.)

I enclose, herewith, check or money order for $3.75 to cover same.

M
Street No. or R. F. D.
City and State.

CONTRIBUTIONS

THE "ONE" INSTITUTION.

For ages the church has been the pioneer of that which is right. Through its teachings the untutored mind has been prepared to receive greater truths and the savage breast has been made a temple for the presence of Christ.

The froward lives of many that have been in authority have sought to crush the church, but somehow persecution strengthens the church. Even such cruel and wicked rulers as Nero could not crush the church, neither can all the satanic forces stop the church today. The church was built right, namely, on the solid rock of Christ.

"On Christ, the solid rock, I stand,
All other ground is sinking sand."

Within the bounds of the church membership there exists some of the devil's works, such as envy, strife, contention, prejudice, selfishness, deceivers and backbiters, but the Lord knows who are his, and at "that day" all such "works" will be judged according to their good works. Satan may lead a church member back into sin, if the member does not have on the armor of God, but Satan cannot destroy the Church of Christ.

No matter how many vicious hearts keep constantly trying to destroy the church by throwing evil influences about its people, the church of Christ—the greatest institution on earth—will stand the storms of Satan and all his workers. The church is here to stay, and continue to do the greatest work on earth until the Lord comes back. We people today do things, it seems, for money, mostly, but Christ founded the church for "love" and not for money.

Some one has called the church "the golden thread which runs through the web of human life, imparting to it strength and beauty." The church unites the intellectual, moral and spiritual functions into fruitful service for the kingdom of Christ among men.

The writer is afraid to use the term, Christian, too much. I think it is very much over-worked in favor of Satan. Christ said, "A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another: as I have loved you, that ye also love one another."

It is high time for church people to quit fighting one another, and fight together against Satan and all his works. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Now are we fighting in any way whatsoever, any of the Lord's people? It is high time for Protestants to love Catholics, praise their good works and not slander them; for preachers to love fellow-preachers, laymen to love laymen, and denominations to be neighbors, fulfilling the commandment, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

We ought all to dwell together in unity as dear children. The church will never fall, but we need to help it grow stronger and stronger.

As "Bob Self" expressed it, "Let's run the devil off," let's get him from between us, and keep our backs on him.

Brethren, let us dwell together in the unity of love that the church may go forward by leaps and bounds. The church of Christ is the "one" institution that stands and has room for growth. We have "One Lord, one faith, one baptism."

E. R. BARNES.

Bailey, N. C.

FIELD NEWS.

Commencing Sunday, July 31st, I held a revival at Bethlehem (Warren County), and did the preaching. The church was filled almost to capacity at every service throughout the week.

A large number reconverted themselves for a closer walk with God during the revival services. Several made public confessions of Christ as their Master and Saviour, and there were five additions to the church.

From Bethlehem, I went to Mt. Gilead, and began a revival there Sunday, August 7th. We had a full house each service, and the pastor did the preaching.

There was a growing interest daily concerning spiritual things. A brotherly love was manifest throughout the services. The people listened attentively, as I tried to bring them messages of appeal, to repent, believe and be saved.

Several reconverted their lives to the Lord. There were two additions to the church, and we are expecting several others the first Sunday in September. May God bless these good people, for they are devoted Christians, and easy to serve. They are ready at all times to help advance the work of the Kingdom. No matter what you ask them to do in church work, they always answer, "I will do my best."

From here, I went to Antioch (Warren County) and began a series of services Sunday, August 14th. I also did the preaching there.

On Sunday, Wednesday and Friday we had services in the morning, lunch in the grove, and services again in the afternoon. The remainder of the week the services were in the afternoon and evening.

We had a nice congregation at each service during the week. Bro. A. P. Strickland, of Mt. Gilead Church, led the singing.

Many of the members of the church expressed themselves as feeling that it was the best revival held in years.

There were many reconsecrations, several confessions, and ten additions to the church.

The people at Antioch are good people to serve, and may pastor and people grow closer to the blessed side of the Master.

May the Lord wonderfully bless the people of these three churches, and may pastor and people be drawn closer together in the up-building of the Lord's Kingdom here on earth.

H. C. HILLIARD, Pastor.

Louisburg, N. C.

REVIVAL AT PLEASANT GROVE.

We closed our revival at Pleasant Grove Church, Chambers County, Ala., yesterday at 11 A. M. The meeting began last Sunday. The preaching was done by the pastor. We had fair attendance from the beginning, which increased until the close of the meeting.

The attention given the word was to be commended. It was earnest and patient. Somehow we feel that lasting good was accomplished for the glory of Jesus Christ. Some two hundred people expressed themselves as having received a blessing during the meeting.

Mrs. Mattie Reeves led in the organization of a junior choir, which rendered valuable service during the meeting. The choir was composed of 26 little folks. How they did sing—it was an inspiration to hear them—and their joy seemed to be complete when, at the last service, the pastor presented each one with a little present.

Many were the expressions of appreciation by the people for the meeting. Many souls were revived and everybody rejoiced. As an expression of their joy, they remembered their pastor in a substantial way. On the last day of the meeting, Bros. Hill, Reeves, Lambert and Redmon passed through the community in their cars, and let the people know that they were going to give something to their pastor. In a generous way, they gave, until the car of Bro. I. D. Harris was loaded and some things were left for the next time. We were supplied with such things as corn, meal, lard, syrup, jelly, preserves, canned fruits of all kinds, canned beans, watermelons, cantaloupes, chickens, and a nice pair of slippers. A nice purse of ready cash was presented to the pastor. No one gave large amounts, but everybody, both in and out of the church, was anxious to give something. There are many old and feeble persons in the community, for whom we are praying daily, and we ask all who read these lines to breathe a little prayer for this church and these aged pilgrims. God bless them all—another meeting has closed in the good old way.

G. D. HUNT.

VIRGINIA LETTER.

The revival meetings of this charge began the fourth week in June, continuing, with an interval of two weeks, until the first Sunday in August. At the four churches I was assisted by the following brethren: Hebron, Rev. J. F. Morgan; Liberty, Rev. Roy Coulter; Lebanon, Revs. H. E. Crutchfield and Holland Wilkinson; Union (Va.) Rev. C. H. Rowland. These brethren did faithful work, endearing themselves to the people of the entire community. Each congregation experienced a grand revival. There were many professions and fifty-one received into church membership.

The annual series of meetings has always been a great time with the people of the country church. Secular affairs, to a great extent, are put aside, and the time given to worship and soul feasting. Interest in the church and its enterprises is increased, Christians strengthened for all the duties and experiences of life, converts gained and members added to the church, and the community made a better place in which to live.

C. E. NEWMAN.

PLANS MADE FOR RALLY DAY.

Members of the Sunday School board in the First Christian Church, Norfolk, Va., last night designated Sunday, September 25th, as Rally Day for this year. Members on the committee are: Miss Edna Fulcher, Miss Cathryn Morgan and W. J. Thomas.

The installation service for the newly elected officers of the board will be conducted Sunday night, September 11th, by the Rev. P. Houlder Brown, pastor.

The board's regular meeting night has been set for the third Friday in each month at 8:00 o'clock, in the Sunday School rooms. Following the meeting, a teachers' training class will be conducted by the pastor.

Many plans were made for the coming year and much routine work was done by the board, among which it was decided to have a pre-Sunday School song service each Sunday morning.

If you are lounging around indulging in self-pity, shake off that terrible mental malady. Feeling sorry for yourself is like taking slow poison. There are millions of people worse off than you—millions. When you are hungry, helpless, or hopelessly ill, even then self-pity will harm you. —Van Amburgh.

THE TRAGEDY OF THE LONE BRICK.

By WAYNE GREENE.

When walking down the street, I see a brick lying to one side, I feel as if I should stop, pick it up, sympathize with it and weep over it. What a tragedy! A "lone brick"—just in the road—an obstacle in the road of progress. Notice the peculiar shape of the brick—it is long and narrow and has six flat sides. It was unquestionably made to be an instrument of service and yet, by itself, it has neither power, beauty nor usefulness. However, when placed in cooperation with other bricks and bound together by a common tie and fashioned after the dream and vision of the architect it becomes a thing of beauty and service. But there it is—just a "lone brick"—no reason for its existence—what a tragedy to behold!

While our hearts are saddened by this tragedy, let's shed some tears for the "lone church"—a church that doesn't need the fellowship of other churches—a church that spends all of its budget and effort selfishly—what a tragedy! A church that bears the name of Church of Christ, and yet is so selfish that it doesn't care whether the co-operative program of the church succeeds or fails. What a tragedy! A church that heard Jesus say, "Ye shall be my witnesses in Jerusalem," but closed its ears when he said, "and in Judea and Samaria and unto the uttermost parts of the world." What a tragedy! A church that, in order to solve the problem of the depression locally, just eliminated its offerings to missions and other church activities. What a tragedy! A church that cut out its very soul in a vain effort to save a dollar. What a tragedy! Dare I make a prophecy? Here it is: Every dollar cut from your missionary budget will create a proportionate cut in your budget for local expenses. What a tragedy! A "lone church" that thinks it can save itself by withdrawing from the larger co-operative program of Jesus Christ—"Thou foolish one."

Just as the "lone brick" is an instrument that is just in the road, an obstacle to progress, so is the "lone church" an instrument that is just in the road, an obstacle to the progress of the Kingdom of God. Though built to be an instrument of service and salvation the "lone church" has neither power nor usefulness by itself. But when placed in cooperation with other churches and bound together by the common tie of brotherhood and love and it gives itself wholeheartedly to the whole program of the church, the vision and dreams of the Great Architect are fulfilled and the Kingdom of God becomes a beautiful reality upon earth.—Christian Evangelist.

PERSONS AND PLATFORMS.

(In the present campaign of the candidates of the two outstanding political parties for the presidency, each and every individual may and can easily make his own choice in persons and platforms. Without comment we give the two statements as presented by an outstanding "wet" newspaper.—J. O. A.):

MR. HOOVER.

We must recognize the difficulties which have developed in making the Eighteenth Amendment effective and that grave abuses have grown up. In order to secure the enforcement of the amendment under our dual form of government the constitutional provision called for concurrent action on one hand by the state and local authorities and on the other by the federal government.

Its enforcement requires independent but co-incident action of both agencies. An increasing number of states and municipalities are proving themselves unwilling to engage in such enforcement. Due to these forces there is in large sections an increasing illegal traffic in liquor.

But, worse than this, there has been in those areas a spread of disrespect not only for this law but for all laws, grave dangers of practical nullification of the Constitution, degeneration in municipal government and an increase in subsidized crime and violence. I cannot consent to the continuation of this regime.

I refuse to accept either of these destinies—on the one hand to return to the old saloon with its political and social corruption, or on the other to endure the bootlegger and the speakeasy with their abuses and crime. Either is intolerable. These are not the ways out.

It is my belief that in order to remedy present evils a change is necessary by which we re-summon a proper share of initiative and responsibility which the very essence of our government demands shall rest upon the states and local authorities. That change must avoid the return of the saloon.

It is my conviction that the nature of this change, and one upon which all reasonable people can find common ground, is that each state shall be given the right to deal with the problem as it may determine, but subject to absolute guarantees in the Constitution of the United States to protect each state from interference and invasion by its neighbors, and that in no part of the United States shall there be a return of the saloon system, with its inevitable political and social corruption and its organized interference with other states.

MR. ROOSEVELT.

This convention wants a repeal. Your candidate wants a repeal. And I am confident that the United States of America wants repeal. . .

I say to you now that from this date on the Eighteenth Amendment is doomed. When this happens we as Democrats must and will rightly and morally enable the states to protect themselves against the importation of intoxicating liquors where such importations may violate their state laws. We must rightly and morally prevent the return of the saloon.

Subsequently, Mr. Roosevelt in a speech, said: "If the present Congress takes no action, I shall urge the new Congress to carry out these provisions," referring to the party platform recommendations for repeal and for immediate modification of the Volstead Act to legalize the manufacture and sale of beer and other beverages of such alcoholic content as is permissible under the Constitution.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos. 01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4½ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible

2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

Nos. 1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5½ x 3¾ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.
10 Mercy and truth
gather; righteousness
kissed each other.
11 Truth shall spring

Nos. 02112 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¼ x 4½ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.
10 For a day in thy courts is better
a Gen. 15. 1.
b Ps. 56. 1.
c 57. 1.
d or, all

Nos. 07528x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07528x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

OUR LEADER Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 15/16 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 9 Jō-hōi'-ā-chin was 6 years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark $9.50

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

No. 03255x

As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1½ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and hand-some Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

PRAYER.

Son of God, in sorrow the church must admit that still thou art asking "where are the nine?" To this day, souls washed and forgiven, wander and forget. Spiritually, multitudes are famishing because they give not God his due returns. Loving Saviour, so enlarge the gratitude of the faithful that it may avail for all who forget God's mercy. Let not one perish. Draw them unto thyself and in every life put faith to fill and force to function in the name of the holy church, we humbly pray. Amen. L.

OUR MISSIONARIES COME TO US.

We wrote in these columns last week of the "Guest Book." These books are now in the office of the Mission Secretary, Elon College, N. C., for distribution to churches, Sunday Schools, mission groups desiring them, and with no charges except the pledge on receiving the book to read it through. The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty last week gives further explanation of the book, which our readers will appreciate:

"The 225,000 copies of the 1932 'Guest Book' have started on their various journeys from the printing press in New York City to the homes of our people throughout the United States and to our missionaries in all parts of the world. In the fourth year of its issue the 'Guest Book' combines continuity with a wholesome degree of variation. The title printed on the attractive green cover is, 'A Journey of Discovery: the 1932 Guest Book.' Instead of the 'Guests' visiting the readers, the readers take a trip around the world to see the 'Guests.' Beginning at Durham, N. H., this imaginary company of people travel westward through our own country and Japan, China, India, and the Near East and then dip down into Africa, with the last stop at Sachikela in Portuguese West Africa. In the interests of economy both the size of the pages and their number have been reduced. Without any loss in attractiveness the printing bill has been reduced $4,000 from that of last year, which represents a saving of more than 50 per cent in this item alone. In its appearance and the interest of its contents this book is the equal if not the superior of those of other years—and it is hoped that it may meet with the same cordial reception as was extended to its predecessors."

LITTLE VILLAGE AT THE HEART OF THE WORLD.

Out of the little village of Bethlehem in Judea came One who has changed the history of the world, re-shaped the destiny of empires, released currents of influence to all nations. The little village of Bethlehem is at the heart of the world, and is more potent in influence and in achievement than any village, hamlet or city of man's making. And now comes the power and the prestige of another village. This time it is not in Judea, but in Germany, and for nearly two hundred years now it has been pouring its stream of influence for righteousness and the gospel into the world, until it has come to be the second village in prestige and power in all the world. The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, of August 25th, tells briefly of the contribution of this village to the world during this summer: a resume only of the work this village has been doing and the history it has been making annually, ever since, and even before, the days of John Wesley and his immortal crusade for the kingdom of righteousness on earth:

"The little German village of Herrnhut boasts only 1,600 inhabitants, and yet this summer it has been the destination of men and women journeying from all portions of the world to attend the meeting of the International Missionary Council. The logic of this strange meeting place was explained in the words of welcome of Bishop Baudert: 'What is Herrnhut? A small town, as you have already had opportunity of seeing. We have no elegant hotels with running water, no warehouses. What then has given us the courage to invite you to Herrnhut? We remember how on August 21, 1732, the first missionaries set out from Herrnhut to carry the gospel to the Negro slaves in St. Thomas. Then was lighted a fire which by the grace of God has not gone out in Protestant Christendom, and never will go out. With gratitude to God we remember how he has enabled our little church to send out in unbroken succession more than 3,000 brethren and sisters as missionaries. Today our Moravian Church has only 50,000 members in Europe and America, and yet we have 260 missionaries working in 13 mission provinces. Because Herrnhut has become a place of historic memories for evangelical missions, we have invited you to hold your meeting in our little town.' As one of the English speakers later pointed out, Protestant missions sprang from the evangelical revival which came out of the Moravian meeting. This revival expressed itself in social action as well as in personal conversion, leading to the abolition of the slave trade and legislation for industrial reform. In this simple but historic setting the ten days from June 23rd to July 3rd, were spent facing the problems which now confront the missionary enterprise in every land."

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS. WEEK ENDING AUGUST 27, 1932.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 3,291.46
Leaksville, Stanley, Va.	1.90
Happy Home, Ruffin, N. C.	2.05
Mt. Auburn, Manson, N. C.	2.50
Cary N. C.	1.91
Berea (Nans.), Driver, Va.	3.14
Lanett, Ala.	4.40
High Point, N. C.	2.40
Roanoke, Ala.	1.00
Newport News, Va.	9.00

Total $ 3,319.76

Individual and Church Offerings.

Previously acknowledged	$ 2,826.20
Providence-Memorial, Graham, N. C.	2.00

Total $ 2,828.20

Dollar-a-Month Club.

Previously acknowledged	$ 173.50
Miss Hontas Rawles, Suffolk, Va.	1.00

Total $ 174.50

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$ 2,656.71
Burlington S. S., Burlington, N. C.	20.91
Burlington S. S., Burlington, N. C., Coin

Card Offering 4.00

Total $ 2,681.62

Coin Card Offering.

Previously acknowledged	$ 419.03
Mt. Bethel Church, Summerfield, N. C., as follows:
L. P. Rippy	$ 1.00
Mrs. L. P. Rippy	1.00
Dr. J. T. Stewart	1.00
Mrs. J. T. Stewart	1.00
Joe Stewart	1.00
David Stewart	1.00
Frances Stewart	1.00

7.00

Total $ 426.03

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$20,177.88
Sunday Schools, Regular	28.30
Individual and Church Offerings	2.00
Dollar-a-Month Club	1.00
Specials	24.91
Coin Card Offering	7.00

Total to date $20,241.09

J. O. ATKINSON, Mission Sec'y.

AMONG THE HILLS.

It was my happy privilege to spend a few days recently in the Valley of Virginia and among the hills thereabouts. Mrs. Andes had asked me to come and be with the women of the Virginia Valley Central Conference in their annual meeting. It was a splendid group of women who met in the Linville Church on Friday, August 5th. Mrs. A. W. Andes was in the chair, and Mrs. B. F. Frank acted as secretary. All of those on the program were present. There were reports from district superintendents, the treasurer, and local societies. I was privileged to speak to them in the forenoon and in the afternoon. Rev. Mr. Long, a missionary of the Brethren Church on furlough from India, brought an inspiring message out of his experiences there. The women of this conference have caught the vision and are carrying on in a fine way.

On Saturday and Sunday, I got a glimpse of the busy life Mr. and Mrs. Andes are living—and right here I want to say that I know of no two people whose lives are counting for more or who are serving in a more effective way than these two humble servants of God.

We crossed over the mountains and into Page Valley Saturday afternoon and that evening attended a meeting the Missionary Society in Newport Church. The young people were in charge and they were ably supported by a number of older people. On Sunday morning we went to Leaksville, back to Newport in the afternoon, and to Bethel at night. At each of these places, I was given the opportunity of speaking.

When we got back to Harrisonburg on Sunday evening, we were a bit tired, but happy. I had the privilege of going into several of the homes of these churches. Many happy memories linger with me of the acquaintances made and the experiences enjoyed.

This is a wonderful country and a wonderful people. May they accomplish wonders in the work of our Lord in the days that are ahead.

MRS. C. H. ROWLAND.

Greensboro, N. C.

For in frequent prayer there is so much rest and pleasure, that as soon as ever it is perceived the contrary temptation appears unreasonable; none are so unwilling to pray as those who pray seldom; for they that do pray often, and with zeal and passion and desire, feel no trouble so great as when they are forced to omit their holy offices and hours of prayer.—Jeremy Taylor.

A PERSONAL STATEMENT.

By EDWIN C. DINWIDDIE.

Of the National Temperance Bureau.

In stating my reactions to the stand of President Hoover on National Prohibition as expressed in his acceptance address, I speak for myself personally, and for the constituency I have for years represented in the National Temperance Bureau, and not for the Board of Strategy of which I am the Executive Secretary. Until the Board itself speaks further than it has already in its authorized statements subsequent to the Chicago conventions, no one can officially speak for it in the matter of presidential candidates.

The immediate reaction of a confirmed dry to the section dealing with prohibition, if voiced without carefully weighing the possibilities involved, would naturally be a feeling of disappointment.

The Eighteenth Amendment came through Constitutional methods by tremendous majorities after a trial of practically every known method for liquor control. It has never had a fair chance to demonstrate its full potential value. Nevertheless it has accomplished enough good results during its short trial under severe handicaps so that it must almost be universally admitted that the old-time saloon should be permanently barred from American life. Another contention of Prohibitionists has also become well-nigh unanimously conceded. It is that the facilities of interstate commerce and the mails, under the exclusive control of the Federal Government, shall not be used by people in wet States to hamper the efforts of dry States to protect themselves against a hurtful traffic from the outside which they have legitimately denied to their own citizens. The President stressed the need of such provisions. His opponent has conceded them in speeches and in interviews over and over again. But the vital difference between the two positions is that Mr. Hoover insists that these points shall be effectively safeguarded if any change is made, while Mr. Roosevelt yielded to the mob clamor for outright repeal, to be preceded by practical nullification in legalizing beer, and he and the Democratic platform merely express the pious hope that the wet States, nearly all with boss-ridden cities like New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, and the like, will respect these proprieties in their legislation. Of course, I may be in error, but unless I completely mistake the mind and conscience of the American people, we are a long way from such an unconditional repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

There are other vital differences between the platform declarations of the major political parties on this question. No clear or unprejudiced thinker will hazard a statement that they are either identical or proximate. The Democratic plank favors naked, outright repeal. The Republican plank opposes a submission proposal limited to mere retention or repeal.

President Hoover calls attention to the fact that the Republican plank does not attempt to bind the officers and members of that party, and that of course means senators and representatives, State and national. The Democratic plank does make that effort, the dry States and districts will make the attempt increasingly more difficult and dangerous.

The whole country has a vivid picture of the unruly, howling, booing of the gallery mob element at both Chicago conventions at any suggestion of a pronouncement short of outright repeal. Despite the protests of conscientious dries within his party, Governor Roosevelt yielded to this wet clamor and endorsed outright repeal. President Hoover, on the other hand, braved the mob's displeasure, and refused to take this "blind leap back to old evils."

Referring particularly to President Hoover's suggestion of a revision or amendment of the Amendment, I am convinced it has come because of a conviction that the lawlessness of the makers and vendors of contraband liquor and the same essential spirit in their supposedly more respectable patrons, together with the failure or refusal of States and municipalities properly to cooperate have all tended to prevent the degree of enforcement essential in a Republic.

In the last analysis the issue of retention, revision or repeal will turn not so much on the theoretical or idealistic side of the question as it will on the practical evidence of results. That the States, with, of course, rare exceptions, have neglected their own work, with which they were exclusively charged under the former regime, is undeniable. That this has been permitted by our people in the States, either from lethargy or helplessness, must be likewise admitted. Some of us for years past have been calling attention to this fact and to the necessity for local and State enforcement activities and for the revival and continuance of educational efforts to assure the maintenance and proper enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment.

President Hoover called attention to the need of concurrent enforcement in his inaugural address, and has publicly reiterated the fact several times since. We must now in all honesty admit that many of our States have been derelict or recalcitrant and our people therein either acquiescent or powerless to correct such an anomalous and intolerable situation.

Co-workers in our various groups know that I, with others, have stressed this situation and urged its remedy ever since the adoption of the Amendment, and have frankly indicated the danger in failure to do so.

I am of the opinion it is still possible to secure these desiderata without the ruthless destruction of the Eighteenth Amendment; and therefore, find myself in accord with President Hoover's insistence that the admitted "gains under prohibition must be preserved at all hazards while the abuses which have arisen must be eliminated."

It ought to be worth more to the American people to have as President one who approaches this difficult and perplexing, but tremendously important, problem in a constructive rather than a destructive frame of mind.

The situation reflects no credit on the militant wets who have vigorously opposed enforcement and rendered it as difficult as possible, belittled the accomplishments of prohibition, fought against a fair, honest test and championed its nullification. The great body of our people, I still believe, are anxious to find an adequate solution to this vexatious problem. Without resentment, but with a full understanding of its import, I regret to say that the conditions which the President reveals and which many of us were compelled to realize form an indictment of many of our people as lacking innate and genuine respect for law—not alone the prohibition law, but law in general. It is our besetting sin. It touches the vitals of democratic government and remains an outstanding menace to republican institutions.

After consideration of this entire situation in all its bearings and from all angles, President Hoover's re-election is favored because of his desire to reach a satisfactory solution of this problem; because he follows a constructive and not a destructive course; because he has shown himself above mob influence, and because of his high conceptions of his duties as President which have impelled him to place duty as he sees it above mere expediency.

So-called dries generally do not accept some sections of the Republican platform plank on Prohibition. They are opposed to the Democratic plank which calls for repeal and the return of beer before repeal is secured. Dries cannot be expected to favor submission. They oppose repeal. They are against the convention system of ratifying amendments. They are for the amendment and its enforcement, and they are unconvinced that the American people are for wholesale and unconditional annulment.

To be honest; to be kind; to earn a little and to spend a little less; to make on the whole a family happier for his presence; to renounce when that shall be necessary and not be embittered; to keep a few friends, but these without capitulation; above all, on the same grim conditions, to keep friends within himself—here is a task for all that a man has of fortitude and delicacy.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling).$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00
Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, Waverly, Va.

"SUMMER IS ENDED."

The summer of 1932 has been a very fine one in many ways. Nature itself has been unusually happy. A few storms have disturbed it here and there. We have tried to make ourselves believe that times were hard, that the Lord had forgotten us. But from my own observation people have enjoyed life immensely during these mild summer days.

Both newspapers and church papers vouch for the fact that people are just the same carefree, happy folks that they have always been. We have had innumerable picnics, outings, vacation schools, leadership training schools, conventions, conferences, church socials and what-not with which to entertain ourselves. The month of August is gone, and soon the glorious and beautiful days of summer will fade into memory.

When all these things have passed we should measure our joys from a spiritual standpoint more than from a physical standpoint, and see what we have accomplished during these fleeting months. Then what can we do next? "The harvest is past, and summer is ended." Our vacations are all over. We are ready to begin work for the new year in our church, Sunday School, Christian Endeavor, Missionary Societies, and all the other church organizations. We should turn our faces toward the new year by having inspirational rallies during the month of September. Those of us who have been revived during the meetings we have attended should begin now to put into practice our renewed ambition. We should make plans for the new year. Our program should be arranged so that all concerned may get the greatest possible benefit. Let us keep the Lord in our midst so that we can rely on him for courage, faith, zeal, power, and inspiration to carry on the work which we hope to do in his name.

To get the most out of the new year's work in the church, we should dispell all fear, discontent and prejudice, and fill our minds and souls with reverence to God. Then we should try to strive, to do, and to reap with greater zeal than ever before. Let's try to discover God's plan for the future by making our visions and our ideas real goals toward success.

CARL R. KEY.

AS YOUNG PEOPLE SEE SUMMER SCHOOL.

On July 28th, at Southern Union College, Wadley, Ala., a group of about thirty enthusiastic young people and leaders, representing six churches of the Alabama and Georgia Conference, assembled for a week to be spent in delightful fellowship, and in gaining knowledge of better Christian living and service.

Under the leadership and guidance of a capable faculty, our group was brought into a closer relationship with God, learned to look for the nobler, purer things in life, and shared many happy hours with those who have already caught the spirit of giving to the world the best that they have.

Every discussion group, every class for study, every hour of recreation, and every minute spent alone with God in the early morning devotions tended to make nobler men and women of us boys and girls, and inspired us to give our best selves, through service to the church, to God.

Already plans have been made for the summer school next year. Every young person who attended the school is anxious that more boys and girls have the privilege of spending a profitable week at Southern Union College next year, so we have set our goal of attendance at one hundred. The date of the 1933 Summer School is July 27th through August 3rd. The young people of our churches throughout the State now have something to look forward to, so let's work for it.

Officers who will serve for the next year are: president, Eunice Stephens; vice-president, Klein Hood; secretary and treasurer, Nellie Rea Sledge.

We are expecting great things of them. So, altogether now, let's pull for the 1933 Summer School of Christian Leadership at Southern Union.

DOT AND DASH.

WORSHIP.

We have more worship services this month from Miss Pattie Coghill's class at the Elon Summer School of Leadership Training.

The first is from Barbara Chase, of Elon College, N. C.:

Theme: "Friendship."

Prelude.

Hymn, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus."

Scripture, "The Master's Friendship." John 15:8-17.

Poem:

"It is my joy in life to find
At every turning of the road
The strong arm of a comrade kind,
To help me onward with my load."

"And since I have no gold to give,
And love alone must make amends;
My only prayer is, while I live,
God make me worthy of my friends."

Prayer, "For friendship."

Response, "For the joy of human love (from 'For the Beauty of the Earth.')

Poem:

"Life is sweet just because of the friends we have made,

And the things in common we share;
But because of the people who care
It's the giving and doing for somebody else
On that all life's splendor depends;
And the joy in this world
When you've summed it all up,
Is found in the making of friends."

Hymn, "I Would Be True."

Closing prayer ("For Friends Above," by John Oxenham, may be used.)

The second is by Marvin McCauley, of Chapel Hill, N. C.:

Theme: "Ambition."

Hymn, "Faith of Our Fathers."

Poem, illustrating the theme.

Scripture, "David's desire to build a temple."

II. Samuel 7:1-29.

Leader's talk, "Ambition as high and fixed purpose." Discuss steps leading to the heights of ambition.

Prayer, asking that we may be successful in carrying on our plans to reach the heights of our ambition.

Closing hymn, "God Be With You."

Benediction.

The third is by Ruth Smith, Greensboro, N. C.:

Theme: "Service."

Call to worship.

"Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all ye lands.
Serve the Lord with gladness."

Hymn, "O, Master, Let Me Walk With Thee."
Scripture, Romans 12:1.

Sentence prayer.

Leader's talk, "How to Serve Others."

Hymn, "Give of Your Best to the Master."

Benediction.

MABEL SMITH,

Devotional Life Superintendent.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

"WHAT IS OUR ATTITUDE TOWARD WORK AND THE WORKER?"

The leader might be interested in knowing that this topic is suggested because Labor Day will be the following day. Ask several members to talk with their neighbors on the topic question and get the ideas of different persons in different lines of work for consideration. The Scripture lesson is found in Ecclesiastes 9:10; I. Thess. 4:9-12. And these hymns along with others may be used: "Where Cross the Crowded Ways of Life," "Work, for the Night Is Coming," "To the Work," "One More Day's Work for Jesus."

A Practical Problem.—This discussion should fire you with enthusiasm to begin planning to help young people find work. Help them to find the type of work they like so that they will not be misfits in life. Do not forget the unemployed. Do not forget the fundamental attitudes toward work and the worker. Try to find some activity through which the group may receive benefit. Do we not have time to do some things in our church program which have been crowded out?

Discussion.—The following attitudes toward work may be used to great advantage along with any others you may think of that might be suggested by friends:

(1) "Work is a way of earning money to live."
(2) "Work is a curse." (3) "Work is activity which brings remuneration which gives one fun and luxuries in life." (4) "Work is a privilege." (5) "Work is a joy and a pleasure." (6) "Work keeps a clean soul. (7) "Work builds Christ-like character."

In connection with attitudes toward the worker, we want to tell a true story of Dean Charles R. Brown's attitude toward his church members. He was pastor in the east, mid-west, and west, and as he paid his pastoral calls to all, he called on the maids and sat and talked with them as well as the society folks. Was that the right attitude? Do we have the right attitude toward the one who cleans the streets, who works in an office, the girl who teaches, the man who farms? Add any others you think of to help you discover the right attitude toward work and the worker.

Questions for thought.—Is it true that work is the best gift that life has for us? Why?

How does one's attitude toward work and the worker affect his own procedure in endeavoring to discover his own life work? Are you looking for something "easy," or "honorable," or "nice," or something "useful?"

What makes an occupation noble? Is one calling noble, and another ignoble? Tell what factors enter into your verdict which pronounces one activity noble, and another ignoble.

Is it fair to profit by the labor of the workman, and then to look down upon the one who does the work for us? Are we doing that? How?

What are the different ways in which one works? Discuss the real effort of mental work which the physical laborer often despises. The farmer condemns the lazy city man whose duties differ. Is it the occupation or man which counts most? How can one estimate the results of labor?

Is this true today? How can we work toward building an economic order where there is work
(Continued on page 11.)

Sunday School Lesson

By Rev. Stanley C. Harrell.

ISRAEL JOURNEYING TOWARD CANAAN.

LESSON XI—SEPTEMBER 11, 1932.

LESSON TEXT: Numbers 10:11-36.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Come with us, and we will do thee good."—Numbers 10:29.

TIME: B. C. 1490.

PLACE: Near Sinai.

For the historical connection we go back to the lesson for August 28th. The lesson for last Sunday was the Temperance Lesson, and was taken from Isaiah. The last lesson in the era of Moses was about the gifts for the building of the Tabernacle. Several weeks intervene during which the work of building the Tabernacle was completed, and it was set up for worship. The Tabernacle was really a portable church. It could be readily taken down, and packed so as to be easily carried, and could be quickly set up again when the Israelites made camp.

There are certain facts set forth in the lesson text, that upon first reading may seem dull and prosaic. They are, however, of the greatest importance and deserving of the most careful consideration. We refer to the orderly and systematic arrangement of the forces of the various tribes. Moses was too wise a man to attempt to lead an unorganized mob. Each tribe had its appointed place in the line of march. Each had its commanding officer, and those subordinate officers who were to work under him. Accounts of the encampments show that order and system prevailed in the location of the various tribes in camp.

There are those who decry order and system in religious work. It seems to be opposed to spiritual inspiration and spiritual direction. Many people have never learned that Jehovah is a God of order and system. Nothing seems more to be expected than that the God who created the universe with its unchanging times and seasons should demand of his people that they be orderly and systematic. There are many others who have no objection to systems and methods, so long as they are not required to conform to them. They like to go to church when they are so disposed, and give when they feel like it, or when they find it most convenient. But what good would there have been in the appointed order that Moses had prescribed if each individual had insisted upon moving when and where he chose?

The main point in the lesson for today is that of divine guidance. It requires a most vivid use of the imagination to appreciate the difficulties that Moses faced in attempting to lead such a great multitude through the wilderness and into the promised land. We are inclined to think of the incidents recorded in the Bible as being in a class entirely unto themselves. They were difficulties that were met in a supernatural way. But they were human problems, that contained all the human elements that enter into the problems that confront us today. We miss all the point of the story if we do not find in the incidents which we are studying, a God who can be of just as great a help to us in finding our way through the wilderness of life as he was to the Israelites in finding their way through the wilderness of Sinai.

There is a curious and interesting element that runs through all the accounts of God's leading of the children of Israel. The presence of the Lord was most intimately associated with the ark of the covenant. There was a cloud round about the ark that covered it when the ark was at rest and moved when the ark moved. There may be some who will put all this down as a manifestation of an ancient superstition. That is an easy way to dismiss that which we cannot explain. But there are many things that profoundly move us in a way that we cannot explain. There is the tremendous influence of certain places upon our lives. The fragrance of a flower may unloose a flood of emotions within our souls that may change the whole course of our lives. The deepest of sacred memories are awakened by the measures of a hymn. Thus does God intimately weave himself into the lives of his children.

In addition to the divine guidance that came through the visible evidence of Jehovah's presence around the ark, Moses sought the aid of Hobab, his brother-in-law. Hobab was born and raised in the wilderness. He was perfectly acquainted with all the routes and camping places of the wilderness. Moses tersely described the aid that Hobab could give to them, as his being the eyes of the company. Nor was the invitation that Moses extended to Hobab, a purely selfish one. He coupled with it the promise to share with him all the blessings that the Lord should bestow upon Israel. Moses knew that Hobab needed the God of the Children of Israel, as badly as the Israelites needed Hobab as an expert guide. Hobab at first declined the invitation; but seems later to have accepted as his kinsmen are numbered among the Israelites.

This lesson along with the others of this quarter teaches us how closely God identifies himself with the interests of his people. He is a part of their lives. He is interested in all the things that vitally affect their welfare. Yet all the time he is working in and through their lives. He is working an inner transformation at the same time is aiding to better their physical condition for every man who will work? Is not that the right of man? What about our situation today? What caused it? What is the remedy?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

(Continued from page 10.)

Is work a blessing? In what ways?

How can one estimate the worth in money of a day of labor? Are some overpaid, while others are terribly underpaid? What is the solution?

Closing thought.—Rudyard Kipling has given the following thought for our study:

"And only the Master shall praise us, and only the Master shall blame;
And no one shall work for money, and no one shall work for fame;
But each for the joy of working, and each, in his separate star, Shall draw the Thing as he sees It, for the God of Things as They Are."

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 $\frac{7}{8}$ x7 Inches, and 1 $\frac{3}{8}$ Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 $\frac{7}{8}$ x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold.....$1.60

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 $\frac{3}{4}$ x7

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.50

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges$6.00

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 $\frac{3}{4}$ x5 $\frac{3}{8}$ Inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 $\frac{3}{4}$ x5 $\frac{3}{8}$ Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps$2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 $\frac{3}{8}$ x8 $\frac{1}{2}$ Inches and 1 $\frac{3}{8}$ Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold$4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold$3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond Virginia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."—II. Chron. 7:14.

MORE THOUGHTS ON PARENTS AND CHILDREN.

MONDAY.

CHILDREN OF THE BIBLE.

"Of such is the Kingdom of God."—Mark 10:14.

Stories of children which we find in the Bible are enough to justify their claim upon the heart of the world. A little baby who was born of the humble peasantry of the Hebrews was a foundling in the bulrushes, and he became the spokesman for God to humanity and the liberator of his people.

Jesus was born in a stable but it was in the midst of the music of angels and the attention of the Lordly. Of all the pictures that have become graven upon the heart of the world there is none so sacredly treasured as that of the holy child Jesus. Who can say how much this life enriched men through all the ages with gentleness and love?

The ministry of Jesus places the child on a pinnacle and humanity has found him shedding the light of the love of God on it. This ministry reminded man that God clothes the flowers of the field, cares for the birds of the air, and he draws little children unto him and blesses them, and asks: "What man of you if his little son asks bread, will he give him a stone, or if he asks a fish will he give him a serpent? Therefore, if, ye, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him?" Of such is the Kingdom of God.

Prayer—Our Father, turn thy light upon us more and more and may we ever see thy face. Be thou our guide and impel us to follow thee. Forgive us, Lord, our sins and make us thine forever. Amen.

TUESDAY.

GOD'S PITY FOR CHILDREN.

"Should not I have pity on Nineveh wherein more than six-score thousand persons that cannot discern between their right hand and their left hand?"—Jonah 4:11.

Commentators say that the Lord, in this saying, referred to the children of Nineveh, and they point to it as one outstanding instance of the wideness of God's mercy, pity and provision for humanity.

In the instance of Nineveh, this consideration of children seems to be the only thing that saved it. There was nothing that justified the existence of this city. Law called for its death, prudence called for it, morality called for it; religious favor gave up; mercy expired; all except this one thing, God's compassion for children, and this was enough. It is not assumed, either, that it was the potential goodness of these children that appealed. No claim on that ground arises. It seemed to be sheer pity for helplessness that opened its arms to God.

We are told of a little boy who once prayed: "O God, love me when I am naughty." That is beautiful. How true it is we are taught the perfection of wisdom out of the mouth of babes.

Prayer—O Lord, our God and our Father, we thank thee that in innocence we have all the love and the outgoings of a soul to thee. Baptize us with thy holy spirit, to live humbly, purely, trustfully, nobly, true to thee, and carry thy pity in our souls to all generations. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

HIDDEN POWERS OF A CHILD.

"Of such is the Kingdom of God."—Mark 10:14.

M. G. Pearse is quoted as saying, "Who is he in all the world who does most for us? Think of the great world with all its roar and eager crowd; think of all the interests that occupy and concern men. There are the thinkers who think, and the artists who bless us with beauty, and the poets who sing to our souls. There are those who enrich us with the luxuries of life, and those who toil for our comfort and necessities. But who does most for us in this world? He does most who brings to the heart a new accession of love. A love that subdues all the thoughts and aims of life; that lifts us out of and purges us of selfishness; that makes life beautiful with the thought for others. The coming of a little child into our lives brings all this. If that be so, then let the world make room for the apostle of love—a little child."

Prayer—O Lord,

"Reach downward to the sunless days,
Wherein our guides are blind as we,
And faith is small and hope delays;
Take thou the hands of prayer we raise,
And let us feel the light of thee." Amen.

THURSDAY.

CHILDREN OF THE FAMILY ALTAR.

"Whom shall he teach knowledge? them that are weaned from the milk, and drawn from the breast."—Isa. 29:8.

"Gather the people together . . . that they may teach their children."—Deut. 4:10.

The art of receiving was born in the child. The idea of God is received by them naturally and every thought imparted to them bears fruit in simple, trustful expectant action. It is only when they have been spoiled by foolish doubts and failing faith upon the part of their elders that they lose reverence for Him whom they are taught to adore.

Should not this reverence be maintained in them unto maturity? How else can it be maintained except in the faith, example and devotion of the family life. How can these traits be maintained without the family altar? Is any one prepared to maintain that reverence in rushing, crowding, confusing features of our modern life?

There is a thinness of faith in our young people today; an irreverence in their ordinary speech which does not conduce to the health and strength of spiritual life. This does not originate in these young people, either. It reflects the same sort of thing among the adults, which has caused them to practically abolish the family altar.

We would welcome back into our modern life the fine, stately courtesy; the high-born, fine-fibered, healthy grace, of family communion with God, which had such splendid expression in the children of Christian character in the days of old. But we do not know how such a reverence is to be recovered, or how it is to be kept alive and maintained in true and exquisite sensitiveness, unless there is a family altar in the home, and the corporate life of the family is centered in the reverent worship of Almighty God.

Prayer—"O Lord, our God, we humble our hearts before thee to pray for mercy and forgiveness for our sin of straying from thee in family communion. O God, we need thee every hour. Give us strength and the will to come to thee without one plea, but that thy blood was shed for me, and that thou bidst me come to thee, O Lamb of God, I come." Amen.

FRIDAY.

THE INNOCENCE OF CHILDREN.

"Of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."—Mark 10:14.

"Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God."—Matt. 5:8.

The innocence of a child is a foregone conclusion. There is so much of evil that he does not know and so much that he cannot know, innocence is the state of heart which one must conclude. As he grows older he doesn't need to grow guilty of sin because of what he learns of sin by seeing it; it can still remain unknown to him in personal experience. So that when ignorance is gone, yet innocent knowledge and guilty knowledge may be so far apart, that one need not bridge the chasm between. He can still enjoy a heavenly presence with those who have not sinned, by keeping himself pure. In other words, one does not have to sin because he is tempted. "Resist the devil and he will flee from thee."

This is a kind of original purity that is kept pure, and such always seems to have a heavenly luster. There is nothing that quite matches this perfect innocence. He who sins must pay the penalty of the stain of that sin. He has not kept his original purity clean. He must do the work of repentance and have his stains washed away by Jesus, the blood of the Lamb.

With this in mind, it is not hard to see that the innocence of a child is more nearly perfect than any other innocence in earth, for the purity obtained through repentance and the saving grace of our Lord, though making him white as snow and fit for the fellowship of heaven, is not the same kind of purity as that of the purity of the new-born babe.

Little children, keep thyself from sin. It is better to keep from falling off a bridge than it is to be picked up from the gorge below with a mangled body. It is better not to sin and keep thy purity, than it is to sin and be saved later with the scars of the fall.

Prayer—May the Lord keep thee from sinning, both young and old. Amen.

SATURDAY.

THE CONSEQUENCES OF SIN.

"His own iniquities shall take the wicked himself and he shall be holden with cords of his sin."—Prov. 5:22.

Dr. W. H. Gray gives us a story of an experience of an artist in which he says: "An artist painted a portrait of a child, beautiful and promising, and he was so pleased with it that he called it Innocence. Many years afterwards a friend asked him to paint a companion portrait called Guilt. He undertook the job but had difficulty in finding the right sort of representative. At last he went to a prison where he succeeded in finding a man who was sentenced to death for a brutal murder, and who had a very bad record before the murder was committed. He received permission to make a portrait of this criminal. He did so and got acquainted with the man.

(Continued on page 15.)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

THE GOSPEL AT CANE RIDGE.

By A. W. FORTUNE.

II.

The second element in the gospel which Stone and his associates preached at Cane Ridge in 1801 is that faithful obedience is essential to salvation. He said, "The distinguishing doctrine preached by us, that God loved the world—the whole world, and sent his Son to save them, on condition that they believed in him—that the gospel was the means of salvation—but that this means would never be effectual to this end, until believed and obeyed by us."

This message came as a light from heaven. The teaching of that day led men to believe there was nothing they could do. God had determined the ones that should be saved, and, when he got ready, he would save them and give them the assurance of their salvation. All that man could do was to wait for the experience. Barton W. Stone and his associates told the crowds gathered in these woods that God loved them and sent his Son to save them, but faith and obedience on their part were essential to salvation. Whenever a man accepted Christ as his leader and Saviour and surrendered his life in obedience to the divine will he was accepted of the Father. The multitudes accepted this message and these woods rang with the praises of the redeemed.

That message of personal obedience through faith is needed in our day. Salvation has become a vague conception for many. They have lost the sense of sin, and immortality has little meaning for them. The preaching of the gospel makes little impression upon them. They are content to live from day to day, leaving the future to take care of itself. The great masses who are not members of the church are indifferent to the gospel and its demands. They do not attend church; they do not hear the preaching of the gospel; they do not feel that it has any claim upon them.

We need a spiritual awakening of some sort which will make men and women receptive to the message of salvation. We need prophets who can arouse the people and call upon them to accept Christ in faith and dedicate their lives in obedience to his will.

III.

The third element in the gospel preached by Stone and his associates at Cane Ridge in 1801, was that the Bible was sufficient evidence to produce faith, and it made the way of salvation so plain that no one need miss it. He said we taught that God "had given us sufficient evidence in his Word to produce faith in us, if attended to by us." Stone and his associates gave the Bible the central place in their thinking, in their preaching, and in their living. They abandoned the Westminster Confession of Faith and took the Bible as their only rule of faith and practice. Two of the items in the "Last Will and Testament of the Springfield Presbytery," referred to the supremacy of the Bible. One referred to its importance for preachers: "We will, that candidates for the gospel ministry henceforth study the Holy Scriptures with fervent prayer, and obtain license from God to preach the simple gospel." The second emphasized the importance of the Bible for the people: "We will, that the people henceforth take the Bible as the only sure guide to heaven; and as many as are offended with other books which stand in competition with it, may cast them into the fire if they choose."

Mr. Stone committed himself to the Bible when he was ordained to the ministry. He had some difficulties with the Westminster Confession of Faith, and when at his ordination he was asked if he received the Confession he replied that he did as far as he saw it was consistent with the Word of God.

Mr. Stone remained true to the Bible as his only rule of faith and practice when it meant the loss of some of his associates. Very early in the history of the Christian Church, Shaker missionaries came in and enlisted many of the members and some of the preachers. Robert Marshall and John Thompson felt that the Bible was too latitudinarian and that they should formulate a simple creed. A meeting was held at Mount Tabor Church near Lexington, in 1810 to consider this suggestion. Mr. Stone insisted on the Bible alone regardless of consequences and he was sustained by almost all those present. Marshall and Thompson returned to the Presbyterian Church, and of the five ministers that signed the protest against the action of the Synod and organized the Springfield Presbytery, Stone was left alone.

Barton W. Stone made a great contribution to the religious life of Kentucky when he sounded the call of a return to the Bible. It simplified religion. It created a new interest in the Bible. It started the people to reading it anew. It created independence of religious thought, for it put all in touch with original sources.

Our age needs that third element of the gospel preached at Cane Ridge in 1801. The Bible is a much neglected book in our day. Copies of it are found in most homes, and most of us have many copies. We talk about it, and preach about it, but most of us are amazingly ignorant of its contents. There is so much good reading material in our day that most of us find very little time to read the Bible. The daily paper must be read, and then there are the magazines and popular books. In addition to these there are the movies, and of course, some time must be given to the radio. With all these things we do not find time to read the Bible enough to become interested in it. The average person in our day knows almost nothing about the Bible. In the Bible schools of our day we have a tendency to study more about the Bible than we do the Bible itself. We preachers have so many things to talk about that we sometimes neglect the most important things.

Our age needs to return to the Bible. A sane and intelligent knowledge of the Book will enrich our lives and help us in the solution of our problems. The Disciples should be in a position to lead in a movement for more definite Bible study, for during all their history they have insisted that the Bible is our rule of faith and practice. Unless we give the Bible the central place in our thinking and in our living we are not worthy successors of those pioneers who sacrificed everything in order that they might follow its teachings.

IV.

A fourth element in the gospel at Cane Ridge in 1801 was that the Holy Spirit is possessed only by those who surrender themselves to the will of God. Barton W. Stone said, "We urged upon the sinner to believe now, and receive salvation—that in vain they looked for the Spirit to be given them, while they remained in unbelief."

That may seem commonplace to us, but it was not to them. It was generally held in that day that faith was the gift of God, and that one was helpless until the Holy Spirit came and worked a change in a man's life. Barton W. Stone and his associates preached a gospel that reversed that conception. They said God is willing and anxious to save us now, and that he has done everything which could be done. They said he is defeated by our own stubborn wills, and can do nothing until we bend our wills to his. They said Jesus died for all and there is nothing to prevent a man receiving salvation and the Holy Spirit except his own stubbornness. Whenever a man accepts Jesus Christ and turns to God in faith and seeks to do his will the Spirit which gives joy and peace will be his.

The element of the gospel preached by Stone and his associates is needed today. If Paul were to come into our churches he would ask us, as he did the little group at Ephesus—"Have you received the Holy Spirit since you believed?" He saw that there was something wrong in that church, and it would not take him long to see that there is something wrong in our churches. Many do not find joy in their Christian life; they accept it as a duty. Many have not found the peace which Jesus promised; they are troubled about everything. Many have not found the victory which the Christian life should bring; they are the victims of the same old temptations which defeated them before they made a profession of Christianity; they are just as selfish as they were before. Christianity ought to make a difference, but in many cases it does not. The greatest need of the church is the possession of the spirit which comes to the surrendered life. Skeptics and unbelievers may attempt to refute our arguments, but there is no argument against a transformed life. The scribes and Pharisees might argue with the man who had been blind about the character of Jesus, but they had no argument against the change that had taken place in his life. He might not be able to defend Jesus against their arguments, but there was one thing of which he was certain, and he took his stand on that: once he was blind, but now he could see, and it was because a man called Jesus anointed his eyes with clay and told him to go and wash in the Pool of Siloah. He did as he was told and he came away seeing.

In these days when there is so much uncertainty about beliefs we need a faith that is based upon experience. The one who has found the way to God through fellowship with him will not be troubled by the philosophies which would eliminate him. The one who has come to know the Master by walking in his steps will not be much troubled about the discussions concerning him. The one who has come to love the church through years of service given to it will not be much influenced by the cheap talk against it. This old church has meant more to this community than any other one thing, and it must be perpetuated through the generations as a testimonial of the power of religion.

V.

This gospel which was preached at Cane Ridge in 1801 had power in transforming lives and in working changes in the social order.

Barton W. Stone owned a farm in this neighborhood and had slaves to cultivate it. When he pledged himself to the Bible as his rule of faith and practice he became convinced that it was wrong to own slaves. This was not because of any specific command against it which he had found. He became convinced that the spirit of the Golden Rule made it impossible for one man to own another. He accordingly freed his slaves and cultivated his own farm. I do not know of any finer example of the power of the gospel than the transformation in the life of Barton W.

(Continued on page 15.)

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

The children who are members of the singing class had the pleasure of giving a program at Pleasant Hill Christian Church the third Sunday. Pleasant Hill Church is one of our old churches, but is very much alive. It has the honor of having the oldest temperance societies in this country. It has one of the most interesting Sunday Schools we have visited in a long time. We were delighted to see so many young people interested in the Sunday School. They all took a part. The singing was fine, and the young people seemed so interested. When the Sunday School assembled after the classes we noticed on the Board that all the classes had a star. We wonder if we have any other Sunday School that has a star for all the classes on any one Sunday. We have a picture of this same board for one Sunday several years ago when every member of the Sunday School was present. Each scholar, each officer and each teacher. We hardly think that any Sunday School in the entire Southern Convention can outshine Pleasant Hill Sunday School in interest or attendance.

We had a little excitement one day last week. Our little baby girl in the Johnston Hall, who is four years old, was playing on the front porch, and seemed to have fallen down the steps on her head. She was speechless for some little time and her jaws seemed to be locked. We picked her up and laid her on a couch and it really looked to us as if she was going to die. While she seemed to be unconscious, she sang: "My Faith Locks Up to Thee." We were all touched very deeply, as we did not know just what would happen in a few minutes' time. We are happy to say that she soon rallied and is now in her usual health.

Don't forget the Orphanage in your Sunday School when you take your monthly offering. It is impossible to run the Orphanage on the present income. It just cannot be done.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR SEPTEMBER 1, 1932

Brought forward $ 9,058.16

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:

Mt. Zion $ 1.00

Union Va. 3.00

Eastern North Carolina Conference:

Liberty Vance $ 3.05

Christian Light 1.45

Mt. Auburn 2.50

Pleasant Hill, J. 1.00

8.00

Western North Carolina Conference:

Zion 1.00

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Holy Neck 6.88

Valley Virginia Central Conference:

Winchester $ 4.87

Leaksville 1.81

6.68

Alabama Conference:

Roanoke $ 1.00

Wadley, July and August 2.20

3.20

Special Offerings.

Girl's Class, No. 7, Reidsville, Sunday School $ 1.00

W. A. Lee, support of children.. 6.00

Special collection for singing class, from Pleasant Hill Church... 13.24

20.24

Total for the week $ 50.00

Grand total $ 9,108.16

PROPAGANDA AND TRUTH.

Since the Eighteenth Amendment has become the foremost plank in the platform of each of the leading political parties of our country, plain facts and wholesome truth regarding prohibition enforcement and use of liquor at the present time are more needed than ever before. Three statements frequently heard from the lips of the wet propagandists and their answers:

1. Prohibition enforcement costs the country billions of dollars.

A. Total cost of enforcement from 1920 to 1931, $284,156,524; collections from fines and penalties and revenues from taxes on lawful and distilled and fermented liquors, $548,588,884. The net is a balance in favor of the Government of $264,432,260. (Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, Director of Prohibition.)

2. Prohibition has caused an enormous economic loss.

A. Total national wealth in 1914 was 192 billion dollars; in 1931 it was 329.7 billion dollars. (National Industrial Conference Board, Feb. 20, 1932.)

3. Prohibition has increased drinking.

A. The Government measured the amount of hops, corn, sugar, rye, barley, etc., raised and imported, subtracted the amount used in known legal enterprises and reported the amount of raw material left would make less than a third of the former liquor consumption. (Col. Woodcock's testimony before the Sub-Committee of the House Appropriations Committee January 21, 1932.)

Eilers Sunday School Maps.

On a Revolving Adjustable Steel Stand

The first 5 maps
are in Set No. 1,
with stand,
Price $15.00

Set No. 2
8 Maps,
Price $20.00

Fine large Maps, in 6 Colors 36x57, on linen finished Cloth. Mounted on a folding steel stand, which can be regulated, so that Maps may be seen to the best advantage. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Its large print and Cheerful Colors makes this set very instructive and attractive. Contains the five thoroughly up to date Maps necessary for the study of Bible History. New Testament Palestine, — Old Testament Palestine, — Roman empire and Bible Lands, showing Pauls Travels by Colored lines. — Lands of the Old Testament, from the Great Sea, to the Persian Gulf. — The Exodus, Egypt, showing by Colored lines the wanderings of the Israelites.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN,

1536 East Broad Street,

Richmond, Virginia.

ALL
SELF-
PRONOUNCING

Holman Testaments

COMMAND
ATTENTION
AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2 5/8 x 4 1/2 inches

Specimen of Type.

AND the third day there
was a marriage in
Cana of Galilee; and
the mother of Jesus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles. $.50

2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles. .60

2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges. .85

2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges. .70

2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges. .90

2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges. 1.10

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges. .90

15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included. 1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2 1/2 x 4 1/4 inches x 3 1/2 inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2 1/2 x 4 1/4 inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2

The three wise men

carrying away into Babylon are four generations; and from the carrying away into Babylon are fourteen

ing interpreted is, God with us.

24 Then Joseph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges. $1.00

5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included. 1.50

5036PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms. 2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET
SIZE
3 3/4 x 4 1/2
inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type

CHAPTER 23.

THEN spake Jesus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3 3/4 x 4 1/2 inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms. $.90

4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges. 1.35

4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included. 1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT

4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges. 1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT

4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms. 3.00

4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red. 3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print

Pica, 16mo. Size, 5 3/4 x 7 1/4 inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines.

It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

Specimen of Type.

THE book

of Jesus

PSALMS INCLUDED

2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included. $1.50

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS

Same Large Print as Above

2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included. 2.95

RED LETTER EDITION

Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.

3913PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included. 3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

FAMILY ALTAR.
(Continued from page 12.)

What was his surprise to find that this man who was to be his portrait of Guilt was the very person who twenty-five years before, had sat for him to paint his Innocence."

How Adam must have loved his first born, and later how he must have grieved to realize that that innocent boy was a murderer of his brother!

Prayer—Dear Lord,

"A tender child of summers three,
Seeking her little bed at night,
'Oh, mother, take my hand, said she,
And then the dark will all be light.'
"We older children grope our way,
From dark behind to dark before;
And only when our hands we lay,
Dear Lord, in thine, the night is day,
And there is darkness nevermore."

Amen.

SUNDAY.

THE TRAINING OF CHILDREN.

"Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it."—Prov. 22:6.

In consideration of all that has been said before it is certain that 90 per cent of the probabilities of a child, growing into a pure manhood, depends upon parental responsibility and training. It is a pain to think of children living in conditions where they cannot receive this training. As they need the proper breathing space, play-ground and food to eat, that they may develop the best bodies, so they need spiritual environment that they may develop their better self.

Our text today is heaven's expression of the principles on which this responsibility rests, and that a child's training will decide what his after life is to be.

Without this parental example and oversight; unless parents make this training their continual religious study; unless they live near God themselves; unless there is love in the home; no hope is held out that the child will be a true, a noble, a God-fearing man, serving his day and generation in the way that God shall appoint; there is no hope that they will have the friendship of Jesus; and there is no hope for that holy chivalry that spurs to generous and noble deeds.

Prayer—O Lord, our God, we pray for thy help in the tasks which have been given us to bring up children. Guide thou us and bless us with consecration, with divine wisdom and with constancy, always to do those things that will represent thee to young lives, and give them holy environment. Amen.

THE SUN'S PULPIT.
(Continued from page 13.)

Stone. Because of his conviction he broke with the Presbyterian Church and released the Cane Ridge Church and the Concord Church from any financial obligation to him. After this he was dependent largely upon his farm for the support of his family. Because of his convictions he freed his slaves and cultivated his farm with his own hands. When I look at him I see a man who went forth following the leading of faith without counting the cost. I see him in the corn field with paper, pen and ink at the end of the corn row. While he is following the plow across the field instead of thinking about the corn, he is thinking about the Kingdom. I see him stop to let the horse have an unneeded rest while he commits to paper the thoughts that have been surging through his soul. Thus he continued cultivating the farm, thinking about religion as revealed in the Bible and preaching the gospel as he had thought it out.

Most of the other members of this church freed their slaves, as did Mr. Stone. They also cultivated their own farms, and a radical social change was wrought in this community. This church was a mighty power in those days. There is an article in the Millennial Harbinger of 1839 on the Christian Churches in Bourbon County. According to this article the Cane Ridge Church had 220 members, ministered to by John Rogers and Thomas Bledsoe, who divided time.

Our age needs a gospel which transforms lives and changes society. The world must be changed from within rather than from without. It must begin with individuals, who have caught a vision of the better way and are willing to walk in it regardless of the cost.

Patience is a lesson to be learned. Christ is the Teacher, but you are the scholar, and it is the scholar who must learn the lesson. Not even Christ can learn it for you to spare you the effort. Nor can it be made an easy lesson for you even by the Divine gentleness. It costs to grow patient, and you must pay the price yourself.—J. R. Miller.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

WHITLEY MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 15th. Freshmen register on Tuesday, September 13th, and upper classmen on the 15th. Expenses reduced for this session. Write for Catalog and application blank.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. Associate
W. W. STALEY, D. D. Contributing
S. C. HARRELL, D. D. Contributing
C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. Contributing
ELISHA A. KING, D. D. Contributing
W. C. WICKER, D. D. Contributing
J. T. KERNODLE, D. D. Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year$2.00
Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When sending subscriptions for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of year.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

OBITUARIES

HOLLAND.

..Elisha Thomas Holland, Holland, Va., died at Johnston-Willis Hospital, Richmond, Va., August 22, 1932, aged 60 years. The funeral was conducted at Holland Christian Church, by the writer, assisted by Drs. W. W. Staley, I. W. Johnson, J. O. Atkinson, C. H. Rowland, and Rev. E. B. White, and the body was laid to rest in Holland Cemetery.

The deceased leaves a widow, Mrs. Annie H. Holland, two sons, Shirley T. Holland, of Windsor, Va., and J. Howard Holland, of Richmond, Va., one daughter, Mrs. Aubrey Kelly, Kinston, N. C., four grandchildren, one brother, J. R. Holland, Holland, Va., three sisters, Mrs. Sarah C. Baines and Mrs. Susie May Powell, Suffolk, and Miss Lillye Holland, of Holland, Va.

He was one of the most prominent and useful men in Nansemond County. He had been supervisor of Holy Neck District for the last seventeen years, and president of the Farmers Bank of Holland since its organization in 1919.

As a mechanic early in life, as a large farmer for twenty years, as a business man and county official, his life was characterized by great energy, enthusiasm, devotion to duty, efficiency and success. He was a man of clear thought, strong convictions, and courage to stand for what he believed to be right.

Mr. Holland had been a member of Holy Neck Christian Church since boyhood, and for thirty years a deacon and leading worker. As a member of the

THE CONGREGATIONAL LATIN-AMERICAN INSTITUTE AND PILGRIM LATIN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH OF WEST TAMPA, FLA.—

Are helping give the Gospel, which is "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," to the forty thousand Latin people of Tampa. The evangelical forces working among the foreigners of Tampa are by no means covering the territory sufficiently.

Methodists have six preachers, Baptists two, Presbyterians one, Congregationalists one. Church workers and teachers must be supported for this great missionary work. Send check to

LESLIE S. BRAY, Treas.

Route 4, Box 468, - - Tampa, Fla.

Send boxes of clothing to Mrs. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

For literature, write Rev. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' EDITION FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear, Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type.
"From that time Jesus to preach, and to say, 'I the kingdom of heaven'"

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 10.65

Eastern Virginia Conference and the Southern Christian Convention, he served on important committees and boards and was a member of the Board of Christian Education at the time of his death. He was a man of great faith. His religion entered into all the phases of his life, determining his conduct, bringing joy and peace, and in the face of death, a calm and blessed assurance.

N. G. NEWMAN.

GRANITT.

One of the aged and humble citizens of Virgilina and Halifax County, Va., passed away on July 23, 1932, when Mr.

George M. Granitt breathed his last. He was 77 years of age, and had been engaged in farming in this community all his active years. His wife died about sixteen years ago.

He is survived by five children, twenty-two grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. The children are Mrs. Ford, of South Boston, Va., Jesse, Eugene, Ira and Harry, of Virgilina, R. 4.

A few years before his death Bro. Granitt united with the Union Christian Church. The funeral service and burial were at Union Cemetery on Sunday afternoon, July 24, 1932.

C. E. NEWMAN.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

FALL TERM—SEPTEMBER 7

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

Cost for Board, Room and Tuition, including also Entrance, Activity, and Infirmary fees reduced to $273.50 for the College Year. Personal expenses as low as student and parent wish.

All who seek an "A" grade college training for their sons and daughters in an atmosphere of Christian culture, and at minimum cost, are invited to write for the college catalogue and admission blanks.

Address: DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

A Memorial of the Congregational-Christian Union.

FRANK E. JENKINS, Pres. MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD, Dean

Chartered by Southern Christian Convention, June 2, 1922, as Bethlehem College; renamed Southern Union, June 3, 1931.

Will function during the present financial depression as a Junior College only.

FALL TERM WILL OPEN SEPTEMBER 7.

DEPRESSION PRICES.

Depression prices during the coming year, made possible by extensive gardens, careful planning, organization and donations—Tuition, board and room, $192 for entire scholastic year; tuition alone, $48; each payable in six equal installments.

Unsectarian, but thoroughly Christian.

For Information, write—

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXIV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1932

NUMBER 36.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

Producer of Tears Laughs at Depression.—

Tear gas producers are among the few businesses laughing at the hard times, if the information we have received is correct. One of the leading of these producers has been enabled to virtually double its output each year in the last four, and has increased its force from two to 80 men in the past nine years. This tear gas is sold to banks, police departments, prison authorities, or anyone else who does or risks doing business with gunmen.

An Important Date for Electricians.—

Sunday, September 4th, marked the fiftieth anniversary of the opening of the first commercial electric plant by Thomas A. Edison. Only three years earlier, in 1879, he had invented the incandescent electric lamp. This pioneer company had a capitalization of $1-million. Today there is approximately $13-billion invested in the electrical industry in the United States. The original 750-horsepower station has grown to 46-million horsepower in the United States alone. Not only has the electrical industry, itself, made more than marvelous strides, but other vast industries have been built up which without it would have been impossible, chief among these being the radio, the airplane and the automobile.

The Wets Say.—

That there are more speakeasies under prohibition than there were saloons under license. In direct refutation of their claim, is this excerpt from a letter from Prohibition Commissioner Woodcock to Senator Sheppard: "On April 11, 1932, in the city of New York, the Prohibition Administration of that district caused a survey to be made of the borough of Manhattan for the purpose of locating all premises suspected of selling liquor. The result of this survey showed that there were 3,494 places where liquor might be sold. Of these places 2,182 were speakeasies, 927 restaurants, 286 cordial shops, and 119 night clubs. In 1929, the Police Commissioner of New York stated that there were 32,000 open illegal saloons in New York City, and since that time statements have been made placing the figure as high as 60,000. Here again a careful, accurate survey discounted materially, unfounded reports." This is not an unusual example of the exaggerated statements made by hired wet propagandists, in their efforts to discredit prohibition.

Mississippi Sales Tax is Proving a Success.—

Four months ago, the State of Mississippi, ignoring all precedent, placed a sales tax of two per cent on nearly all commodities. This tax was an only alternative to the increasing of and diverting of the gasoline tax, and is certainly fairer than such a tax would have been. The $8-million deficit of the previous administration was taken care of by a bond issue for that amount, but the current biennium budget called for $20,000,000 and only three-fourths of this was in sight. The sales tax was the result. Merchants organized an anti-sales-tax association. Lawmakers were told that the sales tax would bankrupt retailers, out-of-state dealers would benefit, the cost of collection would be prohibitive, and divers other reasons why the law should not be enacted. But since the tax has been in force, the anxiety of the merchants has subsided, bankruptcies have not increased, the cost of collection has been small, and no unusual amount of out-of-the-state buying has been evident. Growing numbers admit that the tax is the best way of meeting Mississippi's needs. If the first four months may be trusted, the tax will turn in a total revenue of $2,500,000. Mississippi has taken rather a drastic step, but it is much better than a continuation of the unbalanced budget.

Still a New Steel Added to the List.—

The list of materials, both metallic and non-metallic, which combine with iron to impart special characteristics to steel is long and continues to be lengthened. Tungsten steel is very hard and is among the earliest of the combinations. It is to this combination that the historic Damascus blades owe their keenness. Vanadium steel, on the other hand, is very tough and can be stamped and even "folded" without cracking. Cobalt has enabled the miner and other users of drills and special tools to work at a much higher speed, while manganese has given us possibly the toughest steel known. Stainless steel is a more recent addition to the list, and it is made stainless by its chromium content, to which is also added nickel to make it easier to machine. Now stainless steel is to be further improved by the addition of selenium. This new stainless steel contains approximately 18 per cent of chromium, 9 per cent of nickel and 0.25 per cent of selenium. It is this one-fourth of one per cent of selenium which gives it super workability in the lathe and vastly easier machining qualities. Its use is patented. This new stainless steel opens the way for finer steel screw-machine work, makes possible deeper stampings and is less subject to corrosion. Selenium is itself a strange metal, which is named after the moon and is sensitive to light. Its electrical resistance is very high when in darkness, but its conductivity is doubled when exposed to the light.

Oil Well By-Products.—

For many years after oil was discovered in Pennsylvania, gasoline, then a by-product of kerosene, or ordinary lamp oil, was both a nuisance and a source of danger and expense for the kerosene producer. The internal combustion engine changed all this, and gasoline is no longer a by-product. Today, there are other by-products of the petroleum business. Among these are propane and butane—two oil-well gasses. Petroleum refiners are now fast developing new markets for these gases, both because it pays and because of laws in some States forbidding the blowing of these gases into the air. Figures for liquid gas production show that in 1926, sales amounted to about a half-million gallons. In 1928 they had reached a million; in 1930, 18 millions, and in 1931, 28 millions. Figures for 1932 will likely show another large increase. These liquified gases are finding constantly increasing markets. They are being used by the public utility companies and municipal gas companies as the main source of their city gas, or to enrich gas from other sources; they are being stored in containers and sold to domestic users beyond the reach of gas mains, and many commercial users are finding ways in which they may be utilized. It is hardly possible that they will replace gasoline as the principal product of the oil fields, but the increasing use of this former waste product is just one more step forward in the conservation of our natural resources.

Elon and Duke to Exchange Credits.—

An arrangement has been entered into between Elon College and Duke University whereby students who wish to enter the professional schools at Duke after three years at Elon may, for the first year in professional work completed successfully, have these credits counted toward their A. B. degree and return to Elon for graduation with their class. This was proposed by Dr. W. P. Few, president of Duke University, after he had observed that a number of students at Elon and other denominational colleges in this section had dropped out at the end of the first two or three years—as soon as work required for admission to a professional school was completed—and went on into concentrated study for law, medicine and the like. "I have always felt, as I think most college presidents feel, that students should as a rule remain through to graduation, but we all know that a good many of them drop out to go into professional schools," Dr. Few said in his proposal to Dr. Smith, president of Elon. "Our professional schools are not seeking to draw away undergraduates before they finish their full college course. Indeed, we prefer that men who intend to enter the law school should first receive their bachelor degrees. But we would gladly cooperate with colleges to the end that they may be in position to award an A. B. degree to their undergraduates who insist on going away at the end of the junior year for professional work. This plan would probably also tend to hold the boys who might otherwise leave at the end of their sophomore year." The proposed plan was adopted by Elon after faculty and trustee action.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Dr. E. A. King and family have returned to Miami Beach, Fla., after spending several weeks at Fairview, N. C.

The teaching that there are no fixed, eternal principles of right and wrong is utterly atheistic and misleading. The difference between good and evil is as certain and as unchangeable as the difference between light and darkness.—Ex.

Among other friends whom the managing editor saw during the past week-end spent in North Carolina, was Mr. George T. Whitaker of Franklinton, N. C. We had not seen this "old" Elon graduate for several years, and we could have stayed and talked all day. We enjoyed very much the short chat that we had.

"I have found it a real pleasure to put my dime in the pocket of the coin card each week for ten weeks, and am now sending the dollar thus collected for Missions. I have three more to fill." So writes a good woman who is using the coin card as a means of making a self-denial offering in the name and for the sake of her Lord.

The eighty-seventh annual session of the Georgia and Alabama Christian Conference will be held with the Christian Church at Richland, Ga., October 4th and 5th. Rev. J. D. Dollar is president of the conference and also pastor of the Christian Church at Lanett, Ala. We will give complete program in next week's issue.

The great homecoming event of Center Church, Atlanta, took place on Sunday, September 4th. It was an all-day meeting with speaking by the pastor and others and special music. The County Line Church, 28 miles out of Atlanta, will hold its homecoming day on September 18th. Another all-day meeting. They expect 500 people, at least.

We are running in this issue a list of those who remitted for THE SUN during August. A few of these asked that their paper be stopped, and there is a note of sadness in a reason like this: "I am enclosing payment for THE SUN to date. I am asking you to stop it, as I can no longer see to read it." A faithful subscriber this, who has taken the paper through the years. Are you just as faithful to your church?

Reports of revivals "revive" us again. Nine received into the church at Bailey's Grove, N. C., 34 at Duncan's Creek, Ga., 15 at Hampden, Lovejoy, Ga., 9 at Sardis, 11 at Center Church, Ga., 6 without revival at United, LaGrange. And there are many churches which have not yet reported results. It is reassuring to learn that in the midst of summer when the sun is shining hot, these churches still go on working and do bring in the sheaves of spiritual harvests.

"For your information," announces President L. E. Smith, of Elon College, "we have already signed up more than one hundred for the freshman class, which is very good, considering we have only had more than one hundred for the freshman class but a few years. With your help and cooperation, we can put it over." That was written August 23rd, and applicants have been coming in since, so that the prospects are quite bright for a large opening of Elon on September 13th.

Rev. Chas. L. Fisk, D. D., and Mrs. Fisk were recent visitors at the Jacksonville office. They had been visiting Mrs. Fisk's parents at Stuart and were returning to Cleveland, O. Both Dr. and Mrs. Fisk have resigned their respective offices in the Ohio Conference and are planning to make Florida their home, where they will be welcomed by the many friends in the Florida Conference. Dr. Fisk was largely responsible for the beginning of the Florida Young People's Conference at Camp Immokalee.

The managing editor has received a very beautifully printed brochure of the Vanderbilt University School of Religion from Dr. W. A. Harper. During the past 57 years that this school has been in existence, we learn that more than 1,600 trained young men have been placed in active Christian ministry. Certainly an institution which has done so much for Christianity has a real place in the world. It is inter-denominational, but we cannot help but think that it is just a little better place for having on its faculty our own Dr. Harper.

Durham Christian Church has been holding union vesper services during the summer months with Duke Memorial Methodist Church, but resumed regular evening services the first of the month. On last Sunday evening, Rev. S. C. Harrell, the pastor, preached a most impressive sermon, emphasizing the necessity of actually living the Christian life if one would be a power in building up God's kingdom. He showed the futility of profession unless backed up by actual every-day living. Rev. Harrell left early Monday morning for Eastern Virginia, where he is assisting in a series of meetings at Mt. Carmel Christian Church.

Recently Rev. Samuel Penn, the efficient and faithful pastor of Sophia Parish, N. C., had a birthday. He thought he was going to skip a year, as sometimes people like to do, and let no one know he had a birthday. When the day came, came also auto loads of his loyal and devoted parishioners with other loads of the best food grown in the good old North State, and spread tables beneath the leafy trees of the wide lawn of the parsonage. They did not say just how old he is, but they reminded him that loyalty with them never grows old. They spent one big share of a delightful day thus at the parsonage. It gladdened the heart of the pastor and all his household.

It was the pleasure of the managing editor to visit with Rev. W. T. Scott, at Winston-Salem on last Sunday morning. Bro. Scott is working hard and deserves all of the support that can be given him. He is now located temporarily in an edifice formerly used by a Methodist Church in the business district, but he hopes to buy a lot in one of the residential sections and build. It was also a pleasure while there to see Messrs. John J. Ingle (Sr. and Jr.). Mr. Ingle, Senior, was once postmaster at Elon College, and is well-remembered by former Elon students. He is now in the wholesale news business. His son, who is an Elon graduate, is, we understand, quite a successful lawyer, with a wide practice.

We understand that Rev. E. B. White has been extended a unanimous call to return to Damascus and Eure Christian Churches in Eastern North Carolina. Bro. White says: "We have been at Damascus for the past five years and at Eure for two years. The people are taking a lively interest in church work. The attendance has been excellent, and all departments are thriving. Unity prevails among the members, and a sweet fellowship between pastor and people, and we are making progress along many lines. The young people have organized for the purpose of developing themselves socially and spiritually." We also understand that Mr. White will again have charge of the Windsor, Va., circuit, though we have not been definitely informed.

Dr. Smith, in making plans for Elon for the ensuing year, is taking into consideration those students who have not made enviable records as students and will see that they get special attention that they need to make first-class students—or even scholars—out of them. He says, "It has become the vogue recently, especially with the larger colleges and universities, to require that students, before they are admitted, measure up to a certain specific scholastic requirement. Any institution can take a selected group of students and make any sort of record that it may desire. A real demonstration of ability and worth comes when an institution can show that it has taken men or women from the bracket of low grades and taught them to be real students and to earn college graduation and a degree."

"May I ask that you send me a sermon for 'THE CHRISTIAN SUN Pulpit'—four pages, double-spaced, typewritten, make a very good set-up for the 'Pulpit,' but your sermon may be longer or shorter as you see fit." This is a request which has gone to some of our ministers from Rev. John G. Truitt, who has charge of this page in THE SUN. Bro. Truitt is most faithful to his work, and we believe that you ministers to whom he has written should assist him by sending him your best sermon. He has also asked us to invite others to contribute sermons to this page. He will need fifty during the next twelve months, and the managing editor requests that they be sent direct to Rev. John G. Truitt, 312 Edgar Place, Dayton, O., that he may keep informed as to the number of sermons in hand at any time.

Immediately after his acceptance of the presidency at Elon College, Dr. Leon E. Smith was called to the pastorate of the Community Church there, we are informed by Bro. J. C. McAdams, chairman of the board of deacons. In accepting the call Dr. Smith said in part: "It was very kind and thoughtful of you to extend to me the invitation to become your pastor for the current year. In this expression of yours, you have displayed confidence in me, and conferred an honor upon me, which I assure you I appreciate greatly; and, however undeserving I may be, I want to assure you of my appreciation of such confidence and trust. He who accepts the pastorate of a faithful and believing people takes upon himself great responsibility—responsibilities which he cannot bear in his own strength, but by the help of God and in the name of Christ he may."

Dr. Samuel G. Inman, an acquaintance of the SUN's editor, and of many of THE SUN readers, gives in another column an exceedingly interesting account of the recent World's Sunday School Convention in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. We trust every reader will turn to Dr. Inman's account of the Convention and give it a careful reading, as it carries fundamental and progressive facts. Think of a Sunday School Convention about which the two following sentences are written: "There were about ten thousand people present in Praca da Republica, all of whom heard the program easily by means of amplifiers. Representatives from thirty-three nations gave a sense of greatness." From this every SUN reader must realize next Sunday as he goes to his school, that after all the Sunday School is no little thing, but a part of the largest and most influential institution on earth.

One of the most valuable phases of Florida church life is the annual convocation of the ministers. This year it will be held as usual at the Seaside Inn, Daytona Beach, and will begin on the evening of October 3rd, ending with breakfast on October 6th. The principal speaker and leader of discussions will be Dr. Frederick L. Fagley, associate secretary of the General Council of Congregational and Christian Churches, who will conduct a seminar on worship. There will be also a seminar on personal and church problems which will be conducted by Rev. A. J. Price of the Community Methodist Church of Daytona Beach. Dr. Price has demonstrated an unusual ability along this line and is strongly recommended by the ministers of the Daytona region. There will be other addresses on the program which will be announced later. The Convocation is largely attended by the ministers and their wives.

The Board of Trustees of the West Tampa Institute, at a recent meeting, voted to vacate one of the two tenement houses owned by the Institute and to fit the same for club and social work. During the last year or two there has been a marked development of this phase of the mission service. One of the young lady teachers has been assigned to give full time to calling and the promotion of activities. In this she is assisted by the other teachers and by Mr. Orland Corwin. The four young lady teachers have had a two-weeks' vacation spent at the apartment of Miss Nettie Gault in St. Petersburg, where they were delightfully entertained by friends in the St. Petersburg Church. After they returned Rev. and Mrs. Carl H. Corwin went to the same apartment, having two weeks' vacation. There will be some cost to equip the building for club work and any contributions from friends of the Mission will be welcomed. The funds also are low at the end of the summer, and early contributions for the regular work are solicited.

SOUTHERN UNION ANNOUNCEMENT.

Southern Union College will open Wednesday, September 7th, with a very strong faculty and the outlook for an unusually large body of students. Prof. S. A. Bennett, recently of Elon, has been elected vice-president and will take over the administrative duties of the acting president to enable him to give all his time, thought and energy to the finances of the college and to the development of its extensive work in the seven surrounding counties. Prof. A. R. Van Cleave has been elected to a professorship and as athletic director. Rev. G. H. Veazey, of Roanoke, becomes business manager. Various other adjustments have been made to make possible the strongest year Southern Union has ever had.

The various misunderstandings as to the purpose, spirit and work of this college seem to have been removed, and Dr. Kedzie now writes that he will cooperate with the college. Extensive plans have been formulated during the summer for a general financial clean-up and general development the coming year. The Board is offering temporary "depression prices" for this year, with tuition being reduced from $84.00 to $48.00, and board from $216.00 to $144.00, the entire expenses, with no fees, amounting to $192.00; while the faculty and facilities have been greatly enlarged.

We are expecting the greatest year in the history of Bethlehem - Piedmont Junior - Southern Union College.

FRANK E. JENKINS, Pres.

DR. SMITH'S RESIGNATION.

Elon College, N. C.,
August 20, 1932.

Members of Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va.,
Brethren and Sisters in Christ—Greetings:

For thirteen years we have labored together as pastor and people; beginning with a small, but very fine group, we have pressed steadily onward in his name. The Lord has greatly blessed us, adding to the church almost daily such as he would have to be saved.

Thirteen years ago, we had an enrollment of 236 members and only temporary quarters in which to worship. Today, we have more than 1,600 names on our roll, many of whom have moved out of the city and some have fallen by the wayside; but still we have a large membership and are equal to almost any task that we may undertake unitedly together, trusting in God for help and victory.

We are the proud possessors of one of the most adequate, one of the most beautiful, and one of the most worshipful church edifices in the whole country. May God give us the grace of consecration and humility of spirit, that we may serve him in all faithfulness as he shall bless us with life and opportunity.

And now, I come to the most difficult task of my life. You will pardon me if I express a desire for your united prayers. Circumstances seem to forbid that we labor together longer as pastor and people. The church at large, the board of trustees of Elon College, have repeatedly requested me to dedicate my life to the interest and upbuilding of the College. Elon is our College—the College of our church in the South. It is the training school for our young people. For many months now I have had this important question under advisement. To say that I have spent many sleepless nights and much time in prayer, trying to know the will of God in this matter would not half tell the story. However, the College seems to be of such importance, so much more than even my life itself, that it now occurs to me that I should yield to the insistence of my church and dedicate my all to this most difficult, and yet at the same time, intensely joyful task.

To leave you impoverishes my spirit. You have been so good to me, so thoughtful, so kind, so considerate, so generous. You have become a part of me. I love you next to my very own, and pray God's blessing upon you. May he prosper you and may you ever be at peace.

I am sure that you will be as true and loyal to your incoming pastor as you have been to me. I could wish him no greater blessing.

This, then, is to present to you my formal resignation as your pastor, effective when you may desire. As for me, like one of old, I go out not knowing whither I go.

Affectionately and faithfully,
Yours in Christ,
L. E. SMITH.

DR. SMITH ACCEPTS PRESIDENCY.

Elon College, N. C.,
August 24, 1932.

To the Board of Trustees,
Elon College, N. C.
My dear Sirs:

You were kind and considerate enough at a called meeting in the Christian Church at Burlington, N. C., on the evening of October 20, 1931, to extend to me, officially, an invitation to accept the presidency of Elon College. At that meeting, I expressed my appreciation of the confidence reposed in me, but also expressed my fears as to the wisdom of your judgment in this important matter. However, I promised to take the matter under advisement and give you an answer within thirty days. At the expiration of the thirty days, the decision was postponed until February 15, 1932. On December 1, 1931, I asked for, and received, a leave of absence from the Christian Temple in Norfolk which I was then serving as pastor, came to the College, and since that date have given my entire time, every interest and thought to the welfare of the College.

I have deferred definite answer to your invitation, hoping to be able to put into effect certain agreements with the principal creditors of the institution, and to be able to perfect certain definite plans that would most effectively insure the progress of the institution. Such efforts, I am glad to say, are succeeding fairly well, but have not been entirely completed. However, realizing that I cannot, with satisfaction to myself, or profit to our institution, remain longer in this indecisive attitude, I am writing to say to you that, after long deliberation, and a passionate desire for divine guidance, I have decided to accept the presidency of Elon College. And, in so doing, I hasten to assure you that I pledge to you and to the institution, my experience, my talents, my ability, my possessions, and my consecration.

I feel that Elon College represents the heart of our church—that it is the most important institution that we have created—that her possibilities for improvement and advancement within our church are unlimited—that she deserves my best, my all; and she shall have it, notwithstanding the discouraging features that surround us and the apparent impossibilities that confront us. Yet, with faith that is aglow, and with hope and expectancy, I cast my life into the battle.

I feel that you will be glad to make me the same pledges and assurance which I make you. This is our mutual responsibility, and from it comes a benefit and blessing to us all alike. Having given you my pledges and assurances, and you having given me yours, I feel that together we can ask the same of the membership of our united church, and that many loyal hearts and faithful souls will, in turn, take up the task together with us, and together we will march to success and victory.

This is no time for questionings, doubts or fears; but the very hour calls for faith, determination, cooperation and expectancy, and whatever sacrifices are necessary to realize our high hopes.

May I have a word from you, giving me assurances such as I have given you in this instrument of my acceptance of the important post to which you have called me?

Yours for the College and Christian education.
L. E. SMITH.

EURE'S CHRISTIAN CHURCH REVIVAL.

Eure's Christian Church held its annual revival last week. The services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. E. B. White, of Windsor, Va. The weather was unusually warm, but large congregations attended, especially at the night services. Eure's Church most always has a good attendance during its revivals. Special music was arranged for nearly every service.

The revival was a great success, with an addition of eight new members. Mr. White and his family spent the entire week in our midst, visiting as many homes as he could.

The Church Aid Society had made reservations for him and his family before their arrival.

(MISS) LOUISE EURE.

If you wish to create confidence in yourself and your proposition, speak, act, and be sincerely in earnest.—Selected.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. W. STALEY C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

W. C. WICKER

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

DR. SMITH FORMALLY ACCEPTS.

It means much for Dr. L. E. Smith to accept the presidency of Elon College. Any one who will read his formal letters of acceptance to the Board of Trustees and also to the College Church, which we print elsewhere, will realize something of what it means to Dr. Smith. It has been a struggle with him from the hour in which the Trustees elected him until the hour in which he fully made up his mind that he must cast his lot with Elon. Only those of us who know the man in his personal life, the perfect freedom and frankness with which he faces every situation, his absolute abandon to the call of duty and service and the keen, conscientious scruples with which he decides every question, fully comprehend what the decision has meant to him personally. Then the decision means much to the College.

Not knowing what his decision was going to be, one of the Trustees, of many years standing, said to the writer awhile ago: "Unless Dr. Smith can save us in the present crisis and lead us out of the wilderness into the promised land of our expectations, then I see no hope for the College or the Convention, of which the College is an essential factor." The College is thoroughly identified with every enterprise and interest of the Christian and Congregational Churches here in the South, and as the College goes, so will go other interests and enterprises. Those who are to lead, to direct, guide and sustain the church and enterprises in the future are those who are trained at Elon College for their life's work. To have a man like Dr. Smith come in contact with these leaders in the church of the future, these leaders in pulpit and in pew, these strong, promising, prospective men and women from our Congregational and Christian homes, means more than the printed page can record or time itself reveal. Dr. Smith, the life of consecration, zeal and passion for his church, for righteousness and for the Kingdom of God, is an asset at Elon College, invaluable in the lives of those coming to the College now and those to go out into pulpit and pew from the College later.

It behooves one and all of us now to rally to the support of our own Elon, an institution born in prayer, dedicated to religious liberty and to Christian culture, and set apart to the development of the high and holy ambitions, ideals and aspirations of our Christian and Congregational Churches and constituency. The College needs and must have our support, prayers, our dollars, our devotion, and as we give these, we, ourselves, should be the stronger and richer for our tasks, and the church we love will be a mighty factor in tearing down the strongholds of Satan, and for building up on earth the Kingdom of our Lord Christ, who alone is the head of the church and the one leader in all our undertakings.

It means, therefore, much to Christian education, to Christian character, to Christian pursuits and achievements for Dr. Smith, one of our own, respected, beloved, trusted by all who know him, and by the entire church, to become the president of OUR College.

J. O. A.

REQUESTS TO CHURCHES.

What a wonderful thing it would be if church members, who are able, would place in their wills bequests for their churches, even though the gifts be small. A prominent and successful business man and churchman has recently died in New England at the age of 80 years. He left $425,000 to charitable and character-forming societies in his city. Some of the bequests were as follows: $15,000 to the hospital; $100,000 for the public library; $100,000 to continue his personal benevolences through his son to be spent as he sees fit; $10,000 to his college; $5,000 to the Y. M. C. A., and the same amount to numerous other worthy agencies.

All this is interesting, and perhaps usual, for a generous Christian business man, who has always been interested in public welfare, but there is one item that is especially worthy of mention, viz, his gift of $10,000 to his church. This is in the form of an endowment, the interest to be used for the general purpose of conducting religious services.

This means that he had provided for the continuance of his annual subscription to his church, and though he is dead his influence will continue and his constant financial support will help and encourage everybody. He was interested in missionary work, and left $10,000 to the missionary organizations of his denomination, to be used to continue his usual annual subscriptions.

In many cases church members' financial help ceases with their death. Recently a minister of a small church wrote, "Our church has been supported largely for years by four members. This last year they have all died and our little church has not sufficient funds to continue. My entire salary for the year will amount to only $200."

What a pity! If they had made wills and provided for the continuance of their regular subscriptions, how splendid it would have been. We are reminded of that passage in Revelation (14:13): "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from henceforth; yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them." If more Christian business men would think about helping their churches after their departure by leaving gifts in their wills the Kingdom of God would progress much more rapidly.

E. A. K.

SEPARATED UNTO THE GOSPEL.

Paul would not allow doubt in his own mind. He was debtor to many, Jews and Gentiles, friends and foes, and was under obligation to many events and incidents attending his journey through life, but he nowhere gives place, power or prestige to doubt. He simply kept that out of his life. He must have had a hard time at it. Sometimes the whole horizon was obscured by cloud; friends forsook him; enemies overtook him; trials of every type beset him. He often walked the weary way alone, but he did not doubt. There is no evidence in all his life or writing, that he gave place in his mind and heart, even for a moment, to doubt. "Paul, a servant of Jesus Christ, called to be an apostle, separated unto the gospel of God." There he is writing about himself, and, once for all, flooding his mind and soul with such light that the darkness of doubt could not enter.

This was Paul from the beginning of his ministry, just after hearing the commission which he declares was: "I will send thee far hence unto the Gentiles." Here, indeed, was a man who would not allow "the home base" to hamper his efforts in fields afar, and who absolutely refused to think that his own color or tongue, or community, superior to, or needed the gospel any more, than the tribes, tongues, nations, out yonder. From Paul's day to this, the most stalwart faith of the church, and the world, has been manifest in the lives of those who, feeling themselves separated unto the gospel, have not been willing to confine that gospel to their immediate community, to their own localities, but have tried through song, service and sermon, if they could not carry that gospel afar, to stimulate and enlist the support of others in sending that gospel. This is natural and is logical, for when you localize the gospel, you crush its life out, you dim its light, life, and power, in your own thinking; and when local conditions seem gloomy and distraught and uncertain, doubt comes, questions arise, and uncertainty paralyzes faith. The only unfailing stimulus to faith, and to the power of the person, separated unto the gospel, is that belief which would not let Paul have or harbor doubt, the belief that the greatest need on this earth is the gospel of the Son of God, and the greatest power among men is the gospel of the Son of God, "for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth."

J. O. A.

THESE STUDENTS.

The migration has begun. The great army is on the move. It will be moving in segments for a month. It is a mighty army, both in numbers and possibilities. Judging by the number last year, there will be over a million in this army of students now entering, and soon to enter, the 1,035 colleges, universities and professional schools of our country. The number may be even greater than this, since the increase from year to year in the last generation has been so enormous that it is difficult to estimate. In one generation this army has increased 7,000 per cent, while that going to high schools and secondary schools has increased 1,000 per cent.

There is no manner or method of measuring the opportunities and responsibilities that this army of young men and young women in quest of knowledge will produce. Parents and guardians must assume responsibilities and face opportunities that they cannot sidestep or ignore. It is often repeated that out of a million persons with no schooling, only six attained distinction, while 622 out of a million high school graduates reached distinction, and 5,768 college graduates out of every million became famous for renowned and distinguished service.

The opportunity awaits the Christian teacher and the wholesome atmosphere of the Christian institution. As one has so well put it: "What is the profit of degrees if the sense of divinity dies out of life?" The true wisdom is that which leads the student into a more comprehensive knowledge, not only of the universe, but of the God who created the universe and the God who guides and governs all. Not education, but Christian education is the one crying need of our time, and as the great army of students migrate to colleges where Christian education is the desired goal, there, indeed, goes a large part of the army that is to control in future the history of our nation and the destiny of our people.

J. O. A.

SUBSCRIPTION PAYMENTS DURING AUGUST.

During the past month we have received payments on subscriptions from nearly one hundred of our subscribers. This is quite a number more than were received in July, but it is only about half as many as should be received during the average month, if our present subscription list is to be kept up-to-date. There are those among our leaders who have told us it cannot be done, but I have enough faith in the rank and file of our church to believe that we can build up a self-sustaining, self-supporting church paper. We can if each of you will do his part. Look at the label on your paper, and if it shows that you are in arrears pay what you can toward bringing it up-to-date. But don't stop at that—go out and find a new subscriber and send in their subscription with yours. If you will do this—all of you—I'll promise you just the best church paper that it is possible to make. Let's just you and me prove that we can do it.

There are several discontinuances this month. For reasons best known to them, they have asked that THE SUN stop shining in their homes. We are sorry to lose them from our list, and will welcome them back when they see their way clear to return.

Sincerely yours,
YOUR MANAGING EDITOR.

RENEWALS.

Mrs. Iris Allison, R. 6, Burlington, N. C.
Mrs. S. M. Atkinson, 3806 Moss Side Ave., Richmond.
Mrs. B. L. Barnes, 1501 Atlanta Ave., Portsmouth, Va.
M. P. Barrett, 50 Connecticut Ave., Norfolk, Va.
Mrs. Ella J. Beale, High St., Franklin, Va.
W. S. Beamon, 228 N. Main St., Suffolk, Va.
J. C. Bradford, R. 1, Broadway, Va.
F. F. Brinkley, R. 1, Suffolk, Va.
G. Brinkley, Driver, Va.
Rev. R. E. Brittle, R. 1, Suffolk, Va.
Clarence Bunch, Cypress Chapel, Va.
Ernest L. Byrd, R. 2, Holland, Va.
L. T. Byrd, R. 2, Holland, Va.
Mrs. H. M. Cannon, 714 Fauquier St., Norfolk, Va.
Mrs. M. A. Carr, 504 Washington St., Suffolk, Va.
Mrs. J. E. Cartwright, 1732 LaSalle Ave., Norfolk.
Mrs. T. M. Cobb, Franklin, Va.
W. J. Cotten (address changed to), Dahlonga, Ga.
Mrs. Henry Crocker, Box 684, Suffolk, Va.
E. F. Cullifer, R. 3, Suffolk, Va.
Mrs. C. W. Darden, R. 4, Suffolk, Va.
L. J. Daugherty, Holland, Va.
B. Drake, Franklin, Va.
C. E. Duke, R. 3, Suffolk, Va.
C. J. Duke, 261 Washington St., Suffolk, Va.
J. W. Duke, R. 1, Suffolk, Va.
Hermon Eldredge, C. P. A. Bldg., Dayton, O.
Mrs. Docia Eley, 110 30th St., Norfolk, Va.
T. Z. Fogleman, R. 3, Liberty, N. C.
Mrs. J. V. Gatling, 127 Bank St., Suffolk, Va.
S. T. Gay, 308 S. Main St., Suffolk, Va.
Dr. Wm. T. Gay, 212 Bosley St., Suffolk, Va.
Mrs. D. W. Gilliam, R. 1, Reidsville, N. C.
W. S. Hardcastle, 223 N. Bradford St., Dover, Del.
Dr. D. L. Harrell, Lakeview Hospital, Suffolk, Va.
Mrs. Joel E. Harrell, R. 1, Box 212, Suffolk, Va.
P. S. Harrell, R. 1, Suffolk, Va.
Mrs. R. C. Harrell, 522 Washington St., Suffolk, Va.
T. J. Hendricks, 1515 Des Moines Ave., Portsmouth.
Mrs. A. E. Hines, R. 1, Wakefield, Va.

J. B. Hinshaw, R. 3, Liberty, N. C.
Almira Hinton, Sunbury, N. C.
Mrs. R. T. Holder, 5010 7th Pl., Washington, D. C.
J. W. Holland, Box 402, Suffolk, Va.
Miss Susie Holland, 220 Pinner St., Suffolk, Va.
W. J. Holland, Holland, Va.
Mrs. W. J. M. Holland, High St., Franklin, Va.
Mrs. A. F. Isceley, R. 4, Burlington, N. C.
Mrs. A. M. Johnson, 1642 Ocean View Ave., Portsmouth, Va.
J. C. Johnson, R. 1, Carrsville, Va.
Mrs. J. B. Jones, R. 3, Liberty, N. C.
J. T. Jones, Holland, Va.
L. R. Jones, High St., Franklin, Va.
Mrs. Tup Jones, Franklin, Va.
Mrs. T. A. Jones, R. 5, Suffolk, Va.
W. H. Jones, 609 South St., Franklin, Va.
J. A. Kagey, Mt. Jackson, Va.
Amos Lassiter, R. 1, Box 30, Suffolk, Va.
Mrs. J. E. Lawrence, High St., Franklin, Va.
A. H. Liskey, Bridgewater, Va.
S. L. McClenny, Myrtle, Va.
W. E. McClenny, Suffolk, Va.
B. F. Morris, Carrboro, N. C.
Dr. N. G. Newman, Holland, Va.
Mrs. A. H. Nichols, 1025 Jamestown Ave., Norfolk.
L. B. Norfleet, 607 High St., Franklin, Va.
W. H. Norfleet, Franklin, Va.
Mrs. W. John Norfleet, R. 1, Holland, Va.
E. F. O'Berry, R. 1, Suffolk, Va.
G. O. O'Berry, R. 1, Suffolk, Va.
R. B. Odom, R. 5, Suffolk, Va.
Mrs. C. C. Peele, Haw River, N. C.
Mrs. Lydia Pickering, R. 1, Broadway, Va.
S. W. Pierce, 201 Poplar Ave., Norfolk, Va.
Mrs. W. N. Pierce, 213 30th St., Norfolk, Va.
Mrs. G. A. Piland, 301 Linden St., Suffolk, Va.
Mrs. D. P. Rawles, 400 Armstrong St., Portsmouth.
Dr. D. L. Rawles, 112 S. Broad St., Suffolk, Va.
Dr. J. E. Rawles, Suffolk, Va.
R. H. Reidel, Holland, Va.
Mrs. Frank Philip Rogers, Suffolk, Va.
R. E. Rogers, R. 1, Suffolk, Va.
A. J. Rountree, Cypress Chapel, Va.
J. J. Rountree, 313 W. 30th St., Norfolk, Va.
A. H. Savage, R. 3, Suffolk, Va.
H. E. Savage, R. 1, Whaleyville, Va.
Miss Ora Scott, R. 3, Harrisonburg, Va.
Mrs. J. E. Tidwell, R. 1, Box 143, Suffolk, Va.
Mrs. A. A. Turner, 133 North St., Suffolk, Va.
Mrs. W. B. Warrington, R. 5, Suffolk, Va.
Rev. M. L. Weekley, 452 Va. Ave., Harrisonburg, Va. (New.)
M. J. W. White, 237 W. 31st St., Norfolk, Va.
J. J. Williams, R. 1, Elon College, N. C.
Mrs. R. B. Wood, 711 Va. Ave., Norfolk, Va.
H. Woodward, Jr., 114 Bank St., Suffolk, Va.
Harvey Worrell, R. 1, Holland, Va.

DISCONTINUED.

Jas. H. Barnes, R. 1, Suffolk, Va.
M. B. Pierce, Whaleyville, Va.
N. H. Bradshaw, R. 1, Suffolk, Va.
Mrs. S. R. B. Howell, R. 2, Holland, Va.
J. W. Felton, 1503 Elm Ave., Portsmouth, Va.
Mrs. J. W. Gibson, 1404 37th St., Norfolk, Va.
MOVED, LEFT NO FORWARDING ADDRESS.
H. L. Gunter, Sanitorium, N. C.

Special Combination Subscription Offer!

A special arrangement has been made whereby those who desire to do so may receive both THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for just a little more than they now pay for one of these papers.

Beginning immediately, we will accept subscriptions for the two papers at the price of $3.75 for the combined subscription. This means to SUN readers that for only $1.75 additional they may receive the great wealth of knowledge that The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty brings weekly. Those who are already subscribers for the latter paper may add THE SUN to their list for only 75 cents for the whole year.

You do not have to wait until your subscription to one or the other paper has expired, but send in your subscription now. You will begin immediately to receive the other paper and that which you are already receiving will be marked up a year in advance.

While this offer is open to everyone, it should appeal especially to the pastors and lay workers in the Southeast Convention, and we beg them to take advantage of this opportunity.

It is, of course, understood that under this special offer all subscriptions must be in advance, and must be sent directly to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va., or to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

DEAR SIRs:

Please (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my present subscription one year) to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my subscription one year) to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

(Please mark out the words not applicable.)

I enclose, herewith, check or money order for $3.75 to cover same.

M
Street No. or R. F. D.
City and State.

CONTRIBUTIONS

REVIVE THY WORK.

A PELA FOR PENITENCE AND PRAYER.

I have just been reading the earnest prayer of a prophet in the midst of a trying day. He turned through and out of it all, and called for what he fully believed to be the real deliverance. "Oh Lord! Revive thy work in the midst of the years!"

Personally I have always believed that the greatest danger involved in any problematic period of life is the spiritual danger. We do not list it on our market reports. We call crisis years the years when stocks and bonds go tumbling in quotations. We are always slaves of economics. Keep our markets strong and you cannot write crisis across our day. We, however, have come to realize of late that there is a stifling atmosphere about prosperity which chokes some finer things than mere economics.

Amid all the other crowding perils of this troubled hour through which we have been conscripted to carry the story of human progress, I am sure the spiritual peril is the gravest. It is not now for great civic reforms, and great industrial reforms, and great social reforms, and many more upon which we so easily can persuade folks to spend their enthusiasms, that I am to direct attention. Not that I do not favor the very highest development of every good ideal, but because I am fully convinced that the heart and hope of all good reform in this world lies in a genuine application of spiritual religion to the ways of man. I have been reading some very excellent historical estimates which boldly declare that the Wesleyan revivals actually saved England in that hard day from the very same fate which crushed France in her red revolution. In the light of what had been done, I dare in the face of what needs doing, to declare my faith in the same gospel they had, and in the same Christ that they preached, and in the same salvation they experienced, and in the same triumph they wrought!

There is a waiting place today for a giant figure in the church to appear. We must not walk carelessly now. We must not walk uncertainly. The issue is between God's truth which must be championed by his church, and ease and indifference, and skepticism, and materialism, and flagrant sin.

We must not be afraid of deserting our calmness. These are enlisting days. There can be no neutrality. We indulge enthusiasm elsewhere—in fact, we require it. Enthusiasm among salesmen is made an essential. Why should we cool toward an enthusiasm for God's Kingdom on earth? As someone has said, "Why should a gladiator be sane and St. Paul be mad?" I would say it modestly, and deny all comparisons personal that might seem to be involved in such a statement, but I have come to a time in my ministry when I can at least understand the feelings of splendid old John Knox, when in a perfect agony of soul, he cried, "Oh God! Give me Scotland, or I die."

Not long before his death, our greatest psychologist, Prof. William James of Harvard, offered a very keen observation upon the condition of our evangelical faith when he said, the true spirit of the church evaporates under those able and rationalistic booklets with which we have in certain quarters begun to evaporate religion in intellectual terms. That is not an exact quotation of the great student, but it is the meaning of a very penetrating observation upon a very liable condition.

I am not concerned as to what type the new revival shall be. I am no stickler for form, or phrase, or manner of its propagation. The term, "old-time religion," is an easy term to use and a hard term to define. Religion is neither old-fashioned nor new-fashioned. It is not a question of fashion. It is little concerned with form. We are not doing other things as we used to do them. Why leave the expression of our religion to wear, alone of all our life expressions the old manners and ways of yesterday?

I have a faith in Jesus Christ that cannot be outrun by any generation. I have faith in a gospel that cannot be laid aside by any problematic conditions that may arise. I am not for a Christianity that would be narrow, and severe, and conceited, and unprogressive. I would, however, have a living, aggressive, passionate church enjoying the communion of a personal Saviour from sin. After having done my best to give consideration to every phase of the present-day demand upon the church, and after having fought my own way through a mass of suggestions in emphasis, I have arrived at a conviction which was most vigorously announced by Dr. Dawson a few years ago in a phrase somewhat thus: "Though much may have been shaken in the realm of thought, nothing has been shaken in the realm of experience!" I cling to the message of evangelism. The form of utterance may differ, but the manner of statement is not the issue. I am far more concerned about the actual salvation of the soul than I am to discuss the speculations about truth which after all may hold interest for but a very few and hold no ultimate help even to them. This I know, the power of Jesus Christ does save folks, and that is enough vital knowledge in itself to command all the power I possess and to consume my best energy in application.

I would call, from the most compelling conviction I have ever known, for a new and consuming passion for the evangel, to come over the church. Enough for us to know that we have been entrusted with the message that will bring the broken-hearted and the sinful to a sufficient deliverance. As never before, in my all too little ministry, do I see and appreciate the meaning of this commission. I have never doubted its worth. I have never questioned its surety. I have never feared its ability. I do now see it, however, as I never did see it heretofore, as truly underlying all the stability of government and the hope of every reform. These are days for the declarations of the great fundamentals of our beliefs, shorn of all our bickering contentions. Nations are in upheaval. Whole systems are in revolutionary change. Governments and law and order are in perilous criticism and protest. Revolution is no word to be carelessly bandied about this world now. What we need is a gracious and a genuine revival of the religion of Jesus Christ, a religion that will plant the life of God in the hearts of men.

God knows I am ashamed and sorry for the little, the all too little. I have thus far been able to render him as the fruit of my years of service in his pulpit, entrusted as I have been with the gospel. I would, however, pledge you, even as I call you, that we may all joint hearts and hands to make sure no lack of union and effort shall be cause for any larger failure.

M. S. RICE.
Metropolitan Church,
Detroit, Mich.

Eternal application is the price of leadership.

RICH REVIVALS.

I am greatly encouraged with my church at present. I have had the exalted privilege of enjoying mighty fine revivals in the churches of my charge this year. We have not had any great ingathering of new members, but the churches are in the best spiritual condition they have been in during my ministry.

We held a second revival at New Harmony for a few days beginning August 20th, for four days and the closing service was the climax of the series. We would have continued longer but there was so much work to do in the community, and there were other meetings in nearby communities.

We had with us a young minister who had preached but one sermon before this meeting. His preaching was inspirational and somewhat surprising to his hearers—Millard (Red) Stevens is the young man of whom I speak, a graduate of high school, who is planning to enter Southern College September 7th. There are other young men in our conference planning to enter the ministry. One can see a brighter day in the near future for our Alabama Christian Conference.

I have never enjoyed my ministry quite so well as I have this year. I have had the sympathy and cooperation of most of the members, and I am sure I never needed it more. I feel that I have really made a sacrifice and am rejoicing over the results.

Annual conference will soon be here, and because of the depression our churches are coming up short with their apportionments, but I feel sure we will carry on in the name of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, and continue to make a contribution to his cause.

The revival at Rock Springs, August 14th to 19th, was the best that this church has had in many years. I have never seen the young people take such an active part in any meeting. They held prayer service in the grove while the older people worshipped in the church. Surely, the Holy Spirit was with us in convicting and converting power. Five persons united with the church.

G. H. VEAZEY.

Roanoke, Ala.

REVIVAL.

While at the bedside of my dear sick father, I want to tell SUN readers some of the good things accomplished in our meetings just closed.

It is not possible, however, to tell all the good that a revival will do, and is doing, for a sinful world. Our first meeting began July 10th, with Bethany Home Church. Rev. J. D. Dollar was with us here. We had great congregations, and a splendid meeting. Bro. Dollar is one of our former pastors, and is much loved by all of us.

On July 17th, we went to Caver's Grove. Rev. W. T. Meacham was with us here. Our congregations were splendid at each service. Bro. Meacham presented the gospel in a simple and inspiring manner. We received one member here. The church was greatly revived.

We went from Caver's Grove to Rock Stand, July 23rd. We had some inspiring music here, and great congregations, and many testimonials from God's people. I believe with all my heart that a brighter day is dawning for our church, and that she is coming into her own.

I have never seen better cooperation, fellowship and interest manifested among the people in the different communities that I have visited for the past five weeks.

We assisted Rev. W. T. Meacham at Mt. Zion and Lowell. We had great meetings at these churches. Many lives were blessed and nearly a score united with the church.

A. H. SHEPPARD.

Glenn, Ga.

ELON TO OPEN WITH 300 STUDENTS.

With everything in readiness for the opening of the fall term at Elon College on September 13th, Dr. L. E. Smith has announced the reorganization of the work of the institution into nine major departments and three special departments. The three special departments will be art, music and expression.

The major departments will be: the department of English, under which courses in language, composition and rhetoric, literature and journalism will be offered; the department of philosophy and social sciences, including philosophy, history, geography, and sociology; the department of natural sciences, including biology, chemistry, physics, zoology, geology, etc.; the department of mathematics; the department of ancient languages including Greek, Hebrew and Latin; the department of modern languages, including French, Spanish and German; the department of Christian and religious education; and the department of business administration and economics.

With applications on file from 125 freshmen, Registrar C. M. Cannon predicted today that the student body would exceed 300 this year. The first-year men are to be on the campus by the morning of September 13th, for a two-day orientation program before classes begin on September 15th.

Dr. L. E. Smith is back at the college, and will move his family here from Norfolk, Va., early next week. He is rapidly recovering his strength after three weeks at the Duke Hospital, at which time he had a major operation.

Other members of the faculty will assemble during the coming week.

The buildings composing the college plant have been thoroughly overhauled and renovated since the close of the summer school held during the first six weeks of the summer, and most of the dormitory rooms have been repainted. A new dining hall has been arranged on the second floor of West Dormitory Annex. This will be operated in connection with the main dining hall on the first floor beneath it, but will be on the club plan and will replace the old women's and men's clubs that will not be in operation this year. Board at the new club dining hall will be at the new low figure of $14 a month.

Considerable work has also been done on the campus during the summer, and the grounds and walks are in first-class condition.

With the arrival of the freshmen on Tuesday, September 13th, the first chapel period will be held at 9:00 o'clock and the freshmen reception at 8:00 o'clock that evening, at which time the new students will meet their classmates and the faculty and enjoy an elaborate entertainment that has been planned for them. This two-day period of orientation is designed to assist the new students to adjust themselves as quickly as possible to college life. It will end with registration on Wednesday afternoon and classes will begin on Thursday morning.

During this period freshmen are instructed in the use of the library, how to conserve their time, the best methods of study, and are given insight into the ideals and purposes of the college, and what will be expected of them as students.

Letters have been received by Dr. Smith, from James E. Hillman, director of teacher training and certification under the North Carolina superintendent of public instruction, and from Sidney B. Hall, superintendent of public instruction for the State of Virginia, informing him that both States will recognize Elon as a standard four-year institution again this year and that its graduates will be given the same recognition as graduates of other standard colleges in these States.

This recognition of graduates of Elon who wish to enter the teaching profession has existed for years, and is in keeping with the excellent showing that institution's department of education has made. Dr. J. Allen Hunter served as head of the department last year. It is being reorganized this year, under Dr. W. C. Wicker, who returns to Elon after an absence of seven years. Dr. Wicker formerly taught here for 23 years. Dr. Hunter continues with the faculty.

THE NEXT REVIVAL.

A constant prayer of the church is that a revival of religion may be had everywhere. The form of the revival is regarded as unimportant, but the substance is earnestly sought. Whether it comes as did the revival under Luther, or the revival under Wesley, or the revival under Edwards, or the revival under Sam Jones, or the revival under Finney, is not the vital thing. It may come in many forms simultaneously. There may be manifestations like those in the pioneer brush arbers of the American wilderness, or there may be a quiet calm like that at the altar of an impressive cathedral. However it comes, it will have power to transform life, personal and social; it will set men in the way of righteousness and enable them to wield an influence in behalf of justice and good will.

In all probability the next revival will come in an entirely new and unexpected way. The Holy Spirit is resourceful; he uses surprises in producing the epochs of the church. There has been one Sinai, one Bethlehem, one Calvary, one Pentecost. Great events are seldom or never repeated in form. Methods cannot be the same in our time as in other ages. All the modes of living have changed, and the wisdom of the church compels physical adjustments. No one can confine the activities of the Holy Spirit to any form he has previously adopted. In some strange way, and probably at an unexpected time, he will again awaken the world. Shall we not be on the watch?

Although the outward manner of the next revival may be entirely new, yet the spiritual qualities which will produce it and accompany it will be the same as always. Repentance, faith, prayer, sacrifice, consecration, a hunger for holiness and a zeal for the Kingdom must exist; and wherever these dominate, religion is revived.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos.

01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75

01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4½ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible
2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

Nos.

1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine $2.95 Bibles

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5½ x 3½ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for thee, O LORD. 10 Mercy and truth have kissed each other. 11 Truth shall spring out of the mouth of the LORD.

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¼ x 4½ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed." 10 For a day in thy courts is better than 100 days in the house of prayer.

No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

OUR LEADER Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 1½ inches.

Specimen of Type
8 9 "Jé-hô'i-â-chin was 6 years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark $9.50

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

No. 03255x

As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1½ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and hand-some Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

PRAYER.

Son of God, in sorrow the church must admit that still thou art asking "where are the nine?" To this day, souls washed and forgiven, wander and forget. Spiritually, multitudes are famishing because they give not God his due returns. Loving Saviour, so enlarge the gratitude of the faithful that it may avail for all who forget God's mercy. Let not one perish. Draw them unto thyself and in every life put faith to fill and force to function in the name of the holy church, we humbly pray. Amen. L.

THE TEST OF FAITH.

Our Lord is still saying, as he said to the woman who kissed and anointed his feet, "Thy faith hath saved thee." That was our Lord's message, not to this woman only, but to all women, and all men, for all time, who were, or would be willing through faith to anoint him—that is, to make their gifts solely for his sake. That explains why our Lord instituted Missions. He wanted and must have an institution on earth through which his followers might show their faith through denying themselves for his sake. "Thy faith hath saved thee." He is still saying that to all who, through faith in him, are seeking, out of sheer devotion to him, to glorify his name and to hold him up before the world as the one who can save the world.

Faith Saves.

Missions is the test of faith; and faith is that which saves individuals, churches and the world. John, the Beloved, realized this when, through inspiration, he said, "This is the victory which overcometh the world, even our faith." The sole cause of indifference to Missions, or opposition to Missions, is a lack of faith. From the time Missions were instituted, even down to the present, they have had to be carried on, supported, sustained through faith. We have to exercise faith in those who go; faith in the wisdom of those who administer; faith in the power of the gospel, when preached, to overcome sin, wickedness, idolatry. When we give to Missions, we cannot follow our gift with our eyesight, nor with the reach of our hand, nor even by our knowledge. We have to give, as the woman gave out of love to her Lord, that his name may be exalted and lifted up, and that our names may not be known or may be forgotten. Unless we can give in that spirit, we have not reached the point of faith to which our Lord is striving to bring us.

Two Kinds of Christians.

It really looks as if there are two kinds of Christians in the world—sight Christians and faith Christians. There are good people, let us have the tolerance and the charity to believe that they are Christians, who, in making a gift say, "I must see and I must know just where my money is going. There are so many needs around me, and so many calls on me, that it would be folly in me to give to something which I cannot see or cannot know." There isn't much faith here. These are Christians who misinterpret the Scripture, and say, "We walk by sight and not by faith." But Scripture has it just the other way about: "We walk by faith and not by sight." Paul was talking about Missions and the missionary, and the power of Missions, when, through inspiration, he penned those words. That was Paul, the first and most outstanding of all missionaries to the Gentiles (heathen). He could under the most trying difficulties, say: "Therefore, we are always confident." Paul was confident as a missionary, because he was walking by faith, and he knew, as an apostle of God, just as John, the beloved disciple, did, that the victory that is to overcome this world is our faith.

Overcoming.

We are talking now of overcoming circumstances, financial conditions, multiplied troubles, through various economic schemes, plans and programs. We will not overcome economically till we overcome spiritually, and we overcome spiritually only through faith.

What the Christian Church needs today, what it has needed more than anything else through a hundred years, that faith which leads us to pray for Missions, to give to Missions, to thank God for Missions. For Missions is not only the test and the challenge of our faith, but, through the missionary effort only, does the church grow in numbers, prestige and power. The reason why the Christian Church has never grown more rapidly is because it has never had that faith which conquers, that faith which makes us look beyond the immediate presence of the home base, that faith which the woman had who made her gift not through benevolence or charity to relieve a human need close by, but to cheer and comfort the heart of her Lord, by making a gift out of self-denial for his sake and for his glory. In all our giving and donations, we seek to help man, to glorify man, to relieve man, to comfort man; in our gifts to Missions, we seek to cheer our Lord, to honor our Lord, to glorify his name, to magnify him, to hold him up to the world as our Saviour and our Redeemer.

The Most Unselfish Giving.

Our gifts to Missions, therefore, are the most unselfish and the most Christ-like that we ever make to any cause on this earth, since these are gifts made out of love to him, that he may be honored and glorified and exalted in the world. In giving to Missions, we are giving to relieve the greatest need that a human being ever had, viz.: the need that a human being may have the knowledge of his Lord and of his love and power to save. When I give bread to feed a hungry being about me, I am dealing in material things, and out of benevolence I am helping to relieve a human need and supply a human want. When I give to Missions, I am in that act giving the bread of life, eternal life, to a perishing soul, that bread that perisheth not, and that life that wasteth not away. This, I say, is the most divine, the most unselfish, the most Christian gift that we can ever make in this world; first, because it is done solely in faith, that faith which alone can overcome the world, and, second, it is done in the name and for the sake of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. J. O. A.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING SEPTEMBER 3, 1932.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 3,319.76
Biscoe, N. C.	1.82
Howard's Chapel, Wentworth, N. C.	2.00
Ether, N. C.	.52
Liberty, N. C.	1.33
Lebanon, Semora, N. C.	1.12
Piney Plains, Raleigh, N. C.	2.00
New Lebanon, Summerfield, N. C.	5.25
Wakefield, Va.	1.64
Hank's Chapel, Pittsboro, N. C.	2.67
Mt. Zion, Mebane, N. C.	1.00

Pleasant Ridge, Ramseur, N. C.	3.38
Ingram, Va.	5.00
Durham, N. C.	8.20
First Christian, Norfolk, Va.	9.00
Bethlehem, Timberville, Va.	1.44
Long's Chapel, Mebane, N. C.	.69
Wentworth, McCullers, N. C.	4.11
Ramseur, N. C.	2.16
Antioch (R), Bennett, N. C.	.54
Noon Day S. S., and C. E., Wedowee, Ala.	1.25
Wadley, Ala.	1.07

Total $ 3,375.95

Individual and Church Offerings.

Previously acknowledged	$ 2,828.20
Ebenezer, Raleigh, N. C.	4.31
Rocky Ford, Fancy Gap, Va.	3.00
Elk Spur, Fancy Gap, Va.	3.00

Total $ 2,838.51

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$ 2,681.62
First Christian Sunday School, Portsmouth	16.90
First Christian Church, Portsmouth.	24.00

Total $ 2,722.52

Coin Card Offering.

Previously acknowledged	$ 426.03
J. B. Stephens, Raleigh, N. C. (Piney Plains Sunday School)	1.00
United Christian - Congregational Church (Rose Hill), Columbus, Ga.	4.20
United Christian - Congregational Church (Rose Hill), Columbus, Ga.	4.50
New Lebanon Church and Sunday School, Summerfield, N. C.	6.60
Mr. and Mrs. Benson Lafollette, Yellow Springs, W. Va. (Timber Ridge Ch.)	1.00
Rev. A. W. Andes, Harrisonburg, Va.	1.00
Mrs. Henry Anderson, Burlington, N. C. (Long's Chapel)	1.00
Miss Mabel Higgs Stanley, Va. (Newport Church)	1.00

Total $ 446.33

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$20,241.09
Sunday Schools, regular	56.19
Individual and Church Offerings.	10.31
Specials Offerings	40.90
Coin Card Offerings	20.30

Total to date $20,368.79

J. O. ATKINSON, Mission Sec'y.

STEWARDSHIP.

A friend, deeply interested in the three divine and inseparable topics—Evangelism, Stewardship and Missions—writes this kindly word:

"In your recent editorial in THE CHRISTIAN SUN on 'Evangelism,' did you know that you were quoting me? I never had seen or heard the thought advanced, when some two years ago I began to preach that Evangelism is doing; Missions is sending. And in between the two, and linking the two together, is Stewardship, or sharing. There are those three elements instead of two in the Kingdom process. Why, oh why, will not the Southern Christian Convention directorate give Stewardship a fair showing? Stewardship, as I see it, is a strata in the bedrock of Missions. Without Stewardship, Missions could never carry on effectively. Today, the trouble with Missions is too little Stewardship. As Stewardship is perfected, so are Missions. The order, I believe, is Evangelism, Stewardship, and Missions; then some more Evangelism, Stewardship, Missions; rotating on always, forever, until the kingdoms of earth shall become the Kingdom of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. Truly, the Kingdom of God is a scepter of equity."

This correspondent gets at the heart of the trinity, divinely created—Evangelism, Stewardship, Missions. Win another to Christ in person, that is Evangelism. Then share with God, and out of love to God, a definite portion of our increase or earnings, donate the same to the glory of God, or the sending of the message of the gospel of the Son of God to others, and you have Missions. Evangelism, personal contact for Christ; Stewardship, contact with Christ; Missions, sending a messenger of Christ. Through this trinity, one has fellowship with his Lord and with all mankind who stand in need of the power of God unto salvation.

J. O. ATKINSON,
Mission Secretary.

INTERESTING MISSIONARY MEETING.

The August meeting of the Ever-Ready Missionary Society of the Congregational-Christian Church, of Winchester, Va., held recently, was most interesting.

The meeting was held in the out-of-doors. After a brief, but impressive, worship service, the report of the nominating committee was presented and accepted. The following officers were elected and installed for the ensuing year: Mrs. Anna A. Hoover, president; Mr. L. Russell Cather, vice-president; Mr. O. L. Hoover, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. Thelma L. Hauptman, corresponding secretary, and Misses Margaret Richards and Emma Cain, program chairmen.

A tentative program for the year was discussed and some of the suggestions included: 1. Home and foreign mission study classes; 2. packing of mission boxes; 3. reading of missionary literature; 4. meeting each month, stressing missions; 5. Bible study; 6. accept and meet mission goal; 7. Missionary social activity, etc. The advisability of correlating the major portion of this program (with the exception, possibly, of the monthly meeting), with the mission program outlined for the Christian Endeavor Societies of the church, was also apparent.

Upon the adjournment of the worship and business sessions, a picnic supper and social hour were enjoyed by the society.

IRENE HEADLEY.

VACATION PARABLE.

The White Temple Beacon of San Diego, Cal., passes on this parable, originally credited to the Fresno (Cal.) Christian Church Bulletin:

"Now, it came to pass as summer drew nigh, that Mr. Church Member lifted up his eyes unto the hills, and said: 'Lo, the hot days come and even now are at hand. Come, let us go into the heights, where cool breezes refresh us and glorious scenes await.'

"'Thou speakest wisely,' quoth Mrs. Church Member. 'Yet three, yea, four things must we do before we go.'

"'Three things can I think of, but not four,' responded Mr. Church Member. 'We must arrange for our flowers to be cared for, our chickens to be fed, and our mail forwarded, but the fourth eludeth my mind.'

"'The fourth is like unto the first three, yet more important than all. Thou shalt dig down into thy purse and pay the church pledge, that the good name of the church be preserved and that it may be well with thee, for verily I say unto thee, thou hast more money now than thou wilt have when thou dost return.'

"And it came to pass that Mr. Church Member paid his pledge for the summer and the treasurer rejoiced greatly, saying, 'Of a truth, there are those who care for the Lord's work.' And it was so."

WORLD SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil,
August 4, 1932.

My dear Friends:

The great Sunday School Convention is over. The last meeting Sunday night in the Municipal Theatre was a most impressive one. Dr. George Howard closed with one of the most remarkable appeals for consecrated service that I have heard. He shifted from Spanish to English and back again in a way that carried all English, Spanish and Portuguese speaking people with him. No convention has had a more stirring closing session. The great Alleluia chorus was typical of some of the fine music. The whole spirit of the Convention has been splendid from the day of the opening session, held also in the Municipal Theatre, when the representative of the President gave an official welcome, and Dr. Luther Weigle explained the purpose of the Convention.

The newspapers have given good accounts of the sessions. The public has been kind; the hospitality very smart and groups of delegates have been entertained by many organizations such as the National Education Association, the Rotary Club, the Country Club, Women's Club, and so forth. Many lasting friendships have been formed. The charm of the city of Rio has permeated the hearts of all the delegates. Many have been received in Brazilian homes and understanding on both sides, foreign and Brazilian, has been enlarged. There has not been a single untoward incident. Both Catholics and Protestants have remained quiet concerning their differences, and the expected clashes, happily, have not been realized.

The revolution which was started against the Central Government by Sao Paulo, a week before the Convention, has unfortunately deprived us of the presence of some five hundred delegates from that progressive part of the country. The revolutionary movement otherwise has not disturbed the Convention, even the great open-air meeting on Sunday afternoon being carried out with great success. There were about ten thousand people present in Praca da Republica, all of whom heard the program easily by means of amplifiers. Representatives from thirty-three nations gave one a sense of greatness. This and other meetings have impressed the city.

Many of the smaller meetings of groups, facing all kinds of problems in many different parts of the world, have added to the value of the Convention.

The morning sessions which were devoted to Seminar and conferences with a small group, gave opportunity for detailed discussions of many interesting problems. These small groups dealt with subjects of curriculum for religious education, relations between education and evangelization, the further development of many movements for Christian education, and along with the remarkable youth Council, composed of sixteen young people from many nations, met at Bennett College; all these have contributed greatly to a new orientation of the Christian program in South America.

Delegates from the colleges and other educational institutions have had meetings with Brazilian educators in both the government and the church schools.

We had a wonderful experience Sunday morning. About twenty of the delegates were met at their hotels and carried to the ferry which crosses the bay to Nictheroy. The trip was a fine chance to see the marvelous bay of Rio and the magnificent display of island, palms, beaches and drives.

We were met at the landing by autos and taken around the new drive skirting the bay on the Nictheroy side. Since this is the town where the Brega family resides, I arranged for us to pay our respects to them. Our whole group stopped in the front yard where our beloved friend, Professor Erasmo Braga lived, and were affectionately greeted by his aged father and mother and his daughter and her little boy of three. They and we were deeply moved as we stood together on the ground made sacred by such a life as was lived by Professor Braga.

On Wednesday night of the Convention, which was Latin-American night, I presided and we gave a public tribute to Professor Braga. His picture was unveiled and I spoke of his wonderful life and his contribution to the cause of Christ and humanity. That session was filled with news and appeals from Latin-America. Stuntz, Camargo and myself made addresses and we had greetings from delegates from Mexico, Argentina, Chile, Paraguay, Uruguay, Peru and Brazil.

The group visiting the Sunday School of the local Congregational Church at Nictheroy included Camargo of Mexico, Mendez of Ceylon, Salet of Egypt, Chung of Korea, Abington of the United States, Zotelle of Chile, Srita Helene Goldschmidt of Uruguay, and Srita M. Cepelloni of Argentina. The Egyptian delegate showed he had found his country mentioned three times in the lesson paper for the next Sunday; the Ceylon delegate told of how his ancestor six generations back was converted to Christianity in Ceylon and given the name Mendez, and how the palm trees of Brazil reminded him of his own land, for from there they had been brought to Brazil, as had many other things, by the Portuguese, who in those early years had a world-wide kingdom. The Korean, the Mexican, and the South Americans each gave some beautiful touch with the Sunday Schools of each nation.

Delegates are now leaving for their homes in many parts of the world, some of those from North America sail this week for a longer trip around the continent of South America.

Sincerely yours,

SAMUEL G. INMAN.

A DEADLY COMBINATION.

Two things which, taken altogether, make a deadly combination, are: first, a powerful and demoralizing appetite; and, second, an opportunity to make money by pandering to it. It is this combination which makes such problems as drink, narcotics, gambling and prostitution so difficult to handle.

The appetite alone would not give a great deal of trouble. It could be combated by education. But when there is an opportunity to make money by increasing the appetite, we have two kinds of education working in opposition. There will be of course, certain moral forces and agencies combating the evil and trying to educate for self-control and the suppression of the demoralizing appetite. On the other hand, there will be those who make money in proportion as the appetite spreads and the habit fastens itself on more and more people.

It will be a fortunate community in which education for abstinence can keep pace with education for indulgence. They who try to educate for abstinence do not make money in proportion as their education succeeds. They who educate for indulgence have the strongest of all motives, the cash motive, for pushing their educational program. That is why, in spite of a century of temperance education, the per capita consumption of liquor kept increasing in this country until prohibition—local, state and national—began restraining those who were educating for temperance.—Dr. Thomas N. Carver, Professor of Economics, Harvard University.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, Waverly, Va.

OPENING CHURCH DOORS.

The doors of my church have been closed for two months. The house has been left to the spiders and mice. One Sunday we have worshipped at the close of Sunday School and the next out under the open sky at sunset. God has met with us in our worship. Attendance has sometimes been larger than at the regular services of the church, and many who have attended testify to the beauty of the vesper services. But in our hearts is that feeling expressed long ago by the poet of Israel, when he said:

"I was glad when they said unto me,
Let us go into the house of the Lord."

Memories linger here. Good men solemnly dedicated this house to the worship of God. Faces of familiar friends "loved long since and lost a while," come back to us as we read their names on memorial windows, see the pews which they occupied, or think of the service which they rendered faithfully to this church. Here young men and women have come to pledge their lifelong allegiance and to assume the responsibilities of home under the blessings of the church. Parents have brought their little children to this altar to dedicate them to the Lord. Many have found forgiveness of sins and have united with the church here. We, ourselves, have often been happy as God has met with us at this sacred place. Such memories! Happy memories that come to us here when the doors swing wide to welcome us to our church!

Hope arises here. Sometimes I get blue and discouraged. Life seems to be a dreary thing. Failure meets me on every side. Then I come to the church where songs are sung, Scripture read, prayers made. I believe again that dreams can come true, that the things I need can be gained, that I may yet be worthy of the blessings of God, and that the future of the church is secure. Out in the world critics may make me doubt, but when we sing together the songs of the ages, read Scriptures that have survived the centuries, and pray to God who set the sun in the sky, decked the heavens with stars, made the lilies white, and gave music to the birds, then I cannot doubt. The church has triumphed, and it will.

Here in the church we get power to work. I may never be able to explain it fully, but while I am in the church there comes a new sense of power into my life. Living with the multitude I may become indifferent, and say, "What is the use trying? Let someone else do that work." But in the church at worship the old indifference vanishes and a tremendous urge to be up and about our Father's business possesses me. Here I get power to overcome difficulties. Life is no pansy patch through which we are to wander at leisure. There are mountains to climb, and loads to lift. Opposition often stares us in the face. History tells us how great men have overcome. From the place of worship they have gone forth with great self-forgetfulness and endurance. The reason for this is that in the church we meet with Jesus. He put life enough into the old commands to break them to pieces. Enemies crucified him, but enough life came from his grave to transform the world. When we meet with him there comes into the voice an overtone, into the heart a vibrant love, and into conduct such sureness of right that one moves forward regardless of obstacles.

The doors of your church, and mine, are now open and will stand open for many months inviting those who cherish sacred memories, desire new hope, or need unusual power to come within and worship the one true God. Will we heed the invitation and receive the blessings of regular worship in the house of the Lord?

PUBLICATIONS.

Numbers of people have heard the story how the desert can be made to blossom as the rose. A beautiful thought, is it not? Of course, there has to be a master engineer behind the project to make the desert "as fertile as the Nile delta"; and we can make our minds clear so that they will produce wholesome thoughts if we tap the right source. Our editors and writers who make it possible for us to have religious material to read in our church papers are storing up an immense wealth of spiritual food for us. We are the engineers who have to tap the source. We are the only ones who can bring the stored-up spiritual water to our thirsty souls to make them "blossom as the rose."

When we sent out the letters some time ago to all the pastors and representatives of young people in the Southeast we were trying to lay the foundation for a project to help irrigate the souls of our fellowmen and women, boys and girls, who are thirsting for good literature to read. It took millions of dollars and numbers of men to build the great Boulder Dam to store up water for the desert. Now, it is going to take time, energy and money of more than a few to get our vast store of religious material to our brothers in Christ. We may not have the millions with which to foster our project, but where there is a will there is a way. If we want to read religious material, we can do it.

The superintendent of publications knows the economic situation; and we are hoping that it will be possible for every key-worker to soon be able to carry our campaign into their local churches. Until this can be done, we suggest that all who have church papers share them with their neighbors as mentioned before.

Along with the reading church papers there are many good books to read. For the month of September we suggest that you read the following: "The Religious Control of Emotion," by Wayne Leys. (Long & Smith, $2.00); "The Awakening Community," by Mary Mims, in collaboration with Georgia Williams Moritz. (Macmillan, $2.00); "Jesus Through the Centuries," by Shirley Jackson Case. (University of Chicago, $3.00), and "The Black Swan," by Rafael Sabatini. (Houghton Mifflin, $2.00). All these books may be had by ordering through THE CHRISTIAN SUN, Richmond, Va.

CARL R. KEY,
Supt. of Publications.

CARL R. KEY.

The name at the head of this article has become familiar on this page during the past three months, but will not appear so often in the future. The "Key" is not lost: just busy elsewhere.

During the summer Carl lived in the home of the editor of this page and aided him in the many jobs which he undertakes to do. Among the duties which Carl had was the task of doing the most of the editing. I believe that those of you who have read it will agree with me that he did the work very well. If you really think so, a note to him at Elon College, N. C., will bring him a bit of cheer—and a bit of cheer is a fine thing for one who is trying to go through college.

The writer is very appreciative of the work which Carl did during the summer, and which he is still doing. They were happy months of association and work. No task was too humble or too difficult for him to undertake. He put his best into whatever he did. Forgetting self he sought to serve.

Like many other youths of today, he is now turning to college with the hope of being better prepared to serve. This spirit of sacrificial service is very refreshing in our time, and many young people are learning this divine truth. When I think of Carl, and that large group like him, I say, as Leigh Hunt said, about Abou Ben Adhem: "May his tribe increase."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

"DOES GOD REALLY CARE."

The theme may be "Our Heavenly Father's Care," with hymns like "God Will Take Care of You," "God Moves in a Mysterious Way," "More Love to Thee, O Christ," "I Need Thee Every Hour." Plan the prayer carefully with a series of short sentence prayers, and "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind," may be your prayer hymn. Use Matt. 6:25, 26 for your Scripture reading.

This poem, entitled "Sight," by a little blind girl, will help to set us thinking:

"I know what mother's face is like,
Though it I cannot see;
It's like the music of a bell,
It's like the stories fairies tell,
It's like the way the roses smell,
And sweeter than all these.

"I know what father's face is like,
Though it I cannot see;
It's like his whistle in the air,
It's like his step upon the stair,
It's like his arms that take such care,
And never let me fall.

"And so, I know what God is like,
The God whom no one sees;
He's everything my father seems,
He's everything my mother means,
He's like my very dearest dreams,
And greater than all these."—Selected.

Discussion—Let each member ask a question taking each question as it is put, and discuss it fully. In this way we can discover how people and friends have found that God really cares for them in their Christian experiences. During the discussion several religious needs may be discovered, and there may be those that are seeking desperately for the answer to the question, "Does God Really Care?" And, if this can be answered by assimilating the ideas of a group it will mean much to that individual who wants a real, true answer.

Many people have a naive picture of what God is like. Some think he should be a God to make them afraid; others make him a God of play, homage, gifts, power, and creative energy. A few moments of silent thought should be given to this in the group. Jesus called him Father. An earthly father, who is a true father like God, works and loves and strives for his children to make them happy. And a good earthly father is a rare blessing. I am wondering whether we can love a God who goes beyond the attitude of this one?

How Does God Care for Us?—This question may be answered by the life experience of a young person. A young person once said, "Although there is a time of sorrow, a time of doubt, a time of loneliness. One knows that God cares for him because all of his difficulties are solved for the best." And through prayer and the still small voice of God, one is reassured that He does care.

(Continued on page 15.)

Sunday School Lesson

By Rev. Stanley C. Harrell.

THE REPORT OF THE SPIES.

LESSON XII—SEPTEMBER 18, 1932.

GOLDEN TEXT: "The Lord is the strength of my life, of whom shall I be afraid?"—Psalm 27:1.

LESSON TEXT: Numbers 13:1 to 14:45.

TIME: B. C. 1490.

PLACE: Kadesh-barnea.

In our lesson for last Sunday we saw the Israelites on their journey to Canaan. It must have been a journey that tried the souls of all the company. There was a sort of modern counterpart of their journey in the covered wagon treks into the West, when this country was being settled. In the lesson for today we find that the Israelites have come almost to the boundaries of Canaan. About sixteen months have passed since their miraculous deliverance from Egypt. If the people had been possessed of the right spirit, they might have entered into Canaan and been established in the land in about a year and a half.

Moses, wise leader that he was, took the precaution of sending a group of spies to look over the country, see just the sort of land that it was and get some idea of what would be necessary to do in order to take possession, before he attempted to enter. It is interesting to note that in the selection of those who should make the survey of the land, each tribe was represented in the group. It may have been that Moses counted upon the report of the spies to enthuse the Israelites and make them keen for seeking immediate establishment in their new home.

The spies seem to have done the work well. They entered the land and went as far north as Hebron, which lies about twenty-five miles south of Jerusalem. They looked the land over very carefully. They brought back the most glowing accounts as to the fertility of the country. It was all that they had hoped for. After the months they had spent in the wilderness no doubt it looked like a veritable paradise to them. They made their visit at the time of the harvest, when they could best see just what the country did produce. They brought back a cluster of grapes so big that it had to be borne by two men who carried it between them on a pole.

They were unanimous in their report as to the godliness of the land. It was indeed a land flowing with milk and honey. But ten of the twelve brought back a most discouraging report as to the possibility of the Israelites being able to enter and take the land for themselves. They reported that the cities were too strongly fortified to be taken by siege. They reported that the inhabitants looked so big and strong that the Israelites would be entirely unable to cope with them in battle. They were too close to the years of slavery in Egypt, and had not traveled far enough on the pathway of faith.

There was a minority report, however. Caleb and Joshua not only agreed with the others as to the desirability of the land; but they reported that it was entirely possible for the land to be taken. They urged that preparations be made at once to go in. But what was the opinion of two against ten, especially when the people were of very much the same spirit as the ten who were so fearful and doubting. The majority of the people could not be prevailed upon to dare to undertake the conquest. They were even for deposing Moses as leader, selecting another and turning back to Egypt.

There was, of course, nothing that could be done when the people were absolutely lacking in the spirit that alone would have made the attempt successful. This is but one of the constantly recurring tragedies of history, where the things that so urgently need to be done, must be deferred indefinitely because men are so faithless, so cowardly, and so unwilling to obey the divinely appointed leadership. If they could see nothing but human resources and human plans, they were doubtless right in their decision. But the whole secret of life centers in the power of God that religion brings into operation in human affairs. Let us not be too quick to condemn. The same thing is happening again and again in our day. It is happening in the largest and most comprehensive affairs of men. It is happening in the lives of individual men and local congregations. There was nothing to be done, but for the Israelites to turn back into the wilderness to wander aimlessly about until a new generation with a new spirit had been raised up to take the place of the faithless and unbelieving.

If the conduct of the Israelites is such a sad commentary on the weakness of human nature; the attitude of Moses is a magnificent example of what true greatness the human spirit may attain. What a spirit Moses must have had to have faced the disappointment, and to set himself to the murmurings of the people and the bearing of their burdens for thirty-eight more years. One cannot but wonder what would have been the course of events if the matseful Moses could have carried out the work of laying the foundations of life in Canaan. But since his dream could not be fulfilled, how heroically he set himself to the doing of the next best thing.

This lesson should not be passed over without a survey of our own lives, that we may learn something of what our ingratitude and lack of faith may have caused us to miss. And we should look for these things that we may be missing, not for the sake of pointless moanings over what might have been; but in order that we may so order our lives in the days that are ahead, that we may enjoy some of the peace, hope and joy that the Lord has in store for us.

HOW HE WAS LED.

Never once was Christ gently led. He was led into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil. He was led by men filled with wrath to the brow of the hill, that they might cast him down headlong. He was led away to Annas; led away to Caiaphas; led into the council of the elders and chief priests and scribes; led to Pontius Pilate, and into the hall of judgment. And then he, our Jesus Christ, was led as a sheep to the slaughter; led away to be crucified! Verily, "His way was rougher and darker than mine."—Frances Ridley Havergal.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7/8 x 7 Inches, and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 7/8 x 7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 1/2 Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold.....$1.60

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 3/4 x 7

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.50

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges$6.00

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 Inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps$2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 1/2 Inches and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold$4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold$3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond Virginia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."—II. Chron. 7:14.

MORE THOUGHTS ON CHILDREN.

MONDAY.

WHY TRAIN A CHILD.

"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy soul and with all thy might."

"And these words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart; and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt take of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up. And thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thine hand, and they shall be as frontlets between thine eyes. And thou shalt write them upon the posts of thy house, and on thy gates."—Deut. 6:6-9.

Why? Because everything is settled in childhood. Of course one's trials, temptations, and most of his opportunities for development come in later years, but the way in which the child meets those temptations, and rises or fails to rise to those opportunities, is, to a large extent, decided in childhood.

Second: A child should be trained for his own sake. He has a body to be kept in health and much depends upon that. That is where life starts and by this life's hopes are kept before us. He is an affectionate being, and what he learns in his affectional relations in after life depends upon these first years. The child has a mind; what registers on that mind during his early years will determine his thinking in the later years. The child has a soul. That soul is a creature of habit as well as his body. The habit of living without God is the easiest and the most dangerous. It is as possible to form the habit of living with God as it is to form the habit of living without God. The habit of living with God results in communion with God, the wisdom and grace of God, the guidance of the Holy Spirit in life's ways—the blessedness of heaven. Dare we bring up children and deprive them of the highest blessings in these things? If we fail, what will be our penalty?

Prayer—O Lord, our God, we are thine and all that we are is thine. We desire to be more fully thine than ever, and suffer us not to fail in our responsibilities with those who pattern their lives after ours. O Lord, forgive us of our sins and make us fit patterns for our children by thy own likeness in us. Amen.

TUESDAY.

WHAT TO TEACH A CHILD.

"And the Lord said unto Moses, wherefore criest thou unto me? Speak unto the children."—Exodus 14:15.

First, teach a child God. It is important that as soon as the child's mind can admit the thought, it should be taught concerning him who made it and all things, and who rules the heaven and the earth. A child's mind takes to nothing more easily than the thought of one who made the flowers of the earth and clothes them; who made the earth and the stars, and controls them; and who notices the sparrow that falls. He quite as early comes to know what is meant by the love of parents, and by these things understands what is meant by the love of God.

Second, the child should be taught Christ. Christ represents God. He represents the truth and righteousness of God. He is the standard by which all truth and righteousness is known. Philosophically, there is no other solution or settling the question of truth and righteousness except in Christ. We have no right to pray for our children unless we are laboring ceaselessly to lead them to the Saviour's feet.

Third, the Bible. Our Father is our law-giver. The Bible is his word—his law. If every man is to be his own law-giver, there will be no law and no authority. This is not a question of the Bible or some other standard of law. It is a question between the Bible as a standard or no standard at all.

One may tie a fruit tree to the side of a house until it is mature, but the tree develops no strength of its own; when set free the branches have nothing to lean upon but air, and it falls. It has not been trained at all. Its fibre will be limp and will fall into a confused mass. The best training for anyone is the Bible. It is a standard of right living which puts into the fibre of life, form, strength and fruitage, by which it is known unto all men. Shall we fail?

Prayer—O God, give unto us the sunlight of thy light and thy love. Give unto us godly living. Make us examples unto our children worthy of the name. Make our lives forces for God in the world. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

CHILDREN OF GOD.

"And besides this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; and to virtue, knowledge; and to knowledge, temperance; and to temperance, patience; and to patience, godliness; and to godliness, brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness, charity."—II. Peter 1:5-7.

In this Scripture we are reminded that we are citizens of the highest order. What we think and do necessarily reacts upon our future conduct. There is little chance of living nobly unless we think grandly. We must keep before us our high origin and purpose in life, or we will fail in the great destiny. Let us feel like the poet Howard, who said:

*"Let him, the wiser man who springs
Hereafter, up from childhood shape,
His action like the great ape,
But I was born to other things."*

Prayer—Our Father, we cannot hope to resemble thee in every respect. But we do pray that we may be like thee in our moral and spiritual being; in patience, in love, in forbearance, in hopefulness, in toil, in labor, and be fit for the Kingdom of Heaven. This we ask for Jesus sake. Amen.

THURSDAY.

CHILDREN OF GOD.

"Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called children of God; and such we are."—Jno. 3:1.

This is a love that confesses fatherhood, sonship and brotherhood. It seems to be the expression of the highest peak of John's experience in Christ. Every sentence of this book tingles and pulses with the flashing rays of daylight, and every thought reflects streaming glory of heaven. Thus John walks in the light as he is in the light. No wonder John sings, "God is love."

The term "children of God" here denotes an eternal relation, which applies now in this life. What we shall be hereafter we do not know, but we shall know in due time, for "when he is manifested, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is." Whatever that means, we shall be satisfied with that.

This is the heritage of every child and so important is it that the responsibility upon parents and guardians is tremendous. No wonder Jesus said, "Better a mill-stone be hanged about his neck and cast into the sea than ye should offend (hinder) one of these little ones."

Prayer—Dear Lord:

*"Prepare us for the sight of holiness above,
The sons of ignorance and night
May dwell in the eternal light,
Through the eternal love."*

FRIDAY.

DESIGN OF THE FATHER FOR HIS CHILDREN.

"Ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus."—Gal. 3:26.

Every human mouth has been commissioned to say "Our Father." We are all his children by right. All of us are in his image, or there is something of his image in all of us. That means that all have divine possibilities, and that there is a place for all in the heart of God.

However, like the prodigal son, one may forfeit that possibility and that place by forsaking the Father's house. Only those who live with him and walk in obedience to his will and rejoice in that are children actually. The others are wayward children in possibility only. They have a great inheritance, but they despise it. They have orphaned themselves when they have a Father to care for them.

The design of the Father is that we should not be mere potential children, but true children of his family. As such he is a Father, infinite in love, mercy and care, to whom we can look with love and trust; a Father to whom we may run in danger, and he is one who listens to us when no other friend will, and helps us when no other friend can, at all times, doing "all things well to them that love and serve him."

So faith makes us Christ's; being Christ's, we are sons; being sons, we become heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ.

Prayer—

*"O heart, be thou patient!
Though here I am stationed
A season in durance,
The chain of the world I will cheerfully wear;
Far spanning my soul, like a rainbow I bear;
With the yoke of my lowly Condition, a holy Assurance."*

Amen.

SATURDAY.

OUR NEW RANK.

"Henceforth I call you not servants, but I have called you friends."—Jno. 15:15.

"Ye are my friends, if ye do what I command you."—Jno. 15:14.

The saints of olden times were not considered children, they were servants. So when Jesus calls us friends, children, sons, a new relationship has begun. Jesus thought so much of his children that he did not stop calling them such, but, though created "a little lower than the angels," the Scripture intimates that in some sense we are regarded as higher than angels, even. (Note—Heb. 1:5: "For unto which of the angels said he at any time, thou art my Son.") If this be true, we are joint heirs with Jesus to God, and

(Continued on page 15.)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

TWO CAMPS OF CHRISTIANS.

"So there was a division among the people because of him."—John 7:43.

The true lover of Jesus comes to those words with humility in his heart. He is humbled because all too often he finds himself on the wrong side of the dividing line made because of Jesus. We cannot but recognize that there are two camps of Christians. There are those who have to be dragged along the Christian way. And there are those who delight to run in it. It is easy to make our words say we are always on the enthusiastic side, but it is hard to make our hearts believe our words. Within we feel conscious our lives are not as wholly given over to Jesus as they should be.

Why is it that there are some Christians eager to do more for Jesus, while others desire to do just as little as they can? Why is it that some people get such a delight out of church work, while others have to be persuaded to do what they do, and others do little if any at all? Why is it that some give liberally of their much or little, and others give grudgingly and stintedly of their same amounts? Why is it that some look forward eagerly to the hour for church, and others look toward it uninterestedly, or not at all? Why is it some lives see so much in the Christian religion, while others see only its failures?

"So there was a division among the people because of him." Having come under the thrill of his matchless life, they could never fully dismiss him, but because of him they were divided into two camps. "From that time forth many of his disciples went back and walked with him no more." But a few in an inner circle followed him still! And it is recorded even of Peter that on at least one occasion he "followed him afar off . . . and went in and sat with the servants to see the end." Paul, in writing to the church at Corinth, indicates that it is possible for a person to "be saved, yet as by fire." So that he just barely gets inside the pearly gates.

Why is this so? Jesus blesses us, forgives us, grants us life and the blessings thereof. Why do we treat him so?

In our Scripture lesson I read from Malchus. Malchus was a very religious man—a servant of the high priest. His name means counsellor. Perhaps he was more than a mere servant, perhaps he was an honored counsellor. At least, he would consider himself among the godly folk of his day and age. Malchus was credulous because he believed the rumors concerning Jesus. He had never seen him. Yet he was willing to advise his death, yea, willing moreover, to be in the band that would put him under arrest. Malchus was zealous, because he was in the forefront of those who came by night to seek to take Jesus. Peter whipped out his sword and cut off his ear; and Jesus healed him, restoring the ear.

Does that not but give us an additional picture of the gentleness, mercy, and power of Jesus? Because of this very gentleness, mercy, and power of Jesus there was a division among them! His challenge was too great, and the rich young ruler himself on the wrong side. His kingdom was to be one of love, not things; of men, not materials; and Judas saw that he did not fit in. He was too merciful, graciously forgiving the sinning woman, and the rulers and doctors of law slipped away. He was too kind and generous. He ate with publicans and sinners, and there was division on account of him!

How did Malchus, servant of the high priest, react to this blessing from Jesus whom he was helping to slay? Through the bitter hate of a bigoted world he had arrived in front of Jesus only to meet with a serious accident, and then have Jesus heal him. How would he be able to go on with his bad business of doing Jesus to the death? How often the world has gone to Jesus to taunt him and returned with bitter tears of repentance in their eyes! How often men have gone to the Book to sneer, and have gone away snared by its beautiful lessons of forgiveness and hope.

Malchus must have slipped quietly back into the darkness with a light in his poor soul never found on land or sea. For many of the thoughts in this message I am indebted to Dr. Stuart Holden. Dr. Holden, in this connection, reminds us how many mortal men have become immortal because they have come into the presence of Jesus. But for Jesus, Herod would have never been known, nor Pilate, nor Judas, nor Caiaphas, nor the unknown little group of Galilean fishermen, nor Malchus. To come full face to face with Jesus is calculated to make a man immortal.

Malchus probably lost his job because of Jesus. Having felt his healing touch, and heard his kind forgiving words, he must have turned over on the other side for Jesus' sake. He might have left the city of Jerusalem, and the whole black business; but wherever the name of Jesus was mentioned after that, Malchus must have been on his side. Next day, as the story continues, we have a kinsman of Malchus acting as servant to the high priest. Malchus must be gone. Another one added to the Saviour's list by the gentle process of loving forgiveness.

Or let us suppose he continued in the crowd arresting Jesus. Suppose he helped to get the unfair decision from Pilate. Suppose he still cried out with the mob, "Crucify him, crucify him." Then he was just another ignoble example of those who receive the blessings from Jesus, and curse him still. Or, perhaps, he slumped away, and became a neutral after that night of healing. Then he is like too many who have all the blessings which Christ has brought into the world without ever returning to give him their allegiance and their loving devotion. Malchus, classed by the grace of Jesus among the long list of the healed and blessed by him; but, Malchus, unappreciative and ungrateful to him for his blessings.

Which does your heart say Malchus should have been? How do you wish that the full record of his life might be?

Ever Jesus is dividing people. Which side will I be on? Which side will you be on? Have we received blessings from him, and are we so ungrateful as to fail him and be found on the wrong side in these days which are divided because of him? If we have never come to Jesus we are the poorer, and if having come to him, we have received his gracious blessings, and then turned away from loving service for him we are poorer still. May God grant that we may be found on the right side with Jesus!

BEFORE PROHIBITION.

There were 1,754 breweries and distilleries supplying 2,094,729,078 gallons of liquor.

There was an annual average consumption of 19.95 gallons of liquor for every man, woman and child to the tiniest baby in the United States.

Drinking in the same proportion would make the consumption today 2,400,000,000 gallons. If every automobile in the United States were to transport 100 gallons of this liquor, there would still be 100,000,000 gallons untransported. Allowing eight feet between cars, this would mean 136,363 miles of cars, or over forty-five strings of automobiles stretching across the United States.

There were 177,790 licensed saloons, most of them selling after hours, to minors and to drunken persons.

In Chicago seventy per cent of the saloons were under the control of the brewers, who had no concern other than increasing their production of beer.

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses
(this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling). $22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00
Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friend:

The children in our singing class had a rare thrill Sunday, September 4th. We were invited to take the singing class to our Mission churches up in the mountains of Virginia, near Fancy Gap. We left early in the morning in order to reach our Elk Spur church by 10:30 and made the trip fine until we passed Mt. Airy, N. C., and began to climb to the top of the mountain. Our motor in the bus soon informed us that it was hard pulling and it took water to keep it cool, but it stuck to its job and carried us up on top, as they speak of it up there.

The scenery 3,200 feet above sea level was beautiful. Looking many feet down the mountain side to the valley below was a real thrill to the children, as they had never visited the mountains before. The children gave their program at Elk Spur Church in the morning to a very appreciative audience. The good women served us with a most excellent lunch. From the good things on the table, we came to the conclusion that there was no depression in that part of the country—at least, none in good things to eat!

We all attended a baptising service by immersion in the afternoon—something our children had never seen before—a solemn as well as an impressive service. During the service a beautiful rain was falling which made it the more impressive. Our friend, Rev. J. L. Foster, went with us and conducted the communion service at both churches and also administered the baptism.

At 3:30 we visited our Rocky Ford Church and gave our program there to an appreciative audience. All of us enjoyed our trip to this beautiful section, and fell very much in love with the good people, who can stand on the mountain top and behold the beauties of nature which God has so bountifully blessed them with.

Bro. Grissom and his good wife are doing a splendid work in these churches and the people appreciate their services. Everything was done by Rev. and Mrs. Grissom and the good people to make our visit pleasant and we enjoyed every minute of our stay.

In our report of August 14th, through an error on the part of the printer, Burlington Sunday School received credit for only $3.14. It should have been $23.14, as our records show.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR SEPTEMBER 8, 1932.

Brought forward $ 9,108.16

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:

Salem Chapel $.84
Greensboro First 9.75
Durham 9.75
Elon College 6.25
Howard's Chapel 2.00
Mt. Bethel 1.14

29.73

Eastern North Carolina Conference:

Henderson 3.39

Western North Carolina Conference:

Big Oak $ 1.00
Antioch (C), special collection.... 2.01
Antioch (C), monthly offering.... .36
Needham's Grove, special collection 2.40

5.77

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Liberty Springs $ 8.00
Mt. Carmel 5.57
Cypress Chapel 4.62
Berea, Nansemond 10.00

28.19

Valley Virginia Central Conference:

Bethlehem $ 1.51
Mayland 2.64
Alabama Conference:
New Hope 1.95
Special Offerings:
F. G. Owen, guardian for James
Brown $ 12.50
Special collection for singing class,
from Elk Spur Sunday School 6.26
Special collection for singing class,
class, from Rocky Ford..... 2.50
Cash item 1.20

22.46

Total for the week..... $ 95.64

Grand total $ 9,203.80

NOTICE.

I should be glad to correspond with any church in need of a pastor. I have a college education and eleven years' experience as a pastor.

A. L. LUCAS.

Pisgah, N. C.

NOTICE.

I am open for pastoral work for the coming conference year, and would be glad to correspond with any churches contemplating a change of pastor. I am a graduate of Elon College, also a graduate of Vanderbilt University.

D. M. SPENCE.

Lillington, N. C.

"Charity gives itself rich; covetousness hoards itself poor. So give today that thou shalt be able to give tomorrow."

Eifers Sunday School Maps.

On a Revolving Adjustable Steel Stand.

The first 5 maps
are in Set No. 1,
with stand,
Price $15.00

Set No. 2
8 Maps,
Price $20.00

Fine large Maps, in 6 Colors 36x57, on linen finished Cloth. Mounted on a folding steel stand, which can be regulated, so that Maps may be seen to the best advantage. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Its large print and cheerful colors makes this set very instructive and attractive. Contains the five thoroughly up to date Maps necessary for the study of Bible History.
New Testament Palestine, — Old Testament Palestine, — Roman empire and Bible Lands, showing Paul's travels by colored lines. — Lands of the Old Testament, from the Great Sea, to the Persian Gulf. — The Exodus, Egypt, showing by colored lines the wanderings of the Israelites.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN,

1536 East Broad Street,

Richmond, Virginia.

ALL
SELF-
PRONOUNCING

Holman Testaments

COMMAND
ATTENTION
AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2½x4½ inches

Specimen of Type.

AND the third day there
was a marriage in
Cana of Galilee; and
the mother of Jesus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published. In size, 2½x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles..... $.50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles..... .60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges..... .85
VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS
2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges..... .70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges..... .90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges..... 1.10
RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS
With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.
13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges..... .90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included..... 1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4¼ inches x¾ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made. The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4¼ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2 The three wise men carrying away into Babylone fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Babylone unto Christ are fourteen
24 Then Jesus being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges..... $1.00
5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included..... 1.50
5036PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms..... 2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET
SIZE
3¾x4½
inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type
CHAPTER 23.

THEN spake Jesus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance. In size, 3¾x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms..... $.90
4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges..... 1.35
4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included..... 1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT
4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges..... 1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT
4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms..... 3.00

4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red..... 3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print
Pica, 16mo. Size, 5¾x7¼x¾ inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines. It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

Specimen of Type.
THE book
of JESUS

PSALMS INCLUDED
2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included..... $1.50

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS
Same Large Print as Above
2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included..... 2.95

RED LETTER EDITION
Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.
3913PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included..... 3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

(Continued from page 10.)

Evidences of God's Care—What are the evidences of God's care?

The careful planning of the natural world in which we live. How much is provided for us! The birds—the flowers—are in his care. How much more man!

Our own experiences of his guidance when everything else failed. We have to trust his promises to know his goodness.

General movements of history prove what we cannot see in a short period.

Somebody has said that if you change one letter in the word "Disappointments," you have "His appointments." Faith in God proves that he is with us when all seems most dark.

SPECIAL NOTICE!

Christian Endeavorers of North Carolina and Virginia Conference: Please send me at once name and address of officers of your Society. Also names and addresses of North Carolina State C. E. officers. Am trying to compile mailing list of Societies, and can not do this without your help.

My last request was responded to with some cooperation, but not as much is needed. Please help me now and I may be able to help you later.

W. T. DUNN,
Kemper St. Station,
Lynchburg, Va.

FAMILY ALTAR.

(Continued from page 12.)

this is said to be a closer, more intimate and higher relation than angels. It necessarily follows that an unbeliever has neither part, lot, nor title, or is here involved.

Prayer—

"Oh! how shall I, whose native sphere
Is dark, whose mind is dim;
Before the Ineffable appear,
And on my naked spirit bear
That uncreated beam?"

"There is a way for man to rise
To that sublime abode:
An offering and a sacrifice,
A holy spirit's energies,
An advocate with God."

Amen.

SUNDAY.

HOW TO REALIZE SONSHIP.

"As many as received him, to them gave he the power to become children of God, even to them that believe on his name."—John 1:12.

No one can know Christ until he reveals himself to us by our association with him. As we commune with him more and more, he becomes more and more to us.

A story of a young man who came to know Jesus by believing, comes to us as follows:

"That day I would not have gone to church, if I had dared. I was out of humor and not inclined to listen to a tedious sermon. To my surprise the preacher did not preach. He only read a tract called 'Wheat or Chaff.' It struck me. From the first that title re-echoed in my mind; I tried to stop it, but in vain. When he finished, the preacher asked, 'Wheat or Chaff,' which art thou?" And it seemed that everybody waited breathlessly for me to answer. It was an awful moment. At last a hymn broke the misery, and I said, 'Well, that's over.' But it wasn't. Something had struck my heart. I ate nothing. My sleep was gone. I could not study. I was in despair. The more I struggled, the more the darkness thickened. I sought light from God's word; I found none. Something seemed to say,

'your sins: how can God forgive them? Your repentance and tears! You do not feel the wrong and the burden of your sins. Hypocrisy!' This voice pursued me every moment. I came to my end—the end of my courage. I felt myself lost; yes, without a ray of hope. I wished I knew what it was to believe. Finally, I came to feel that it was to accept salvation in God's terms, that is, without condition whatever. I did, and the scales fell from my eyes. Now I can say with the man whose eyes Jesus healed, 'This I know, that once I was blind, now I see.'

"Never shall I forget that day, nay the very moment, when this ray of light flashed into the night of my soul. 'As many as received him, to them the power to become the Sons of God.' It is plain; it is positive now. 'O my God,' I cried, 'I believe, help my unbelief.' Peace and joy flooded my heart. Now I can sing, 'Joy to the world, the Lord has come.'"

"Upon the marsh mud, dank and foul,
A golden sunbeam softly fell;
And from the noisome depths arose
A lily miracle.

"Upon the dark, bemired life,
A gleam of heaven's love was flung;
And lo, from that ungenial soil,
A noble life upsprung."

—Montgomery (adapted.)

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

WHITLEY MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 15th. Freshmen register on Tuesday, September 13th, and upper classmen on the 15th. Expenses reduced for this session. Write for Catalog and application blank.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D.....Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D.....Associate
W. W. STALEY, D. D.....Contributing
S. C. HARRELL.....Contributing
S. R. RAYMOND, D. D.....Contributing
ELISHA A. KING, D. D.....Contributing
W. C. WICKER, D. D.....Contributing
J. T. KERNODLE.....Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year$2.00
Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When sending subscriptions for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of year.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

OBITUARIES

MORNINGSTAR.

Mary Elizabeth Morningstar, daughter of Thomas R. and Katie W. Tuck, was born June 17, 1885, and died August 4, 1932, aged 47 years, 1 month and 18 days. She joined the Union Christian Church when a young girl, and was a member until death.

On June 9, 1908, she was married to John W. Morningstar, who survives her, with seven children, as follows: Bluebell, May, Iva, Thomas, John, Kenneth and Marjorie.

Mrs. Morningstar was a devoted wife and a self-sacrificing mother. She was a friend to education and untiring in her efforts to give her children advantages of the same. For nearly two years before her death, she was confined to her room in her home, and at the sanitarium.

The funeral was from the home in Virgilina, Va., on Friday, August 5, 1932, conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. E. R. Harris. Burial was in the family lot at Union Cemetery. She rests from her faithful labors. God's blessing on her loved ones.

C. E. NEWMAN.

TEAGUE.

Since our last meeting of quarterly conference, Almighty God has seen fit to call from us our friend and brother, P. D. Teague.

Whereas, Bro. Teague was a faithful member of Pleasant Hill Church, and a faithful and efficient teacher of our Sunday School for more than forty years; and

Whereas, We will lose the blessing of his presence and good counsel; and

Whereas, Pleasant Hill Church desires to express in some way its appreciation of the life and labors of our brother and co-worker; therefore, be it

Resolved: First, That we bow in humble submission to the will of our heavenly Father, who doeth all things well, and maketh no mistakes.

Second: That we record our appreciation of his wise counsel, his unselfish work, and lovable Christian character.

Third: That we emulate his noble example, cherish his beloved memory and seek to carry forth the work of Christ which was so dear to his heart.

Fourth: That we, as a church, use this method to express our deep sympathy to the bereaved family.

Fifth: That a copy of these resolutions be entered upon the church record, a copy sent to the bereaved family, and a copy sent to "The Christian Sun."

Sixth: That when these resolutions are adopted, the church meeting in session shall stand and bow reverently, while our pastor, T. J. Greene, leads us in prayer, in which we will especially thank our heavenly Father for the life and labor of our deceased brother.

These resolutions adopted by Pleasant Hill Christian Church, August 6, 1932.

P. E. COBLE, Secretary.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

FALL TERM—SEPTEMBER 7

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

Cost for Board, Room and Tuition, including also Entrance, Activity, and Infirmary fees reduced to $273.50 for the College Year. Personal expenses as low as student and parent wish.

All who seek an "A" grade college training for their sons and daughters in an atmosphere of Christian culture, and at minimum cost, are invited to write for the college catalogue and admission blanks.

Address: DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

A Memorial of the Congregational-Christian Union.

FRANK E. JENKINS, Pres. MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD, Dean

Chartered by Southern Christian Convention, June 2, 1922, as Bethlehem College; renamed Southern Union, June 3, 1931.

Will function during the present financial depression as a Junior College only.

FALL TERM WILL OPEN SEPTEMBER 7.

DEPRESSION PRICES.

Depression prices during the coming year, made possible by extensive gardens, careful planning, organization and donations—Tuition, board and room, $192 for entire scholastic year; tuition alone, $48; each payable in six equal installments.

Unsectarian, but thoroughly Christian.

For Information, write—

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA.

LARGE PRINT
TEACHERS' EDITION
FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS
AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear, Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type.
"From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, 'I the kingdom of heaven'"

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 10.65

Dr. L. E. Smith

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXIV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1932.

NUMBER 37.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

Bakers Object to Bread Being "Given Away."—

Within the past few years price wars have become quite frequent if not quite popular. Now comes a new one. Bread price wars are raging with varying intensity all over the country. In Southern California they have almost reached the limit, if the Associated Bakers of Southern California may be believed. The Association predicts wholesale failures unless the merciless price-cutting ceases. It charges that "large bakery concerns whose principal stockholders are outside the State of California, are selling bread in Los Angeles city so that the 1-pound loaf is retailing for 2 cents, at other places 3-pound loaves go at 10 cents, and at some stores 2-pound loaves are selling for 5 cents. In fact," it continues, "bread is being given away with a bottle of catsup or some other article of food." Court action is being sought to forbid the selling of a commodity cheaper in one part of the city than in another, if the object is to cut competition.

Senator Arthur Capper Says.—

Not all of the politicians have been stampeded by the liquor interests, and among the number that have held their ground is found Senator Arthur Capper, who says: "I am for continuing the experiment of national prohibition. Prohibition is doing more good than harm—if it is doing harm. It is said that a man can get a drink anywhere in the United States. A man can still commit murder anywhere in the United States, and many men do. There is convincing evidence that the law is benefiting the country as a whole. If there is any ideal way of handling the liquor traffic, I don't believe the world has yet discovered it. I believe that in November, both the Democrats and Republicans who are sincere in not wishing the country to take a backward step in the control of liquor should work for the election of senators and congressman who will pledge themselves to oppose any repeal of the amendment, which does not provide for effectual federal control."

Percy S. Foster Passes On.—

Christian Endeavor's veteran song leader has gone the way of all the earth after an extended illness. His home was in Washington, D. C. His name was Percy Semple Foster. His association with Christian Endeavor came well nigh rounding out a half century. It was somewhere in the eighties that Dr. Francis E. Clark probably met him. In the 1892 International Convention of Christian Endeavor held in New York, young Percy Foster assisted in leading the music, which in the early days of the movement was a stirring and long-remembered feature of conventions. After 1894, Foster was song leader of all the international conventions of Christian Endeavor, and oftentimes served in the conventions of the States. Mr. Foster was not a professional in music. He was for a number of years connected in business with an investment banking house in Washington. As a labor of love he conducted for twenty years the music of the presidential inaugurations. He was a tactful and considerate leader, and a skilled musician.—The Christian-Evangelist.

For the Children of China.—

The Committee on World Friendship Among Children has both an easy and an important task. Whatever we may think of them after they are grown, everybody likes the black, brown, red, and yellow editions of the human young. Paposes and pickaninies are always popular. As for the children themselves, a playmate with a strange complexion is a welcome novelty—unless the child mind has been corrupted by too much contact with adult "intelligence." And so we have all been pleased to send dolls to Japan, school bags to Mexico, and treasure chests to the Philippines in other years. As for those school bags, the writer once found a lusty flower garden in a remote village of Mexico which had had its start from a package of seeds which somebody had slipped into one of those bags! The next time that we want to make love to a Latin land, we would suggest assorted flower seeds! But for next year the country for which our children are to show their friendship is China, and the emblem of good-will is to be a Friendship Folio—a glorified scrap book, in which will be placed pictures and messages of good-will. Instead of selling your old magazines to the ragman, clip the better pictures and send them to China. The further they get from home, the more appreciated are the pictures with which this country is drenched.—Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

Marking Down the Value of Human Life.—

The above caption appears as the headline in an advertisement of one of the nationally known rubber companies of the United States. Tire prices have been reduced almost continuously for the past several years, and this company raises the question of its economy. In the ad it reminds us that there were 50,510 members of the A. E. F. killed in action and died of wounds during eighteen months of the World War. 182,674 members of the A. E. F. were wounded in action during the same period. During the eighteen months ending December 31, 1931, there were killed in automobile accidents in the United States 53,650, and during that time 1,576,840 were injured. Tire failure is not responsible for all of these accidents. One doubts if they are responsible for 50 per cent, yet it is indeed poor economy to use old tires or cheap tires on any car today when the price for first-grade tires is so small. The price of a tire is a small price to pay for the safety of your loved ones. An old tire is a source of danger to its owner and a menace to the other driver. But if you must use an old tire keep it off the front wheels. "In the days of slower speeds and sunsurfaced roads you were taught to put your best tires on the rear wheels—for traction. Not so today. With speeds of 40, 50, 60 miles per hour and better, the best tires belong on the front wheels. When the tire blows, it's seldom a minor accident—too often it's fatal." No tire manufacturer has a right to make an inferior tire. The best tire is the cheapest when your life is at stake.

What Lausanne May Mean to Us.—

Humanity is ever learning. And as it happened, only a few days after we talked with our friend, a news item from far-away Lausanne in Switzerland must have revived his waning faith in our race. For if at Sarajevo in 1914 something happened which was to bring on a world war to the hurt of all nations, it seems likely now that at Lausanne in 1932 something happened which will go far toward healing the wounds of that war, with consequent help to all nations.

When an Austrian archduke was assassinated at Sarajevo, few of us thought it a matter of personal concern to us. Yet as a result of it legions of Americans were called across the seas, many of them to die—a boy from a farm adjoining mine and some acquaintances of nearly every reader.

In this manner many may have thought that the conference at Lausanne to adjust European war debts meant nothing to them personally, but Senator Borah is probably right in saying that it, far more than the so-called peace treaty at Versailles in 1919, "is the harbinger of peace and the hope of humanity," with direct benefits to all of us. For at Versailles the victorious nations imposed impossible burdens on Germany—debts which her people felt made them and their children's children the virtual servants of the victors. And France, with seeming vindictiveness, long demanded that the uttermost penny of the penalty be paid. But one adjustment has followed another. The Dawes Commission reduced the debt, the Young Commission still further, and now the Lausanne Conference fixes the amount at less than one billion dollars as compared with the impossible figure of 31 billions named by the victors in 1921.

A policy of hatred for Germany gained nothing for Europe or us. A policy of good will may gain much.—Clarence Poe in Progressive Farmer.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

The Board of Trustees of Elon College has been called by President Smith to meet in his office at the college at 11:00 A. M., September 17th.

Dr. W. W. Staley of Suffolk, has sufficiently recovered from his recent illness, to be able to travel, and is spending some time with his daughter, Mrs. Ben T. Holden, in Louisburg, N. C.

The managing editor was in Suffolk on business Saturday afternoon. He regrets that he did not have time to stay and visit among the number whom he counts as his friends in that city.

Elon College begins its 43rd annual academic session this week, and at this writing some days before the opening, students are arriving in very satisfactory numbers. The prospects for a large opening and a successful year are very promising.

Center Church, Atlanta, has much improved their building recently. It has been painted outside, papered inside, and a new floor has been laid. It is an attractive little country church across the street from a beautiful wood. All is paid for and the people seem happy.

See page 15 for the Program of the Georgia and Alabama Conference, which convenes with the Richland Church on October 4th and 5th. Next week we will publish the program for the Alabama Conference. That Conference will meet at Antioch Church, four miles south of Roanoke, Ala., October 11th and 12th.

Dr. L. E. Smith and family are now most welcome residents of Elon College—town and community. They live in the parsonage, Dr. Smith having been called to the pastorate of the church as well as to the presidency of the college. The people of Elon greet this good family with gladness and most cordial welcome.

The Woman's Association of the Coral Gables Church recently gave a tea honoring Mrs. Don G. Henshaw, whose husband recently resigned as pastor of the church. A substantial gift in money was presented to Mrs. Henshaw, who was leaving for Tennessee to spend some time with her mother who is ill there. Mrs. Henshaw shared with her husband in the cordial friendship of the people of the church.

We are publishing on page 3, at the request of the Executive Board of the Southern Christian Convention, the action taken by that board in regard to the officers and committees of the Convention. We are glad that the Executive Board has seen fit to cut the knot which was tying up the efficiency of the Convention's operations. The actual change of the name must wait until the North Carolina legislature meets next year.

Pastor J. F. Apple reports a most gracious and glad revival at Hank's Chapel, beginning the fourth Sunday in August and closing Friday night following. The pastor did the preaching, being assisted in song and music by Bro. Rudd Newsom from Wake Forest. There were between 35 and 40 conversions and reclamations. The church was greatly revived, the community edified and the church enjoyed the best revival for a decade. Several will join this and other churches as one of the results of the meeting.

During the past five weeks, Rev. P. S. Sailer, D. D., of Brooklyn, N. Y., has been supplying the pulpit at the Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va. Mr. Sailer was the first pastor of the church, organized as the Third Christian Church, 25 years ago, and it has been a very happy arrangement both for people and minister, to have Dr. Sailer with the church at this time. Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, just recently called to be pastor of the Christian Temple to succeed Dr. L. E. Smith, will be in Norfolk for services the third Sunday in September.

It is strange how the wets and anti-prohibitionists will muddle matters and ignore plain facts. For instance, we often hear it said by the wets that prohibition enforcement costs the government a pile of money, and with the great army employed by the government to enforce, there is no enforcement. But official facts are: The first nine years of national prohibition, the cost to the government was $213,179,485. The total received from fines and other sources was $460,502,792. Thus the government profited by $247,323,307. For eleven years the total cost of enforcement was $284,156,524. The collections from fines and other penalties were $548,588,884. The balance in favor of the government was $264,432,260.

Rev. W. Carl Parker, pastor of our church which will entertain our Georgia State Conference, October 31st and November 1st, has been giving all his time to his three churches: Duncan's Creek, County Line (known as Lovejoy), and Center, with marked success. In these, part of the time, he has been assisted by Rev. Arthur Swartz. He said to the writer the other day: "Bring all the people you can get to come to the State Conference. We will take care of them. Be sure to have representatives of the Christian group." Let us all keep this date in mind—and, too, let each church know assuredly that our per capita tax should be paid before the meeting of the conference. Send it to the registrar, M. J. Sweet, Salisbury, N. C.

The young people of the Congregational Church at Winter Park, Fla., have placed a box in the vestibule of the church, to receive donations of food and supplies, as well as money for the relief of the needy in the community. They are working in cooperation with the Welfare Board. Dr. C. A. Vincent, pastor of the church, has returned with Mrs. Vincent, after a vacation spent at their summer home at Henniker, N. H. During their absence the pulpit has been supplied by Rev. C. DeW. Brower, the pastor at Interlachen, Fla., who also has a home in Winter Park, and by Rev. Walter Metcalf, of Tampa. Mr. Metcalf and his family spent the month of August in the parsonage of the church and before leaving Winter Park, they were given a surprise supper as an expression of appreciation of their services.

Mary and Theron Zimmerman, of Yale, are doing a fine piece of work, acting as summer pastors, at Salisbury, N. C. He preaches every Sunday, prepares young people for services of leadership in worship and all-round Christian Endeavor practice. Several new people have been added to the force of young leadership. In this church, peculiarly difficult in many ways, they were able to conduct a Daily Church School, with marked success. Over sixty were enrolled. Miss Joy Grigsby, member of the church and a senior in the high school this year, and two young ladies of the Presbyterian Church, assisted in this fine work. The series ended with a picnic out in the country which the children much enjoyed. The Zimmermans remain on this field till Yale opens the last of September.

Rev. J. L. Foster, by invitation, conducted the communion and baptismal services at Elk Spur and Rocky Ford Churches on Sunday, September 4th. Bro. Foster reports good congregations, perfect attention, due reverence and solemnity during the solemn services and a glad, good day with our good Christian people in Carroll County. Supt. C. D. Johnston of the Orphanage kindly carried his singing class from the Orphanage, and the singing of these children was a joy and a delight, and made the first Sunday in September a memorable one in the annals of our churches in Carroll County. Rev. and Mrs. R. T. Grissom, who are in charge of the work, were delighted to have these visitors and to see to it that a bountiful luncheon was spread for them at the noon hour, and that everything possible was done to make the occasion wholesome and helpful.

At LaGrange, August 29th, in the home of Rev. J. H. Dollar, the executive committee of Georgia and Alabama Christian Conference met with the pastor-at-large and assistant moderator, Rev. J. H. Dollar of our State Conference. After carefully studying the matter, it was decided to prepare a constitution for a Georgia Congregational and Christian Conference. A committee was appointed to work the thing out and call another meeting, if correspondence will not do. When this constitution is drawn, it will be in such form as to be heartily approved by both these groups. It will then come before the meeting of the Georgia and Alabama Christian Conference meeting at Richland, Ga., October 4th and 5th. If adopted by the body, it will then go before the Congregational Conference meeting at Duncan's Creek, October 31st and November 1st. When adopted here, the two bodies will hold a joint session right there and then, for the purpose of organization, election of officers, so that the new conference can go to work immediately.

Dr. C. H. Rowland, Greensboro, conducted the funeral services of Mrs. Ella Johnson Smith, of Fuquay Springs, N. C., from the Wake Chapel Church, of which Mrs. Smith was a faithful member for many years, Monday, September 5th. Mrs. Smith was known to a large circle of friends and loved ones as "Miss Ella Johnson," before her marriage to Mr. A. F. Smith, who died some years ago. She was graduated from Elon College and took a prominent and active interest in the work of her church, into which she carried a cultured intellect and a consecrated heart. She was a sister of Bro. K. B. Johnson, trustee of Elon College, and the late lamented J. Beale Johnson, and of Rev. J. Lee Johnson and S. W. Johnson, of Mrs. W. H. H. Jones, of Raleigh, and of Mrs. W. Z. Atkinson, Fuquay Springs. She leaves a large circle of relatives and friends who, because of the beautiful and consecrated Christian life she led, esteemed her most highly. In her passing a truly noble soul has been translated from the earthly to the heavenly home.

Rev. G. C. Crutchfield, pastor, reports that his Haw River Church is planning for a great and good "Home-Coming Day" Sunday, October 16th, which is also the anniversary of the church. All former pastors are especially invited, as are also members and friends who have moved away. There will be morning and evening services, and the local church will gladly receive and cordially entertain all who come for the day. The work at Haw River, as at Berea, Pastor Crutchfield advises, is going well, revivals in both churches having been held with gracious results and good success. Bro. Crutchfield has been called as pastor for both churches the coming year, and present indications are that he will accept. Besides being happy over the results of his summer's work with his churches and the prospects for the future, Bro. Crutchfield, on his visit to THE SUN office Saturday, was wearing a very becoming new suit of clothes, the very timely and gracious gift of a friend or friends. No wonder the man looked well in face and feature, being so becomingly attired and so grateful for the results and progress of his work the past year, and to his unknown but esteemed friends who "dressed him up."

As is appropriate for this particular year, the Guest Book for 1932 this fall is smaller, both in number of pages and size of page. However, it is large enough so that twenty-one workers in State fields, in national home fields and in foreign fields are visited. The book is called, "A Journey of Discovery," because instead of having the missionaries come to us we go to them. This is not only a change from preceding years, but it gives a chance for even greater variety and freshness in treatment. The Guest Book has come to be recognized as a chief element in the fall world service program of our churches. Upon it we can build sermons, missionary meetings, Sunday School lessons, mission study classes, pageants, etc. The first point is to get it into every home where it can be read day by day. The period suggested this year corresponds closely with that suggested last year, namely, October 16th to November 6th, but it is so arranged that any time is suitable for its use. Soon after September 1st, a sample copy will reach every pastor, following which orders should be sent to the usual offices, State or national, as suits your convenience, for the number of copies you need. There are enough to go around if none is wasted. The edition is 225,000.

Dr. Atkinson writes: "The make-up man of THE CHRISTIAN SUN must have been napping or away from the forms when in the issue of September 1st, the living picture of President L. E. Smith was presented to the readers of the paper in the body of an article entitled, 'Who Die in the Lord.' We apologize to Dr. Smith, whose friends are writing him with regret that his church paper seems to indicate his decease, as he quit his active pastorate in Norfolk to become the president of Elon College. We assure him and his friends that the good doctor was never, seemingly, more alive, active and hopeful than at the present." The managing editor, though he does not write the editorials, regrets that the editorial page should have contained an obituary editorial on the occasion of announcing Dr. Smith's acceptance of the presidency of Elon College. The following paragraph from a letter to Dr. Atkinson will possibly explain itself: "I am sorry that the placing of Dr. Smith's cut where it was should have caused you any embarrassment, and still more sorry that he should have taken it to heart." The editorial of which he was the subject was received after the editorial page had been made up, and was ready for press. Another editorial was pulled to make room for it and the cut which we had arranged to run with the other matter concerning Elon College. I approved, and still do, of your suggestion that the cut be placed with the editorial. The re-making of the page was done by myself, and if there is any blame attached, it is mine. Truly, in the rush of making the substitution, I did not notice that your leading editorial was in the nature of an obituary, but if I had, I fail to see how the page could have been re-vamped in such a manner as to have placed the picture closer to the editorial about Dr. Smith. I hope that those who have written him have taken the precaution to send in an extra subscription to the 'Dollar-a-Month Club,' and if they have, I will be compelled to recant the first sentence of this letter."

HINES' CHAPEL.

Hines' Chapel is moving forward. It seems as if at least a shower of God's blessings has fallen upon this church. Much has been accomplished in the past year.

Shrubby and flowers have been planted to beautify the grounds. The church has had two coats of paint, both inside and out. The windows, too, have been painted in different colors, which adds wonderfully to the appearance of the building.

A new Sunday School room has been added by putting in folding doors, and cutting off a section of the main auditorium. Another room is needed, for one class has to meet in the auditorium. The rooms have been made attractive by the hanging of draperies and pictures of religious scenes.

Two new classes have been organized, and the Cradle Roll, too, has been adopted.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Whereas, at the last session of the Southern Christian Convention, Incorporated, on Friday, April 29, 1932, the following items submitted in the report of the Committee on Nominations were adopted, viz., "We recommend that all the present officers and boards of the Southern Christian Convention hold over until the new charter becomes effective; and, we recommend the election of the following officers and boards, to assume their offices as soon as the amended charter becomes effective." (See Minutes, page 43), and

Whereas, the change in the charter can not be made until the 1933 session of the legislature of North Carolina shall convene, and

Whereas, the President of the Convention has requested the Executive Board to take such action, as may be necessary, to make it possible for the officers and boards named in the report of the Nominating Committee, and elected by the Convention, to assume their respective duties at once, therefore,

The Executive Board of the Southern Christian Convention, Incorporated, hereby orders that all officers and boards elected at the last session of the Convention shall assume their respective offices and duties from this date; and all officers and members of boards affected by this order are requested to take due notice of this action and govern themselves accordingly.

(Signed),

W. W. STALEY,
E. E. HOLLAND,
I. W. JOHNSON,
Executive Board.

Suffolk, Va., September 10, 1932.

August 7th to 14th marks the time of one of the greatest revivals in the history of the church. The preaching was done by Rev. L. A. Nall, of Elon, up until Friday night, when he had to leave to start a meeting elsewhere. The pastor, Rev. J. L. Neese, did the preaching until the close of the meeting.

Four services were held each day—four preaching services, and a children's service. The services were all well attended, especially those at night. People came from far and near and filled the house to overflowing.

The church was greatly revived. It was a time of great rejoicing when about thirty people went to the altar seeking a baptism of the Holy Ghost. The young people were most graciously revived, many of them laid their hearts upon the altar of service, desiring to be used of the Lord. There were seventeen additions to the church.

Some think the success of this meeting was due to prayer—they have learned fully and completely that "Prayer changes things."

Saturday night, August 20th, the young people met at the church with the pastor and Mr. W. B. Truitt, of Greensboro, and organized a Christian Endeavor Society. They are praying that they may do much for the up-building of God's Kingdom through this Society.

The church has called Bro. Neese as its pastor for another year. The people feel that they are greatly blessed in having as their leader, one who lives so close to God as does Bro. Neese. May the Lord bless him and prosper him in his work.

A MEMBER.

KENTUCKY CONFERENCES.

From August 11th to 14th there was held with the Christian Church at Gregoryville, a joint meeting of three Kentucky Conferences, as follows: The Kentucky Christian Conference, the Kentucky State Christian Conference, and the Kentucky Conference of Congregational churches. The pastor of the entertaining church was Rev. W. E. Robinson, and the delegates were all hospitably entertained by the people of Gregoryville. The different conferences held separate meetings but most of the program was the union of the three conferences. There was discussion of the closer relation of the three conferences and it was voted to hold an annual fellowship meeting of the conferences.

Dr. W. P. Minton, of Dayton, O., was present and preached a sermon and delivered an address. Rev. Almon O. Stevens of Stearns, Ky., and Moderator of the Conference of Congregational Churches, also preached a sermon. Another sermon was preached by Rev. A. W. Loos, student summer worker at Evarts. Among others who participated in the program were Rev. W. E. Robinson, Rev. D. C. Colgan, Rev. F. P. Ensminger, Rev. A. H. Langdon and Rev. Frank Wright from Ansonia, O. There were interesting young people's meetings under the direction of Miss Pattie Lee Coghill, Miss Marguerite Davison and Miss Jean Fullington.

ROSEMONT AND BERE A.

September 4th was the seventh anniversary of Rev. J. F. Morgan as pastor of the Rosemont Christian Church. During these seven years, the church has paid the pastor's salary regularly every Monday morning, with the exception of two or three Monday mornings. This the church feels is a remarkable record, of which it is justly proud.

Also during these seven years 230 new members have been received into the church, the Sunday School has grown from an attendance of 100 to 250, a splendid new church plant has been erected, and paid for in full; approximately $60,000 has been given by the church for all purposes; the care of the needy in the community has been heartily entered into, and a spirit of beautiful fellowship has prevailed through the years.

At the Berea Church, of which Mr. Morgan has been pastor for the same period, 90 new members have been received into the church, the parsonage has been paid for, approximately $10,000 has been given for all purposes, and there is now in the Sunday School building fund treasury about $1,100, with which it is hoped to begin the new Sunday School rooms some time this year. In this church, too, there has been present a beautiful spirit of cooperation through these years.

The missionary force of today is like Gideon's band, chosen not for numbers, but for quality, for courage, faith, and heart. Higginbotham.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. W. STALEY C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

W. C. WICKER

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

A REASONABLE SERVICE

Paul was writing to the Romans about their favorite theme. They gave first thought to their bodies. They were a breed of soldiers. The Roman State put the highest premium on a well-drilled army of strong men, and the Roman citizen put the highest premium on a well-drilled and strong body. So these people knew what Paul meant when he talked about the body. This was for Paul, however, a stepping stone to a higher thought and theme.

Since so much care was bestowed upon the body, it was only reasonable that the body should be something more than a bundle of flesh, nerve and sinew, however shapely that might be. Since they were seeking to make the body whole, well-rounded, perfect, it was only reasonable that they should also make it holy. sacred, serviceable, not only to man, but to God; not for use only on the battlefield of death, but on the battlefield of life. So Paul enjoins these folks, who cared so much for their bodies, to present their bodies "a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God," which is only a reasonable service.

This lesson of Paul's comes with fresh force and fullness to our day and time. Since we are devoting so much of our time and energy to material pursuits and possessions, it would seem to be only a reasonable—a very reasonable—service, that we give some of our time, thought and consideration to a personal God, who is also a loving Father. Astronomy has made the world so large, the telescope has penetrated to such infinite distances; science has made the world so compact, the microscope so intimate and so close, that men are saying, "Where now is thy God? Where does he dwell? What place does he occupy?

What power is left to him?" Hence, Paul and all like him are saying—and it is the most that can be said: "I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God." Neither the astronomer nor the scientist, the telescope nor the microscope can deprive us of our vision of and experience in the mercies of God. He is merciful. Moment by moment, his mercy is evident. This is his world. He created it; he owns it, and though man, the only thing that he made in his own image, desecrates it, drenches it in blood, devastates it with fire and sword, disrespects and dishonors the God who made the world, yet God's mercy abides, even the mercy of infinite love and compassion. If we would confess and speak the truth, our utterance would be the words of Jacob: "I am not worthy of the least of all the mercies, and of all the truth, which thou hast showed unto thy servant." Though we are unworthy, God's mercy still abides. It is only a reasonable service that he asks.

He appointed one day in seven, which he sanctified, made holy, and calls upon us to worship him on that day and to give to him some thought and consideration. Yet there are thousands, yea, millions who pass the day with no thought of worship, pass it as a holiday in pursuit of bodily pleasures, physical enjoyments, intellectual delights.

Every day, in fact, God gives us the light of the sun, the health and vigor of purified atmosphere, the glow and the joy of physical strength and endurance and yet how many of these days do we pass through without giving him even five minutes of our thought, devotion, consideration. It is only a reasonable service that he requires. We are a body, a mind and a soul. If we have cared for the body, trained the mind, and tried to care for these physical and intellectual pursuits, it is but a reasonable service, very reasonable, indeed, that we give some care and consideration to the soul so that the tabernacle in which it abides may be holy, acceptable unto God. J. O. A.

NEGRO ACHIEVEMENTS.

All of us who are interested in the progress of our fellowman and the achievement of mankind should take courage and get inspiration from the splendid achievements of our Negro neighbors. One often wonders if we do not look too much and too often at the frailties and faults of some members of our colored population, and too little at the strength, progress and achievement of the Negro race as a whole about us.

In his introduction to sociology, Jerome Davis gives some facts about Negro progress and achievement since 1863, that should be a source of pride as well as gratitude, not only to the Negro race, but to the white race as well. Mr. Davis points out that the Negroes, who had become free prior to the war between the States, and those who had some meagre property when freed, owned in the 1863 in the United States, 12,000 homes, 20,000 farms, 2,000 business enterprises and had what was estimated to be worth about $20,000,000, but now, in less than three-score years and ten from that period, there are 700,000 who own their homes, 1,000,000 who operate farms, 70,000 who conduct their own businesses, and the Negro has accumulated property worth 1,800,000,000. They own and operate 73 banks in the United States and 218,612 farms. In 1863 there were only two newspapers in the United States published by Negroes; today there are 220. In addition to these, there are 70 religious periodicals, 85 school periodicals, 30 fraternal organs and 7 general magazines published by Negroes. In 1860 there were scattered throughout the country about 1,000 Negro church buildings. There were in 1916, 37,371 church buildings with an estimated value of over $86,000,000.

When it is recalled that this race has come up from slavery during these years, it is, indeed, no small gain and no slow progress they have made. And this material gain possibly represents the smallest item of their progress. Their ministers and teachers have become, and are ever becoming, more and more intelligent and helpful in their interpretation and presentation of the gospel and of learning. Their contribution in religion, in song, in consecration, in all intellectual and spiritual pursuits and achievements are sources of constant gratitude and appreciation of all who love righteousness and rejoice in the success, the progress and the achievement of mankind.

We often wish that the white race was as devoted to their church and their Lord, and was as liberal in giving to the church in proportion to their means as the Negro race is. The world has been a long time in recognizing and acknowledging and appreciating the words of Paul to the men of Athens: "God has made of one blood all the nations to dwell on all the face of the earth and hath appointed the times and the bounds of their habitation, that they should seek the Lord and find him, though he be not far from every one of us, for in him we live and move and have our being. J. O. A.

THE SUMMER IS SPENT.

Labour Day, September 5th, marked and punctuated the passing of summer. On the evening of that day and on Tuesday, the 6th, human traffic by train, steamboat and highway was immense, with those who were returning to their homes after a brief or an extended holiday, with more or less vigor, and a season of new and revised plans and pursuits had begun. The summer is ended. During the summer now spent, some, no doubt, gathered and harvested, others scattered and destroyed strength ideas, character. The ancient and established proverb still holds: "He that gathereth in summer is a wise son." Those who have gathered now enter upon their tasks with wider vision, larger hope, quickened energy. It will be indeed a tragedy for pastors and leaders in the church not to take advantage of this new prospect and possibility. True, it is, there are pastors, Sunday School superintendents and presidents of Missionary Societies who, like the babbling brook "never change." They just babble on. The most they hope for, expect, or desire, is "to hold their own," keep going as they have gone, to pursue their course, regardless of consequences, within the narrow confines of the rut or groove into which they have fallen. But "he that gathereth in summer is a wise son," and this wise son or daughter, whether in pulpit, in Missionary Society, or in Sunday School, will now display that wisdom by a purposeful planned and enlarged program of constructive service. A new occasion is offered, a new opportunity arrives.

"The first occasion offered, quickly take, Lest thou repine at what thou didst forsake."

Occasion is now presented, and those who care will embrace the opportunity. The only hope of progress in the church and in the world is that of constant renewal of plan and of program, and he is indeed wise who plans his work and then works his plan. J. O. A.

BANISH THE DEPRESSION.

There is a chorus of voices proclaiming that for all of us good times are just "around the corner," and that all we need to do is to chant "Every day in every way we are getting richer and richer." We wonder if society is fit for better times. The vice-president of one of the largest department stores in America in a recent address before the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association made startling statements about current business practices. The text of his lengthy and stimulating address was that "Character is an attribute that is singularly lacking in most of our so-called business leaders." His address was specific in charging that "Ideals, vision, the future of the business, public confidence—all these by-words from the prosperous days—are ignored in the desperate high-pressure, untruthful efforts to do what advertising never can nor could do—work miracles on a foundation of lies and half-truths." If such statements are true or even partly true about the ethics or lack of ethics in the business world, it behooves us to do some serious thinking.

The business world is our world. Pastors, Sunday School teachers and members of the church who read these lines make up the atmosphere of society to the extent of our numbers and our influence. Perhaps the deflation of values and the paralysis of exchange which has fallen upon us has as its purpose the revelation that truth and integrity are the essentials of business prosperity. Many a church man has tried to salve his conscience as he has connived at or permitted unsavory business practices by saying that "It is a trade custom." Let a believer in Jesus Christ show his belief by refusing to sanction lies in business, no matter how customary the practice may be. It is not necessary to succeed in having a balance on the so-called right side of the ledger. The red ink balance may declare that it is necessary to fail. The Cross was such a declaration. We shall banish the depression when the Golden Rule is the rule of the market place.

C. R. R.

CARE OF THE SICK.

The Christian Church has always been interested in caring for the sick and distressed. It began its good work of looking after the helpless orphans in Rome. Jesus himself was known as the great physician and he told his disciples that they and their followers would do greater works than he was doing. Sometimes that is interpreted to mean that they would cure by faith. Much controversy has been engaged in over this point, as if healing by scientific means was something quite apart from faith methods. There should be no serious discussion about the methods of healing. There are healings by faith and by suggestion and various other non-medical and non-surgical ways. But the great majority of cases of serious sickness are healed by scientific medicine. The hospital is a familiar institution in many cities and towns. It is often supported by taxation, often by individuals, and many of them are maintained by churches.

Not long ago a survey of costs of medical care in the United States was made and a part of that report is of interest to every reader of this periodical. According to that report one out of every eight hospital beds in the United States is under church auspices. Nearly one-fourth of all the capital invested in hospitals in this country has been donated by religious organizations. It is estimated that $3,000,000,000 is invested in hospitals and that there are 892,934 beds in these institutions. It is estimated that there are 115,000 beds in church hospitals representing a cost of $590,000,000. The country as a whole has one hospital bed to every 317 of the population.

Hospitals as a rule are well equipped and well manned and most of them have free beds and charity wards. Hospitals are places of quiet, skill, kindness and restfulness. Many thousands of people pass through these institutions to their everlasting benefit. This ministry to the human body is in keeping with the ministry of Christ and every method used to cure disease and restore health should be looked upon as God given.

Church people should support the hospitals and engage in every reasonable effort to observe the laws of sanitation, health and mental therapeutics. A cheerful heart is a good medicine, a strong will to be well is a power for health. Faith in God and earnest prayer do much to help one to keep well. The time comes, however, when one needs the help of the skilled physician and the hospital as further expressions of God's wisdom.

E. A. K.

AN INTERESTING DIALOGUE.

The following is the report of an actual dialogue which took place between two American citizens, one of them a business man and the other a clergyman, to whom the business man spoke frankly, as one does to a good friend:

"Well," said the layman, with an air of finality, "prohibition is a failure, and we must get used to the idea of making America 'wet' again."

"But who is to drink the liquor?" queried his friend. "Will you?"

"Why, no," he replied, "you know I am a teetotaler."

"Will your son drink it?"

"No, that shall not be!"

"Would you want it to come back for the sake of your clerks?"

"No; it is my practice to discharge any clerks who drink liquor."

"Do you want your customers to drink it?"

"No, I would much rather not; I am sure that those who use strong drink will not buy as much from me nor pay their bills as promptly."

"Would you want the engineer on your train to use it?"

"No, I admit I don't want to ride on a drunkards' train."

"Ah, then, you want this liquor for the men whom you meet driving cars on the public highways?"

"No, of course not; that is a danger to everybody."

"Well, then, who is to drink this liquor in America, pray tell me?"

"I am not sure that anybody should drink it. I guess we are better off without it."—Christian Observer.

Special Combination Subscription Offer!

A special arrangement has been made whereby those who desire to do so may receive both THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for just a little more than they now pay for one of these papers.

Beginning immediately, we will accept subscriptions for the two papers at the price of $3.75 for the combined subscription. This means to SUN readers that for only $1.75 additional they may receive the great wealth of knowledge that The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty brings weekly. Those who are already subscribers for the latter paper may add THE SUN to their list for only 75 cents for the whole year.

You do not have to wait until your subscription to one or the other paper has expired, but send in your subscription now. You will begin immediately to receive the other paper and that which you are already receiving will be marked up a year in advance.

While this offer is open to everyone, it should appeal especially to the pastors and lay workers in the Southeast Convention, and we beg them to take advantage of this opportunity.

It is, of course, understood that under this special offer all subscriptions must be in advance, and must be sent directly to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va., or to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

DEAR SIR:

Please (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my present subscription one year) to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my subscription one year) to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

(Please mark out the words not applicable.)

I enclose, herewith, check or money order for $3.75 to cover same.

M
Street No. or R. F. D.
City and State.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUPERLATIVES.

They should be used with caution. But in the case of the work of our Student Summer Workers in the Carolinas and Georgia (and the same may be truly said of others), superlatives find a ready place. Again and again news comes from every single place where our S. S. S. boys and girls have been, praising their work to the nth degree. Miss Priscilla Chase, with her aids, "Eddie" DuBois, and certain volunteer workers in the Carolinas: Chapel Hill, Albemarle, Southern Pines, Salem Chapel; Mary and Theron Zimmerman, Salisbury; John Chapman, Asheville; Arthur Swartz, Sophia Larger Parish. All this work is reported in the highest terms of satisfying praise.

In Georgia, Williams at Columbus; Mildred Rister at Barnesville Parish, LaGrange, Phenix City, and Center Church, Atlanta; Dorothy Gribbsby at Columbus, Friendship Parish of four churches, and Center Church, Atlanta; Eddie DuBois, Macedonia Larger Parish of four churches; Arthur Swartz, Duncan's Creek Parish of three churches; Susie Elder at Ambrose Parish of four churches; Ruth Lott, special worker at Macedonia Parish; Dora Overstreet, special worker, Friendship Parish; Bernice Davis, special worker in Friendship Parish, both these latter assisting Dorothy Grigsby, director of the work in this parish—and possibly there may be others—but the point is that all the churches where these people have been, say "It was the best we have ever had." Superlative praise for worthy, even superlative, work. And everywhere the people, in saying "good-bye," say: "We want you to come back next year."

All this is wonderfully inspiring to those who have had the work in charge, and if there be any who fail to see the value of this kind of service, let them ask for details of results which manifestly cannot be given here. The results are heartening all along the line, and are tangible. Perhaps, in point of interesting the largest number of young people, the work of the combined churches under Miss Chase at Chapel Hill, and Miss Annie Campbell, assisted by Miss Martha Race, who is superior in teaching pageantry and drama, at Duncan's Creek, stands out. The work at this church at Duncan's Creek reached a climax in attendance at the closing service, August 28th, when four hundred people crowded the auditorium for the closing of a remarkable piece of S. S. S. work.

In speaking of superlatives, too, it is exceedingly good to report that not a single adverse criticism has come to our ears. It has all been a wonderful work, and this group, and all the groups of workers in whatever State, are to be congratulated.

But it should not be forgotten that these churches are to be praised for furnishing fields ripened to the harvest. They did more than they can realize for the development of these young college men and women. They gave as much as they received. The only ones who lost anything are the churches which could not have workers of this kind this year. May they all join the happy chorus of appreciation next year. And it may be wise for churches right now to ask those in charge for someone next year.

One other name should be added to the above list, and that is Rev. Arnold Slater, who has recently been called to the pastorate of the Cochran Church, Georgia. He has done yeoman service at Cochran, Pearson, Union Hill, Antioch, and Baxley Ga. and will close with a series of meetings at Columbus, Ga., United, and the United Church at Phenix City, Ala., adding one week for good measure at our church at Crest. It should also be reported that the pastors everywhere loyally supported the S. S. S. people in all their work. M. J. SWEET.

PUBLICITY.

The statement is made often that there has been a steady decline in the circulation of religious periodicals. That statement cannot include papers of the Roman Communion. In the ten years from 1920 to 1930, Roman Catholic papers practically doubled their circulation.

The experience of this church casts doubt upon the expressed opinion that there is little interest in religious papers. There are 310 Roman Catholic periodicals, with a combined circulation of 7,100,000, which indicates that Roman Catholics in large numbers are supporting their religious periodicals.

The World Almanac gives the communicant strength of this church in the United States is 18,605,000. That would provide a paper for every family, with liberal margin for duplication.

The periodicals of this church thrive because there is a church-wide determination, on the part of its leaders, to create from the church point of view, a more intelligent and better informed constituency.

In our denomination it would be unusual for a minister or layman to push the circulation of our own CHRISTIAN SUN or Herald of Gospel Liberty. We are wondering if all our ministers subscribe to their church paper?

Would it not be profitable if our ministers would sometimes preach about the church papers, keep them before the people, and see to it that our young people are taught the value and necessity of reading a church paper?

We might go a step further and have a "Protestant Press Sunday." The propaganda used for such a day's program might produce surprising results.

The need today is education and religion. Our church organizations are not informed on their church programs nor their denominational plans. We do not study economic conditions, educational movements; we do not know world needs.

If clergy and church leaders can be convinced of the seriousness of the present trend, they can and will rouse the people. Too many church members trust to sermons—an occasional one—for church information. Missionary education is urgent. This may mean progress for the church of the future. In years to come, what sort of fruit may be expected of a church membership totally uninformed about the vital things of their church life, or, perhaps the overseas missionary returning to his field had the key to the situation: "I have been reflecting on a great number of problems at home and abroad. I do pray for the spiritual awakening of the church. The Bible we have, and ministers as well, but our people do not pray."

This lack of personal, compelling, affectionate communion with the unseen is the fundamental cause of our shortage in workers and funds. Who is going to give himself to a God he doesn't know? Who is willing to give money to a machine? Not one!

MRS. J. CARTWRIGHT, JR.
Norfolk, Va.

LIBERTY, VANCE.

Although you are not hearing much from us, we are still alive, and interested in the work. I will give a brief account of a recent meeting. The J. O. Atkinson Missionary Society held its regular monthly meeting Wednesday evening, August 24th. The custom is to meet in the homes of members, but at this meeting we were fortunate indeed to have with us Rev. and Mrs. H. S. Hardcastle, of Suffolk, Va. Therefore, the meeting was held at the church. Our pastor, Rev. S. E. Madren, is conducting a very interesting and helpful study course from the Book of James. Instead of pursuing the study of James, after devotional services, conducted by the pastor, the entire time was given to Rev. Hardcastle. He spoke from the subject, "The Great Commission, and the Individual's Relation to Same." This was a plain and practical, yet one of the most encouraging and inspiring messages we have ever heard. The speaker showed that as witnesses, both at Jerusalem (home) and into the uttermost parts of the earth, there are many ways for each of us to help carry out the Great Commission.

Study mission books, to learn more of the needs that our vision might be enlarged, pray for the missionaries, as prayer works wonders, give of our means to support the cause, that some one may carry the gospel to others, and above all, live a pure, consecrated Christian life at home, for that counts most every time. If we could but realize that, without missions, we too would be in darkness! Someone brought the Bible to us, and if we have been saved through the gift of God's only Son, then we are willing and anxious to share that Saviour with others. When we think of that group of eleven men who received the Great Commission—unlearned men, so far as college education was concerned—men who had no money, no power, no prestige. Yet Jesus said to them, "Go ye and preach my gospel, and lo, I am with you alway." There is the keynote of power—to obey his command and have his power. Not only was that promise given to the eleven, but to all who will let him have the right-of-way in their hearts and lives.

Mr. Hardcastle spoke in a very encouraging way to the women who are trying to do just a bit in helping to carry on His work here. We were, indeed, sorry that so few heard this wonderful address, but trust that those who were present went away more determined to help carry out the Great Commission. We are so grateful for this inspiring message, and hope to have Rev. and Mrs. Hardcastle visit us again.

Before closing, I must say a word about our church here. While our pastor has not been long with us, he has endeared himself to the hearts of the people, as also has his family. He has proven himself to be a real pastor, through visiting the people, cheering those who are sick or sad, and above all, by preaching the Word of God, just as it appears. He does not try to compromise with sin, but reproves sin under all circumstances. Sunday, August 28th, he preached on "The Worst Thing in the World—Sin," taking two outstanding sins: drink and immorality. We feel that he made a bold challenge for prohibition.

May God awaken the professed Christians of America to see their duty to their fellowmen, and not be guilty of putting strong drink to their neighbors' lips. We, as church people, must stand for the right, or we will see the handwriting on the wall. Pray for both pastor and people here.

MRS. J. R. NEWTON.
Henderson, N. C.

A restored liquor traffic would inevitably be the strong right arm of centralized corruption.—Methodist Clip-sheet.

CHRISTIAN TEMPLE CELEBRATES 25th ANNIVERSARY.

What is now known as the Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va., was organized as the Third Christian Church, in September, 1907, by Rev. P. S. Sailer, then pastor of Memorial Christian Temple in Brambleton.

Mr. Sailer saw the strategic importance of such a move only a short time after coming to Brambleton because of substantial losses from the membership of his church by the moving of several families to Park Place. At first the suggestion was coldly received by the Official Board of the Brambleton Church, the members believing it possible to retain all the members in active participation in spite of the long distance involved. When, however, the steady drain upon the membership had been demonstrated over a period of years, it was finally decided to stop the leak by providing a church for the people of the denomination who should come to live near Park Place.

This course was adopted in the Spring of 1907, and the Home Mission Board of the Southern Christian Convention was appealed to, to sponsor the movement, with the result that lots were purchased at the corner of Llewellyn Avenue and 34th Street, and a temporary building was erected. It was in this rough structure that the Third Christian Church was organized the following September, with 26 charter members.

Of this number, only three have passed to the Glory Land. Four have joined other churches.

Including the brief pastorate of Mr. Sailer, lasting only a few months before he became field secretary for the Mission Board of the General Convention, there have been seven pastors. Dr. Smith's term of service covered some thirteen years—more than half of the church's life to date. During these years of Dr. Smith's labors, more than 1,500 members were received. The beautiful temple of worship, which is one of the best in the city, will stand as a monument to his leadership for many years.

At the morning service, Sunday September 4th, the anniversary was celebrated. Five ministers were at the service: Dr. L. E. Smith, Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Rev. J. Earnest Thacker, supply pastor at the Temple last spring, Rev. C. J. Felton, of Irvington, N. J., as well as Rev. Sailer.

Miss Ethel Hurley, Director of Religious Education of the church, also was present, having just returned from her vacation. A.

CHRISTIAN TEMPLE.

By DR. P. S. SAILER, Founder.

Ye people of God, who gather here,
On this blessed Sabbath morn,
Have come to celebrate the day
On which this church was born.
Many have come, and labored, too,
Through all these wondrous years;
They have shared alike in times of joy
And in her times of tears.

With a rich heritage in forbears,
Who were valiant and brave,
She sprang from people faithful,
From the cradle to the grave.
She's launched her enterprises great,
Has had her gallant fights,
And scars she bears because of these,
Are not the least of her delights.

Her far-flung battle line has reached
Well out across the seas;
Her glorious flag of liberty
Keeps waving in the breeze.
When she was but a little child
Of seven summers gone,
She flung her banner to the breeze,
And shouted, "On! Right on!"

To the altar came her offering,
To support her missionary then,
And through the years she's kept it up
With her women and her men.
The orphans down at Elon,
Remember her with joy,
For many needed garments,
And many a bright new toy.

She has clothed herself in beauty,
And grace her walls adorn,
In her Temple here in Park Place,
Where this noble church was born.
Baptismal waters have overflowed
The form of many a one
In the name of God, our Father,
And Jesus Christ His Son.

Full fellowship was not withheld
From any contrite heart,
Who acknowledged full allegiance,
Though he could take no part
In the shibboleths and notions
Which may—may not—be true,
But showed no sign of faltering
When a kind deed he could do.

To you—her charter members—
I fain would give a word
Of encouragement and gratitude
As you think of Christ, our Lord
As having led you all these years
In fellowship so sweet,
That even now the glory begins
To shine around your feet.

The Holy Scriptures, as you know,
Have failed not to record
How the feet that bring good tidings
Never fail of their reward.
So keep the good work going
As you have for all these years,
The bearer of precious seed
Though weeping, rejoiceth after tears.

Your future looms more glorious
Than even the past has been,
With this goodly host of workers,
Face forward with vision keen,
With a faith that will not falter,
No matter what shall come
To threaten and disturb your peace
While on your journey home.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and $2.75
red edges
01603 French Morocco, limp, round cor- $4.75
ners, red under gold edges, headband, book-mark

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4½ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible
2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Israel,
years old and upward, thro

Nos.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, $2.95
round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine
Bibles

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5½ x 3½ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even faint- 10 Mercy and truth eth for the courts of the LORD: my 11 together; righteousness heart and my flesh crieth out for the 12 kissed each other.
living God. 13 Truth shall spring

No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping $2.50 cover, round corners, gold edges

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¾ x 4½ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, O God our shield, and 10 Gen. 15. 1.
look upon the face of thine anointed. 11 Ps. 56. 1.
12 For a day in thy courts is better 13 1. 57. 1.
14 2 cor. all

No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping $3.25 cover, round corners, red under gold edges

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

OUR LEADER Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 1½ inches.

Specimen of Type

8 9 10 Jē-hōi'-ā-chin was 11 years old when he began t

No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco $9.50
leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk
head-bands and book-mark

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50
No. 03255x

As No. 03255x, with concordance. $6.50
No. 03276x

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1½ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos.
04453. French Morocco leather, $4.35 overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges.
A durable and handsome Bible

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, $7.00
round corners, red under gold edges, headbands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

PRAYER.

Son of God, in sorrow the church must admit that still thou art asking "where are the nine?" To this day, souls washed and forgiven, wander and forget. Spiritually, multitudes are famishing because they give not God his due returns. Loving Saviour, so enlarge the gratitude of the faithful that it may avail for all who forget God's mercy. Let not one perish. Draw them unto thyself and in every life put faith to fill and force to function in the name of the holy church, we humbly pray. Amen. L.

THE MESSAGE OF HERRNHUT TO WORLD CHRISTIANITY.

The recent meeting of the International Missionary Council at Herrnhut, Germany, the little town which two centuries ago sent out the first Moravian missionaries, leaves three impressions indelibly fixed in one's mind.

First, the reality of spiritual power. Here we were at the fountain source of a great movement that gushed forth 200 years ago and became a cleansing and vitalizing stream to millions of lives across decades. No fiction this, but a historic fact. Herrnhut witnessed to the possibility of spiritual dynamic, divine visions, divine baptisms. Sublime experiences were possible to men. Zinzendorf and the Moravians had them. What was possible once, is possible again.

Again, Herrnhut spelled Christian fellowship. As Bishop Baudert pointed out, Zinzendorf's spiritual experience was characterized chiefly not by his vision of God, not by his zeal for holiness, but by a spirit of love for his brethren. "The church became more than an organization; it became a community of brethren." This communal idea dominates the whole life of the village. They are one family in a sense difficult to portray. One needs only think of church organizations as one usually finds them to realize how far removed they are from the Herrnhut community spirit and community life. The difference is the interplay of love, the literal following of Christ's commandment, "That ye love one another as I have loved you."

The third message of Herrnhut was that of missionary passion. Herrnhut portrayed it with a purity and a devotion and a heroism that have few parallels. We were led to fields that were obscure and hard; we were told of lives laid down with seemingly no results. Missionary service appeared more completely sacrificial, with less of pomp and glory, with less of magnificent achievement and marvelous conquest which so greatly characterizes our American church missions. Herrnhut seemed a challenge to a more truly self-effacing, sacrificial life.

Two creative ideas were born of the Herrnhut meeting. The first was the proposal that the church advance to what was called "the third stage of cooperation." We have had comity, removing friction between missions and churches, and delimiting territory. We have had institutional cooperation in many fields. There remains a higher cooperation, where churches will pool their monies and men and policies in a given field for the realization of Christ's will. If this creative idea of Herrnhut finds realization, we may expect a truly new era in Protestant missions whose significance will not be less for the home churches themselves than for the missionary cause.

The second creative idea of the Herrnhut meeting was to sound the note of evangelism on an unprecedented scale. Does this proposal sound archaic? It needs definition. It must be understood in terms of that challenging movement led by Kagawa in Japan. It must be thought of in terms of a united approach by all the Christian forces in a given country to the life of the nation. It must be thought of in terms of a full gospel to all of life, the presentation of a Christ adequate and indispensable for that initial act of individual regeneration but a Christ also whose will means the transformation of society, the cleansing of economic life, the righting of wrongs and establishment of international brotherhood.—Charles R. Watson in Federal Council Bulletin.

"THREE IN ONE."

God's Kingdom is to be accomplished by the interworking of three essential elements. These elements become operative in the soul of man at successive stages. The first two train for the third, which is missions. Effectual, expanding missionary work being thus dependent, it is obvious that without the two underlying elements, missions never could be made to meet the ends of righteousness. First, through the ministry of grace which seeks its own, and through the agency of the church, the natural life must be made Christian—constrained to "turn" as the Bible speaks of turning. The personal effort that leads a life thus to enter upon the Christian path is evangelism.

Then, it is to be considered that, materially, whatever one possesses has come from God; that all is God's and that every law and admonition of his word says to the Christian that for its use a definite portion of the increase of all possession must be returned to God. This is but paying—doing what God knew he must require at the hands of his children to make clear the Fatherhood of God and teach the relation of user to owner. Thus, to pay, with a sense of that equity which God says is to shape his Kingdom, is stewardship.

The third essential element in the Kingdom process is not effectively operative until the first and second have made ready for it. One may be a Christian; have the conviction that God has rightful claim to a share of his own, determine the amount and pay it; but, beyond that, to climax the service of a redeemed life, one must give, actually, of one's very self, to the divine plan for universal salvation. And this order or rule of Kingdom financing is what makes missions the spiritual task about which Christian leaders have spoken and written so earnestly and needfully.

Without stewardship Christian experience does not ripen. The stewardship fact serves as ballast, cleaving the new birth and full spiritual fruitage. Christ's missionary command "to the uttermost" extends in all directions, where evangelism finds the most fertile fields in which to make new contacts. An honestly discharged stewardship is God's provision for effecting the long and difficult reaches. Moreover, the measure of missionary achievement, near or far, is dependent upon the stewardship conscience and practice. Paying, upon the Scriptural basis, according to what one possesses or receives benefit from, is the scepter that sways and marks the speed of the coming of Christ to receive his church. It is beyond the point of paying that giving expresses pure worship and is honored of God with blessings untold upon his people by leading them in a perpetually rotating program of evangelism-stewardship-missions until all the kingdoms of earth shall have heeded, "And the Spirit and the bride say, come. . . And whosoever will, let him take of the water of life freely."

Mrs. J. J. LINCOLN.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING SEPTEMBER 10, 1932.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged since Sept. 1, '32	$ 9.13
First Christian, Greensboro, N. C.	12.08
Wake Chapel, Fuquay Springs, N. C.	5.00
Big Oak, Eagle Springs, N. C.	.50
Liberty (Vance), Henderson, N. C.	2.21
Union Grove, Asheboro, N. C.	1.11
Turner's Chapel, Sanford, N. C.	.93
Newport, Stanley, Va.	1.50
Dendron, Va.	6.55
Lanett, Ala.	2 80
Smithwood, Liberty, N. C.	.62
Holy Neck, Holland, Va.	7.61
Mebane, N. C.	6.00
Winchester, Va.	3.39
Third Avenue, Danville, Va.	5.83
Total	$ 65.26

Individual and Church Offerings.

Previously acknowledged since Sept. 1, '32	$ 10.31
Palm St., Greensboro, N. C.	10.15
"A Friend", Burlington, N. C.	25.00
Ocean View, Va.	36.50
J. E. Murray, Greensboro, N. C. (First Christian Church)	10.00
Total	$ 91.96

Dollar-a-Month Club.

Miss Margaret Alston, Henderson, N. C.	$ 2.00
--	---------

Coin Card Offering.

Mt. Bethel Church, Summerfield, N. C.:
Miss Ethel Friddle	$ 1.00
Miss Elizabeth McCollum	1.00
Miss Mildred Stewart	3.00
	$ 5.00
Shallow Ford Church, Elon College, N. C.:
Miss Lois Kernodle	$ 1.00
Miss Katy Penley	1.00
Mrs. A. B. Pollard	1.00
C. H. Crouse	1.00
Miss Ethel Geringer	1.00
C. J. Truitt	1.00
O. B. Pitts	1.00
Paul Geringer	1.00
Mrs. O. B. Pitts	1.00
Master Ray Crouse	1.00
	10.00
Dendron Christian Sunday School, Dendron, Va.	17.35
Third Avenue Sunday School, Danville, Va.	7.90
Addor Sunday School, Ramseur, N. C.:
Mrs. Stutts	$ 1.00
Mrs. Stutts	.80
Mrs. E. Addor	1.00
Mrs. McDuffie	1.00
Rev. H. V. Cox	1.00
	4.80
Total	$ 45.05

Summary.

Previously acknowledged since Sept. 1, '32	$ 19.44
Sunday Schools, Regular	56.13
Individual and Church Offerings	81.65
Dollar-a-Month Club	2.00
Coin Card Offering	45.05
Total to date	$ 204.27

J. O. ATKINSON, Sec'y.

THE CHURCH SEXTON AND LAY WORKER PENSION.

The faithful and patient sexton, who heretofore has had to look largely to heaven for his reward, now, for the first time, faces the prospect of receiving in this world the modern social justice of an old-age pension through the provisions of the newly established retirement fund for lay workers of the Congregational and Christian Churches.

The provisions of the fund, the first to be established solely for lay workers by any denomination, were announced Friday, August 26th, by the Rev. Lewis T. Reed, D. D., general secretary of the united denomination's pension boards. The fund, authorized by the General Council of the Congregational and Christian Churches, has been chartered under the laws of New Jersey.

The sexton who has risen early Sunday morning for many years to tend the furnace or open the windows as the weather might require and to wipe the pews lest any over-night dust should soil a dress, can by the participation of the local church and himself in the lay workers' retirement fund, retire at sixty-five upon a pension whose maximum amount may be approximately half his annual wages. The proportion of pension to wages will vary according to the length of time of participation in the fund.

In addition to sextons, Dr. Reed stated, participation in the fund is open to pastor's assistants, choir directors, organists and all other employed lay or unordained workers of the local churches; to teachers, doctors, nurses, social workers and janitors in missionary service; to stenographers and other lay office workers of the mission boards and of the State and national denominational offices; to laymen and unordained women in the employ of the denomination as executive secretaries or treasurers; to lay persons in the employ of colleges and of other institutions affiliated with the denomination.

"The employing agency, whether local church, mission board, denominational body, college or other institution, and the lay workers participating in the fund," Dr. Reed said, "must both pay annual dues equivalent to three per cent of the worker's salary or wages. The accumulation of these dues with compound interest will be used to provide an annuity pension at the minimum age of 65, or the maximum age of 68, or upon disability.

"The dues paid by a worker will be returned with compound interest upon request if he changes his employment and the employing agency will then also receive back with interest the dues it has paid on the worker's behalf. If the worker prefers, however, the dues paid both by himself and the employing agency will be retained to accumulate interest and provide an annuity pension when he reaches retirement age.

"The cost of the fund's administration is borne by the participating employing agencies. The fund has been inaugurated with 305 members. Some of the employing agencies are making special payments to provide pensions for services rendered prior to the establishment of the fund.

"The retirement fund for lay workers is the latest step in the development of a denominational pension system, starting 117 years ago, whose operations have previously been limited to ordained ministers. In 1815 a State board of ministerial relief was formed in New Hampshire. Later in other States boards were formed until there were seventeen in 1886 when the trustees of the National Council were incorporated for the purpose of raising and administering funds for ministerial relief on a national scale. The name of the incorporation was changed in 1907 to that of the board of ministerial relief and its work supplemented in 1914 when a charter was secured for an annuity fund for ministers. In 1920 a permanent foundation of $5,000,000, called the Pilgrim Memorial Fund, was raised for the annuity fund. The invested resources of the pension system have grown to over $11,000,000. The number receiving pensions at the present time is 1,639.

"The development of the pension system has reflected changing conditions in organized religion. In colonial days life-long pastorates were the rule and the church which enjoyed the services of a minister in his prime cared for him in his old age. Of lay employees the churches had none; the sexton's labor was donated or done as a spare-time job.

"With the settlement of the central and western States beginning after the revolutionary war, came an ever increasing population mobility that has been accompanied by a shortening of pastorates and a decrease in the sense of responsibility on the part of the individual church to care for a particular minister in his old age.

"In recent years the expansion of the program of the local church through music, religious education and social and recreational activities has brought many unordained workers, some with highly specialized training, into like service with the denomination."

TO DRINK OR NOT TO DRINK.

The question of drinking alcohol is again to the forefront in America. On every hand I hear the matter discussed. What are we going to do about it? How shall alcohol be regulated? Can it be regulated?

This is not a political preachment, but has reference to the battle that will forever be waged between appetite and sobriety. What is alcohol? It is an ethyl product, acts as a poison, and is a habit-forming drug. Of one-hundred persons who begin drinking alcohol, one-third never stop. Which means that they become alcohol-sick, with a craving five times as strong as a natural hunger. Alcohol stirs the emotions, quickens the imagination for a little while, and finally brings the nerves to a state of semi-deadness.

Chemists have shown just what alcohol does. Egg white immersed in it becomes pickled. It stuns the nerve cells. The worst effect of alcohol is that by deadening the nerve cells, it confuses the moral judgment. It renders a person less reliable. A drunkard harms more than himself: the innocent wife and children suffer more than he can possibly do.

As a little lad I once stood up and said, "I will touch not, taste not, handle not." I have never had cause to regret that oath, and have not yet been foolish enough to break it. The Scripture woes pronounced upon wine and strong drink are not the diatribes of half-wits, but the scientific observations of men who were witnessing the devastation of alcohol upon human character and happiness.

How can it be regulated? Alcohol has never yet been regulated for the reason that it corrupts the regulators. The hue and cry of politicians seeking office, of many great newspapers seeking advertising prosperity, and of a considerable proportion of people who desire to tittle, is making a great stir among us. Many good people are being confused into forgetting the fact that alcohol is the only thing that can produce a drunkard.

Murder has been prohibited for some time, as have stealing, adultery, and the opium traffic. They can never be completely stopped. Now and then some light-thinking individual advocates the abolition of laws against them. The prohibition of spitting in public places has not completely ended the evil. Many yet enjoy their divine liberty of spitting whenever and wherever they please.

There are some evils so deadly that an absolute open break with them is essential to any sort of victory over them. The beverage abuse of alcohol is one of those evils so deadly that safety seems to lie in its absolute denial.

Can it be regulated? Before we, as a people, nullify our moral stand upon this greatest producer of human sin and suffering, let us do some serious thinking about it. It would seem to me that there are two or three things about the business of again re-licensing a beveraged liquor traffic that should make us pause.

1. Many young people are drinking liquor. Drunkards have always been made out of young people. More and freer liquor will mean more young people using it.

2. The advocates of repeal of our present laws have not as yet presented any adequate form of control, state or national, that will improve the present unhappy conditions.

3. The three institutions which are most essential to law, order, love and decency are the home, the school, and the church. Let us try to remember that any plan which makes liquor easier to secure, or which legalizes it in any way, will make it more difficult to maintain these three fundamental institutions.

I believe it will always be true that woes and sorrow will follow any sort of complicity with an evil so deadly as beverage use of alcohol.

Anyhow, let's look before we leap.—J. W. Holland in Progressive Farmer.

METHODS CORNER

By REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.

Miami Beach, Fla.

I have had in my possession for nearly a year a most interesting and useful copy of the Bible. It is called the "New Analytical Edition of the Holy Bible," and is published by John A. Dickson Publishing Co., Chicago. It is a volume of 1,639 pages, but printed on very thin paper in large clear type, with a great many valuable "helps" that make the volume a veritable library. It is a good volume to take along on a vacation or a trip, because between the covers of this one book one finds a concordance, an index and digest of words, places, persons and things, an introduction to each Bible book, a diagrammed analysis of each book, and at the end of each book a detailed outline, outstanding facts in the book with comments on the same, contemporaneous history, N. T. references found in O. T., etc., outline maps, and the authorized King James version with Revised Version changes indicated. After the Gospels there is printed an elaborate "Harmony of the Gospels." St. Paul's life is completely indexed, the prayers of the Bible are listed, and a considerable number of topical studies are outlined. The comments are conservative.

For any one lacking a Biblical library this book would be very useful. A minister who cannot afford to buy many books to aid in Bible study, and who wishes to know the contents of the Bible itself, such a book would be a great boon, and the Sunday School teacher without many helps would like a volume such as this.

I have found another little book that I like very much and that is "The Complete Sayings of Jesus," arranged by Arthur Hinds and published by D. H. Pierpont & Co., Williamsburg, Mass. It is a delightful little pocket volume on India paper in large type, with soft leather covers—just the thing for one's pocket, and a delight to hold in the hand. It is refreshing to get the sayings of Jesus by themselves, connected just enough to give them their proper setting, without comment of any kind.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, Waverly, Va.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S BULLETIN.

The autumn number of the Young People's Bulletin has just reached this office. Here is a wealth of material on work for young people which has been compiled by leaders of our united church and published by the Young People's Department under Dr. Harry Thomas Stock and Miss Lucy Eldredge.

Leaders of youth cannot afford to get on without a copy of the Bulletin. In it are suggestions for work each month from October through January, lists of books that are helpful, courses to be studied, projects in citizenship and world friendship, and a number of other fine things. It is too good to miss. You can get your copy by sending a request (a postal will do), to this office at Waverly, Va. Get it at once so you can begin planning.

A NEW PUBLICATION.

The Wellspring has disappeared, and in its place has come The Pilgrim Highroad. The Young People's Bulletin has this to say about the new publication:

"The Pilgrim Highroad is a monthly publication; the price is $1.00 per year. Where else can you buy twelve issues of a sixty-four-page magazine written for young people for this price? The contents, each month, will include: The treatment of the senior group graded church school lessons, material for both the Christian Life and the Christian Endeavor topics, practical plans of young people's work, suggestions for the worship programs, stories, articles on current issues, news of what is going on in church groups of young people.

"Who should subscribe? It is to be hoped that thousands of young people, regardless of their official position in their organizations, will invest a dollar in this excellent young people's paper. Teachers in the church school need it. Every adult advisor or superintendent of a young people's department or society will find it an indispensable aid. The society or club should subscribe for at least three or four copies, so that those who are to lead the meetings (as well as the president, chairman of the program committee, and the leader of the worship programs) may have the material in hand for their work."

RALLY DAY.

Immediately after promotion comes Rally Day. Everybody should be at school on the day the new year begins, which is the first Sunday in October.

There should be a special program for the day in which the different departments or classes may share. This should have been planned far in advance, but it can be done yet. Better late than never, but better never late. Material can be secured from any denominational publishing house. Our own are the Christian Publishing Association, Dayton, O., and The Pilgrim Press, 41 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

A real effort should be made to get the entire community to attend the services on Rally Day. Then when they come make them so happy that they will want to come the next Sunday, and the next. Advertise. Write letters. Make visits. Bring people to church. Get committees to work hard until every member of the church, Sunday School, C. E. Societies, and all who are not going to other churches are lined up ready to come to your church on this big day of the opening educational year.

The Rally Day idea should go through all the church groups—the church service, the Sunday School, Christian Endeavor, and all other organizations. Then carry the idea through the month. Perhaps by the end of the month those who have been coming will want to continue. This is the way for your church to grow.

PROMOTIONS.

Last spring those of you who were in school were likely promoted to the next grade. This month you have begun the new classes. Such is the custom in our public schools and colleges.

Church schools should also promote their pupils from year to year. The larger schools are observing the custom and make much of promotion day. Smaller schools can, and should, observe this custom also. Proper recognition should be given to those who have done satisfactory work during the year.

Promotion day comes in the church school the last Sunday in September. Pupils go to their new classes the first Sunday in October. This is an important event in the life of the pupils, and should be recognized by the schools.

Smaller schools will probably promote only from one department to another, but all pupils should be made to understand just where they belong in the department. With three years of work for each department, it is easy to locate all children so they will know of their progress. Certificates of promotion from one department to another are cherished by the children.

If your school has not been promoting annually why not make it your business to talk with the superintendent about the matter? He may welcome the suggestions, the school will be benefitted, and you will be happy in serving your church. If further information about grading and promoting is desired, I shall be glad to aid you on request.

PROHIBITION FACTS.

1. Prohibition has sent the liquor-consumption curve, which had been steadily rising more than sixty years, downward like the tail of a spent rocket. In 1850, Americans drank more than 4.08 gallons per capita; in 1917, 20.20. Prohibition Director A. W. Woodcock, testifying before the House Appropriations Committee last January 31st, stated: "The government measured the amount of hops, corn, sugar, rye, barley, etc., raised and imported, subtracted the amounts used in known legal enterprises and reported that the amount of raw material would make less than one-third of the former liquor consumption."

2. National prohibition has entirely eliminated liquor advertising and, consequently, a direct and persistent appeal to the creation of alcoholic appetites.

3. Prohibition has crystallized public sentiment solidly on the point that the saloon must never return. Even the wets give at least lip service to this proposition.

4. Prohibition has made drunkenness news. Once too common for mention, drinking now gets front-page space.

5. Deaths from alcoholism have been reduced 40 per cent under prohibition. The 1910-16 average was 5.2 for each 100,000 population; since prohibition, 3.1 (United States census).

6. The death rate from cirrhosis of the liver, an alcoholic disease, has decreased five per cent: 1910-16, 13.2 for each 100,000; since 1920, 7.8 (census figures).

7. A generation of young people, most of whom do not know the taste of liquor, is now growing up. Even in a city like New York, where prohibition is by comparison poorly enforced, the rate of first offenders for drunkenness—an index to youthful drinking—decreased from 14.5 for each 10,000 population in 1917, to 4.4 in 1929 (City Magistrates Court statistics).

These are only a few of many facts that should be considered by people who want to settle this problem with their intellects rather than with their emotions.—Lyndon B. Phifer, in Western Christian Advocate.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

"SOME 'OTHER GODS' TODAY."

The worship service may come at the beginning or end of the discussion and sidelights on the topic. Following the leader's call to worship we may respond by reading or repeating thoughtfully the 23rd Psalm. "There's a Wideness in God's Glory," is an appropriate opening hymn. This may be followed by a prayer of thanks. Other hymns are: "God Is Love; His Mercy Brightens," "God Will Take Care of You," "The King of Love My Shepherd Is," and "O God, Our Help in Ages Past." For a Bible thought, see Matt. 6:25, 26.

Ages have rolled by and we still find ourselves puzzling over the thing that is really our God. As a Scriptural background for discussion on our topic we may use Exodus 20:3; I. John 5:21. The First Commandment says: "Thou shalt have no other Gods before me," and in the New Testament we find these words, "Little children, keep yourselves from idols." Each Christian man or woman, boy or girl ought to understand these passages of Scripture. There is a peculiar way of knowing that God is the heavenly Father. According to the definition anything that is honored or deified is a god. Then, how many gods do we American people have today? They are innumerable. We can give all of our attention, time, and reverence to any one thing and it will become our god. We should never allow ourselves to become so infatuated by something that we ignore our friends, our duty, and our heavenly Father.

A real discussion can be brought about by each member telling some of their own personal experiences touching on this topic. Sometimes we are hardly aware that we are making some object or thing our idol. How many Americans could you find who do not have an idol of some kind? What are some of these "other gods?"

Some people make others their "god." Is this possible? Parents often worship a child in such a way that it is a "god." How may a friend become a "god" to you? How many men do you know who have let money become their master? Does it not seem that money has become the god of the nations today? Everyone is rushing madly after the dollar and many are crushed to death in the rush. How can we escape the money craze?

PLANNING AHEAD.

Plans should now be in the making for Armistice Day, Thanksgiving, and Christmas. Early plans have much the best chance of developing correctly.

The great success in life is to be ready when your opportunity comes.—Disraeli.

Sunday School Lesson

BY REV. STANLEY C. HARRELL.

MOSES HONORED IN HIS DEATH.

LESSON XIII—SEPTEMBER 15, 1932.

LESSON TEXT: Deut. 32:48-52, 34:5-8

GOLDEN TEXT: "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints."—Psalm 116:15.

TIME: B. C. 1452.

PLACE: Mt. Nebo.

Approximately thirty-eight years have passed since the events of our last lesson. It is just about the time that in our day is reckoned as a generation. Most of those who had come out of Egypt with Moses are already dead. The events of Moses' later life are not given in such great detail as some of the more dramatic incidents. It was for the most part a period of waiting. And while it does not present so many striking lessons, it was by no means unimportant.

Review lessons are always rather difficult from the standpoint of the teacher. But this quarter's lessons can be summed up as the life and work of a man. There are many careful students of the Bible who unhesitatingly pronounce Moses the greatest character of the Old Testament. Few men in all the history of the world have done as much real foundation laying as did Moses. None of the events in his life are without significance; but certain ones are so important that they cannot be passed over.

Moses is a remarkable example of the influence and power of early training. We have no way of accurately determining the length of time that Moses was under the care and tutelage of his mother. It is not probable that he stayed with her longer than his tenth or twelfth year. It is not likely that he stayed that long. But the mold of his life was thoroughly cast, certain fundamental ideas were so deeply ingrained that they determined the ultimate course of his life. And this was the case despite the fact that during the years of his youth and young manhood Moses was subject to the influences and the temptations of one of the most luxurious kingly households in the history of the world.

Another fact that we need to take into consideration was that Moses was an educated man. He had the advantages of the very highest education that the world could afford in his day. Perhaps the advantages that were his would compare very favorably with those of any day. Not long ago a speaker was speaking in severe denunciation of modern higher education. He called attention to the fact that when God wanted a man to lead his people out of Egypt that he went not to the university; but that he sought out a shepherd from wilderness life. The speaker overlooked the fact that Moses was a Phi Beta Kappa man from one of the greatest universities of the world. Moses who drew the lines along which Jewish religion was to develop, and Paul who laid the foundations of Christian theology were both highly educated men.

We need to face the fact that Moses was not especially well fitted temperamentally for the task to which he was called. He was by nature an individualist, and a man of most violent temper. Yet no man ever had a deeper consciousness of a divine call. And no other man ever was able to better think God's thoughts after him.

The story of the death of Moses, viewed in one light, seems like a bitter tragedy. That a man who had followed a purpose with such deep determination through so many trying years, should not have finally reached the goal for which he was striving, seems to be a mockery of human ideals and ambitions. But if one will pause a moment and think of all the great achievements of Moses' life, the fact that he never set foot on the soil of Canaan does not seem like so great a calamity.

For Moses was given a view of the promised land. He never saw the land in detail; but he saw it in all the magnificence of a splendid panorama. Such are the views of all great souls. Any traveler or explorer can trace the details of the countryside. But it requires a genius to see clearly the great destinies of the human race. Our greatest need today is for some man who can see the whole land. We have an abundance of detail men; but no one with the comprehensive vision.

And Moses was also given the assurance that the task in which he had invested the forty best years of his life was going to be successfully carried on when he had laid down the role of leader. And what more could any leader desire. It so often happens that when the man of vision dies, there is no one who can carry on what has been begun.

And best of all God placed his stamp of divine approval upon what Moses had done. I have often wondered whether or not the record of what happened on Mt. Nebo was the suggestion for what Jesus said about the, "Well done thou good and faithful servant," which those who are true to God may one day expect to hear from him.

REVIVAL SERVICES.

Our meeting at Ether Church started the fourth Sunday in July, at 7:45 P. M., with two services each day, except Monday, and one on Monday. Rev. J. W. Pugh came to us for the first service, and did the preaching until the meeting closed. Bro. Pugh brought plain, gospel truth, with earnestness. There were several professions, and five additions to the church. The meeting closed on the fifth Sunday night, with a large congregation present.

We started our meeting at Union Grove, third Sunday in August with two services. On Monday, Rev. J. L. Neese came to us and did the preaching until the meeting closed. The last two days we held three services daily. The meeting closed on Friday night, with thirty professions of faith in Christ. Some who found the Lord were men from 50 to 65 years of age. There were 14 who joined the church, and there will be more later.

Bro. Neese is an earnest preacher. He brings the message in such a plain, simple way that the most illiterate children can understand. He is esteemed very highly by our Union Grove people, and they will welcome him back again.

JOHN M. ALLRED, Pastor.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7/8 x 7 Inches, and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 7/8 x 7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $6.00

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 1/2 Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold. $1.60

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 3/4 x 7

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.50

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges. $6.00

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 Inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps. $2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 3/8 Inches and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold. $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools. 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond Virginia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."—II. Chron. 7:14.

MONDAY.

WHY UTTERED PRAYER?

"Ask and ye shall receive."—Matt. 7:7.

"What wilt thou that I should do unto thee?"—Matt. 10:51.

Much emphasis is given by Jesus to uttered prayer. His whole thought for his children in prayer is that the desire of the heart must become the expression of the lips. Notwithstanding the fact that the Father knoweth what we need before we ask it, and that he cares for our needs much more than he does "the birds of the heavens," he teaches us to ask for what we desire.

In nearly all instances of those who cried unto him for mercy, he asked, "What wilt thou?" He wished them to ask for what they desired. We wonder why? Is not silent prayer to be answered? There is a reason for uttered prayer, viz: The exercise of asking gives a wonderful impetus to faith and spiritual energy; to speak arouses the whole being into action, brings one into contact with him, and awakens expectation; it gives definiteness to thought; it brings one into the conscious presence of the Lord and makes one conscious of what he is seeking.

The question is asked: "Would these, who cried for mercy, have been answered if they had not asked?" Who knows? At any rate, the above benefits which come by uttered prayer are essential, and Jesus has laid down the rule as the way to reap them. "Ask and ye shall receive." "What wilt thou?"

Prayer—O Lord, as thou dost answer the prayer of the "birds of the heavens" by creating food for them and giving them the urge to look for it, so sanctify our common sense by leading us to use it. Emancipate our wills, and fill us with spiritual energies. Bless us and our homes this day with all that we need and with a full consecration to thee. Amen.

TUESDAY.

THE SOURCE OF ALL GOOD IN MAN.

"All things whatsoever ye pray and ask for, believe that ye have received them, and ye shall have them."—Mark 11:24.

For the sake of its meaning as applied to action in our lives, it would be easy to change this text to read, "All things whatsoever good ye would do, believe in the Lord and ye will do it." Pardon this seeming twist of God's word. It is believed to be justified in the following:

"Whosoever shall do the will of my Father shall know."

"These who heareth the word of God and doeth it, shall be likened."

"My meat is to do the will of my Father."

"If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them."

When Jesus called the man to the Kingdom, he said, "So, go work today in my Kingdom." "Study to work with thine own hands." And James said, "Shew me thy faith without thy works and I will shew thee my faith by my works. Faith without works is dead."

Thus, faith and works are essentially bound up in one another. We may pray and desire to do good and be ever so amiable in our intentions, yet it amounts to nothing unless we have faith and then work for it.

Prayer—O Lord, help us to have faith in thee. Bring us into the consciousness of all that thou art to us. Forbid that we shall waver. Keep us from sin today. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

LEARNING TO DO WELL.

"Learn to do well."—Psa. 1:17.

To do well we must make right decisions in life, conduct ourselves "without spot" and irreproachably, be moderate in all things and content in whatever state we find ourselves; follow ideals, shape our living after the pattern of our Lord, which is described to be "to do justly, love mercy, and walk humbly with our Lord."

All of life is a process of doing—do, do, do! "Don't spend the whole time just thinking—try." As we practice that spotlessness, that contentment, those ideals, following Jesus; and do all this with consideration, confidence and cooperation; seasoning our actions with the virtues of sincerity, veracity, and courtesy; the simple secret of doing well will be found, and when found it will be the simple "doing the will of God."

But to do all this, we "must be born again." As the poet is born, not made, so we must be born again" before we can learn to do well. Dr. Hastings says, one may be regarded as possessing genius for religion, but "what he has," he says, "is ability, which, when taken possession of by the Holy Spirit, makes him outstandingly successful." Has Christ and his spirit been grafted in thy soul, and hast thou been made a new creature?

Prayer—O Lord, our God, strike our hearts with the fire of the Holy Spirit, and we pray for grace every day more and more to please thee and to rise from what we are to what we ought to be. Amen.

THURSDAY.

CANST THOU REASON WITH GOD?

"Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord."—Isa. 1:18.

The prophet Isaiah did everything possible to sweep out of the life of his people the idea of professional religion, and set up in their lives common-sense, habitual, personal religion in everyday conduct. In the same way he sought to sweep from their lives conventional worship and the idea that God was afar off (and he strove to give them a new idea: the reality of a personal religion in which one could talk to and commune with God as with a friend. He was ahead of his times in this, as most true leaders are, and was endeavoring to bring to pass just what Jesus taught, "Christ in you the hope of glory."

This passage of Scripture is an invitation from God to reason with him, and be awakened to this personal relationship with him. What an invitation! What a friend! And what is better yet: there is not a promise of our Lord's that is not prefaced by this grand, gracious, echoing and tender "come."

This "come" of our Lord's is the best compliment and the highest form of appeal. It does not impose on us hard and fast rules, obedience to which is our salvation, but it is an invitation to reason things out for ourselves with him. It bespeaks the confidence of God in us. "O that my people would think," saith he.

This faith and confidence in his people is expressed in the word "together." "Let us reason together." This word gives one the right to talk back. God is willing for us to talk with him, but not without responsibility to be reasonable and fair ourselves. So to reason together implies a like trust from us, a submission to the truth which may evolve by the reasoning. To "reason together" is a supreme attitude of humility.

Prayer—Dear Father, we thank thee for this day, its light, its love and its work. We pray for submission of will that we may reason together and be guided by thy truth forever. Amen.

FRIDAY.

IMPERSONAL SEEING.

"And Ahab spoke unto Naboth, saying, Give me thy vineyard, that I may have it for a garden of herbs."—Read I. Kings 21:1-10.

An art lover was once asked for his rule of happiness, and answered: "I reached my first milestone toward the happiness goal when I could see beauty impersonally without the desire to possess it covetously."

That impersonal seeing must be applied to all things if we would get the most out of life—to books, to friends, to others' abilities, and to all that is desirable in this world.

Around Boston they are building up the custom of throwing open to the public, on special days, the noble houses and lovely gardens of the rich. For all an afternoon people of all sorts troop from one great estate to another. I have joined many of these excursions and I have never seen a face that was not radiant with enjoyment of beauty. The people could enjoy without envy or covetousness.

Prayer—So may we go through this world, our Father, for by the divine art of brother-love we inherit all things from thee, and rejoice in the joy of all possessors of loveliness. Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

SATURDAY.

BARBED TONGUES.

"They bend their tongue, as it were their bow, for falsehood."—Read Jeremiah 9:1-6.

Poets call the lips of a beautiful girl "Cupid's bow," but Jeremiah saw back of the bow of the mouth, in many instances, a tongue barbed with lies, tipped with poison, darting forth sorrow and death. James in the New Testament had the same thought: "The tongue can no man tame; it is a restless evil; it is full of deadly poison." Moralists of all ages have joined Solomon in saying, "Death and life are in the power of the tongue."

What a joy it is to meet a person of wise speech! For if death is in the power of the tongue, so is life. If the mouth-bow may shoot forth poison, so it may send healing medicine into other lives. The very tone of some people's voices is a benediction, a delight.

Prayer—It is not the tongue, O God, but the heart back of the tongue. May our hearts be a well of love, that our speech may be a fountain of strength and peace. Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.

DEPRECIATION.

"The tongue of the righteous is as choice silver, the heart of the wicked is little worth."—Read Prov. 10:20-25.

When the submarine S-51 first took the waves, that undersea ship, so marvelous in its mechanism, had cost the people of the United States

(Continued on page 14.)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

LITTLE FAITH MEN.

"O ye of little faith."—Luke 12:28.

"Oligopistoi," cries Jesus. "O ye men of little faith," it means. Five times this word is used in the New Testament. Four times in the Gospel according to Matthew, and once in Luke. Each time it is used by Jesus. Each time when he is talking to his inner circle of faithful followers. Each time it is used when they have been expecting material blessings. Does that mean that as yet the disciples had not learned to expect spiritual blessings? That is yet they had not known the meaning of the Kingdom of God?

Jesus is speaking to the disciples. "Why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin: and yet I say unto you, that even Solomon, in all his glory, was not arrayed like one of these. Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which today is, and tomorrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you? (Oligopistoi!) O ye of little faith." They have been worrying about food and raiment. This instance is repeated in Luke.

Again there is a material battle. The disciples and Jesus are on a ship at sea. A storm rages. Jesus sleeps. What peace within. The disciples are disturbed. They awaken Jesus, and calming the wind and the waves he looks at his disciples, and cries (Oligopistoi!) "O ye of little faith."

Another time they are at sea. A storm breaks. Peter expects to do much better this time. He seeks to walk to Jesus on the waves, and as he begins to sink, Jesus cries (Oligopistoi!) "O ye of little faith."

Again Jesus is in conference with his disciples: "Jesus said unto them, Take heed, and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees. And they reasoned among themselves, saying, It is because we have taken no bread. Which when Jesus perceived he said unto them (Oligopistoi!) "O ye of little faith, why reason ye among yourselves because ye have brought no bread?" Each time, we see therefore, it was bread, or raiment, or terra firma—things, that they worried about and wanted. In the same sermon in which he has first called the disciples "little faith men," he has been saying, "Take heed and beware of covetousness: for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." And he spake the parable of the rich fool unto them, concluding with the words, "Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee: then whose shall those things be which thou hast provided? So is he that layeth up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God."

Now let us see: The disciples of Jesus had been worrying. They had been doubting God's material providences. They had been worrying about clothes, food, drink, shelter, anise and cummin—lighter matters; but they had overlooked the weightier matters of Law, Judgment, Mercy, Faith! Hear him: "Life is more than meat, and the body is more than raiment. Consider the ravens, for they neither sow nor reap; which neither have storehouse nor barn; and God feedeth them: How more are ye better than the fowls. . . Seek not ye what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink . . . but rather seek ye the Kingdom of God; and all these things shall be added unto you." (Luke 12.)

In other words: Be not like hypocrites who neglect the weightier matters of law, judgment, mercy, faith. He is saying to the disciples: You are worrying about things, tangible, perishable, unimportant properties; but ye are now to be Christians, apart, followers of the gleam, and it is yours to seek the spiritual, permanent, abiding values: Whatever you do do not neglect them. Seek the Kingdom of God. It is most interesting in the light of that demand to notice, as I have already hinted, what Jesus said to the Pharisees: "Ye pay tithes of mint, anise and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgment, mercy, and faith." Those four things are called by Jesus, "the weightier matters," and we know that to him his Kingdom was also the weightier matter.

Let us see then: He has been saying to the disciples, "You are worrying about food, when you should be worrying about your faith; ye are worrying about mansions, when you should be worrying about mercy; ye are worrying about juleps, when you should be worrying about justice and judgment; ye are worrying about the possessions of lands, when you should be worrying about obedience to law. Now listen: "These ye ought to have done"—it is absolutely right to have these things as long as they are not the main issue—as long as they are not the master, but the servant. And in no time are we justified in worrying about them to the extent of distrusting God, and the leadership of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Christians are going to have to set a pace back to permanent and abiding values, and have a faith that rings true to God in times of stress as well as in times of plenty and ease and pleasure. To many Christians Jesus would cry today: "O little faith men, O little faith men!"

Now, how were these disciples to measure up? How were they to get on the right track? Here it is in our same speech and chapter (Luke 12): "Whosoever shall confess me before men, him shall the Son of man also confess before the angels of God." Put that into practice, Peter. Make that your motto unto death, James. Carry that with you even unto the Isle of Patmos, John. Honor God in your words and deeds, in your life before men, even unto times when it might seem expedient to compromise him. Deny him not. Deny him never. And bless your souls, I will confess you before the angels of God, for they could do not better! Ye can be no longer "Oligopistoi," and do that; but rather ye shall be "meg-aloi pistoi"—great faith men!

How did these disciples make the grade? Why, by believing him. By taking him at his word. By keeping his company. And by eventually taking up his task! Yea, there you are. By believing his words, and accepting his work. They had their doubts, it is true. But that great, compound word (Oligopistoi) "O ye little faith men," would ring like a bell in the very depths of their beings, and they faced stones, and dungeons; fire and sword to be men of great faith. So that to this day, the world has marveled at their manhood and courage.

What then? You and I are called Christians. We have taken his precious name. We have vowed our allegiance. We have trusted his word. Dare we worry our lives away, blight our homes, our children, and belittle our God by distrusting him? Is it Christian to say God cannot give us abundant lives? Is it Christian to say he will not? Is it Christian to grab and gamble, and strive and strain for food and raiment and having it, neglect God's cause, God's house, and the altar of praise and prayer? If we come to begging, shall we not beg a bit of it for God? Shall we leave him out? Shall we put him off? Shall we make him last? Can we expect his temporal blessings, when we still neglect his spiritual ones?

Can the church be more than "little faith" if it neglects, along with the world, good government, economic justice, Christian mercy, and everlasting and abiding faith? Shall we, as a church, throw down these weightier matters, and pick up the lighter ones? May Jesus, your friend and mine, stand ever by our sides to whisper in our inner ears: "Little faith men," if we do, until we too shall be willing to face death itself for his Kingdom's sake, and stop grumbling about ourselves.

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses	$7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses	6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses	6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10	2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10	2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim	1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses	$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85	11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85	16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling)	$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90	16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90	14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim	$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim	9.00
Filler—Silver Lined	6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Your Superintendent had the pleasure of visiting two churches on Sunday, September 11th, that he had never visited before: Brown's Chapel and Pleasant Union—both in the Western North Carolina Conference. Somehow it had never been convenient to visit them before. We carried the children of the singing class to give their program and the people seemed to enjoy it very much. The day was clear and beautiful and the air cool. We visited Brown's Chapel in the morning, and the good ladies of the church served lunch which the children and the Superintendent enjoyed very much. At 3:00 o'clock in the afternoon, we visited Pleasant Union. We are very glad we had the opportunity of visiting these churches, and meeting these good people. We are happy that the children could render their program for them. It gives them some idea of the training the children receive at the Christian Orphanage. We have always felt that if our people would visit their own institution—and the Christian Orphanage is their own institution—they would see the golden opportunity of doing a real humane service for the Master by supporting the Orphanage.

By supporting the Orphanage, you visit the sick, you feed the hungry, you clothe the naked, you visit the fatherless, you visit the widow in her affliction. Have you done any of these good deeds? We all want to wear a crown up yonder. We like to sing it. But surely we want to earn the crown, so we can wear it worthily.

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these . . . ye have done it unto me."

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Super.

REPORT FOR SEPTEMBER 15, 1932.

Brought forward $ 9,203.80

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Union, N. C. $ 2.20
Durham 18.15
Happy Home 2.05
Berea 2.30
$ 24.70

Eastern North Carolina Conference:
Pleasant Union $ 6.00
Mebane 6.00
Cary 1.75
Catawba Springs 5.60
Plymouth 5.51
Turner's Chapel 1.36
26.22

Western North Carolina Conference:
Biscoe $ 1.42
High Point 2.90
Pleasant Hill 4.00
Hank's Chapel 2.21
Pleasant Cross 2.50
13.03

Eastern Virginia Conference:
South Norfolk $ 6.52
Dendron 3.00
Rosemont 5.30
Johnson's Grove76
15.58

Valley Virginia Central Conference:
Linville 6.10
Alabama Conference:
Pisgah 1.05

Special Offerings.

Sale of bed 5.00
Total for the week 91.68

Grand total $ 9,295.48

FAMILY ALTAR. (Continued from page 12.)

$2,229,000. Then came that terrible crash, the impotent efforts to reach the men buried in the dead ship, and the passing of thirty-four brave souls caught in that watery trap. And now the wretched remains of the submarine have been sold by the Navy for $3,320.

What speedy depreciation falls upon things and souls! How many evil forces are abroad whose touch upon possessions and lives almost immediately reduces them to worthlessness! The names of the forces of destruction are legion, but the one word, "sin", covers them all.

Back of that ill-fated submarine was the sin of war, of human ambitions and hatreds and greeds which render such hazardous protection necessary to the most peaceful nations. Back of every degeneration is sin. If we feel ourselves slipping, if we fear that we are worth less today than we were worth yesterday to God and to man, let us find out our sin, let us flee from the devil.

Prayer—Keep us up to the mark, O our Creator! As we came from thy gracious hand, so may we remain. And as we have lapsed from thy purity and peace, may we find restoration in thy Son, the Redeemer of souls. In his name. Amen.

It is not necessary to make long prayers, but it is essential to be much alone with God, waiting on his will, hearkening to his voice, lingering in the garden of Scripture for the coming of the Lord God in the dawn or cool of the day. No number of meetings, no fellowship with Christian friends, no amount of Christian activity, can compensate for the neglect of the still hour.—F. B. Meyer.

Eilers Sunday School Maps.

On a Revolving Adjustable Steel Stand

The first 5 maps
are in Set No. 1,
with stand,
Price $15.00

Set No. 2
8 Maps,
Price $20.00

Fine large Maps, In 6 Colors 36x57, on linen finished Cloth. Mounted on a folding steel stand, which can be regulated, so that Maps may be seen to the best advantage. This set contains data for thorough Bible Study. Its large print and Cheerful Colors makes this set very instructive and attractive. Contains the five thoroughly up to date Maps necessary for the study of Bible History. New Testament Palestine, — Old Testament Palestine, — Roman empire and Bible Lands, showing Paul's Travels by Colored lines, — The Exodus, Egypt, showing by Colored lines the wanderings of the Israelites.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN,

1536 East Broad Street,

Richmond, Virginia.

ALL
SELF-
PRONOUNCING

holman Testaments

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2½x4½ inches

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there
was a marriage in
Cana of Galilee;
and the mother of Jesus was there.

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles. $.50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles.60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges.85

VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS
2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges.70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges.90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges. 1.10

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS
With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.
13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges.90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included. 1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4½ inches x 3¼ inch
The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller. It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength. One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4½ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2 The three wise men carrying away into Babylon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Babylon are fourteen unto Christ are fourteen

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges. $1.00
5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included. 1.50
5036PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms 2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET
SIZE
3½x4½
inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faceted Type

CHAPTER 23.

THEN spake Jesus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3½x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms. $.90
4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges. 1.35
4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included. 1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT
4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges. 1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT
4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms. 3.00
4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red. 3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print
Pica, 16mo. Size, 5½x7¼x3¼ inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines.

Specimen of Type.

THE book
of Jesus

PSALMS INCLUDED
2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included. $1.50

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS
Same Large Print as Above
2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included. 2.95

RED LETTER EDITION
Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.
3313PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included. 3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

PROGRAM.

Eighty-Seventh Session of the Georgia and Alabama
Christian Conference
CHRISTIAN CHURCH, RICHLAND, GA.
October 4 and 5, 1932.
FIRST DAY.

Morning Session—10:00 o'Clock.

1. Called to order by the President, Rev. J. D. Dollar.
2. Song service, led by Rev. J. H. Dollar.
3. Devotionals, led by Rev. C. W. Hanson.
4. Enrollment of ministers and delegates.
5. Reading and adoption of program.
6. Welcome address, by Rev. H. M. Gray.
7. Response, by Rev. C. W. Hanson.
8. Report of Executive Committee, by Rev. J. D. Dollar.
9. Annual address by Rev. J. H. Dollar.
10. Appointment of Special Committees.
11. Adjourned for lunch.

Afternoon Session—1:30 o'Clock.

1. Song service, led by Rev. J. H. Dollar.
2. Devotionals, led by Rev. A. H. Sheppard.
3. Report on Education, by Rev. W. C. Carpenter.
4. Address by Dr. Frank E. Jenkins, President of Southern Union College, Wadley, Ala.
5. Report on Foreign Missions by Rev. A. H. Sheppard.
6. Address by Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary.
7. Report on Religious Literature, by Rev. H. M. Gray.
8. Address by Rev. H. M. Gray.
9. Report of Entertainment Committee.
10. Adjournment.

Evening Session—7:00 o'Clock.

Missionary Association Meets.

1. Called to order by Rev. C. W. Hanson.
2. Song service, led by Rev. J. H. Dollar.
3. Devotionals, led by Rev. David W. Sheppard.
4. Annual address by Rev. G. D. Hunt.
5. Business session.
Election of officers.
Roll call and collection of dues.
6. Adjourned, to meet on Tuesday evening after the first Sunday in October, 1933.

SECOND DAY.

Morning Session—8:00 o'Clock.

1. Conference called to order by the President.
2. Song service, led by Rev. J. H. Dollar.
3. Devotionals, led by Rev. J. R. Prince.
4. Reading of the Minutes by the Secretary, Mrs. J. O. Mabrey.
5. Report on Superannuation by Rev. C. W. Hanson.
6. Address by Rev. C. W. Hanson.
7. Report on Christian Endeavor and Sunday School, by Mrs. J. O. Mabrey.
8. Address by Rev. David W. Sheppard.
9. Report on Orphanage, by Chas D. Johnston.
10. Address by Chas. D. Johnston.
11. Sermon.
12. Adjourned for lunch.

Afternoon Session—1:30 o'Clock.

1. Song service, led by Rev. J. H. Dollar.
2. Devotionals, led by Rev. W. C. Carpenter.
3. Report on Moral Reform, by H. B. Floyd.
4. Address by Rev. G. H. Veazey.
5. Report on Home Mission Board, by Rev. J. D. Dollar.
6. Address by Rev. J. D. Dollar.
7. Business session.
Election of officers.
Reports of Special Committees.
8. Final adjournment.

REV. J. D. DOLLAR,
REV. H. M. GRAY,
REV. C. W. HANSON,
Program Committee.

LUTHERAN CHURCH CONFERENCE.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, September 20th and 21st, the Eastern Conference of the Lutheran Church will be held at Coble's Church in eastern Guilford County, six miles south of Whitsett, N. C. This conference will include the ministers and delegates of about thirty Lutheran Churches in the territory between Thomasville on the west and Wilmington on the east.

A special feature this year will be observance of the Washington Bi-Centennial with an address on "the Religion of George Washington," by Dr. W. T. Whitsett, at 11:00 A. M., on Wednesday, September 21st.

The sessions of the conference are open to the public, and many visitors are expected from the various congregations represented.

The blacksmith heats his iron to a white heat to make it ready for molding. The Christian must endure hardships to fit him for the opportunities and privileges of his faith. Daily annoyances teach patience, and unless obstacles are overcome there is no progress made. God's promise is to him who overcomes and what a comfort it is to know that, after many hardships, if we steadfastly conquer them. We are to receive the fruits of paradise.—Christian Advocate.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

WHITLEY MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 15th. Freshmen register on Tuesday, September 13th, and upper classmen on the 15th. Expenses reduced for this session. Write for Catalog and application blank.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. Associate
W. W. STALEY, D. D. Contributing
S. C. HARRELL Contributing
C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. Contributing
ELISHA A. KING, D. D. Contributing
W. C. WICKER, D. D. Contributing
J. T. KERNODLE Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When sending subscriptions for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of year.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

OBITUARIES

ALLEN.

Alonzo Lafayette Allen was born February 24, 1855, and quietly and peacefully passed away to the spirit world August 24, 1932, from Mary Elizabeth Hospital, Raleigh, N. C., where he was receiving treatment. He married Mollie J. Cooke, of Franklin County, December 2, 1880. To this union were born eight children: Milton F. Allen, of Raleigh; Mrs. W. R. Hunt, of Raleigh; Mrs. T. P. Barret, of Franklinton; Mrs. H. A. Hunt, of Littleton; Mrs. R. T. Jones, of Boynton, Va.; Miss Susie Allen, of Raleigh; Worth B. Allen, of Greensboro, and William Joseph Allen, who died in infancy. There are nine grandsons and two granddaughters.

Bro. Allen was the son of George Benjamin Allen and Mary Thompson Allen, who lived, at the time of his birth, near Wake Forest College, Wake County. After his marriage he lived in Wake County for several years, then moved to Franklin County, living in Youngsville and Franklinton. In 1902 he moved to Burlington, where he lived only a few months, and moved to 612 W. Lane St., Raleigh, N. C., whence he was buried in the cemetery at Franklinton, N. C., by Rev. W. C. Wicker, assisted by Rev. C. L. Dowell, of Wake Forest, and Rev. R. L. Randolph, of Franklinton, ministers of the Baptist Church.

Bro. Allen first united with the church at Pope's Chapel Christian Church soon after his marriage, but transferred his membership to the Franklinton Christian Church as a charter member when that church was organized.

THE CONGREGATIONAL LATIN-AMERICAN INSTITUTE AND PILGRIM LATIN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH OF WEST TAMPA, FLA.—

Are helping give the Gospel, which is "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," to the forty thousand Latin people of Tampa. The evangelical forces working among the foreigners of Tampa are by no means covering the territory sufficiently.

Methodists have six preachers, Baptists two, Presbyterians one, Congregationalists one. Church workers and teachers must be supported for this great missionary work. Send check to

LESLIE S. BRAY, Treas.
Route 4, Box 468, - - Tampa, Fla.
Send boxes of clothing to Mrs. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

For literature, write Rev. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

LARGE PRINT TEACHERS' EDITION FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear, Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type.

"From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, 'The kingdom of heaven is at hand.'"

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid. 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid. 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid. 10.65

The large congregation of friends who assembled at the home and at the cemetery and the profusion of floral designs which formed a beautiful bed of flowers, the tender words spoken in prayer by the minister to comfort the sorrowing and the beautiful songs that were sung to voice the Christian spirit of the deceased expressed the high esteem in which he was held by his many friends who were present at the funeral service.

He will be long remembered for his quiet, unassuming Christian spirit, for his gentle manner in home and community among his friends, and for his loyalty to the principles of the Christian life. He has left behind an invaluable legacy—a name and a memory that time will not efface, and eternity will make steadfast and immortal.

W. C. WICKER.

GOD'S ABUNDANT BLESSING.

Whatever blessing is in our cup, it is sure to run over. With our Father the calf is always the fatted calf, the robe is always the best robe, the joy is unspeakable, the peace passeth understanding, the grace so abundant that the recipient has all sufficiency for all things, and abounds in every good work. There is no grudging in God's benevolence!—F. B. Meyer.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

FALL TERM—SEPTEMBER 7

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

Cost for Board, Room and Tuition, including also Entrance, Activity, and Infirmary fees reduced to $273.50 for the College Year. Personal expenses as low as student and parent wish.

All who seek an "A" grade college training for their sons and daughters in an atmosphere of Christian culture, and at minimum cost, are invited to write for the college catalogue and admission blanks.

Address: DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

A Memorial of the Congregational-Christian Union.

FRANK E. JENKINS, Pres. MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD, Dean

Chartered by Southern Christian Convention, June 2, 1922, as Bethlehem College; renamed Southern Union, June 3, 1931.

Will function during the present financial depression as a Junior College only.

FALL TERM WILL OPEN SEPTEMBER 7.

DEPRESSION PRICES.

Depression prices during the coming year, made possible by extensive gardens, careful planning, organization and donations—Tuition, board and room, $192 for entire scholastic year; tuition alone, $48; each payable in six equal installments.

Unsectarian, but thoroughly Christian.

For Information, write—

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXIV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1932.

NUMBER 38.

•• THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ••

Do You Love Pineapple?—

If you do, you evidently have not eaten enough, for there is quite a surplus on hand, and the pineapple packers have had to do something about it. This is what they have done: a new association has been formed of the leading companies operating in Hawaii, and this association has limited the packing this year to 5 million cases—nearly 8 million less than last year. If you love pineapple, you may be able to help eat the industry back on its feet this year.

The Bible in Republican Spain.—

If reports from Madrid be true, Bible reading has greatly increased since the Spanish Republic has passed its declaration of religious freedom. The Bible Society in that city formerly used a handcart in removing Bibles sent in from Great Britain from the station to their local offices. Lately they have replaced this cart with a motor-van. The figures show that there were 190,000 Bibles and New Testaments sold in 1931, as compared with 130,000 sold in 1930, or an increase of over 46 per cent in one year. It is said that two of Spain's present cabinet ministers were educated in Protestant schools, and that the Republican Government is more favorable toward the distribution of Bibles.

Great Britain Speeds Up Train Schedules.—

The distance from Swindon to Paddington is $77\frac{1}{4}$ miles, and the Great Western Railway has just reduced the scheduled running time between these places by two minutes, bringing the average speed of the Cheltenham Flyer between these two points to 71.3 miles per hour. Within the past year trial runs over this same course have been made at speeds averaging more than 80 miles. Not only this schedule, but many others have been boosted by the Great Western Railway, and in its latest schedule, that railway lists 58 express trains with speeds of from 65 to 71.3 miles per hour. In spite of the great speed of operation, Britain's trains are among the safest places in the world today.

The Virginia War Memorial.—

On October 15th, the Carillon erected in Richmond as a Memorial to the Virginians killed in action during the World War, will be dedicated. This monument stands in Byrd Park, and when entirely completed will represent an outlay of approximately $325,000.00. At one time a memorial library was proposed which would provide literature not only locally, but would place its facilities at the command of anyone throughout the State who desired to avail themselves thereof. This library plan was abandoned when the cry against a "utilitarian" memorial was raised by sentimentalists throughout the State.

The carillon is a thing of beauty, but one cannot but ponder whether if given an opportunity to have expressed their wishes, those who have gone "west" would not have voted for the memorial which would have kept them living in the lives of those who would have benefitted by the "utilitarian" edifice.

Diamonds a Gilt Edge Investment.—

People who are inclined to scoff at diamonds being a sensible investment, may be surprised to learn that during the depression they have held up better in value than practically any other commodity or form of security. They, too, are one of the first to turn the tide and again start upward. Within the past few weeks prices of diamonds have advanced from 15 to 35 per cent, according to size and quality of the stones, and demands are heavier than for two years. A perfect stone is always a source of available cash, and in any country. This may be the explanation of the popularity of diamonds with the Jewish race. "Centuries ago," says Business Week, "this harassed and astute race learned that accumulated wealth could best be captured, condensed and stabilized by putting it into diamonds. The diamond could be easily carried, it would be cashed in any country. Rich and poor alike, the Jews still practice their hereditary wisdom."

Mayor Joseph V. McKee.—

With the resignation of Mayor Walker, and his elevation to that post, Joseph V. McKee immediately began the job of putting the city's finances to rights, almost his first official act being to cut his own salary, and those of other employees with salaries in the larger brackets, over whom he had control. Now, turning for a brief moment from things financial, he is probing the city's morals. Only Monday of this week the mayor placed a ban on burlesque shows in the district near 42nd Street and Broadway. In closing these theaters, the mayor said: "New York has no place for the filth these theaters are purveying. They created immorality; they had a bad influence, and, a matter which is of less importance than the issue of morality, they lessened the property values in the section." The mayor explains that he is not setting himself up as a censor. He says that the public will get the kind of shows it demands, that the standards of the theaters are set by the people themselves. But he thinks things are going too far when theatrical houses become breeding places for vice, and so he is taking a hand. Meantime he continues in his efforts to pare $100,000,000 from the city's budget.

A Second Step in the Liquor Fight.—

"Nearly everybody is agreed that the making, selling or shipping of alcoholic liquor should not be a crime," says Collier's, in an editorial in the issue of September 24th. And it uses this statement, radical as it is, for its reason in attacking the enforcement program which is being carried on effectively by Attorney General Mitchell. In this editorial it accuses Mr. Mitchell of responsibility for making criminals of the 200,000 or more violators of the law who, if its figures are correct, will be convicted before the Eighteenth Amendment can be repealed. Not for a moment does the editorial writer take any of the blame for making these criminals upon himself. He fails utterly, seemingly, to realize that these men are no less criminals, should they not be convicted. Yet we agree with him in one thing: these men should no more be considered criminals than the thousands, then in the liquor business, who "legally" aided and abetted crime and debauchery in pre-prohibition days. The pity of it all is that many men and women, some of them active in church and welfare work, have actually been induced to believe the propaganda that is being spread today by such papers. The present law is not incapable of enforcement if those who preach nullification and repeal would work just as hard for its support. Selling liquor is a crime, regardless of the laws that may or may not be passed or repealed.

Reviving the Cardinal.—

Under the above caption, The Christian-Evangelist says: "The Knights of Columbus donated a statue of James Cardinal Gibbons to the United States the other day, and the gift was acknowledged by President Hoover in a somewhat lengthy and highly eulogistic address. Among other things, the President said: 'In his lifetime Cardinal Gibbons won the personal affection of thousands of Americans of every race and of every creed. Millions more, who knew him only through his writings and his public career, shared in this affectionate regard. He stood upon a gentle eminence.' A note of selfishness then creeps in, as our contemporary continues: 'Cardinal Gibbons was one of the most astute ecclesiastical statesmen which the Church of Rome has produced. We see no more reason, however, for this communion to place a statue of him at the capital than there would be for the Methodists to have the President of the United States accept a likeness of Francis Asbury, the Episcopalians one of Phillips Brooks, or the Congregationalists one of Henry Ward Beecher. If the National Capital is to be stocked with memorials of this kind, they should not be confined to one religious faith.' Certainly, the writer of the above is right in saying that these memorials should not be confined to one faith. Just as certainly, no man, regardless of his faith, could lay greater claim to such a memorial than the late Cardinal Gibbons.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

The Tennessee Conference of Congregational Churches meets at Barton Chapel, Robbins, October 26th to 28th. Don West, the Mountain Poet, will be examined for ordination to the gospel ministry at this conference.

Dr. Clarence A. Vincent, of Winter Park, was in the center of the eclipse belt in New Hampshire and had an interesting view of the phenomenon. The topic of his first sermon upon his return to his Florida church was "Eclipse of Faith."

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, president of the North Carolina Woman's Conference, announces that the Conference will meet at Monticello Church, Guilford County, on October 21st, for its all-day annual session, and will be entertained jointly by the Monticello and Reidsville Societies. A full program of the day is being prepared.

Rev. Frank Atkinson, pastor of the church at West Palm Beach, Fla., on Labor Sunday, delivered a sermon, much of which was afterwards published in the Union Labor News. In the sermon, as printed, was quoted the statement of Social Ideals, as adopted by the National Council in 1925. Many labor union men were present to hear the sermon.

Rev. R. T. Grissom, Fancy Gap, Va., writes: "Mrs. Grissom has most of the ladies, old and young, enrolled in Public Health classes. Our Sunday Schools are fine. We have an average of 50 or more at Rocky Ford and an average of 45 at Elk Spur. While these numbers may seem small, we are reaching most of the people in this section who are not enrolled in Sunday School elsewhere."

On Sunday, September 25th, the First Christian Church of Richmond, Va., will celebrate the tenth anniversary of its entrance into the present church edifice. Since that time, however, there has been added a large educational building. A special program is being arranged by the pastor, Rev. Jos. E. McCauley, and friends and former members of the church are invited to be present at the services.

From Editor J. M. Rowland, D. D., Richmond Christian Advocate: "We tip our hat to Dr. L. E. Smith, our friend and brother, the president of Elon College, of the Christian Church. We were happily associated with Dr. Smith when he was doing a great work in his first years at the Christian Temple in Norfolk, and had his presence as a room-mate traveling in the Holy Land. We rejoice in the enlarged usefulness of his life and the blessings that come to him. The Advocate, which he takes and reads, shakes his hand."

Rev. Simon A. Bennett, now teacher at Southern Union College, Wadley, Ala., was a pleasant visitor at THE SUN's editorial office the past week, reporting quite a hopeful opening at the college with problems and prospects inviting and challenging. Prof. Van Cleave, former teacher at Elon, is also with Southern Union and, as a principal of the faculty, is making his contribution to the college and its work. Rev. G. H. Veazey, in addition to his pastoral duties, is the business manager of the college, and reports hopeful prospects.

Concerning the distribution of the Guest Book, the following paragraph from a personal letter may have a suggestion for others: "You are interested in the use which the churches make of the Guest Book, and the various methods of placing them. Let me make a confession. I have to drive myself to make calls, and am planning to use the Guest Book as the occasion for a call on every household before the end of October. Some other way may be better, but I am sure it will be best for me to personally deliver one in every home in my parish as part of the Fall campaign."

For the first time in several weeks the "Suffolk Letter" takes its accustomed place on page 6 of THE SUN. This time it is a letter of personal experiences, and one feels as if one were on the trip with Dr. Staley. The managing editor welcomes Dr. Staley's return to the pages of our paper on the part of its readers, and we are sure that this welcome is unanimous. There is another letter which has been missing for some time: the "Elon Letter." It, too, is with us this week. Dr. Smith is a busy man, but if he realizes just how much this letter means to SUN readers, he will find time to make its visits weekly.

The work of our Newport News Church the past year, under the pastorate of Rev. R. Lee House, has gone well, even better than was anticipated. A rather unique service was rendered the church, which, because of having erected a very substantial building, is struggling with much indebtedness. The new pastor, it comes to light, offered to board in the homes of such members as would take him from month to month at the rate of $40.00 per month, he to pay the same, but the one receiving it agreeing to donate it through the Ladies' Aid Society on the church indebtedness. Just count on the good women of the church to figure out ways and means of helping the church in distress, and you may always count also on the faithful pastor to encourage the women and assist them in any way he can in their generous undertakings.

Rev. J. F. Blackburn, of Atlanta, Ga., has the sympathy of his host of friends in the Southeast in the death of his wife, which occurred at their old home, 1542 S. Gordon Street. Mrs. Blackburn was sixty-four years of age, and had lived in Atlanta for forty years. Mr. Blackburn is an early graduate of Atlanta Seminary, and for many years was superintendent of the Congregational Sunday School Society in the Southeast. His work among the churches of Alabama and Georgia was of great value, and he was honored and beloved wherever he went. He retired about seven years ago, and he and Mrs. Blackburn have spent several winters in Florida. Mrs. Blackburn's funeral was conducted by Dr. Witherspoon Dodge. During the many years of their married life she was a sympathetic sharer in his Christian life and service.

The Mission Board of the Southern Convention was in annual session at Suffolk, Va., Wednesday, September 14th. Routine business was transacted and plans laid for the coming year, which it is hoped will result in larger and better work in our mission fields at home and abroad. Reports were made of work done and appropriations made in the several fields the past year, all of which were favorable and hopeful, but owing to decreased donations to missions, no new appropriations could be made. In fact, some retrenchment was ordered, because the board was confronted with pledges and deficits that could not be met. States and governments, finding themselves struggling with indebtedness, can recover by laying on taxes. The only hope for the church to recover is through the willing self-denial of those seeking a closer communion and walk with their Lord, and a larger liberality on the part of those who are willing to make investment and lay up some treasure "where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt." Those in attendance at the Mission Board session were: J. E. West, J. M. Darden, W. W. Staley, Mrs. J. A. Williams, K. B. Johnson, G. O. Lankford, Mrs. C. H. Rowland, A. W. Andes, J. O. Atkinson. Two new members were absent because of illness: Mrs. R. T. Bradford and Miss Ida S. Robinson, the latter because of the illness of a sister. The board gladly welcomes as a new member, elected at the last session of the Southern Convention, Rev. A. W. Andes, Harrisonburg, Va. Mrs. W. V. Leathers, treasurer, Eastern Virginia Woman's Board, acted as proxy for Mrs. Bradford. Dr. W. W. Staley, one of the ever faithful, traveled till 2:00 A. M., the night before in order to be present at the meeting. Bro. K. B. Johnson, another of the faithful, drove from 4:00 A. M. till 9:30 in order to give the day to the meeting of the board. We often think that those not on committees and boards of the church, little realize how faithful many are in giving, without a penny's reward, faithful service to the work of the church and the kingdom.

CONVENTION OFFICERS AND COMMITTEES.

In accordance with the action of the Executive Board of the Southern Christian Convention taken on Saturday, September 10th, the following officers and committee members take office from that date:

President—Rev. Stanley C. Harrell.

Vice-Presidents—Revs. John Britton Clark and C. H. Rowland.

Secretary—Dr. I. W. Johnson.

Assistant Secretaries—Rev. George N. Edwards and Mrs. Mary A. Rollings.

Treasurer—Rev. W. C. Wicker.

Mission Secretary—J. O. Atkinson.

Associate Mission Secretary—Dr. W. Knighton Bloom.

Executive Board—S. C. Harrell, W. W. Staley, C. H. Rowland, E. E. Holland, Milo J. Sweet, J. Britton Clark.

Board of Education—L. E. Smith, W. W. Staley, E. L. Moffitt, H. C. Newell, E. E. Holland, F. E. Jenkins.

Board of Religious Education—F. C. Lester, E. T. Holland, Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Miss Priscilla Chase, C. H. Stephenson, J. F. Morgan, W. H. Baker, H. S. Hardcastle, Miss Ruth Sargeant, George Penn.

Mission Board—J. E. West, Mrs. J. A. Williams, Mrs. R. T. Bradford, A. W. Andes, J. M. Darden, W. W. Staley, K. B. Johnson, Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Miss Ida Robinson, G. O. Lankford.

Board of Superannuation—J. O. Atkinson, T. E. White, J. M. Fix, D. R. Fonville, Mrs. W. R. Sellers.

Board of Publications—C. H. Rowland, Chairman; P. H. Fleming, N. G. Newman, Milo J. Sweet, W. T. Scott.

Staff of The Christian Sun—Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Editor; Associate Editor: E. C. Gillette; Contributing Editors: C. Rexford Raymond, Elisha A. King, W. W. Staley, S. C. Harrell, W. C. Wicker; Managing Editor, J. T. Kernodle.

Delegates to the General Council of Congregational and Christian Churches—Dr. J. O. Atkinson (four years), Rev. Stanley C. Harrell (four years), Dr. L. E. Smith (two years), Dr. J. Edward Kirby (two years), Dr. W. W. Staley (two years), Dr. C. H. Rowland (two years).

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

Following is the program of the Alabama Christian Conference and the East Alabama Association of Congregational Churches, to be held at Antioch Church, four miles south of Rcancke, Ala., beginning Tuesday, October 11th, and continuing two days:

FIRST DAY.Morning Session—10:00 o'Clock.

Theme—"That we all may be one."

Called to order by the President of the Alabama Christian Conference, or in his absence, by Rev. F. P. Ensminger, D. D., of the Congregational Church.

Devotional service, conducted by Rev. J. F. Bean.

Enrollment of ministers and delegates, and of visiting ministers and brethren of other churches and conferences.

Adjourned for lunch.

Afternoon Session—1:30 o'Clock.

Meeting called to order by presiding officer.

Devotional service, conducted by Rev. J. H. Hughes.

Theme of the meeting to be discussed under the following heads, by those whose names are attached to each subject:

1. "What have we in common, as it relates to our cooperation and fellowship?" Revs. C. W. Carter and J. P. Bean.
2. "As it relates to our forms and ceremonies and customs in religious worship." Revs. J. C. Brown and J. H. Hughes.
3. "As it relates to our methods of conducting revival meetings." Revs. G. H. Veazey and A. W. Stone.
4. "As it relates to supplying our rural churches with efficient leadership." Miss Davison.
5. "As it relates to our educational institutions and their interests." Dr. F. E. Jenkins and Rev. G. H. Veazey.
6. "As it relates to our missionary interests and work." Dr. F. P. Ensminger and Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Secretary of Missions for the Southern Christian Convention.
7. "As it relates to our publications and literature." Rev. E. H. Sperrow and Dr. J. O. Atkinson.
8. "As it relates to our Orphanage." Chas. D. Johnston.
9. "As it relates to a closer relation between the two organizations." Revs. J. P. Bean and John Taylor.

4:30 o'Clock.

Young People's Rally, under the direction of Miss Marguerite Davison, followed by picnic supper and vesper service, conducted by the young people of Antioch Church.

Evening Session—7:00 o'Clock.

Devotional service, conducted by Rev. A. W. Stone.

Annual sermon, by Dr. Frank E. Jenkins; alternate, Rev. C. W. Carter.

Communion service, conducted by Revs. E. H. Sperrow and J. D. Dollar.

Election of officers and appointment of committees.

SECOND DAY.Morning Session—10:00 o'Clock.

Reports of Committees on Education, Schools and Colleges.

Address, by Dr. F. E. Jenkins.

Report on Missions.

Address, by Dr. J. O. Atkinson.

Report of Committee on Moral Reform. Topic for discussion: "How may we practice Christianity in Alabama for the coming year." Revs. W. T. Meacham and J. C. Brown.

Memorial services for the following deceased ministers of the Congregational Church: Rev. Willis J. Dunaway, by Rev. H. T. McKay and Rev. Thos.

J. Reynolds. This service will be held at such time as the Conference may elect.

A business meeting will be held by each organization to transact such business as may be of interest to the respective bodies.

The Conference will close with a great fellowship meeting, conducted by Rev. C. W. Carter and Dr. F. P. Ensminger.

G. D. HUNT,

F. D. ENSMINGER,
Committee.

ALABAMA AND GEORGIA CONFERENCE.

Following is the program of the Eighty-seventh Session of the Georgia and Alabama Christian Conference, to be held at the Christian Church, Richland, Ga., October 4 and 5, 1932:

FIRST DAY.Morning Session—10:00 o'Clock.

1. Called to order by the President, Rev. J. D. Dollar.
2. Song service, led by Rev. J. H. Dollar.
3. Devotionals, led by Rev. C. W. Hanson.
4. Enrollment of ministers and delegates.
5. Reading and adoption of program.
6. Welcome address, by Rev. H. M. Gray.
7. Response, by Rev. C. W. Hanson.
8. Report of Executive Committee, by Rev. J. D. Dollar.
9. Annual address by Rev. J. H. Dollar.
10. Appointment of Special Committees.
11. Adjourned for lunch.

Afternoon Session—1:30 o'Clock.

1. Song service, led by Rev. J. H. Dollar.
2. Devotionals, led by Rev. A. H. Sheppard.
3. Report on Education, by Rev. W. C. Carpenter.
4. Address by Dr. Frank E. Jenkins, President of Southern Union College, Wadley, Ala.
5. Report on Foreign Missions by Rev. A. H. Sheppard.
6. Address by Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary.
7. Report on Religious Literature, by Rev. H. M. Gray.
8. Address by Rev. H. M. Gray.
9. Report of Entertainment Committee.
10. Adjournment.

Evening Session—7:00 o'Clock.Missionary Association Meets.

1. Called to order by Rev. C. W. Hanson.
2. Song service, led by Rev. J. H. Dollar.
3. Devotionals, led by Rev. David W. Sheppard.
4. Annual address by Rev. G. D. Hunt.
5. Business session.
Election of officers.
Roll call and collection of dues.
6. Adjourned, to meet on Tuesday evening after the first Sunday in October, 1933.

SECOND DAY.Morning Session—8:00 o'Clock.

1. Conference called to order by the President.
2. Song service, led by Rev. J. H. Dollar.
3. Devotionals, led by Rev. J. R. Princee.
4. Reading of the Minutes by the Secretary, Mrs. J. O. Mabrey.
5. Report on Superannuation by Rev. C. W. Hanson.
6. Address by Rev. C. W. Hanson.
7. Report on Christian Endeavor and Sunday School, by Mrs. J. O. Mabrey.
8. Address by Rev. David W. Sheppard.
9. Report on Orphanage, by Chas. D. Johnston.
10. Address by Chas. D. Johnston.
11. Sermon.
12. Adjourned for lunch.

Afternoon Session—1:30 o'Clock.

1. Song service, led by Rev. J. H. Dollar.
2. Devotionals, led by Rev. W. C. Carpenter.

3. Report on Moral Reform, by H. B. Floyd.
4. Address by Rev. G. H. Veazey.
5. Report on Home Mission Board, by Rev. J. D. Dollar.
6. Address by Rev. J. D. Dollar.
7. Business session.
Election of officers.
Reports of Special Committees.
8. Final adjournment.

REV. J. D. DOLLAR,
REV. H. M. GRAY,
REV. C. W. HANSON,
Program Committee.

THE CURSE OF LOW PRICES.

Back in 1904, housewives became very much concerned because prices were rising rapidly. Eggs went from the old-time shilling a dozen to 20 cents. Butter cost a quarter. A frying-sized chicken could no longer be bought for 25 cents. The country coined the phrase, "The high cost of living," and argued methods of bringing it down. Prices continued to mount and prosperity mounted with them. People became accustomed to new standards of value. Up to a certain point income rose with prices. After that, disparity developed, and the smash came.

Now we are back to 1904 with some prices, and back to 1913 with nearly all. The other day, a wealthy Carolinian, who has interested himself in providing relief for the needy people around him, decided to show a group of agricultural economists what can be done in feeding people cheaply. He served them an excellent lunch, and then proved to them that it cost a little less than 5 cents a plate. He has found that wise buying will make it possible for a family of five to keep alive on 50 cents a week—a week, not a day—and that $1.00 a week will subsist a family on all essentials except milk products. It is a monotonous diet, but it will nourish a family and keep it from pellagra.

In one sense, of course, it is a mercy that prices are so low when so many million Americans have to live on reduced incomes or be supported by charity. On the other hand, in any condition short of famine itself, there would not be such need if prices were higher, for if the producer got more for his goods, he could buy more, and thereby could create work for the idle. There is a curious and sometimes a baffling interplay of forces in the regulation of prices. Generalization is dangerous. But when the survivors of this depression are asked whether they prefer high or low prices, their answer probably will be: "Give us high prices—and we will take our chance of a high income to pay them." Richmond News Leader.

HOLY NECK.

The annual revival services were held at Holy Neck Christian Church, Nansemond County, Va., September 4th to 9th, inclusive, with two services each day. The preaching was done by the pastor, and the singing was conducted by W. H. Baker, of Newport News, Va.

The attendance was large and the interest was good. There were ten professions, all of whom were received into the church and baptized. The services were enjoyed by the Christian people, and especially the singing and leadership of Mr. Baker.

N. G. NEWMAN.

Self-realization is the primary law of life. It is not selfish to cultivate one's faculties or to utilize one's opportunities. Faculties and opportunities are possessed only as they are developed and used, and without cultivation shivel and disappear.—Francis W. Peabody.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. W. STALEY C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

W. C. WICKER

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

CHANGING TIMES.

Nothing indicates the changes of time more clearly than the method of bank looting and robbery. A few years ago banks, when looted and wrecked, were generally carried off by cashiers, clerks or officials of the bank. They ran away to Canada or elsewhere with their loot or bad accounts to escape the law. This was once the general method in vogue of wrecking banks. Then a little later came the bank robber with dynamite, explosives in the dead hours of the still night. The robber got his loot while the people slept, muffling as best he could the sound of the explosion to prevent disturbing the town constable. That, too, was a custom of the recent past.

It is the fashion now to rob banks in the broad open daytime, while officials are in place and the work of the day is being done. A few days ago, bandits appeared in the city of Durham and escaped with $13,000.00 from a bank. Only a few days ago, bandits appeared at Denton, a small town, and went off with a large part of the deposits. In brief, the size of the town, or the population of the city, seem to have no weight with the bandits. Neither New York nor Chicago, neither Ford's Cross Roads nor Israel's Knob, if large enough to have a bank, figure in the matter so far as population and business are concerned. The largest loot carried off was that recently taken from a Chicago bank, estimated at between a quarter of a million and a million dollars. In this last instance the bandits went at their business as an all-day job of it, having to drill through a 15-inch all-steel plate, requiring fourteen hours of their deft service to get at their prize. So within a little more than a decade the fashion of dealing with banks on the part of robbers has changed, the change being marked constantly with more and more boldness, daring, adventure, ruthlessness, more defiance of law and order.

One traces in this one of the terrible consequences of war. The world went to war shot the law to pieces, disturbed the civil, moral and spiritual equilibrium of mankind; with gun, sword and bayonet openly defied that fundamental law of God, which said: "Thou shalt not kill," and an equally fundamental law of God: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and thy neighbor as thyself." It is the fundamental law of God that has been violated, and man cannot tear away the foundations without suffering the consequence. The very bedrock of civilization and of Christianity was disturbed in the explosion and blast of the World War.

Nations defied the law of God by boldly and recklessly flying at the throat, and seeking by boldness and intrepid daring, to destroy other nations. We suffer today the consequences, all the evil consequences, of the back-wash of the World War. The only hope of overcoming this, or of recovering from the shock, is through that adventure in faith that leads to obedience, even obedience to will and voice of the mighty Son of God.

J. O. A.

RECOVERING FAITH.

We have lost faith because we have taken our eyes from God, and fixed them on man. Our chief concern in these days is with man and not with God. A man becomes prominent in church and goes wrong morally and religiously. When we discovered this moral imbecility, our faith received a jar and we charged it up to the church and to religion.

In this we charged it all to the wrong account. God has not gone wrong; God never has gone wrong; the Son of God has never gone wrong. He never will. We were never invited to acquire our faith by investing our confidence in man. We acquire faith by waiting on God and by looking at his Son, the author and finisher of our faith. Man is neither the author, nor should he be the finisher of our faith. He is not the source, neither should he be the destruction of our faith. What the world needs today is to recover its faith in God.

There is a righteousness of God and there is a righteousness of man. Paul emphasized this distinction in Romans 10:3: "For they being ignorant of God's righteousness, and going about to establish their own righteousness, have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God." And what Paul insists on is that we believe in God and not in man. God never faileth. Man in the weakness of human nature does fail, and very often. We suffer the loss of faith in self, in fellowmen in God, because we have looked so much and so long at our own weaknesses, the frailties, faults and weaknesses of our fellowman, that we have forgotten or have obscured God, who, through his Son, is both the author and the finisher of our faith. We cannot have a firm, fixed, finished faith while we look at and judge men. We must lift our eyes unto him from whom cometh our faith as well as our help.

J. O. A.

PREACHING FOR THESE TIMES.

On numerous occasions we have read discouraging statistics showing a decrease in church attendance. This is counter-balancer, somewhat, by occasional reports that claim a deeper interest in religion on the part of the population generally. It is said that "hard times" drives people to church. We do not know how true this is, but we have every reason to believe that religious people who have lost money and some who have had their wages cut, or are out of work, need the help, consolation and comfort of religion. Such people, and there are many of them, need the help the church can give. If they go to church and listen to a sermon that deals with the hard times, political propaganda, denominational progress, even prohibition or the sins of youth or the spread of crime, they go away unhelped, uncomfortable, and more or less discouraged. They are inclined to think the church has nothing for them. Such people turn to various cults and find considerable help in their literature. The church no longer touches their lives and they seldom return.

What people need today is religion, a religion that helps, that finds them where they are and lifts them up and makes them strong to meet the discouragements of life. They need God as an available God, one who cares and is interested in their welfare. Jesus Christ revealed God as such a Father. People need to understand and appreciate prayer and come to practice it in their present need. The preacher of today could be of wonderful help to discouraged and bewildered folks by meeting this need in a kindly, sympathetic way. If people go to church and find a man in the pulpit that is himself human and sympathetic, who in his prayers and his talk utters something vitally religious and helpful, the people feel it, know it, appreciate it and go away better fitted to face life triumphantly.

The church needs to be, and can be, a hopeful, cheerful, dynamic center, a power house, warm with spiritual fire and radiant living.

E. A. K.

FIRST THINGS FIRST.

A rich woman died the other day, and all the newspapers made it a first page story. Her life was not a happy one although, and because, she had made her life a search for happiness. The chase for money and fame in hope that they will bring happiness is the pursuit of the fatal will-o'-the-wisp that brings the pursuer finally to the Dismal Swamp of failure. Happiness is not the goal of life. When attained it is found to be a by-product. Life is given us that we may achieve character. And when we start to say what character is, we are driven back upon our thought about the universe in which we live. If at the heart of the universe there is eternal goodness, truth and beauty, and there is a loving purpose which sustains the world, then character means that we shall attain goodness, truth and beauty. This kind of victorious living is achieved when we put the realm of God first in our program of life.

C. R. R.

LOVE AND PRAYER.

Since God is love only those who love can prevail with God in prayer. The poet, Coleridge, penned this truth in the couplet:

"He prayeth well who loveth well,
Both man and bird and beast;
He prayeth best who loveth best
All things both great and small."

The hand of God created, and moves, the universe, and his hand is directed by love, since he is love and so "prayers move the hand that moves the universe."

If, therefore, we would pray the prevailing prayer, we must cultivate love in our hearts. While prayer is but the voice of faith, faith is little where love is little, and our faith in God becomes stronger, only as we love God and the peoples and the things about us, which he has made and which show his handiwork.

J. O. A.

FOR AN AUTUMN "DRIVE."

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS.

Less for their own sake's than for the public's, the churches should be seriously at the business of a Fall drive this year. For the bewildered and burdened people are readier than ever for leadership and guidance.

Without any pretentious machinery or "movement," but by agreement and cooperation of local units, under pastoral leadership, it should easily be possible for all churches to pursue unwonted activity in behalf of three great objectives; upon which they are already in complete agreement.

First of all, and fundamentally important, is the gathering of children and young people into the Sunday Schools. Men who deal in statistics tell us that there are fourteen million young people of school age in this country who are not receiving any religious instruction whatsoever. Every local community has its proportion of children and youth outside of the Sunday School, who could be recruited by little more effort than that of a personal invitation. It should be a simple matter to conduct a "drive," participated in by old and young, for a great increase in Sunday School enrollment.

Second in importance—many will say first—is the grave problem of how to increase church attendance.

There are ominously too many unemployed pews in the land.

Religious "leaders," engaged in weighty matters of polity and finance, pay scant heed to this question, which underlies all other aspects of our church life.

Obviously, if the church does not get the people into her pews, she cannot get them anywhere else. Before any influence can be exerted upon the public by the clergy or the organization, men and women must be got into the pews. Over-shadowing all other grave concerns of the church today is this one of widespread non-attendance upon the public services of divine worship.

It should be possible to create a vogue of church-going. This, however, requires cooperation and concerted activity. Methods are many, and mostly obvious. The voice of the nation's leaders should be heard in support of this activity. Display advertisements in the newspapers, when of the right sort, have proved powerfully effective; and they have the advantage of enlisting active press support for a "Go-to-Church" campaign.

Third, and least tangible and most difficult of the objectives of an Autumn "drive" should be an increase of personal piety. Only praying, Bible-studying, God-experiencing Christians can maintain the life and work of the church, and the creation of such characters is the church's first work.

WILL THE PRODIGAL COME TO HIMSELF?

Dr. H. C. Morrison likens the present state of the American nation to that of the Prodigal Son. He says: "The trouble with this nation is, that it has gone into a far country; the people are in a dazed state of mind; they have gotten to the hog-pen stage and are squealing for beer. A group of men in a far worse state of mind than that of the average peaceable lunatic are urging the people to parade the streets, and rend the air with cries, 'Give us beer! To hades with the law! We want to get drunk! Whether we have anything to eat or not, we will have liquor, if we have to fight for it!'"

Get that crowd started good and it is a serious question if you can ever stop them. There is hope for one prodigal who has come to himself, and has fully made up his mind that he will go home and confess his sins to his father, but what about a hundred million prodigals who have not come to themselves, and refuse to reason, or listen to warning! The Ship of State has sprung many leaks; the waves are rolling high, and are beginning to wash the deck; the wind is turning into a mad hurricane; there is mutiny on board; the people have broken into the liquor room, and, in spite of every protest of the few remaining sober men, they are crowding on more sails and steering for the rocks.

Believe it or not, there are men running loose in this nation, men in high places of authority, who believe and insist, that the way out of all our troubles is to get on a big continuous drunk. They are crying long and loud for liquor and, shocking to contemplate, millions of church members will follow after and vote with these leaders on into the night of deeper darkness. Will this nation ever come to itself? Many prodigals never did. If this nation does not have an awakening soon, it will go over the abyss and, if it does, the crash will shake the world. W.

In a country home some time ago a father and son drank intoxicating liquor, and in the hideous brawl that ensued, the father shot the son to death. In jail, the father, with voice choked by sobs and tears, raves and moans, according to local newspapers. "I am the one who should be dead. I would a thousand times rather be dead than to have killed my son. I loved my boy. God knows I did. I can see him now as he used to smile up at me, my only son." Liquor did it. Liquor is ruining this country today. It is the downfall of mankind.

Yet howling galleries and panic-stricken political conventions would legalize the selling of intoxicating drinks and multiply the agencies to do it.—Christian Advocate.

Whoever allows himself to get out of patience, comes to the falling-off place before he is aware of it. By indulging in temper and saying cruel words, a man loses control of himself, and his tongue grows keener and more bitter and he effects nothing and hurts forever the man he attacks. Do not turn friendship into hatred by hasty speech. "By conquering yourself, you have conquered me," were the words accompanying the capitulation of a great Indian chief to one of our colonial governors. Think it over.—John Wana-maker.

Special Combination Subscription Offer!

A special arrangement has been made whereby those who desire to do so may receive both THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for just a little more than they now pay for one of these papers.

Beginning immediately, we will accept subscriptions for the two papers at the price of $3.75 for the combined subscription. This means to SUN readers that for only $1.75 additional they may receive the great wealth of knowledge that The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty brings weekly. Those who are already subscribers for the latter paper may add THE SUN to their list for only 75 cents for the whole year.

You do not have to wait until your subscription to one or the other paper has expired, but send in your subscription now. You will begin immediately to receive the other paper and that which you are already receiving will be marked up a year in advance.

While this offer is open to everyone, it should appeal especially to the pastors and lay workers in the Southeast Convention, and we beg them to take advantage of this opportunity.

It is, of course, understood that under this special offer all subscriptions must be in advance, and must be sent directly to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va., or to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

DEAR SIRs:

Please (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my present subscription one year) to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my subscription one year) to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

(Please mark out the words not applicable.)

I enclose, herewith, check or money order for $3.75 to cover same.

M

Street No. or R. F. D.

City and State.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

It is now two months and a half since I have made an effort to write, even a personal letter. My stay at Lakeview Hospital, Suffolk, is hardly a memory as I was in so much pain in my left eye that I scarcely remember anything that took place while there. But doctors and nurses gave me such attention that I feel grateful to them, and the many friends who kept my room full of beautiful flowers.

The operation which relieved my left eye of intense pain and its sight, prepared the way for gradual improvement which is still going on; but this is the first attempt to write a page.

Since leaving Lakeview I have spent the time in bed, lounges, chairs and auto seats, which I have enjoyed. I have attended several funerals and have made more than a hundred visits to sick people, both kindred and friends. I have also enjoyed an auto trip to Asheville, N. C., and spent three nights with Horace W. Phillips and wife at their summer home at Asheville. Their hospitality was unequalled so far as my experience goes; and I had with me my three daughters, Bessie, Annie and Willie, and Bessie's son, Wm. Staley Cheatham. During our stay as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, and their boy, Horace, Mr. Phillips carried us over Asheville and the mountains, one day over a hundred miles in his car. In addition to the city and the mountains, Mr. Phillips carried us through Hendersonville, Flat Rock, and down into South Carolina. We visited some relatives, Rev. J. H. Mackintosh, who married Mary Graham Lawrence. He has been down with T. B. for several years, but is resting well in that mountain air.

We visited also Mr. and Mrs. J. Monroe Harris. The latter was well known as Mrs. Lizzie Bryan.

After leaving Asheville on Sunday morning, we stopped at an Episcopal Church, where service was held, and then drove on by Chimney Rock, Lake Lane, and through Charlotte, where we made some visits and then on to Statesville, and spent the night with Mr. and Mrs. Land. Mrs. Land is the daughter of the late Judge B. F. Long, who graduated from Trinity College with Senator Lee Overman and me. He was, also, a near relative of mine. His widow was in California and we regretted not to see her; but her daughter and husband gave us welcome, hospitality and a benediction when we left. We saw, also, Mrs. Barnett Adams, our good neighbor in Graham, and once a teacher of music in Elon College.

Then on to Greensboro, where we enjoyed a visit with Dr. C. H. Rowland and family, and Miss Florence Wilson, once in charge of music at Elon College, and no better has ever served there.

From Greensboro to Elon to spend the night with my sister, Mrs. Clendening, and to make several calls. In Elon College we saw President L. E. Smith, Drs. Atkinson, Newman, Wicker, and others. Then to Burlington, Graham, and Raleigh making calls as we went. We found Edgar Long, son of the late Dr. Wm. S. Long, confined to his room with affliction. In Durham we called on Mrs. Sue Jones and her daughter, Ruth—Mrs. June Kernodle. Rev. Stanley C. Harrell and wife called on us there.

On to Louisburg, supper with Mrs. Ben T. Holden, then, leaving there at 9:30 P. M., we arrived in Suffolk at 2:30 A. M., and had a full moon, almost no cars on the road, and a pleasant ride.

Bessie and William left Thursday morning, September 15th, for Washington, and it has rained all day.

W. W. STALEY.

ELON LETTER.

On Tuesday, September 13th, Elon College opened her doors for the freshmen, who came in advance of the upper-classmen for a period of orientation. The upper-classmen began arriving Thursday, and are still coming in. We have put forth very strenuous efforts during the summer endeavoring to interest prospective students in Elon. Some very fine work has been done and at this date, we feel greatly encouraged. The outlook for the college is good. Our enrollment, at present, is running a bit behind the same date last year. We have enrolled to date about 225. 105 are new students, 86 freshmen, and 19 upper-classmen.

This is a splendid achievement considering conditions in general and the handicaps that we had to overcome. A number of old students whom we are expecting have not yet reached the hill. We had only 180 students after graduating such a large class last year. We are hoping to have at least 150 of these back. Our enrollment would perhaps have been up to last year had we not been compelled to require all who matriculated to arrange to pay expenses. We have had to let about a dozen students go because of their inability to pay. This is a difficult thing to do, but, of course, the college is no position to advance money for expenses of students.

We hope that those who are interested in the college, and who may read this article, will feel moved to lend financial assistance to our institution that we may be in a position to meet the needs of the young men and young women who are ambitious for life's training. The financial side of the opening is a bit different. With a slightly decreased enrollment, we are running a bit ahead of last year in collections to date. This is very encouraging.

With the cooperation of the alumni, members of the church and friends of the college in this particular, I am sure that we can make a good record this year. We are starting out with the necessity and determination of balancing our budget this year. If this can be done, it will be an achievement. We are asking cooperation on the part of all.

L. E. SMITH.

ASSOCIATION MEETINGS IN ALABAMA.

The Alabama Conference of Congregational and Christian Churches is composed of the Alabama Christian Conference, the West Florida Association and North, Central, South and East Associations. The East Association and the Alabama Christian Conference occupy much the same territory. They are considering federation. The East Association adjourned to meet with the Alabama Christian Conference at Antioch Christian Church, Roanoke, on October 11th and 12th. The West Florida Association meets in November. The North, Central, South and East have been held.

The North Association of the Congregational and Christian Churches has met with the active Mt. Grove Church at Steppville. Over 400 new members were reported. One new church was received, the Independent Congregational Church of Birmingham, of which Dr. Wm. T. Morgan is pastor. It began with 77 members and is holding its services in the Birmingham Conservatory of Music. Dr. Morgan, who is nationally known for his work at the Miners' Re-education Center at Seloca, is pastor.

One nice little new church building is reported for the Rock Springs Church south of Haleyville. A significant contribution to the program was the address of Judge Louise Owings Charlton, of Birmingham, who is United States Commissioner of North Alabama. She said that she envied those who had been reared in a free religious atmosphere. She is from Louisville, Ky. The young people's and church school work in North Alabama is promising. A few over 1,000 enrolled in Sunday School. The Christian Endeavor and church school work made a distinctive advance.

The Central Association meeting was held at Union Church near Mt. Creek. This Association carried out most fully the very theme of the discussion of "Real Christianity, and Some of Its Applications." The address by Rev. E. W. Butler, of Thorsby, on "Christianity as Applied to Our Political and Economic Life," was significant.

The young people of Thorsby presented a nice little pacifist play.

The Central Association leads in the number of active Women's Societies. It reported a gain in church membership. A parsonage was built at Eastview Church during the year. The churches did considerable tornado relief work.

The South Association met with the New Bethel Church, near Glenwood. This is the most inaccessible church of the group. The people worked the roads in preparation for the meeting, and butchered a yearling and two shoats to get meat for the visitors. A new church, Burkett's Chapel, was received into fellowship. The parsonage at the Antioch Church was taken down and re-built, and a building is under roof for the Andalusia-Cold Water Church.

A short session of the East Association was held at Oak Hill Church, where Mr. A. W. Stone, licentiate pastor of the church, was ordained. One new church, Bethany, was received into the Association, which adjourned to meet with the Alabama Christian Conference on October 11th and 12th.

In spite of the depression, the Alabama fellowship has held its own and grown in membership, interest and morale. 900 people greeted Dr. Mordecai at his first service in Birmingham on September 4th.

The new Independent Congregational Church of Birmingham has an excellent group and is well organized. It has a vested choir and three Young People's Societies.

The Alabama Conference of Congregational and Christian Churches is to be held at Mt. Olive Church, Tallassee, October 18th to 20th.

F. P. ENSMINGER.

LIBERTY (VANCE) PASTORATE.

We had a very good meeting at Shallow Ford the second week in July. Rev. R. L. House of Newport News, Va., came and did the preaching. We feel that the church has been greatly revived and that much good was done in the community. A number came forward, stating that they had joined the church when they were small, but had not lived as they ought. They dedicated their lives to Christ anew. Many hearts were revived and the services of Bro. House were greatly appreciated as well as inspiring to the heart and soul.

On Sunday, July 17th, we began the meeting at Liberty (Vance). Rev. R. A. Whitten, of Henderson, N. C., assisted in this meeting, with two services each day for eleven days. Large audiences attended each service, and a revival of God's love came to many hearts. Several professions were made, and seven united with the church.

Bro. Whitten brought inspiring messages of God's love and saving power. As a result of the meeting the people were drawn nearer to God, and we trust that the revival spirit will not die, but continue through the coming year.

On Sunday, August 7th, the writer began a meeting at Martha's Chapel and continued until Friday night, with services at 3:00 and 8:00 o'clock. Two were received into church fellowship, and many were helped spiritually. A revival cannot be judged from the visible results. Much goes on in the soul that men cannot see. God has said that his word would not return unto him void. We still believe his promise.

Monday, August 29th, we began a revival at Beulah, Wake County, with two services a day. Rev. J. Ray Dickens, of Fuquay Springs, N. C., came and did the preaching for the first week. Bro. Dickens brought inspirational and heart-stirring messages which showed the people their hearts' needs. As a result many came saying that they had not lived Christian lives. Others came who had never made a profession and accepted Christ as their personal Saviour.

Bro. Dickens could not stay any longer than the first week since he had a meeting scheduled at New Hope for the next week. Such a great interest had been taken that the people wanted the meeting to continue. The writer, too, felt that the need was great and that the harvest was ripe. Therefore, he did the preaching for another week. God blessed us in a great way the second week, as well as the first. All of the services were well attended and there was not room to accommodate the people at some of the evening services. Eighteen persons were admitted into church fellowship.

The members of Beulah have recently moved the church to a better location. The result is that more interest is being taken and the church is in a position to make more progress.

May God richly bless each of these churches and may the people ever feel his abiding presence.

S. E. MADREN.

Henderson, N. C.

ROANOKE, ALA.

Our work here is closing for the conference year in fairly good condition, spiritually. But I fear we will come up short on our financial obligations. However, if we will do our best the few remaining weeks, we will be able to do something for the support of the church.

At one of my churches, the good women are going to give some hens and eggs for Missions. If our men would go and do likewise with what they have, the Kingdom of God would not go lacking. I doubt if any man or woman of the present generation has seen a time like this through which we are passing, and we must somehow come to the rescue in saving the church. The religion of Jesus Christ is our strength, he is our refuge. A cup of cold water, given in his name, will not lose its reward. A hen given for Missions, a bushel of corn given to the pastor, or any like contribution made for kingdom service always meets with the approval of our Lord, and somehow makes the donor feel glad. It is, therefore, more blessed to give than to receive.

I am hoping that our interest in, and for, the various enterprises of our church will be strengthened as we enter the new conference year. We must adapt ourselves to our conditions. If we will do this patiently, in the fear of the Lord, we will somehow be able to carry on.

I am very much concerned about Southern Union College. If the citizenship of our country, and the ministers and members of our church here will remember this institution in their prayers, and send contributions of such things as they can reasonably spare, the College will live and grow.

I predict that one day in the future this College will be greatly appreciated by the citizens of this good country. It has passed the experimental stage for efficiency. It is now more permanently located in the minds of our own people, and just as soon as the wheels of industry can move and the unemployed can secure positions at living wages, and just as soon as our common people can provide themselves with comfortable raiment and necessary food, then these institutions of the church, and the church itself, with its self-sacrificing ministry, will be better supported. Brethren, if we can stand still in this crisis, we are going forward. God give us men of courage to lead us, and a loyal constituency to follow. May the work of the King be safe in our hands, is the prayer of one who has given his best for the Master and the Christian Church.

G. D. HUNT.

REVIVAL AT MT. ZION.

We began our revival at Mt. Zion Church, three miles east of Roanoke, the first Sunday in August, closing the following Thursday. The interest was just fine from the beginning, and we had very good congregations, especially at night.

Rev. A. H. Sheppard was with me and did the preaching in a very splendid and loving way. There were two additions to the church by profession of faith.

We next went to Lowell, Roanoke, Ala., and began our revival the second Sunday in August, continuing through the third Sunday. Here we had a gracious revival with fifteen additions to the church—six on profession of faith and nine by letter from the several churches of other communities. Bro. Sheppard did the preaching here.

I have received into my churches up to the present, thirty-nine members, and am expecting many more before the year closes.

Despite all the hindrances and hard struggles, my work has been a great pleasure this year. I know that God has abundantly blessed me, and I thank him from the very depths of my heart for all his great blessings.

W. T. MEACHAM.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

- Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4¼ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible
2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

- Nos.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine Bibles $2.95

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5½ x 3½ inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for thee, O LORD.
10 Mercy and truth
11 kissed each other.
12 Truth shall prevail

- No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¼ x 4½ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed.
10 For a day in thy courts is better than a thousand elsewhere.
11 For thou shalt be praised in the assembly of the saints.

- No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

OUR LEADER Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 1½ inches.

Specimen of Type

8 9 10 Jē-hōi'-ā-chin was 9 years old when he began t

- No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark $9.50

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

No. 03255x

- As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1½ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

Nos.

04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and handsome Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

- 0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

PRAYER.

Son of God, in sorrow the church must admit that still thou art asking "where are the nine?" To this day, souls washed and forgiven, wander and forget. Spiritually, multitudes are famishing because they give not God his due returns. Loving Saviour, so enlarge the gratitude of the faithful that it may avail for all who forget God's mercy. Let not one perish. Draw them unto thyself and in every life put faith to fill and force to function in the name of the holy church, we humbly pray. Amen. L.

A CALL TO PENITENCE AND PRAYER.

To the Pastors and People of the Churches of the United States of America—Greeting:

Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

We address you on urgent business. The church and the nation face a grave and serious situation. There is on every hand physical and mental suffering. This condition has long continued and no one can point the way of escape. Our best men are powerless before the devastating effects of commercial distrust and moral confusion. While we long for the return of prosperity, we pray rather for the correction of those causes of distress without which prosperity may prove to be other than a blessing.

In many areas within the church there is an urgent desire for a religious awakening. On every hand thoughtful Christians feel that the root of our trouble is moral and spiritual. All laws are moral laws and, while we cannot trace their working, of one thing we are sure, that out of the past has come the present. We reap what we sow.

We have worshipped at the shrines of false gods—the false god of mammon, money, things; the false god of power, production, bigness; the false god of nationalism, individualism, social injustice; the false god of pleasure, amusement, disregard for things sacred; the false god of success, high living, careless thinking; the false god of magic, reaping where we have not sowed, profiting where we had not toiled.

The church dares not stand aside and whisper peace either to itself or to the nation when there is no peace. Only a national turning to God in repentance and moral restitution, seeking his divine forgiveness, will restore the spiritual health of our people. We have looked for signs of repentance and the fruits thereof. We have not seen them. On every hand there is a demand for prosperity but little evident desire to return to the ways of faith and prayer. The times are giving us moral discipline. God waits on man's response. No social or political revival can come out of spiritual destitution, and no national awakening can arise out of religious indifference. The only adequate way is the way of Christ and the Cross.

We therefore call upon our people to give themselves in an act of will, personally and corporately, in penitence and prayer to Almighty God. And in order to secure the spirit of fellowship in united intercession, we set apart the week beginning October 2, 1932, as a time when pastors and people shall search their hearts and conduct and by personal dedication and public services appointed to meet the need of the hour, discover for themselves and for the nation the way to peace and power.

The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with you, brethren.

On behalf of our respective churches.

Faternally yours,

THE FEDERAL COUNCIL OF CHURCHES OF CHRIST IN AMERICA.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING SEPTEMBER 17, 1932

Sunday School.

Previously acknowledged	$ 65.26
Holland, Va.	7.50
Mayland, Broadway, Va.	1.19
Suffolk, Va.	25.00
Mt. Auburn, Manson, N. C.	2.65
Haw River, N. C.	8.47
Linville, Va.	5.33
United Christian, Lynchburg, Va.	3.50

Total $ 118.90

Individual and Church Offerings.

Previously acknowledged	$ 91.96
Rosemont, Norfolk, Va.	12.58

Total $ 104.54

Dollar-a-Month Club.

Previously acknowledged	$ 2.00
Miss Hontas Rawles, Suffolk, Va.	1.00

Total $ 3.00

Coin Card Offering.

Previously acknowledged	$ 45.05
Liberty Sunday School, Virgilina, Va. ..	1.00
Union Sunday School, Virgilina, Va.	2.00
Dr. S. T. A. Kent, Ingram, Va.	1.00

Total $ 49.05

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$ 204.27
Sunday Schools, Regular	53.64
Individual and Church Offerings	12.58
Dollar-a-Month Club	1.00
Coin Card Offering	4.00

Total to date $ 275.49

September 1st begins the new fiscal year in our receipts and disbursements. Every dollar and dime contributed the past year was appreciated, and was faithfully applied to the cause for which it was given. We crave the continued cooperation of the entire church.

J. O. ATKINSON, Sec'y.

MISSIONARY MONEY.

(Written for the Young People's page by its editor, this article is so timely for all societies that we are taking the liberty of transferring it to the Mission page.—Mg. Ed.)

Very soon the Missionary Societies will be making final reports for the year and attending their annual conferences. Goals for the new year will be set, and something of enthusiasm will stir the hearts of missionary workers.

This has been a difficult year in which to raise missionary money, but that is no reason why the young people's societies should fail of their obligations. It is the difficult things that challenge youth to do its best. There are few, if any, societies that are asked for more money than they could raise if they tried hard to raise it. Check back over the year and see just how much time your society has put into raising money for missions. Suppose each member had put into the treasury the same amount spent on a day at the beach or in the mountains, would that have made a difference in your report? Do you know young people who spend more for pleasure than for the church and all its enterprises? Do they gain or lose in the long run? Could certain luxuries have been left off and the money invested in missions? Now really, is it necessary for our quotas to be unpaid even in this hard year?

There never was greater need for missionary money than at the present. Some who have been giving cannot do so now because they have no income. Total receipts have fallen very low. Missionaries are having to close schools, hospitals, churches, and all kinds of religious work in the needy places of the earth and come back to America because we have failed on our missionary obligations. This is crushing for them, for this is their greatest time of opportunity. In these troublous days people everywhere are turning toward Christ for hope and help. If we knew the missionaries personally and the work they are doing, we would not vote for them to close up and quit. We should not do so now.

If it is possible for your society to raise its goal, or to go beyond it, please see that it does so. This is the time to invest in world friendship through the churches, through Christian missions. If you have no missionary society in your church, why not get your Sunday School class to join with you in making a contribution? Do your best, and do it quickly.

RIPE FOR GOD'S INTERVENTION.

Things will be at their worst when the Lord comes again. This is the revelation of the Bible as to the end of the age and the Lord's return. He will not come back to a world that men have made so wonderfully beautiful and righteous that it is a fit place for his throne, but to a world so steeped in sin, degeneracy, self-worship, and the defiance of God, that only divine interference will avail. A great many statesmen and others in the world who know nothing of the Lord's return, and who do not accept the Scriptures, are nevertheless making public statements that express their conviction that the world is in desperate need and that some momentous or cataclysmic event is about to occur. The Pope of Rome, also has made more than one significant statement in recent months; while he is at the head of a great religious system that denies the heart of the Gospel, justification by faith, and that teaches many death-dealing falsehoods, he has at the same time shown marked insight into certain facts and tendencies of today in more than one official utterance. This summer, addressing 200 American pilgrims in Vatican City, he said: "The time is ripe for intervention by God. History tells us again and again that when men reached the lowest ebb and began to curse and deny God, then was the moment when God manifested himself. Even in Russia, where men blaspheme God, this will be the case." The Pope explained that he believes God will "reinfuse confidence into men and start the return to better things." He has uttered a truth when he says the time is ripe for God's intervention; but Christians who "love his appearing" know that the intervention will come, not by men's turning to God in any world-wide way, but by Christ's being "revealed from heaven with his mighty angels." The desperate condition of the world is a reminder of the Holy Spirit's pleading call: "And now, little children, abide in him; that, when he shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming."—Sunday School Times.

Education commences at the mother's knee, and every word spoken within the hearing of little children tends toward the formation of character.—Ballou.

WORKER DUE INSURANCE.

"Millions have lost their jobs. Wages have been cut. Every country in the civilized world is in agony and fear. The storm clouds of war and revolution darken every sky. What is the Christian gospel for this time of need?"

Thus did Dr. C. Rexford Raymond, pastor of Pilgrim Congregational Church, open his labor day sermon yesterday morning.

"The Sunday before Labor Day has for years been used by many churches to proclaim the Christian message about labor," Dr. Raymond said. "The word gospel means good news. Amid the confusion of the present hour, what is the good news which the church of Christ is ready to declare?"

The minister took two texts, one from John 5:17, "My Father worketh even until now and I work," the other from I. Corinthians 3:9, "For we are laborers together with God," and said, in part:

"The first thing which our texts declare is that work is not a curse, but a God-given blessing. Man is not compelled to toil as a punishment for sin, as some may suppose from a mistaken interpretation of the story of the Garden of Eden.

"The misery of unemployment is not only felt by those who are begging for bread because they cannot find work.

"The bread of luxury also, any bread which is not earned by the sweat of labor, is the bread by which men die. Labor Day has a message for the idle rich.

"The second truth which shines from our texts is that all our labor may be glorified by the fact that we are laborers together with God. When this is made real all our social ills will vanish. When churchmen believe that in their business they are partners with God, Christianity will revolutionize society.

"First, we who may have the power to rule will not enslave fellow-laborers. Civilization totters in Russia because of the way masters have ruled. The inequalities of our American life narrow the sympathies of the rich and curse the poor. The miserable shacks in the back alleys of Chattanooga, the lack of hospital facilities for the poor, and the thousands of our able-bodied citizens who look hopelessly and vainly for work, challenge our Christianity.

"The new complexity of life means that the worker must have certain kinds of insurance. He must be insured a living wage, if for no other reason than this that, unless he has a living wage, he cannot consume the products of our mills and factories.

"It is unscientific as well as unbrotherly to distribute our wealth so that (quoting Prof. King, of the University of Wisconsin), 2 per cent of the people possess 60 per cent of the wealth of the United States, while 65 per cent possess only 5 per cent of the wealth. Ten millions of our population are in poverty in normal times (Russell Sage Foundation).

"A second kind of insurance which the laborer needs is insurance against unemployment. A factory superintendent can scrap a machine when it becomes economy to use another, but the economic loss is borne by the business. When a man is scrapped because it is economy to do so, the business must bear the cost and not the discharged employee. This is in line with the discovery that the business can carry the cost of accidents to the man power of the factory. Old-age pensions which have already won their place in the teaching profession and in many other occupations, are a logical extension of the principle that the burdens of our social organization are not to be borne by the individual alone, but are the common burden of our new social order.

"The second result which will flow from our honest acceptance of our partnership with God in our labor is that we shall not fix our eyes so exclusively upon the cash which we can win by our efforts. The tragedy of the depression as it has affected the rich has been the discovery that when riches are taken all is taken.

"The third result of this faith in our fellowship with God in our work is that we shall have hope in the final success of our human society. We shall not live long enough to see the final outcome in perfect social relations. Mean and selfish men will continue to enslave their fellow-men. Slavery died only after a long struggle for thousands of years. But we shall realize how much the race has won by its fellowship with God.

"And when we realize what God hath wrought for us through the labors of men in the past, we can share in God's dream of the future. We are workers together with God. This is the dignity of life. God's power flowing through us will enable us to enter into the Promised Land."—Dr. C. Rexford Raymond, in Chattanooga Times.

WITHOUT GOD—NOTHINGNESS.

Periodically the question of morality without God comes up, and it has been very much to the front in latter days. The hallucination of fitting everything to the "modern mind" or to "modern learning" has thrown the judgment off balance. They say we must follow the "truth," not reflecting that that is an abstraction, and if it were not there is something far deeper. For only God is fundamental while principles, law, philosophies schemes and creeds are only secondary and frequently not quite so near to reality as that.

Morality is at the base of character, but God is at the base of morality. There are men who understand this and the long open book of history is the best commentary upon it. It is quite literally a fact that the nations that forget God are turned into hell, and they often seek with tears for a place of repentance and find it not. There is such a thing as sinning "away the day of grace" with nations and individuals. The final fall of Rome was irrevocable. The nation never came back and never can. Time passes and other races march ahead on the long road of history.

Canon Rees of England has pointed out that there are only two ways of regarding the world. One is to see it as God's world; the other as a more or less perfect machine and ultimately meaningless.

These show the parting of the ways and constitute the Christian struggle for today. There is no giving up God if we expect to do right. Those who reject God's righteousness and go about to establish their own never establish it—never establish anything in the way of essential goodness. To quote again from Canon Rees:

"It is not a difference between twice-born and once-born man, for the twice-born are privileged to see every common bush afire with God, not merely to reach him by analysis. Those who come to the vision of God and so to discern a meaning in the world are free to account for values. They perceive that Goodness, Beauty and Truth are enduring and indeed indestructible entities. . . . Only a beast or a sinner who is really seeking to depersonalize himself can ignore the imperative of duty. . . . The imperative of Duty, which is as real as anything that we know, more real than stocks or stones or electrons and bions, if it comes to a comparison, took its origin where other reals took theirs. To essay to construct a system of ethics on a preliminary denial of this is to flout the imperative of Truth. To endeavor to collect from conventions that men may hope to reach one day the legislative and authoritative dynamic that is needed at the outset to give the conventions any validity is a futile waste of ingenuity. To establish as the law of right what men shall deem convenient is to set them on the road to perdition. Orthodoxy may indeed be perishing, but if it is, it behooves man to discover another orthodoxy with as little loss of time as possible, lest they, too, perish. Morality without God is not morality at all."

The dogmatic statement at the close of this quotation is absolutely justified. Jesus Christ said, "Without me ye can do nothing." Has not that been demonstrated a thousand times, is it not illustrated in the state of the world today? The God of the Old Testament is the God of the New Testament. He is the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ and our Father who art in heaven. In his word we have a basis of life; without it we are but wandering shadows in a world of gloom.—Christian Evangelist.

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses	$7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses	6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses	6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10.....	2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10.....	2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim.....	1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses	$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85.	11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85...	16.00

Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling).	$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90..	16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.	14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....	$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim.....	9.00
Filler—Silver Lined.....	6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, Waverly, Va.

"LIVES OF GREAT MEN."

When Elisha Thomas Holland, of Holland, Va., passed to his reward on August 22nd, last, the youth of our church lost one of their best friends. For many years Mr. Holland has been a faithful, thoughtful, and helpful member of the Board of Christian Education, the board that has sponsored the training schools, youth congresses, youth fellowship, and all other youth movements in the Christian Church of the South. Unless too sick to attend, he was always present for the meetings of the board ready to give wise counsel and great encouragement. He believed in the work which was being undertaken and was always ready to help push it forward. His faith and courage have inspired this writer to continue the work amid many discouragements.

Words can never add one whit of glory to the name of E. T. Holland. His life was so strong, stalwart, kindly, Christian, that mere words fall beside it like leaves from a tree. The leaves may have beautiful coloring and flutter in the breeze as they fall, but it is the tree that stands, blooms, and fruits in another season long after the leaves are forgotten. So is the life of our friend, Holland, who has attended his last board meeting and will never bless the summer school at Elon again with his presence. As I think of him, the words of Longfellow learned in childhood, come back to me with real meaning:

"Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime,
And departing, leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time:

"Footprints, that perhaps another
Sailing o'er life's solemn main—
A forlorn and shipwrecked brother,
Seeing, shall take heart again.

"Let us, then, be up and doing,
With a heart for any fate;
Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labor, and to wait."

THE WAY ONE SOCIETY SEES IT.

(Note.—The following account of the activities of the South Norfolk Congregational-Christian Endeavor Society has been lost for some time, but now that it is found, its message of inspiration must go to others.—Ed.)

Christian Endeavor has truly entered a new day. It is a day when we must fight to live. We must gather a new determination to go onward and a fresh passion to serve him whom our society stands for.

Realizing that our society cannot know Jesus and be unconcerned about others, it is with this conviction that we have gone through the year, and with higher aims that we present this our annual report:

Forty-five persons have been won to Christ through the efforts of our members. We have held Christian Endeavor prayer meetings throughout the year. We have held monthly consecration meetings, monthly missionary meetings, and weekly Bible study on a night other than our regular meeting. We conducted a class in evangelism with an average attendance of ten. All of our members are members of the church, and attend the church services. We secured 29 enrollments in the "Allied Youth Movement." We have had charge of five regular church services.

Our purpose is to "Seek to know and to do the will of Jesus, who is the same yesterday, today, and forever."

AUBREY C. TODD, Pres.

CHURCH LOYALTY.

Christian Endeavor was organized by Dr. Francis E. Clark for the sole purpose of training young people in church leadership. Born in the church and of the church, Christian Endeavor should still be the means whereby youth can be trained by the church for leadership. Thus we see at the beginning of the movement the correlation of the two bodies. A Christian Endeavor Society which does not cooperate or affiliate with the church of which it is a part, ceases to be a Christian Endeavor organization. We cannot say emphatically that you and your society owe first allegiance to Jesus Christ and the church.

In this day and age we urge every Christian Endeavorer to be loyal to Jesus Christ and the church. When we use the word "loyal," we mean for you to take it at its full meaning and all that it implies. There is a tendency on the part of some Endeavorers not to attend the regular services of the church. This action has caused considerable unjust criticism of the Christian Endeavor movement. Remember, that in our pledge, we specifically state that we will support our own church, especially by attending all her regular and mid-week services unless hindered by some reason which is acceptable to him. Nothing else remains to be said about this matter. If you are among those who are not as loyal to your church as you should be, we urge you to start now and be true blue and loyal to the old church and its pastor.—From the Virginia C. E. Endeavorogram.

"WE WOULD SEE JESUS."

A preacher, eloquent and able, but without the sap and warmth of Gospel truth, one day found a slip of paper in the pulpit Bible on which these words were written in an unknown hand: "Sir, we would see Jesus." The word went home as an arrow of God. On his face before the Lord he reviewed his preaching, and proclaimed the Lamb of God as he had never done. Another slip, in the same hand-writing, he found a little later between the leaves of the Bible—"Then were the disciples glad when they saw the Lord."—Selected.

BE STRONG!

Be strong!
We are not here to play—to dream, to drift.
We have hard work to do and loads to lift.
Shun not the struggle—face it; 'tis God's gift.
Be strong!
Say not the days are evil. Who's to blame?
And fold the hands, and acquiesce—O shame!
Stand up, speak out, and bravely, in God's name.
Be strong!

It matters not how deep entrenched the wrong.
How hard the battle goes, the day how long;
Faint not—fight on! Tomorrow comes the song.
Maltie D. Babcock.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

TOPIC FOR SEPTEMBER 25, 1932

"Getting Off to a Good Start."—Heb. 11:1-3.

This time the leader may select the songs, the prayer and Scripture for the worship service from the Young People's Bulletin, using the summer number.

Our vacation is all over now, and we have begun our work for another year. Our Christian Endeavor Societies should gather new momentum and try to accomplish more the next year than we have in the past.

"A Good Start."—"Well begun is half done," is an old saying, and a good start surely means much to a young people's society. You may begin by defining a good start. What does it involve? What will help you most in getting a good start for your fall and winter program? Here are answers other folks have given:

a. Know where you want to go. It is difficult to make progress without a destination in view, and a destination you want to reach. A worthy purpose is the first essential.

1. What is the object of your young people's program? What goals are you definitely trying to achieve? These may include things like increased attendance, a financial goal, material achievements, and personal growth of young people in understanding of the meaning of religion, help in solving every-day problems, courage to live up to their highest ideals, service with and for others. What is your purpose? Yo you have it clearly in mind? Is it worth striving hard to attain?

b. Plan the immediate steps toward your ultimate objective. You cannot do everything, but you can do something. You cannot do it all at once, but you must plan the first steps.

1. The best plan grows out of the thinking and sharing of the most folks, and then must be presented to all in a clear, compelling fashion. What is your plan? How will you interest others in it?

c. Carry out your plans. Plan your work—work your plan. No report on paper is very dynamic until some person makes it so. Make this first meeting an enthusiastic revelation of the spirit and method which you will follow throughout the year. Enthusiasm is contagious. Try to spread it among your members in this meeting.

d. Make the start successful. Nothing succeeds like success, and the very beginning of a successful movement must have in it the elements of success. Plan carefully this meeting so that folks will feel and know: "We are doing things," not just, "We are going to do things." In other words, this first meeting should convince those who come that your meetings are going to deal with worth-while themes and are going to be conducted in attractive surroundings with promptness and the interested and friendly attitude of officers and members.

"Starting Where?"—This topic implies going somewhere or doing something. Where are you going? Follow the pathways in the chart—"Adventures in the Christian Quest"—then you will accomplish something.

"To discover real worship experiences."—You can feel the presence of God in prayer, in the singing of hymns, and in the service as a whole.

"To follow paths of service."—There are many ways to render service. You should begin at home first. Ask your pastor to help you in discovering places to render service. Welcome the lonely into your group, feed the hungry, give money, and give gifts.

"To seek new knowledge."—What an opportunity to learn new truths! Try to learn more about the Bible. Study the social problems and the liquor problem, etc.

"To find new friends."—If we have made a good start we have made some friends in the beginning. What opportunities on Sunday and all through the week will carry you forward on this part of your program? Will there be a chance to know new young people? Young people of other churches as well as your own? The older people of your own church? How big can you make your friendship circle this year?

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

THE CHRISTIAN'S DEVOTIONAL LIFE.

LESSON I—OCTOBER 2, 1932.

Matt. 6:5-15; II. Tim. 3:14-17.

(As I again take up the task of furnishing notes on the Sunday School Lessons, I want to express my sincere appreciation and hearty thanks for the services of those who, during my long illness and convalescence, so graciously and ably furnished the notes, both for THE CHRISTIAN SUN and for The News-Herald. It is no easy task to furnish these notes, and because I know from experience that this is so, I feel all the more deeply indebted to my good friends who did the work so well. It has been for them, as it is for me, "a labor of love." There is no material compensation involved in this matter. But there are compensations, and I hope that these men have been richly rewarded for the service which they have rendered to the Kingdom.—H. S. H.)

The Fourth Quarter's Lessons have as their general theme, "Christian Standards of Life." It is a timely and a practical series of lessons. Those of us who become doers of these lessons, as well as readers and hearers, will be better and more fruitful Christians.

The Christian life is not a static thing—it is a growing, developing thing. And like all living things it is subject to the law of growth. A person may be saved by being born into the Kingdom of God, but he thus becomes only a babe in Christ. The goal is that he may grow into the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ. Man cannot live by bread alone. The spiritual life can grow only as it has spiritual food. The Christian's devotional life then becomes of first importance. He who would have a sound and strong spiritual life must take the time and furnish the things which the growing life of the soul demands. Our lesson today deals with two fundamental factors in a sound devotional life—prayer and the Scriptures. They are not the only factors, but they are the most important.

Prayer and the Christian's Devotional Life.

Prayer is the heart and the life of the Christian's spiritual life. No matter what else a person may do, he cannot grow as he ought unless he prays. And by prayer is meant something more than simply asking God for things; prayer is communion with God, intercourse with God, conversation with God, fellowship with God. Prayer is both the soil and the atmosphere in which the spirit of man finds sustenance and strength.

Jesus took it for granted that men would pray. In the Sermon on the Mount, in which he dealt with abiding principles, he therefore devotes a section to prayer. He does not say everything that is to be said about prayer, but he does say some very vital things about prayer.

1. Prayer should be sincere. We are not to pray to be seen of men. We are to pray because we have a sense of inward need, because we want to have fellowship with our heavenly Father, because of the rewards and the benefits which result from prayer.

2. Prayer should be secret. This does not mean that a man should never pray in public. It does mean, however, that every man should have a time and a place for secret prayer; he should have solitude away from the rush and the hustle of things when in quietness he can possess his own soul, and when he can hear the Father as he speaks in the still small voice. And yet prayer, as Jesus pictures it, may be practiced on the street and in the shop, for whenever and wherever a man audibly or inaudibly converses with the Father—there is prayer. (Verse 6.)

3. Prayer should be simple. Of the sixty-five words which compose what is called the Lord's

Prayer, fifty of them are words of one syllable. One need not use long words or theological words or high-sounding words, when he prays. He needs only to talk as a child talks to his father. (Verses 9-14.)

4. Prayer should be social. When you pray, say, "Our Father," "our daily bread," "our debts," "deliver us"—one's prayers should include others, as well as one's self.

The Scriptures and the Christian's Devotional Life.

"The words that I speak unto you, they are spirit and they are life." He who would have strength of soul should eat of the Word of Life, which is of the bread of life. One of the factors in the life of Timothy, who was so faithful in the work of the kingdom, was that from a child he had known the Holy Scriptures, which are able to make wise unto salvation through faith which is in Jesus Christ.

Paul says that, "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God"—the Bible is not simply the word of man, it is the word of God—and it is profitable for doctrine, that is for teaching, it contains facts about God and about man which is food for the soul; for reproof—it rebukes our sin and our selfishness; for correction—it directs us aright; and for instruction in righteousness—it is a teacher of the way of righteousness. He distinctly states its purpose—that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works. And the Bible is a means to this end. It gives the knowledge of the Lord Jesus through whom by faith salvation comes. And then it provides that spiritual food by which we grow up and become strong to do the work of God. One of the reasons why so many Christians are weak and anaemic is because they do not provide for anything like an adequate devotional life with the Scriptures. If the men and women who read these notes would observe what is called the "quiet hour," or would determine in their hearts that they were going to read their Bibles regularly and often, it would transform their lives.

Here endeth the reading of these notes. Now for the putting of them into practice.

CARD OF THANKS.

I desire to express my deep sense of appreciation for the many kindnesses extended to me during my recent illness. I am grateful for the prayers, the messages, letters, cards, flowers and many expressions of thoughtful solicitude. I am also very grateful to the staff and nurses at Lakeview Hospital for their untiring attention.

W. W. STALEY.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7/8 x 7 Inches, and 1 3/4 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 7/8 x 7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 1/2 Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold.....$1.60

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 3/4 x 7

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.50

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges.....$6.00

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 1/2 Inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 1/2 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps.....$2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 3/4 Inches and 1 3/4 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools.....95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond Virginia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."—II. Chron. 7:14.

MONDAY.

THE FOUNTAIN OF LIVING WATERS.

"If thou knowest the gift of God, and who it is that saith to thee, Give me to drink; thou wouldst have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water."—John 4:10.

"Let him that is athirst come and whosoever well, let him take of the water of life freely."—Rev. 22:17.

A small party of us spent the Fourth of July this year at a lovely spring situated at the head of a narrow valley, embosomed amidst trees of imperishable verdure and fragrance, gushing with unabated force from depths unknown. Its waters, clear as a crystal, spread out in a spacious stream over pure white sand, and they rushed on down the level valley to destinies of deeper waters. The wide open ways to this fountain are forbidden to none, the paths to it and its glorious abundance are open without fee or compensation to all. We helped ourselves to its refreshing strength and made bare our feet and waded into its cooling delight.

Nothing we can think of better typifies the pure refreshing eternal Spirit of God. "The fountain of life" is with the Lord. "The law of the Lord is perfect reviving the soul."

"There is a river," said Isaiah, "whose streams make glad the City of God. He also said, "The waters of Shiloah go softly," Shiloah being a spring that issues from the temple rock. We also remember our Lord's conversation with the woman at the well, in which he characterizes his own teaching as "living water," and as a well of water springing up into eternal life. There is a song we have heard which says:

"I heard the voice of Jesus say:
'Come unto me and rest,
Lay down, thy weary one, lay down,
Thy head upon my breast.'

"I heard the voice of Jesus say:
'Behold, I freely give
The living water: thirsty one,
Stoop down, and drink and live.'

"I came to Jesus and I drank
Of that life-giving stream;
My thirst was quenched, my soul renewed,
And now I live in him.

"I heard the voice of Jesus say:
'I am the dark world's light;
Look unto me, the morn shall rise,
And all the day be bright.'

"I came to Jesus and I found
In him my star and sun,
And in that light of life I'll walk,
Till traveling days are done."

Prayer—Say the Lord's Prayer.

TUESDAY.

FORSAKEN FOUNTAINS.

"My people have committed two evils; they have forsaken me, the fountain of living waters, and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water."—Jer. 2:13.

We have heard of such springs, fountains, waters and valleys, as spoken of in the above comment—almost forsaken—and busy workers striving with might and main to build cisterns, build wells, or arrange water conveniences from which they can draw at their pleasure, only to find that they all fail. God says, turning from him is like that.

We wonder if we have not forsaken him in our doings? We depend on ourselves, our possessions, our ability to sustain us; and we fail; depression comes, and we wonder why. We wonder if those in authority do not too often depend upon their own wisdom for guidance, and that wisdom fails to bring what we need. We wonder if our political conventions and government assemblies, do not laud too much the greatness of man and forget to laud God. We wonder if the wisdom and leadership of men are not pointed to altogether too often, and God's wisdom not pointed to at all.

We do not hear the name of God mentioned in our councils. We have not heard of our governing bodies calling upon God for guidance and promising him that they will follow as he giveth the light.

When a nation turns its back upon the fountain of God, it loses sight of the supreme holiness, the perception of sacred things; reverence ebbs away and leaves God unhalloved and national chivalry and stamina decays.

To retain his holiness, the fine perceptions of the Spirit's blessings, his continual fellowship, spiritual sensitiveness, we must continue to drink of the fountain. One thing the spring does not teach us: we have to go long distances sometimes to find these lovely springs so emblematic of the Everlasting Fountain of God. We can come to the Fountain of God just where we are.

Prayer—Our Father, who art in heaven, halloved be thy name. Thy Kingdom come; thy will be done, in earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread; and forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil, for thine is the Kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

DRY CISTERNS.

"See thy way in the valley, know what thou hast done; thou art a swift dromedary traversing her ways, a wild ass used to the wilderness, that snuffeth up the wind at her pleasure."—Heb. 2:24.

If we turn away from nature's springs, we must do something to make up for it. We cannot turn away from our cravings and expect to find them appeased. We cannot turn away from God and expect to find satisfaction.

If the nation turns away from the Lord, life becomes a sort of restless vagrancy, a confusion and fruitless effort—a wild quest for satisfaction without avail. In such case we have forsaken the fountain of real satisfaction and we are running about everywhere, dipping into everything in an attempt to satisfy the instincts which have been denied their true life by turning away from the source of supply.

So, we find ourselves striving for money, wealth and pleasure, etc., and these things, though legitimate and necessary, we find to be used for unsanctified and ill-regulated passions of men. It is when we find ourselves mistaking life's functions and properties, that we labor to hew out of them cisterns of satisfaction, and we, sooner or later, come to know that such cisterns will not hold water.

To forsake God and seek our own dependence and pleasure breeds self-contentment, infects the soul with indifference, kills high aspirations, deadens the sense of need, and leads to selfishness. This applies not alone to the rich, but to all who are living in circumstances of ease and comfort, and whose habits of life tend to deaden their sense of need.

Prayer—Our Father, make it possible in us to look up to thee and ask for what we need in the light of thy light and love. Be with us today that we may drink at thy fountain. Amen.

THURSDAY.

BEFOOLED.

"Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest."—Matt. 11:28.

The following poem serves for a complete meditation today:

"How is the anxious soul of man befooled
In his desire,
That thinks an hectic fever can be cooled
In flames of fire;
Or hopes to rake full heaps of burnished gold
From nasty mire!

"Whose gold is double with a careful hand
His cares are double;
The pleasure, honor, wealth of sea and land
Bring but a trouble;
The world itself, and all the world's command
Is but a bubble.
The strong desire of man's insatiate breast
May stand possessed
Of all that earth can give; but earth
Can give no rest.

"True rest consists not in the refining
Of worldly dross;
Earth's miry purchase is not worth the buying;
Her gain is loss;
Her rest but giddy toil, if not relying
Upon her cross.
How worldlings drool for trouble! That fond Fond breast that is possessed
Of earth without a cross, has earth
Without a rest.

Prayer—Say the Lord's Prayer.

FRIDAY

THE VALUE OF UTTERED PRAYER.

"Ask and ye shall receive."—Matt. 7:7; 6:22; Jno. 11:22; Jno. 16:24.

"What wilt thou . . ."—Mark 10:36.

After saying everything possible regarding the definition and the reality of prayer, it may be summed up in two factors, viz: the soul and God and prayer is the conscious expression of the indwelling of God in the soul.

Will God answer silent prayer? Why does Christ insist on us uttering our prayers? In nearly every case of anyone asking Christ for mercy during his sojourn on earth, Jesus turned to the supplicant and asked, "What wilt thou have me to do?" He made each supplicant ask audibly for what he wished.

Christ must have known all human frailties. He must have known the full value of the exercise of individual functions. He must have known that putting our thoughts in words gives impetus to faith and energy in what we are expressing; to speak aloud arouses action and awakens expectation; brings one into the conscious presence of the Lord; makes one conscious
(Continued on page 15.)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

THE GOSPEL AND THE TIMES.

By REV. A. G. AXTELL.

If the Gospel is of any value at all it is of constant value. It is just as useful and helpful today as it ever was, or ever will be. The test of the Gospel is always whether it may be applied or may not be applied to our present needs; whether that present be the fifteenth century or the twentieth, the first or the fortieth. If the Gospel is a message of all time it is a message for all times; if it was a message for the year one, it is a message for the year 1932.

The Gospel is more necessary in times of prosperity than in times of adversity, though we think otherwise; for in prosperity we depend upon our own weak and inept human selves, while in adversity we turn to the ever living God. So, the Duke, in "As You Like It," could say:

"Sweet are the uses of adversity;
Which, like the toad, ugly and venomous,
Wears yet a precious jewel in his head;
And this our life, exempt from public haunt,
Finds tongues in trees, books in running brooks,
Sermons in stones, and good in everything.
I would not change it."

Again, when the outward seeming of this world fails us we may turn within; and within find God. It is therefore with a sense of special need that the Gospel is preached today; since we are confused and have need of understanding, and in darkness and have need of light.

Our present status is disheartening enough: economically, socially, politically. We are in a wilderness of distress and helplessness. All sorts of artificial stimulants are tried to help us keep up our courage; but these are of no avail.

Economically we are in a swamp, with many a bog of quicksand in which have sunk many helpless victims, with useless cries for help. Poverty of food and clothing and comforts, and poverty of spirit mark our day. In spite of the present rise in prices of commodities and stocks, we face a winter which promises to be worse than the last. With plenty in store, of food, of material for clothing, of money in banks and treasuries, those suffering from want number millions; and often there is no eye to pity and no arm to save.

Socially we are reaping the certain retribution of unbridled passion, of wasteful and wicked expenditures, of hatreds and jealousies incident to a world-wide holocaust of war. Crime is rampant; criminals are more and more youthful each year, and while we are unsuccessfully trying to take care of the young criminals of the 1930's, the younger criminals of the 1940's are on their way to jail and prison.

Home ties are loosened, respect for law is weakened, fear is common, self-interest among nations is stealthily advancing to destroy again the peace of the world. Europe is, as usual, in a state of unstable equilibrium. We had fondly hoped that by now a sure peace would have been attained but such is not the case. The new, arbitrarily made boundaries are being weakened, the Polish corridor is looked on with covetous eyes, Belgian towns are on the eve of changing national allegiance, and the sovereignty of Austria is likely to be changed in a way to threaten the already delicate balance of an insecure peace.

Politically, we are wandering, helpless and leaderless. On economic questions one party dismisses the situation with phrase while the other keeps on mumbling prayers to the gods of high tariff. Our so-called statesmanship declares outright for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, and the other would nullify it by going back to the leeks and onions of State control. When the polls are opened, at most, only half our citizens vote, and these admit that their voting is a gamble.

It is no fiction that we are lost; lost economically, socially, and politically; and to a great extent religiously; for we are lost to peace of mind, to hope, to faith, and we know not where to find them. We are blind and helpless in our own individual lives and in our social status. It is for this reason that I bring you this morning some words of Jesus for our text; familiar they are, but holding within themselves an inexhaustible treasure. He says:

"Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light." (Matt. 11:28-30.)

How blessed are these words! They are like the dew on the mountain, like the snows of Hermon. They are refreshing and inspiring. It is the Eternal who speaks! It is the One altogether lovely and lovable Who invites us. It is the strong One and gentle Who would call us to Himself, and would share our burdens by bearing one end of the heavy yoke which we have tried to bear alone. When listening to Him, how the cares of this world and the deceitfulness of riches fade into forgetfulness and in their places comes the soothing balm of contentment and of peace!

"Come," says Jesus. "Come unto me; all ye that are weary and heavy laden," all ye that are burdened with care and sorrow, or with the criticism and contempt of your fellows, or with economic distress and uncertainty.

So I offer to you today the acceptance of an invitation. Such acceptance is the solution of all our problems, the solvent of all our difficulties, the balm for every wound. In order to accept this invitation we have to throw off three things, and in their places to receive three others.

(I) We must cease to depend on those things to which we have become accustomed; (II) we must cease placing our hopes on human guidance and human resources; and (III) we must slough off our false notions of what is real.

I. Life has a way of polting us out of ruts. We would not have it so; but it is life's experience. How wonderful it is to move along through the years in the calm and peace of an untroubled home! Changes occur, to be sure, but they are gradual and agreeable. But then comes a shock. Out of a clear sky, as it were, some bolt of disaster or loss comes hurtling down upon us and peace is gone, unless there has dwelt in the home that perfect peace of those whose minds are stayed on Him because they trust Him.

This blow may be one of bereavement, or illness, or poverty, or slander. Any of these may suddenly come to destroy the even tenor of the ways of a family living in coveted security. But what of that?

Did Jesus so much as have any home at all; did he own any property; did he escape slander; did he not have the sicknesses of his generation and of the world upon his shoulders?

Such was the yoke that he bore: a yoke of poverty, slander, deprivation, injustice, and an early and tortured death. So, he knows how to help us.

It is not only best but necessary for us to cease to depend on the things which have been our support—these earthly possessions and these earthly ties—and to depend upon him the strong Son of God.

II. Of late there has been an epidemic of humanism. Now humanism is just an enlarged form of self-sufficiency and self-satisfaction. It is a dependence upon the human race to work out its own salvation; with fear and trembling it may be, but not depending upon God to work within us. It says that human society can attain righteousness and prosperity by its own power.

Is there need of any evidence that the human race cannot work out its own salvation? It certainly has not done so as yet. Our present world conditions are just an exaggerated form of what they always have been. History past and present serve only to show the weakness, folly and failure of mankind. If there ever was a time when the world needed a great leader, it is now. But there is none to be found. Humanity has not yet produced him.

Yet, a leader has been provided in the person of Jesus. Men think they have wisdom, but that wisdom is foolishness beside the wisdom of Jesus. If only society would follow him instead of those who in their pride and selfishness pretend to be leaders of men, human society would be regenerated within a century.

III. Again, we shall not find blessing until we know what is real and what is unreal. To most men, be it said to their shame, the real things of life are property, and reputation, and position, and influence and this vaunted and coveted leadership and political advantage. But "a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of things that he possesseth."

How often has this been said! How often has the saying fallen on deaf ears! How futile it is to tell a man that not what he has, but what he is, is what matters; not what he gets but what he gives, is what matters; not what he enjoys but what he suffers, is what matters; not what he revenges but what he forgives, is what matters! How foolish it is, how utterly idiotic, to believe that the realities are not houses and lands, and good standing in society, and trips to Europe, and political preferment; and how foolish to believe that the realities are beauty and truth and friendship and good-will and trust and faith and love! If you believe such things you are utterly foolish, by the estimate of the world; but by the same token you are wise unto salvation.

I want you to go out from here this morning believing in Jesus; and that means that you are to love the works of God and will respond to the sublimity of the stars and the iridescent loveliness of the butterfly's wings; that you will love your fellowmen in spite of their faults; and that you will love little children supremely. I want you to depend, not upon the changing and illusory things of the world, but upon the abiding and glorious realities of God.

If this is the mood in which you go forth from here today Jesus promises you three things in place of those you have sloughed off: (I) He promises new and enlivening experiences, brave experiences and joyful; power to endure pain and smile; power to suffer slander and say, "It is well"; power to live in the heights while your feet are in the slough of despond. (II) He promises that youthfulness of spirit which meets adverse situations as a challenge, not a defeat; that strength of those who have fed upon the manna in the wilderness and drunk of the waters of life. Do you doubt whether such is possible; whether there are any who have eaten of the hidden manna and found it sufficient, and drunk from the yells of salvation and found it eternally refreshing? Doubt it not; I have known such. (III) He promises you the victory of faith; for faith is the

(Continued on page 15.)

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

The Thanksgiving season will soon be here, and it will soon be time for us to begin to lay aside something for our Thanksgiving offering for our Orphanage. Each church, each Sunday School class and each individual should bear in mind that more than one hundred children in the Christian Orphanage are dependent on you for support.

The first reason that you should feel more interested is because the Orphanage has been in the dry belt this year. The dry weather struck us in April. We had a good rain the first day of June. Since that time we have had two little showers, which wet the ground about an inch. It has been the severest drought we have had in this immediate section in years. Our pasture land is dry as a chip. We are now feeding our cattle as we do in the winter.

To show you how it has affected us, I will give you a few illustrations. We planted 45 acres in beans for feed, and should have had 50 tons of hay. We got 24 tons. Our corn crop was almost a failure. Sweet potatoes are one of our staple articles of food in winter. We planted enough ground to make 800 bushels. It now looks like we will not make 10 bushels, unless we have rains soon and they grow from now on.

We have always planted garden beans and corn so we would have corn and beans right up to frost. This season we will not have any beans or corn. Gardens are dried up, and we are like our cattle; we are now eating winter food.

I give you this advance information so you can begin to plan your Thanksgiving offering early. You see we cannot help but be in great need. We have tried to do our part; but the rains have failed us this year. This is your institution. It is where you send the fatherless, the motherless, the homeless, the needy ones to be cared for and trained for good citizens. Your superintendent is your servant; you expect him to make your institution something you will be proud of when you visit it, and bring your friends. You want to see the children well trained, nice and polite. You want to see them clean. Are you willing to make some sacrifices to support it so these expectations can be realized? If every Sunday School would do its part, your Orphanage could be a blessing to many more children than it now has. Other denominations love their Orphanage children, and give in abundance to see that they are supplied. Don't you love your's as well?

One orphanage last year received more than 40 truck-loads of foodstuff, besides the liberal money offerings. We know of another orphanage in a sister State that had some trouble to find room to store the abundance of foodstuff that was sent in—enough to practically run them up until a month ago. Think of it! Why did they send it? To feed the fatherless in His name. Don't the Christian denomination love its orphan children as well? Surely it does.

We want you to begin to plan for Thanksgiving now, and lay your plans well. We can use anything here that is useful to you in your home. We would be happy, indeed, to have 40 truck-loads of foodstuff come in at Thanksgiving. We do not have a church community in the country but could send the Orphanage a truck-load of corn, potatoes, canned goods, preserves, chickens, and many good things to eat, and be the richer for it. Try it this year and see if I am not telling you the truth. CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR SEPTEMBER 22, 1932.

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

Brought forward	$ 9,295.48
North Carolina and Virginia Conference:
Howard's Chapel	$ 2.00
Haw River	5.10
Mt. Zion	1.91
New Lebanon	2.72
Union, Va.	2.00
Third Avenue, Danville.....	5.84
Lebanon	1.00

Eastern North Carolina Conference:

Lee's Chapel	$ 1.02
Mt. Auburn	2.65
Piney Plains	4.50
Morrisville	.82
Shallow Well	2.88
Lebanon	1.43

Western North Carolina Conference:

Pleasant Union	$ 6.70
Union Grove	3.00
Mt. Pleasant	1.75
Shiloh	1.79
Ramseur	3.00
Ether	.63
Burlington	41.61
Liberty	1.60
Pleasant Ridge	2.75

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Suffolk	$ 30.00
Wakefield	2.60
Holland	7.50
First, Portsmouth	6.40
First, Richmond	5.20
Barrett's	.50

Valley Virginia Central Conference:

Concord	3.75
---------------	------

Special Offerings.

J. Ray Dickens	$.60
Mr. Roberts, support of children..	20.00
R. J. Miller, support of children..	24.70
Alamance County	60.00

Endowments.

L. S. Holt Endowment Fund.....	150.00
--------------------------------	--------

Total for the week $ 407.77

Grand total $ 9,703.25

READY TO SERVE.

Should any church or group of churches desire my services for next year, my address is 415 Cameron Avenue, Chapel Hill, N. C., telephone No. 3161. B. J. HOWARD.

NOTICE.

I should be glad to correspond with any church in need of a pastor. I have a college education and eleven years' experience as a pastor.

A. L. LUCAS.

Pisgah, N. C.

NOTICE.

I am open for pastoral work for the coming conference year, and would be glad to correspond with any churches contemplating a change of pastor. I am a graduate of Elon College, also a graduate of Vanderbilt University.

D. M. SPENCE.

Lillington, N. C.

ALL
SELF-
PRONOUNCING

Holman Testaments

COMMAND
ATTENTION
AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2½x4½ inches

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there
was a marriage in
Cana of Galilee; and
the mother of Jesus was

2164. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles.....	$.50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles.....	.60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....	.85

VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS
2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges.....	.70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....	.90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges.....	1.10

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS
With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.
13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges.....	.90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included.....	1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4¼ inches x½ inch
The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller. It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength. One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together. The size, 2½x4¼ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2 The three wise men

carrying away into Egypt; and from the carrying away into Egypt into Christ are fourteen	ing interpreted is, God with us. 24 Then Jesus being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had
5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....		$1.00
5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included.....		1.50
5036PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather hinges to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms.....		2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET
SIZE
3¾x4½
inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type
CHAPTER 23.
THEN spake Jesus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance. In size, 3¾x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one of the finer bindings.
4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms.....	$.90
4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....	1.35
4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included.....	1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT
4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges.....	1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT
4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather hinges to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms.....	3.00
4136XPL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red.....	3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print
Pica, 16mo. Size, 5¼x7¼x¾ inches
Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines. It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

Specimen of Type.
THE book
of Jesus

PSALMS INCLUDED
2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included.....	$1.50
THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS
Same Large Print as Above
2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included.....	2.95
RED LETTER EDITION
Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.
3313PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included.....	3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

THE SUN'S PULPIT.

(Continued from page 13.)

victory that overcomes the world. This verse was found on the body of an Australian soldier, during the World War, and it comes to us breathing the blessings of the yoke of Jesus:

"Ye that have faith to look with fearless eyes
Beyond the tragedy of a world of strife,
And know that out of death and night shall rise
The dawn of ampler life:
Rejoice, whatever anguish rend your heart,
That God has given you the priceless dower
To live in these great times, and have your part
In Freedom's crowning hour,
That you may tell your sons that see the light,
High in the heavens—their heritage to take—
'I saw the powers of darkness take their flight:
I saw the morning break'."

Thus blessed it is to bear the yoke. Burdens are not diminished but strength increases; and we have that perfect power which means perfect rest; for true rest after all is power to meet life's experiences with strength and with a song.

But, you ask: "What of these economic, social and political wrongs? You have spoken only of the individual after all!"

The only answer to that—and it is a sufficient answer—is, that once all men accept the invitation of Jesus all human problems will be immediately and finally solved.

Demorest, Ga.

FAMILY ALTAR.

(Continued from page 12.)

of what he is asking, and gives one definiteness of thought.

Silent prayer has the promise of an answer, but uttered prayer has the advantage of all these benefits. The habit of silent prayer may allow real prayer itself to slip away unconsciously until it may not be a prayer at all; while uttered prayer gives an ever-increasing stimulus to obtain the thing sought.

SATURDAY.

"MODERATE" SINNING.

"Thou . . . art of purer eyes than to behold evil."—Read Habakkuk 1:12-17.

Any use of intoxicating liquor as a beverage is a sin against one's health, against one's family, against society, and so against God. There is much talk about moderate drinking, but there can be no moderation in sin. All sin is sin, and "the soul that sinneth, it shall die."

This is shown by the researches of Dr. Benedict, director of the Carnegie Institute at Washington, who proved that very small doses of alcohol render the drinkers measurably incapacitated. Dr. Benedict's work was most astonishing in its evidence of the length of time over which alcohol produced an injurious effect. He discovered that an ordinary automobile driver is a menace for four hours after he has taken a moderate amount of alcohol.

Any sin is a great one, great in its evil self and terrible in its awful possibilities. The only safety is total abstinence from every wrong.

Prayer—We pray thee, our Saviour, to deliver us from evil. Let it have no dominion over us, nor the slightest beginning of dominion. In thy name. Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.

S. O. S.

"They help everyone his neighbor."—Read Isa. 41:1-7.

To check piracy in the waters off the coast of China, a British inventor has devised a nearly automatic S. O. S. signal. This signal is inclosed in a bullet-proof case, and is operated from the captain's bridge. As a piratical vessel approaches, the officer of the watch indicates on a dial the ship's latitude and longitude and presses a button. The invention then sends out the call for help and the ship's position, and keeps on sending it until the danger has been met and the contrivance is switched off.

In several ocean disasters recently there has been much question and criticism about the sending of the S. O. S. Some companies fear the heavy salvage rates. Some captains have a personal pride in doing it all themselves. Either reason is a paltry cause for the loss of human life.

And so, all too often, we ourselves are reluctant to raise our personal signal of distress. We are slow to call for sympathy in trouble, or advice in difficulty, or the strengthening of faith when doubts assail. And we may postpone our S. O. S. too long.

Prayer—Especially, our Redeemer, may we never delay to call on thee for help. Thou art always ready to hear our call. Thy help is always sufficient for every need. Save, oh save. Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

WHITLEY MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 15th. Freshmen register on Tuesday, September 13th, and upper classmen on the 15th. Expenses reduced for this session. Write for Catalog and application blank.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. Associate
W. W. STALEY, D. D. Contributing
S. C. HARRELL, D. D. Contributing
C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. Contributing
ELISHA A. KING, D. D. Contributing
W. C. WICKER, D. D. Contributing
J. T. KERNODLE, D. D. Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When sending subscriptions for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of year.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

OBITUARIES

SHEPPARD.

Hiram D. Sheppard was born June 18, 1865, and departed this life August 29, 1932, aged 67 years, 2 months and 12 days. He was married to Miss Mollie Francis Boyd June 2, 1887. To this union were born three children: D. W. Sheppard, Rev. A. H. Sheppard, and Mrs. Ora Harry.

Bro. Sheppard was a charter member of Bethany Christian Church, organized about 36 years ago, and was a pillar in the church, as long as he lived. He was one of the best men we have ever known, and will be greatly missed by the family, the church and the community.

The funeral services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Revs. G. D. Hunt, J. D. Dollar, W. T. Meacham, G. H. Veazey and O. A. Moore of the Disciples Church.

The floral offerings and the great company of relatives, neighbors and friends that attended the funeral were evidence of his life of service, esteem and respect by all present.

C. W. CARTER.

DICKERSON.

Death calls as its victim, Mrs. Etta L. Dickerson, on the night of July 27, 1932, at the age of 45 years. Mrs. Dickerson had been a member of Liberty (Voice) Church since a young girl. Her home was near Henderson, N. C., but the last few years of her life were spent in Norfolk, Va., where she was taken ill about a year ago. For the last few months she suffered with cancer of the stomach. Being dissatisfied away from her people, Mrs. Dickerson was brought to her home of her mother, Mrs. J. S. Ayseue, R. 6, Henderson, N. C., just ten days prior to her death.

Mrs. Dickerson leaves to mourn her passing, her mother, two brothers, R. H. and F. M. Ayseue, three sisters, Mrs. W. D. Foster, Mrs. R. E. Eanes and Mrs. C. O. Eanes, all of R. 6, Henderson, N. C. She also leaves two sons, Perry Gill of New York, and Robert Guy of Norfolk, and one daughter, Mrs. H. B. Brinkley of Norfolk.

The body was sent to Norfolk and the writer, together with Rev. Kenneth E. Burke, pastor of Burrows Memorial Baptist Church, Norfolk, Va., conducted the funeral services, and the body was laid to rest in the city cemetery.

May God richly bless the family.

S. E. MADREN.

666

LIQUID—TABLETS—SALVE

Checks Colds first day, Headaches or Neuralgia in 30 minutes, Malaria in 30 days.
666 SALVE FOR HEAD COLDS.
Most Speedy Remedies Known.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

FALL TERM—SEPTEMBER 7

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

Cost for Board, Room and Tuition, including also Entrance, Activity, and Infirmary fees reduced to $273.50 for the College Year. Personal expenses as low as student and parent wish.

All who seek an "A" grade college training for their sons and daughters in an atmosphere of Christian culture, and at minimum cost, are invited to write for the college catalogue and admission blanks.

Address: DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

A Memorial of the Congregational-Christian Union.

FRANK E. JENKINS, Pres. MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD, Dean

Chartered by Southern Christian Convention, June 2, 1922, as Bethlehem College; renamed Southern Union, June 3, 1931.

Will function during the present financial depression as a Junior College only.

FALL TERM WILL OPEN SEPTEMBER 7.

DEPRESSION PRICES.

Depression prices during the coming year, made possible by extensive gardens, careful planning, organization and donations—Tuition, board and room, $192 for entire scholastic year; tuition alone, $48; each payable in six equal installments.

Unsectarian, but thoroughly Christian.

For Information, write—

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA.

HOLMAN BIBLES

LARGE PRINT
TEACHERS' EDITION
FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS
AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear, Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5 1/2 inches.

Exposition of Type.
"From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, 'I the kingdom of heaven'"

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid 10.65

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXIV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1932.

NUMBER 39.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

English Methodists Unite.—

On September 20th, the three church bodies comprising Methodism in England, met in Royal Albert Hall, London, to consummate their union into a single denomination. The churches which have agreed to the union are the Primitive Methodist, the Wesleyan Methodist and the United Methodist. The aggregate membership of the new body is over one and a quarter million.

Farm Machinery Investments Reach Billions.—

Census figures show that American farmers have an investment of about $3\frac{1}{2}$ billions in machinery, implements and automobiles. Approximately \$400 millions a year is spent in replacements. In the above are included 4,134,625 passenger cars, 900,304 trucks and 920,378 tractors. There is \$1,423,000,000 worth of implements and machinery which is used on an average of only 16 working days per year. If the farmer will take care to see that this machinery is better housed and protected from the elements, much of the \$400 millions now spent for replacements could be saved, with a corresponding profit for his labors.

Ma Ferguson.—

Anent the subject of comedy in politics, the last issue of the Christian-Evangelist has this to say: "In a world which is filled with sober and tragic experiences of every type, it is a great blessing that there are a few comic features to give color to the general atmosphere of depression. Our American commonwealths have been quite impartial in their efforts to supply the necessary comedy. Pennsylvania has given us Uncle Joe Grundy; New York, Jimmy Walker; Louisiana, Huey Long; and Texas, which never does anything on a small scale, caps the climax with Ma Ferguson. Most Europeans cannot understand the American penchant for the burlesque. If they mix comedy with politics, it is generally because they cannot help it, as in the case of Mussolini. The Texas 'Governess' would be a great figure for comic opera. Some future Sullivan will doubtless seize the opportunity to immortalize Mrs. Ferguson in the only true and proper way."

Christ Church and Captain Kidd.—

If reports are true, there is in Middletown, N. J., an Episcopal Church which was built in part with money furnished by Captain Kidd, the pirate chieftain. Though the church records do not verify this report, it has been largely substantiated by circumstantial evidence. This much is known, however, that Captain Kidd spent much time in and near Middletown, and used nearby Bray's Landing as his headquarters. Also it is said that when the church was recently redecorated, a cross, said to have been placed there by Captain Kidd, was found. "However," says our authority, "if the Kidd story lacks authentication, the endowment (which is today one of the chief supports of this church) left by William Leeds, Kidd's chief lieutenant, is said to be an indisputable fact. He left 438 acres of land bought with Spanish doubloons, to the church. The rector's salary is still being paid with money derived from this source." We learn, also, that Kidd and Leeds are not the only names associated with the history of Christ Church. There was also "Black Beard," whose real name was Edward Teach, who went so far as to fight a pitched battle with the enraged farmers of the vicinity on the church grounds. Services have been held regularly in this church for over 250 years.

Search for Radium Goes On.—

Until 1918, the State of Colorado had almost a monopoly on radium production. Of late years the "low" price of radium has made its production in that State unprofitable. Belgian Congo now produces practically all of the world's supply, and the price is only \$50,000.00 per gram, in quantities of four grams or more. In smaller lots the price ranges as high as \$70,000.00. A gram, metric weight, is approximately $15\frac{1}{2}$ grains, and a gold dollar contains 25.8 grains. It is easily seen that radium is worth from thirty to forty thousand times as much as our precious gold, and the old saying, "Worth its weight in gold," fails in its significance. No wonder that the recent discovery of silver-radium ores at Great Bear Lake region, which is about 250 miles east of the Rocky Mountains and possibly the same distance south of the Arctic Sea, has stirred the mining world. Results of the development work going on there are being keenly watched and are said to be promising. More recently still, work has been begun near Mt. Painter in South Australia, where a low-grade radium deposit has been found. Radium may yet be found in quantities that will take it out of the place of curiosities. Even today, it plays most important parts in the medical and commercial worlds. Its future uses may be legion.

Forty Billions Behind in Buying.—

An electric manufacturing company of national scope recently sent out a questionnaire to employees asking a specific and fairly detailed statement covering the various items which they or their families "now need and would buy if they could be assured that business and economic conditions would improve, and that improvement would be reflected in family income." Located in seventy-three commercial centers widely scattered throughout the entire country, and including all classes of labor engaged in wholesale trade occupations, this group might be taken as typical of the average in purchasing power. Replies were received from approximately 80 per cent of these employees, and the aggregate amount of the deferred purchases which they would make amounted to around \$2,000,000. Applying the same scale to the United States as a whole, it would be found that the deferred purchases on account of economic conditions would easily total \$40 billions. This survey covered purchase of homes, home improvements, automobiles, labor saving home equipment, including heating and refrigeration, clothing, insurance, education, travel, sporting goods, medical service, etc. It seems that there is a demand for 3,096,000 homes, 6,606,000 automobiles, 8,838,000 refrigerators, 1,494,000 heating plants, besides millions of washing machines, ironing machines, and radios. $2\frac{3}{4}$ billions' worth of furniture and floor coverings are also needed, as well as $2\frac{1}{2}$ billions worth of clothing.

A Long, Full Life.—

"The death of Arthur H. Smith in Claremont, California, on September 1st," says The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, "is a fresh demonstration of how much living can be crowded into a life." He was born in Connecticut in 1845, and served during the latter part of the War between the States, in the Union Army. He studied at Beloit College, and at Andover and Union Seminaries, and after a course at the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City, he went to China as a missionary, where he served for fifty-four years. The New York Times thus describes one of his many achievements: "He was one of those who stood guard at the beleaguered legation gate in Peking while the yellow hosts of the 'Fists of Righteousness' hurled red fire at the walls. He knew the people and felt that the Boxers were moved by sheer patriotism. He was almost a victim of starvation by the time the siege was lifted, but he bore no malice. Early in 1906 he conceived the idea that the United States should remit to China part of the $25,000,000 indemnity, the money to be used to send Chinese students to American universities. Lyman Abbott, then editor of the Outlook, arranged for him to see President Roosevelt. He presented his plan in a long talk at the White House on the night of March 6, 1906. Elihu Root, then Secretary of State, joined his approval to that of the President, who in his Congressional message of December 3, 1907, advocated the suggested use of the indemnity surplus above the $13,000,000 in claims for damages. It has been said that the return of this money has done more than any other act of the American government to increase Chinese friendship for the United States."

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Rev and Mrs. George M. Laybourn, who have resided for several years at Crystal Springs, Fla., where Mr. Laybourn was previously pastor, have exchanged their home in that town for one in Zephyrhills, where they expect to make their home in the future.

Let all readers of the Guest Book (which is now going out to many churches and missionary societies) be sure to look up page 24 and make the correction to which we call attention under a special notice elsewhere in this issue of THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

Dr. Lewis H. Keller, who has been serving as summer pastor at Tryon, N. Y., has returned to Holly Hill, Fla., where he will again take up the work as pastor. Dr. and Mrs. Keller greatly endeared themselves last year to the people of this church, who are rejoicing in their return.

A writer in the Vale Review has recently said that ours is the most helpless generation that has ever lived on the face of the earth. This may be an exaggeration, but sometimes it seems as if it were literally true. In all simplicity the one aim of our churches and their missionary work is to bring this generation to the One Source of Help.

Dr. Arthur E. Leonard, who recently resigned after a pastorate of five years at Eau Claire, Wis., has been invited by the church at Coral Gables, Fla., to serve as interim pastor for a period of 3 months. Dr. Leonard was for a time pastor of the church at Jacksonville, and is very greatly honored and beloved by all who know him.

Lanett, Ala., Church has extended a call to Rev. G. D. Hunt for next year, and he has accepted. Rev. J. D. Dollar, who has been pastor at Lanett, is to serve Noon Day, Mt. Zion and Antioch Churches the coming year. Bro. Hunt has done faithful work at Roanoke, as has Bro. Dollar at Lanett. We were not advised as to the successor of Bro. Hunt at Roanoke.

Rev. James E. Parker and family have returned to Palm City, Fla., after spending the summer at their old home in Spencer, Iowa. Mr. Parker has served for several years as pastor of the Palm City Church, and was responsible for the building of a new church there, following the hurricane of 1928. He reports conditions as being very hard among the farmers of Iowa.

We are printing elsewhere the notice from Mrs. L. W. Stagg, secretary, of the annual session of the Eastern Virginia Woman's Conference. The conference convenes at South Norfolk, October 28th. This notice would have appeared earlier, but Mrs. Stagg, the secretary, has been and still is ill, but her anxiety for a successful session is unabated, and she is hoping to be able to attend and witness a great session of the conference. All societies are urged to elect and send their delegates. A very interesting program is being prepared.

Our Ocean View Church had an average morning attendance during August of 83 and the Sunday School an average attendance of 115. The average Sunday morning offering in the Sunday School was $4.19. A fine example even for many of our older and well established schools. Under the pastoral care and leadership of Rev. J. H.

Warren, our Ocean View Church and Sunday School certainly reveal very hopeful results. The church is to begin evangelistic services to continue several days from October 2nd.

Dr. Frederick L. Fagley, who is to be guest speaker at the Florida Congregational Ministers' Convocation at Daytona Beach next week, is to speak at the church in Jacksonville on October 2nd, and at a supper given at the church in Winter Park on October 6th. From Florida, Dr. Fagley goes to Demorest, Ga., for a day at Piedmont College, following which he and Dr. Bloom will visit Atlanta, Birmingham, Thorsby, Chattanooga, Southern Pines, Elon College and Raleigh. He will close the series at these two last places on October 16th.

Mr. Joe L. Clements, age 61, ex-mayor and prominent citizen of North Wilkesboro, N. C., died at his home in that city September 15th. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church several years prior to his death. "Joe" was one of our own boys, a son of the late lamented Rev. W. G. Clements, Morrisville, N. C., and a graduate of Elon College. He was a useful and valuable citizen of church and community and exemplified in his life the Christian graces instilled into him in childhood by his sainted father and mother. The family have our sympathy in their bereavement.

Mrs. M. J. W. White, Cagayan Mission Hospital Cagayan, Oriental Misamis, Philippine Islands, under date of August 15th, writes: "All three of the Whites are enjoying life in this part of the world, and we send our very best wishes to readers of THE CHRISTIAN SUN in your part of the world." The Whites, who are dedicating their lives to the relief of human suffering in the name of their Lord, to the under-privileged on the other side of the earth from us, do not forget us in their work and worship; and we should not forget them, since they went out from amongst us to carry life, physical, mental and spiritual, to those who were in deepest need in the far, far away islands of the sea.

Plans are being made to celebrate in a fitting way the fiftieth anniversary of Dr. W. W. Staley's pastorate in the Suffolk Christian Church. The anniversary will be observed on Sunday, November 6th, and a committee composed of the deacons of the church have made tentative plans for a program that will be in keeping with that significant occasion. It is planned to have a special service at the morning hour of worship, and also a meeting in the afternoon in which the community and people at large will have an opportunity to pay tribute to this great and greatly beloved man. It is hoped that both services will be in the nature of a "homecoming," and that both the members of the local church and of the denomination at large, and also the general public will be present. The program in detail will be announced later.

Rev. H. C. Caviness, who has so successfully and happily served as pastor of First Church, Portsmouth, the past six years, declines the unanimous call of the church to continue as its pastor longer, and enters the field of evangelism, a service always near and dear to his heart. Rev. P. Houlder Brown, pastor of First Church, at Berkley, is to be associated with him in the work of their organized effort, to be known as "The Gospel Missionary Movement." Writing under date of September 20th, Bro. Caviness says: "We leave here on the morning of September 26th, to begin a meeting in College Town, Salemburg, N. C., at Pineland College. Services will be both in college and at a large Baptist Church nearby, of which Dr. Jones, the president of the college, is pastor. On October 9th, we go to be with Rev. J. L. Neese at Palm Street, Greensboro, for two weeks. Then with a Presbyterian minister in two meetings in Western North Carolina, which will carry us to December 1st. If the Lord opens the way, we expect to then go to Florida for three months."

Sunday, October 16th, has been designated and observed as "Missionary Sunday in all Methodist Episcopal Churches throughout the United States." The authorities in that church urge that "each pastor present the missionary enterprise from his pulpit on that day." More than half a century ago, the Methodist Church put it in their discipline that all their Sunday Schools should be Missionary Societies, and this may account for the fact that this church has more missionaries in more parts of the world than any others of our evangelical churches. The church, in sending out its appeal to its pastors to observe October 16th as Missionary Sunday, says, very truly: "The missionary cause needs your help, but the spiritual life of your church and your people is equally dependent upon a frank facing of the missionary challenge. Christianity is essentially missionary; it always has been, and cannot be otherwise. Without the missionary passion it becomes hollow formality. The Christian must ever share his best with others, and that best is always Christ himself and the religion which he taught and exemplified. This is the essence of the missionary passion."

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH, NORFOLK, NAMES OFFICERS.

The September quarterly conference of the First Christian Church, Norfolk, was held in the auditorium of the church, Wednesday evening, September 21, 1932, with the pastor, Rev. P. H. Brown, presiding, and the following officers for the coming year were unanimously elected: Secretary, W. J. Thomas; treasurer, O. E. Hanbury; assistant treasurer, A. L. Granger; auditor, W. H. Bell, and chief usher, B. F. Speight. B. L. Eason, J. R. Brownie and C. L. Hanbury and Mrs. W. S. Smith were elected new members of the official board. Mrs. B. L. Eason, Mrs. I. M. Copeland and Miss Edna Fulcher were elected as members of the music committee.

W. H. Bell, former treasurer, declined to let his name be considered again for that office because of his health and business and the secretary of the conference was instructed to write a letter of commendation to him for his hard and faithful work in that position during the last several years. The conference also honored Mr. Bell by giving him a rising vote of thanks for his work.

The appointment by the official board recently of E. H. Rock as custodian of the building was endorsed unanimously.

It was reported by the pastor that the regular conference of the Christian Churches in Eastern Virginia would be held at Waverly during the latter part of October or the first part of November and the following delegates were appointed to attend: J. D. Howard, A. F. Hozier, C. L. Hanbury, Miss Annie Winborne and Mrs. A. L. Barrett.

Expressions of regret were made over the recent death of the mother of W. J. Thomas and the acting secretary was ordered to address a communication to this effect to Mr. Thomas.

The chairman reported that the every-member canvass of the church was progressing and those in charge expected to make a good report.

INSTALLATION SERVICES AT CHRISTIAN TEMPLE FOR NEW PASTOR.

Sunday, October 2, 1932, at 3:30 P. M., there will be an installation service at the Christian Temple Norfolk, Va., for the new pastor, Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, who made his first appearance in the pulpit Sunday, September 18th.

The service will include special music by the choir, which renders such a splendid ministry of music each Sunday under the direction of Mrs. May H. Henley, and Mrs. S. H. Ferebee, organist, devotional service conducted by Rev. Henry W. Tiffany, pastor of Park Place Baptist Church, and a word of greeting from the following:

Mr. D. J. Bowden, representing the Christian Temple.

Rev. James Sprunt pastor of Knox Presbyterian Church, representing Park Place Ministers.

Rev. W. H. Baylor, Portsmouth, representing the Tidewater Ministerial Association, of which he is president.

Dr. N. G. Newman Holland, Va., representing the Eastern Virginia Conference of Congregational-Christian Churches.

Dr. L. E. Smith, president of Elon College, representing the Southern Convention of Congregational-Christian Churches.

It is expected that many people who cannot attend the worship services of the Temple on account of membership in other churches will wish to take this opportunity to meet Dr. Pierce and his family. All CHRISTIAN SUN readers and members of our denomination who are near enough are invited to attend the service, also, at 3:30 P. M., on Sunday afternoon, October 2nd.

SUNDAY SCHOOL HOLDS MEETING.

Several matters of vital importance to the Sunday School of First Christian Church, Norfolk, were discussed at a meeting of the Sunday School Board of that church, Friday evening, September 16th, at the regular monthly meeting of the group. A special committee consisting of W. J. Thomas and Misses Edna Fulcher and Kathryn Morgan reported it had mapped out a program for Rally Day, September 25th.

At the last meeting of the board, a committee consisting of Misses Esther Hall and Geneva West, and Mesdames A. L. Barrett, W. S. Smith and C. E. Warrington, was named to make recommendations with regard to taking the primary department into the adult department once a month and suggested that this be done the third Sunday in each month in order to familiarize the smaller group with the older group. This recommendation was adopted.

The importance of having all teachers present every Sunday and on time, with a well prepared lesson, was stressed during a discussion on increasing the attendance and membership of the Sunday School. Nearly all present took part in this discussion and consideration was given also to the value of each teacher knowing his or her class members and their habits or hobbies.

In the teacher training class which the pastor, Dr. P. H. Brown, conducted immediately after the board meeting, special attention was given to the value of a teacher and his or her personality in the work of teaching. Twelve members attended the class and a larger group is expected next month.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

Following is the program of the Alabama Christian Conference and the East Alabama Association of Congregational Churches, to be held at Antioch Church, four miles south of Roanoke, Ala., beginning Tuesday, October 11th, and continuing two days:

FIRST DAY.

Morning Session—10:00 o'Clock.

Theme—"That we all may be one."

Called to order by the President of the Alabama Christian Conference, or in his absence, by Rev. F. P. Ensminger, D. D., of the Congregational Church.

Devotional service, conducted by Rev. J. F. Bean.

Enrollment of ministers and delegates, and of visiting ministers and brethren of other churches and conferences.

Adjourned for lunch.

Afternoon Session—1:30 o'Clock.

Meeting called to order by presiding officer.

Devotional service, conducted by Rev. J. H. Hughes.

Theme of the meeting to be discussed under the following heads, by those whose names are attached to each subject:

1. "What have we in common, as it relates to our cooperation and fellowship?" Revs. C. W. Carter and J. P. Bean.
2. "As it relates to our forms and ceremonies and customs in religious worship." Revs. J. C. Brown and J. H. Hughes.
3. "As it relates to our methods of conducting revival meetings." Revs. G. H. Veazey and A. W. Stone.
4. "As it relates to supplying our rural churches with efficient leadership." Miss Davison.
5. "As it relates to our educational institutions and and their interests." Dr. F. E. Jenkins and Rev. G. H. Veazey.
6. "As it relates to our missionary interests and work." Dr. F. P. Ensminger and Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Secretary of Missions for the Southern Christian Convention.
7. "As it relates to our publications and literature." Rev. E. H. Sperrow and Dr. J. O. Atkinson.
8. "As it relates to our Orphanage." Chas. D. Johnston.
9. "As it relates to a closer relation between the two organizations." Revs. J. P. Bean and John Taylor.

4:30 o'Clock.

Young People's Rally, under the direction of Miss Marguerite Davison, followed by picnic supper and vesper service, conducted by the young people of Antioch Church.

Evening Session—7:00 o'Clock.

Devotional service, conducted by Rev. A. W. Stone.

Annual sermon, by Dr. Frank E. Jenkins; alternate, Rev. C. W. Carter.

Communion service, conducted by Revs. E. H. Sperrow and J. D. Dollar.

Election of officers and appointment of committees.

SECOND DAY.

Morning Session—10:00 o'Clock.

Reports of Committees on Education, Schools and Colleges.

Address, by Dr. F. E. Jenkins.

Report on Missions.

Address, by Dr. J. O. Atkinson.

Report of Committee on Moral Reform. Topic for discussion: "How may we practice Christianity in Alabama for the coming year." Revs. W. T. Meacham and J. C. Brown.

Memorial services for the following deceased ministers of the Congregational Church: Rev. Willis J. Dunaway, by Rev. H. T. McKay and Rev. Thos. J. Reynolds. This service will be held at such time as the Conference may elect.

A business meeting will be held by each organization to transact such business as may be of interest to the respective bodies.

The Conference will close with a great fellowship meeting, conducted by Rev. C. W. Carter and Dr. F. P. Ensminger.

PROGRAM.

Following is the program for the Woman's Missionary Conference to be held at the Wadley Christian Church, Sunday, October 9, 1932:

THEME—"Fellowship."

Morning Session—10:00 o'Clock.

Called to order by the President.

Hymn—"Come Thou Almighty King."

Enrollment of delegates.

Report of District Superintendents.

Report of Young People's Superintendent.

Report of Willing Workers' Superintendent.

Report of Literature Superintendent.

Report of Cradle Roll Superintendent.

Report of Life Membership Superintendent.

Report of Treasurer.

Recognition of visitors.

Hymn—"In Christ There is No East or West."

Appointment of committees.

President's message.

Devotional, led by Mrs. V. L. Carter.

Offering.

Address, by Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary.

Adjourn for lunch.

Afternoon Session—1:30 o'Clock.

Young People's Program, led by Miss Cumi Waldrep.

Hymn—"From Greenland's Icy Mountains."

"Prayer as an Aid to Fellowship," by Mrs. Arvin Harmon.

"Fellowship with Our Far Neighbors," by Miss Evelyn Hardy.

"Fellowship with Our Near Neighbors," by Miss Verla Barnett.

Hymn—"Blest Be the Tie that Binds."

Miss Marguerite Davison—Subject of her own selection.

Business session.

MRS. V. L. CARTER, Sec'y.

METHODS CORNER

By REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.

Miami Beach, Fla.

I wish to devote this Corner to the ministry of flowers. Flowers carry wonderful messages of good cheer, friendliness and hope. When a personal message accompanies the bouquet, so much the better. I am not referring to funeral flowers—everybody knows that a funeral would be a very drear thing without at least one spray of flowers. At such times we send flowers to show our sympathy and to cheer the heart.

There is another way to use flowers in a church. Almost every church auditorium, chapel or hall is decorated for occasions of service and for weddings. There should be flowers in the church every Sunday morning. They make the service of worship more beautiful and effective, but the same flowers may have a still further ministry—they may be sent to the sick at their homes, or in the hospitals. We have found it advisable to attach a little card bearing the name of the church, with a blank space for a message from the pastor. With such a card on the bouquet they may be delivered by anyone who is willing to take them. Our church secretary discovers who are sick and writes the names and addresses on the cards. It is our custom to send flowers to any who are sick, whether members of the church or not.

One woman in our parish planted a large rose garden so that she might have roses for the church every Sunday. These roses are unusually beautiful and abundant, and her ministry becomes doubly valuable. A wonderful service could be rendered to a community if more people who love flowers and the church would plant an extra lot for the church.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. W. STALEY C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

W. C. WICKER

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

"I DO NOT KNOW."

Edmund Vance Cooke, designated as "poet, essayist, and lecturer," writes in the October Atlantic an "elegy in prose," which "elegy" is printed as an "Appreciation of a Sister" Mr. Cooke's sister died. Since, if his sister had religion, he did not know of it, and since he knew her even better than her mother did, or than any one else could, he decides to conduct her funeral rites through the pages of the Atlantic. Mr. Cooke gives his reason for this in a paragraph of his funeral sermon as follows:

"Ordinarily, we have some sort of spiritual mediator at a time like this because we are unwilling to face the realities of life and death; we prefer to have them glossed over by some form of words. To what end, I wonder?"

Inasmuch as his sister is dead, and in life had very many of the most commendable virtues, he feels that these virtues should have appraisal. He does not believe it would be just and fair, either to his sister's memory or to the church, to call in a cleric to pronounce the obsequies. He feels that the obligation of this pronouncement falls on him.

While Mr. Cooke is dealing solely with the purely human graces and virtues, he shows the penetration and pen of poet and artist. However, when he comes to the foundation of character, of conduct and of this whole human structure, the poet's penetration ceases and the pen of the essayist closes its portrayal and poetry with the frank words, "I do not know." Let's follow this "elegy" a moment: "What, then, was my sister's religion? I do not know. She did not know." Our essayist seems to forget this declaration, since in the second paragraph following it, he declares:

"Her's was the religion of humanity. As I see it, it was enough." Evidently, the man of thought is confused here, and would make his readers believe that he does not know what the religion of humanity is. One doubts if he does. We doubt if anybody else does. But go back of this to the real question at issue. When one of the fundamental questions of the eulogist is raised, he answers in every instance: "I do not know." Raising the question of the religion of humanity, which he and his sister shared, he raises this question: "Does it carry her and carry us beyond this room and beyond that scar in the earth, with the hope that we may meet her again? I do not know." And so, throughout, when the heart is yearning most to get an answer to its deepest needs and longings, Mr. Cooke, lecturer and essayist, has these answers in every instance, "I do not know." Again and to the deeper question: "Does that God, which is nature, forget her as one who has served the eternal purpose? I do not know." This is the refrain always of your purely intellectualist in religion. It is the answer, ever and always, of the so-called "religion of humanity." That religion which professes no higher, nor holier cause, creator or author than that of humanity. "I do not know."

Now over against the "I do not know" of our modern day, "religion of humanity," of our essayists, poets and culturists, let's put the declaration of a man of very ancient times, who had an experience in suffering, in sorrow and endurance, such as millions have had since his day. He, too, comes finally to the deeper question about the realities of life and death. I refer to Job 19:25: "For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth." Here then, is that which has brought comfort to the sorrowing and agonized heart, consolation, hope and faith, too, which virtues have been and are the foundations on which the most enduring, powerful and helpful institutions on this earth have been built. Or, if Job is too remote for the historian to trace accurately for himself, then come to the declaration of a man whose life, personality and preaching history has never been questioned. I refer to Paul, who, in his second letter to Timothy, when facing the reality of the present and of the future, declared: "For I know whom I have believed." Just these two are chosen for brevity, but hundreds, as authentic, can be cited who have not had to say in the shadows and sorrows of separation: "I do not know."

This further question should be raised and is worthy of all consideration. What have these poets, lecturers, essayists, who, in the profession of "the religion of humanity," say "I do not know," given as a contribution to mankind of that which endures through the ages and makes for eternal righteousness? On the other hand, when we seek for those utterances, enterprises, and institutions which have inspired humanity to superlative achievements, human uplift and the building up of righteousness, we turn to men like Job and Paul and all of their kind, who have said and do say: "I know that my Redeemer liveth. I know whom I have believed."

Against the world's "I do not know," the Book of God puts again and again, "I do know." This makes it the Book of triumph in life and victory in death.

J. O. A.

THE TRUEST THING IN THE CHURCHES.

The late lamented Bishop Brent, in a course of lectures at Harvard University, discussing the power of the human will, said: "The will must aim at the seeming impossible."

The human will is never at its best, nor does it approach its capacity for power, save when it is struggling with a difficult task, undertaking that which to the ordinary eye appears beyond human reach. That is, the will of man must will, and undertake to do, the immortal things, the eternal achievements. On this account, if man would come to his best he must disregard bowing down to things as they are, and reach out and up toward things as they ought to be. This from a human point of view explains why Jesus founded the church and instituted missions. The church was to do what it has done and what it is constantly doing, viz., attain the impossible. It undertakes, and has undertaken from the beginning, to conquer the world under the leadership of its head and founder, Jesus the Christ.

Explaining fully and specifically what he meant, Bishop Brent told the faculty, fellows and students of Harvard that "The missionary ideal of the times is the truest thing in all the churches, for it stands for the conscious unity of the whole crowd, to the uttermost part of the earth." Out of the chaos of this sin-distraught and divided world, out of the cruelty and the divisions and schisms, in a world cursed by sin and man's wilful disobedience, the Christ instituted a movement for conscious unity, and that unity can only come to the world as the cross is lifted up, and the world looks up at the cross and to the Christ hanging there. Our Lord said, "I am the Way, the Truth and the Life," and as we follow in his way, exemplify in our lives the truth revealed in him, we come to share the burdens and the victories of the life he lived.

Even from a human point of view, in the conquest of the human will, the missionary ideal is the truest thing in the world, as it is in all the churches, because in missions the church is trying to exalt the Lord and give all men and women the opportunity of knowing him, who is the unifying power and personality of all times, tongues and peoples.

J. O. A.

THE MEASURE OF A MAN.

Some years ago a noted judge of North Carolina died and left behind him a considerable estate and a fine family. He was a friendly man and made a host of friends. When he passed away the local newspaper published the following estimate of his character in its editorial column:

"This is the measure of a man: To fight alone and single-handed, to keep on fighting, to keep in his heart the sweet harvest of the years, to allow no bitterness to find lodgment there, to maintain a fine loyalty to his friends, to cultivate a broad and a deep sympathy for all humanity and all creation, and to go down at the end unafraid and undefeated."

Since reading this estimate, we have come to the conclusion that it expresses very well the goal we all have in carrying on our various lines of church work. Some people are always asking, "What is it all for?" They mean by that the goal of the enterprise. We are careful about our plans, we make a good deal of a fuss about organizing this society and that, about raising money and a lot of other things. Why? Perhaps it will hearten us a little if we read over and over the estimate of the character of this good judge who lived a useful life and was the embodiment of what we are all seeking. We very often get a pretty good summary of a man after he is dead. The neighbors know quite as well as the family. A newspaper may publish flowery resolutions and accounts of elaborate eulogies, but when it expresses its opinion in its editorial space it means something more important.

Yes, the church is trying to make men who can measure up to the estimate of this man who, after all, is the ideal toward which all good men press. Ephesians 4:1-5:2, perhaps, suggests what we aim to do.

E. A. K.

IMAGINATION—THE EYE OF THE HEART.

REV. S. PARKS CADMAN, D. D.

There is no technical psychology in the Bible, but there is any amount of it distilled in fluid forms of what is wisest and best through that glorious book. It was written by and for the divinely inspired uses of the imagination, which controls not only reason, but every other gift of intellect and moral nature of man and woman. What our federal government is to be to the 48 States, imagination is to every other gift to possess power. Hegel declares that we cannot think without it.

To mention the word Mother is to suggest a thousand portraits painted by imagination as I speak the word, portraits woven out of imponderable and mysterious material which is in every human soul. For imagination's rightful employment paves the way to heaven, but if badly used also paves the way to hell. Make a friend of conscience as God's attorney-general, and of imagination as the supremely important faculty!

Its implications run throughout the whole of life, the best of which is always with the most spiritual uses of imagination.

Everybody has it. I recently visited a huge prison, and there I found imagination, and also those who were there confined because of its bad use. I am here today surrounded by the flower of our humanity because of the right uses of imagination. So have we not come to the hour when the whole issue is decided afresh?

Consider the little ones so often misunderstood by stupid parents and mutilated in mind because they have active imaginations! As a youngster I was accused of lying when I was simply giving my wings a chance to soar in what John Keats calls "the realm of gold." I lived in a world of my own, but I was chastized out of it. Certainly I had no intention of staining my soul with deliberate falsification, but I imagined things, supposed to be almost as bad. So as a child unfolds his life as a flower unfolds its petals, every mother has a divine occupation in rightly guiding her child's first ventures of imagination into the vast unknown. There is no voyage like that. Columbus' discovery of the West Indian Islands is commonplace compared with the marvels of a child's imagination.

My granddaughter told me she met 16 pink and white elephants doing the tango down Broadway. I would have been chastized for that in my youth, but I simply remarked that I had met 32. Whereupon she said: "Is that right, or are you only fooling?"

What shall we do with its exaggerations? Just what the parent bird does when the nestling essays its first flight: keep above it and bring it back to the zone of safety! Presently the youngster realizes there is nothing so romantic as a walk in the woods drenched with rain, and nothing so beautiful as the first thrust of green above the dark soil in the early springtime.

Again, imagination is equally vital in adolescence. The dreams of adolescence are of supreme interest.

While Warren Hastings walked with his mother through an English country lane he noticed her sorrow and asked for its reason. She replied that in the near distance was the home they had lost. He said that in 32 years he would give it back to her, and he did. Like a far greater character, he was obedient to his vision. St. Paul cut loose from Troas to preach the gospel in Cæsar's household because he foresaw western Christianity kneeling at the cross to lay there its riches, power and glory. His spiritual triumph was the fruit of a spiritualized imagination.

FALLING OFF IN MISSION RECEIPTS.

In spite of a deficit of $89,430.14, which, with an accrued deficit of three years, brings the total debit to $252,163.16, Harold B. Belcher, treasurer of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions cites several encouraging features in releasing his fiscal year report.

"It was expected that there must of necessity be considerable shrinkage in the item of income for individuals," says Mr. Belcher, "but the results of the solicitation of gifts from thousands of individual friends during the closing months of the fiscal year were most gratifying, both in the total of money received and particularly in the messages which accompanied the gifts, indicative of deep interest in the board's financial problems."

Total receipts for the year including specially designated gifts were $1,762,507.82, while expenditures total $1,851,937.94. Excluding these designated gifts, the income for the regular work was $1,520,521.88, and the expenditures $1,609,952.02. Gifts from the Congregational-Christian Churches which the American Board represents were $775,446.16 or 14.05 per cent less than last year. The receipts from legacies and matured conditional gifts also fell off.

Two significant actions which took place when the Board's financial difficulties were made known are mentioned by Mr. Belcher. "A group of the Board missionaries voluntarily initiated a Loyalty Fund which meant a return of part salary from workers on the field, from pensioned veterans, and from the executive staff," explains Mr. Belcher. "This gift amounted to $35,978.00. Out in India a group of Indian Christians who had made gifts to a fund planned to help out their own local work appropriation, which had been reduced, upon hearing of the prospective deficit which faced the Board, asked that their fund be sent to Boston instead, and added to the Loyalty Fund. In other fields, contributions were made by nationals to the Loyalty Fund.

"The budget of the Board was cut drastically this past year, including reductions in salaries, both at home and abroad. These economies resulted in expenditures being $71,468.99 less than originally budgeted while gain on exchange resulted in a saving of $55,000.00 more than estimated. Further drastic reductions in expenditures are being put into effect for the new year in the expectation that the budget for 1932-33 will be completely balanced."—News Letter from the American Board for Foreign Missions.

Special Combination Subscription Offer!

A special arrangement has been made whereby those who desire to do so may receive both THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for just a little more than they now pay for one of these papers.

Beginning immediately, we will accept subscriptions for the two papers at the price of $3.75 for the combined subscription. This means to SUN readers that for only $1.75 additional they may receive the great wealth of knowledge that The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty brings weekly. Those who are already subscribers for the latter paper may add THE SUN to their list for only 75 cents for the whole year.

You do not have to wait until your subscription to one or the other paper has expired, but send in your subscription now. You will begin immediately to receive the other paper and that which you are already receiving will be marked up a year in advance.

While this offer is open to everyone, it should appeal especially to the pastors and lay workers in the Southeast Convention, and we beg them to take advantage of this opportunity.

It is, of course, understood that under this special offer all subscriptions must be in advance, and must be sent directly to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va., or to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

DEAR SIRs:

Please (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my present subscription one year) to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my subscription one year) to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

(Please mark out the words not applicable.)

I enclose, herewith, check or money order for $3.75 to cover same.

M
Street No. or R. F. D.
City and State.

CONTRIBUTIONS

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The original occupation of man was the tilling of the soil. "The Lord God took the man, and put him into the garden of Eden, to dress it and to keep it."—Gen. 2:15. Man will till the soil to the end of time. It is the most universal occupation. Two obligations rest upon the tiller of the soil: to "dress it and to keep it." Many farms do not show any signs of dressing. Many of them are not kept. The care of the soil is a divine command. Nothing is more attractive than a well kept farm; and that means field, garden, orchard, yards and buildings. The business of farming requires more real sense, more wise judgment, and more faith and energy than any other occupation. Change of weather at night requires change of plans in the morning. Industrial plants, places of business, transportation lines, schools, and offices, may all continue their usual rounds of work in all weathers. The farmer plans to cultivate a growing crop on the morrow. It rains all night. The land is too wet to plow. He must change his plans for his hired help. The whistle blows, the men assemble in the mill, the work goes on. Change in weather does not require the superintendent to change his plans. A real farmer is the wisest man among men. An unsuccessful farmer is the most disgruntled man; and a successful farmer is the happiest of men.

Three things prevent farming from being what God intended it to be and what men could make it. The love of money, the lure of the city, and unwillingness to do out door manual work. Farming was never intended to be the money business of the world. That belongs to trade, industry, and commerce. The poorest farming is the money crop as the main thing on a farm. The most difficult thing to handle is money. When a farmer raises a money-crop, sells it and gets the money for a year's work in his hands, he cannot keep it for the use of next year. Raise everything needed on the farm and then some for money. The only thing that saves salaried men and wage earners is the fact that they get their pay by the week or the month. The only thing that enables a person who works for wages to pay house rent, purchase food and clothing, and give to the Lord, is the fact that he gets his money a little at a time. A survey of money-farming districts will reveal poor farms and poor farmers. The lure of the city draws the young away from the farm. Consolidated schools educate the young away from the farm. History shows that nations went down through the corruption of big cities. Unwillingness to do manual labor in the sunshine turns many against farming. It is as much a sin not to work six days as it is to violate the Sabbath. "Six days shalt thou labor"; "remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy." The question of education and wealth does not release men from these two commands.

The business of farming is to build up a farm and not to make money, thorough farm-building will bring in money for all necessities and benevolences. It is a beautiful business when followed according to the laws of nature and the purpose of God. There is a wide open door for educated young people who are willing to work and live happy contented lives on a farm in a country home.

W. W. SEALEY.

ELON LETTER.

In my communication to the church and the friends of the College through THE CHRISTIAN

SUN last week, I stated that our enrollment had reached about 225. Since that writing, students continue to come in—old ones and new ones. The enrollment is about 245, with others who are to arrive in a day or two. This is most encouraging, indeed. The enrollment is now about what it was last year at this time. We are hopeful that the student body will continue to grow.

This business of administering the affairs of a College is a new undertaking to me. There are many angles to it that are pleasing and interesting. There are other angles, however, that are discouraging and disturbing. In the ministry, I could extend the gospel invitation with freedom and enthusiasm—"Whosoever will may come," but in College administration, I find that I may quote the same passage of scripture, but I am compelled, of necessity, to add one word more so that the invitation reads: "Whosoever will PAY may come." We have a number of students now on the campus who have not matriculated but who are holding on, hoping that something may turn up whereby they may get hold of sufficient funds to stay in school. One man who would be a member of the senior class, is determined to enter and complete his course, but as yet, he has not been able to raise a dollar. Cases of this kind play on your sympathy and really disturb your soul. I sincerely trust that the day may soon come when we shall be financially able, as a college, to lend financial assistance to such worthy students.

I know that the entire church is anxious about the College and that everyone interested is deeply concerned for the financial interest of the institution. We have been able to pay one month's salary to all professors who left the College at the close of last year, and to all teachers who are now with the College. This gets one month's salary behind, with all current bills paid. We are now facing next month's expenses. We must balance our budget this year. Every member of the Christian Church can help to make this plan a reality. We are striving to augment the income of the College from the student body and from endowment funds by contributions from the Dollar-a-Month Club. We have enrolled about four hundred members in the club. A number of these are in arrears with their dues. If you find yourself in that class, won't you please forward your payments at once? This will save us time and postage—just pin your money to a card, put it in an envelope and send it on. It is a fine thing to join the Dollar-a-Month Club—it is a finer thing to keep your payments up. We are determined to carry on for the church and for the Kingdom.

L. E. SMITH.

ROANOKE, ALA.

The third Sunday in September was one of the best days in the history of our little church in Roanoke, Ala. It was announced as Church Day, and such it was. At 9:45 A. M., Sunday School was called to order by Bro. C. J. Hester, our efficient and much beloved superintendent. The regular order was observed, a fine attendance reported, and a good collection turned in to the treasury.

At 11:00 A. M., Prof. A. R. VanCleave, of Southern Union College, delivered a very fine sermon, which was enjoyed by all present. We enjoyed so much having the opportunity to hear this good man, and of having him with us. We hope he may come this way again.

At 12:00 o'clock, the ladies spread a sumptuous dinner in the basement of the church, which was greatly enjoyed by the congregation, and a very pleasant hour was spent in a social way to the delight of all.

At 1:30 P. M., the church was called to order by the pastor, with song and prayer, and proceeded to transact the following business:

1. Elected Mrs. Otis Gilbert to the office of secretary and treasurer of the church. Miss Nellie Rea Sledge was elected musical director and pianist. Bro. C. J. Hester was elected superintendent of the Sunday School. Miss Addie Bell Sledge was elected secretary and treasurer of the Sunday School. The Christian Endeavor elected the following officers: Miss Lucille Neely, president; Guilford Kitchens, vice-president, and Miss Ernestine Hood, secretary and treasurer.

2. The church agreed to postpone the calling of a pastor until the first Sunday in October.

3. The budget system of finance was adopted by the church for next year. A canvass of the members present resulted in securing pledges of nearly $400.00 for the support of the church next year. A committee was appointed to complete the canvass by the next meeting. The church is going up to conference with a good report.

The Woman's Missionary Society has reached their goal. The Young People's Missionary Society have theirs in hand, and the Willing Workers have theirs in sight. All these auxiliaries of the church are in fine working order. It all goes to prove that faithfulness counts more than any thing else in the Master's work.

It has been a great joy to us to serve this people for these past years. Conditions have been hard and the work has been a tremendous burden, but under God we have done the best we could, and we gladly turn over to our successor, whoever he may be, a church with the very sweetest fellowship and brotherly love existing among the members. We trust and believe that whoever, in the providence of God, shall be called to this work, will have the hearty cooperation of a noble band of Christian workers, and may God richly bless the labors of pastor and people.

This is probably the last letter I shall write from Roanoke to THE SUN. From Roanoke, I am leaving my friends in the hands of him who is able to keep them from falling, and to present them before the throne of his majesty, spotless. May we live so close to him that we may always recognize his presence. We go to Lanett, Ala., fully realizing our unworthiness, and our dependence on him who has been our strength and support for all these years. We covet an interest in the prayers of those to whom we have ministered these many years. I have at times served many of the church in our beloved conference, and I shall ever cherish their memory as sacred.

G. D. HUNT.

REVIVAL SERVICES.

This year seems to have been a season of refreshing and of revitalization in church revivals and growth. From over hill and dale has come the news that most wonderful revivals are being held this year. The money depression has begun to bring us to our senses and we are again realizing our dependence upon a Supreme Being. Truly man's extremity is God's opportunity.

Ours has been a wonderful, and, in many respects, an inestimable experience. Our church at Brown's Chapel has made more progress than during any twelve months of its history. We have a very live Sunday School which is held every other Sunday at our church and half-time at Providence Chapel, a Congregational Church located nearby. For years and years the church had no Sunday School, and it grew slowly, but we are beginning to see some of the fruits of its existence. Also there was a Christian Endeavor Society organized at Brown's Chapel in May of this year. This organization has meant no little to the young people of this community. It has about sixty members.

The first Sunday in August the annual revival meeting began. The arrangements made relative to a helper was a happy as well as a fortunate one. Rev. M. A. Pollard had assisted at Providence Chapel the previous week and came to us on Monday. This gave us a two weeks' meeting with the same people as well as the same preacher. Bro. Pollard must have been at his very best. So much fervor was shown that men, women, boys and girls came to the altar by the score. The professions and reclamations reached about ninety. Many old people were led to remark that this was the best meeting they had ever witnessed. Verily, the Spirit of God worked mightily in the hearts of the unsaved.

Then just one month from the revival, Bro. C. D. Johnston brought his Orphanage Singing Class to the church and gave us one of the best programs ever rendered in this section. The program began with Jesus and ended with Jesus. So natural and heart-reaching was the performance that it was hard to restrain the tears. We feel that the visit will accomplish that for which it was planned. I might say in passing that I have been hearing the Christian Orphanage children sing since 1920, and I have yet to hear a poorly rendered program. Bro. Johnston certainly has the work of that institution at heart, and he is making a wonderful success of it.

In the afternoon of the second Sunday in September, twenty-one were baptized—nineteen by immersion, and two by sprinkling. There are a number yet to join the church.

E. CARL BRADY.

Hemp, N. C.

HOLLAND, VA.

The Holland Christian Church held its week of special meetings September 5th-12th. Rev. O. D. Poythress, pastor of the South Norfolk Christian Church, was engaged to do the preaching and assist in leading the music. Bro. Poythress measured up to his full stature as a gospel preacher. His messages were stirring and convincing, and the Christian and sinner should have had no difficulty in seeing themselves as they are and as they ought to be. Bro. Poythress also pleased and inspired the audience with his beautiful solos and in directing the singing. A beautiful spirit of cooperation and consecration pervaded the meetings and continued to develop as the meetings progressed. Among the many reconsecrations, the pastor was gratified to see several who had been tardy and indifferent in their Christian duty take this stand. Other visible results of the meeting were the addition of seven new members received on Sunday morning, and the promise of several more to join as soon as they could get their letters of transfer. Baptismal services have been announced for the first Sunday night in October.

The young people are to be commended for the part they took in the meetings. A junior choir that filled the first three rows nearly every night, was a special feature of the meeting. During the pastor's vacation the members of the Christian Endeavor Society conducted the Wednesday night prayer meetings in a very creditable manner, and the meetings were highly commended by the older members. The first Sunday in October has been set apart for Rally and Promotion Day in the Sunday School.

The fifth Sunday night of July was observed by a Fanny Crosby Song Service, which was largely attended and enjoyed by all. This service was conducted by the joint choirs of the Christian and Baptist Churches of Holland and Holy Neck. This church is planning to cooperate with the Suffolk Christian Church in a leadership training school October 9th-14th, with its pastor as one of the teachers. W. M. JAY.

CHRISTIAN TEMPLE.

Two very fine congregations welcomed Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, as he began his ministry at the Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va., Sunday, September 18, 1932.

Dr. Pierce, with the power and spirit of a consecrated apostle of Christ, gave the church members and visitors two messages full of challenge to Christian living, the subjects being: "Cooperative Success" and "An Apostle—Yesterday and Today." Dr. Pierce said he did not know saint from sinner in the audience. All looked equally good to him. If there were people who were occasional church-goers, he hoped they would make a new beginning with him. Only as everyone cooperated, would there be a successful ministry on his part, and much accomplished toward the coming of the Kingdom of God in Norfolk.

E. H.

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

- Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4 1/2 x 1 1/4 inches.

Type in Junior's Bible
2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

- Nos.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine $2.95 Bibles

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5 1/2 x 3 3/4 inches.

Specimen of Type

2 My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.

- Nos. 02112 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6 3/4 x 4 1/2 inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed. 10 For a day in thy courts is better 11 Mercy and truth

- Nos. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

OUR LEADER Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8 1/2 x 5 1/2 x 1 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type

8 9 Jē-hōi-ā-chīm was 6 years old when he began t

- Nos. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark $9.50

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges. With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

- Nos. 03255x with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps. Conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7 1/4 x 5 x 1 1/2 inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

- Nos. 04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and hand-some Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

- 0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

PRAYER.

Son of God, in sorrow the church must admit that still thou art asking "where are the nine?" To this day, souls washed and forgiven, wander and forget. Spiritually, multitudes are famishing because they give not God his due returns. Loving Saviour, so enlarge the gratitude of the faithful that it may avail for all who forget God's mercy. Let not one perish. Draw them unto thyself and in every life put faith to fill and force to function in the name of the holy church, we humbly pray. Amen. L.

WHAT MISSIONS CONTRIBUTE TO US.

We are constantly reminded of what we contribute to missions. Would it not be better—more to the point—to inquire, "What Do Missions Contribute to Us?" It certainly is not reasonable, nor fair, to Him to suppose that our dearest and best friend, Jesus Christ, would commission us to do a thing that would take more from us than it would give back to us. History has proven, facts show, and experience realizes, that Christ always gives more than he asks for.

Without elaborating, we are certainly justified in saying that missions have given us at least five things:

1. The cooperation, approval and strength of the Master. We should bear in mind that it was in connection with the missionary command of our Lord that his promise was given: "Lo, I am with you always." That promise grew out of and is coupled with the missionary command.

2. Missions have given us the cooperation and the fellowship of the most sacrificial, self-denying, consecrated people on earth. From the time Paul went out, the first modern missionary, to the heathen world, till and since the day when Carey, Livingstone and Hudson Taylor went out, even to this good hour, if we wish to find those who have literally given up everything in the name and for the sake of their Lord, we must search our missionary annals and histories. The lives of missionaries constitute the most thrilling and divine biographies since the days of our Lord.

3. Missions challenge and create faith. The most overwhelming challenge ever given to mankind was that given to his eleven disciples by our Lord: "Go ye into all the world." The "March of the Eleven" down through the ages constitutes the most convincing volume on faith that was ever penned. When Paul said, "We walk by faith and not by sight," he was talking about those who, disregarding consequences and not counting the difficulties, go forth to conquer a world. Our giving to missions is an act of faith and not of sight, because we cannot follow our gifts to their destination nor see with our own eyes the effects thereof. We give to missions solely that our Lord, not ourselves, may be honored. The mightiest contribution to the faith of the Christian world has been made by and through missions.

4. Missions have heard and interpreted to the world the voice of God as no other enterprise or institution on earth has or can. Hudson Taylor, with his China Inland Mission, and more than 1,000 missionaries, active but always listening, depending solely upon their faith in God to sustain them through the days and years, is one of the most thrilling studies in the interpretation of the Spirit of God that history anywhere records. Of this man, John R. Mott, world-wide observer and historian, declares: "In all my study of the lives and work of Christian leaders, I have known none more abounding in activity and more fruitful, but at the same time more stayed on God as shown in his unruffled poise and peace." It is no little contribution to the world that missions have made through the lives of these men and women who have daily listened to the voice of God and, in their constant practice of self-denial and reliance on God, have kept alive and vivid in the minds of men and women the life of him who denied all and gave all that he might reach and redeem a lost world.

5. By no means the least, in fact one of the greatest contributions missions have made to the world is that of giving a sense of conquering the invincibles and doing the impossible. The mightiest conquests through the ages have been by those who have gone forth in the name of Christ, not to kill, but to make alive; not to destroy, but to save; not to tear down, but to build up. These, time and time again, through the ages, in the name of their Lord, have done the impossible and have conquered the invincible. For the sheer power of conquest and victory, the mission field stands without a parallel or a peer.

J. O. A.

A MESSAGE TO OUR FELLOW WORKERS.

On account of its having been impracticable to hold the larger meeting of the Cooperative Council and in view of the need of something like a common viewpoint as we make our various contacts with churches and individuals this fall, the Administration Committee of the Cooperative Council, meeting with the Committee on Church and Individual Giving, September 12, 1932, submits the following as a possible summary of what is commonly believed among us as we enter upon our fall work:

Behind Christian missions is the Christian religion, and the one fundamental need at this time, is that this religion shall have a far deeper hold upon ourselves and upon the world.

The commanding objective, the supreme imperative of Christian missions is to preach, teach and embody the religion of Jesus. We must let nothing divert us from that.

In saying that the primary need is to preach, teach and embody the religion of Jesus, the emphasis is upon the word embody. Prof. Overstreet says: "Reality is what you can act out, and the way to find it is to act it out." Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes has said: "The basis of law is not logic but experience." This is even more true of religion. It sometimes seems as if the old reasons for holding our Christian faith had failed us. If new reasons must be sought, they will be found not in intellectual processes but in life processes. An experience like that of C. F. Andrews as related in his book, "What I Owe to Christ," or in Walter H. Judd's leaflet, "A Philosophy of Life that Works," is suggestive of what we need.

This fresh grounding of Christianity in life must take place both in individual lives and in human society.

It is plain that what has preceded is mainly the function of the pastors of churches to bring to their congregations and we are to do nothing that will imply that they are not bringing this message. However, it will be futile for us during this fall if on the one hand we give the impression that we are using this present emergency as a means of exploiting the people in behalf of the organizations we represent, or if on the other hand we do not show ourselves plainly interested in and cognizant of the whole situation of which the missionary situation is only a part.

The question then becomes in no small degree one of our personal experience. Sometimes it seems wholly impossible—not only impossible but wrong—to be happy and buoyant at a time when there is so much suffering in the world and so many human lives are being crushed. We must not shut our eyes and indulge in any shallow optimism and give to it the name of Christianity. In some way we must win through to a faith that we have experienced in life as well as in thought, which blinks no fact, which is wholly removed from complacency, is characterized by a profound discontent and yet which holds that this is "Our Father's World," and if we will penetrate its mysteries deeply enough we shall be sure of his love and care.

CHARLES C. MERRILL, Sec'y.
Boston, Mass.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING SEPTEMBER 24, 1932.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 118.90
Antioch, Windsor, Va.	3.00
Wood's Chapel, Broadway, Va.	1.00
Bethlehem, Suffolk, Va.	10.00
Oakland, Suffolk, Va.	4.00
Pleasant Hill, Liberty, N. C.	2.50
Pleasant Hill, C. E. Society, Liberty, N. C.	.63
Leaksville, Stanley, Va.	1.71
Happy Home, Ruffin, N. C.	2.60
Graham, N. C.	3.13
First Christian, Norfolk, Va.	3.85
First Christian, Norfolk, Va.	3.12
Cary, N. C.	2.35
Turner's Chapel, Sanford, N. C.	.75
New Hope, Harrisonburg, Va.	2.33
Reidsville, N. C.	5.71
Durham, N. C.	9.09
Dry Run, Seven Fountains, Va.	2.10
Lowell C. E. Society, Roanoke, Ala.	.60
Newport News, Va.	11.00

Total $ 188.37

Specials.

Woman's Missionary Society, Lowell Church, Roanoke, Ala.	$ 3.50
First Christian Church, Portsmouth, Va.	28.00
First Christian Sunday School, Portsmouth	12.00

Total $ 43.50

Coin Card Offering.

Previously acknowledged	$ 49.05
Class No. 3, Pleasant Hill Sunday School, Liberty, N. C.	5.10
Graham, N. C., Sunday School, as follows:
Miss Cora Emmaline Henderson ..	$1.00
Miss Mary Moise	1.00
Cash	.30
	2.30

Shallow Ford Church, Elon College, N. C., as follows:
Miss Florence Cable	$1.00
Mrs. W. E. Walker	1.00
Mrs. Thelma Zimmerman	1.00
Dewey Barber	1.00
	4.00

Newport News Sunday School, Newport News, Va.	21.00
--	-------

Total $ 81.45

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$ 275.49
Sunday Schools, Regular	69.47
Specials	43.50
Coin Card Offerings	32.40

Total to date $ 420.86

J. O. ATKINSON, Mission Sec'y.

MISSIONARY MATERIAL FOR 1932-33.

For the first six months of our church year, we will study China. On a magic carpet, let us be off now on this most interesting study. With such teaching material as study books, maps, plays, pictures, mottoes, what we see we absorb. Cooperate with public libraries—do not be satisfied to use just our study book. Try to satisfy the uninterested.

Books for Women—"Lady Fourth Daughter," 50c; "How to Use"—programs—25c.

Books for Young People—"Lady Fourth Daughter," 50c; or "The Young Revolutionist," 75c; "How to Use"—programs—25c.

Books for Juniors—"Ling Yang," 50c; "Many Moons Ago and Now," 75c.

Do not fail to get the imported Chinese pictures. They are to be used in each organization. Leaflets on China free.

The eyes of the world are turned toward China. Let us understand her better, and then be ready to study the American Indians—a most fascinating study of the first Americans.

Everyone will be anxious to get ready for these books and follow trails and trailers. We want to know what we are doing for them, where our work is located, etc. A full year. May we feel our great need—educational and religious.

MRS. J. CARTWRIGHT,

Literature Supt.

1732 LaSalle Ave., Norfolk, Va.

NOTICE.

The Eastern Virginia Woman's Missionary Conference will meet with the South Norfolk Christian Church, Friday, October 28th. The morning session opens at 10:30 o'clock.

It is hoped that each Society has made some forward step this year toward the advancement of our work, and will do its full share in making October 28th a great day.

The speaker will be Mrs. Jeannette W. Emrich, who has spent fourteen years on the foreign field under the Congregational Board. Since returning to America her special interest has been in the field of international relations, race relations and social problems. Mrs. Emrich is a speaker of rare charm and ability. Our people should not miss the opportunity of hearing her.

MRS. L. W. STAGG, Sec'y.

Norfolk, Va.

ALABAMA WOMAN'S MISSIONARY CONFERENCE.

The Alabama Woman's Missionary Conference will meet with the Wadley Christian Church, Sunday, October 9, 1932. The morning session will open at 10:00 o'clock.

The pastor of each church is invited, and each Society is earnestly requested to have a large representation present.

MRS. H. P. BEAIRD, Pres.

Roanoke, Ala.

(Note—The program of the conference will be found on page 3 of this issue.)

LOOK AT PAGE 24 OF THE GUEST BOOK.

In the sixth paragraph of that page, "Mr. Brown" is made to say that in two years the giving of the churches to our world-wide enterprise has diminished one-third. It should be one-fifth, which represents the decreased rate of giving this year up to September 1st, compared with the rate for the same period two years ago in 1930. It is impossible to follow the Guest Books and correct this mistake in every book. Secretaries, state leaders, pastors and others are asked to do what they can to correct this mistake.

TO THE MISSIONARY SOCIETIES.

No doubt you think I have fallen down on the job as to programs, and I have, but I am writing this little word of explanation. Illness is the only reason, and that has been reason enough.

I am indeed sorry there were no programs for September, and that the attempt is meager for October. Perhaps it has stimulated the leaders to be original, and make up their own programs; perhaps many do that anyway, which is fine. In any case I am asking your indulgence and hope I may soon be able to assume my responsibility more efficiently.

October is the beginning of our new year, when new officers take their places, plans are formulated for the year, delegates are elected for conference, and a general getting ready to work. Several have written to me, asking for an installation service for new officers, so I am sending one to Dr. Atkinson, with the hope that he will have room to publish it.

A recognition service of some kind which could be original in make-up, is nice for your new members. Introduce yourselves to your pastor and to your church, and let them know your work and what you stand for. Enthusiasm has to start with us, if we are going to mean much to the church.

MRS. W. M. JAY.

Following is a program for installation service for new officers:

Reading—Psalm 100.

Hymn—"O Zion Haste."

Leader—The Missionary Society of has duly elected its officers for the ensuing year. The secretary will now read their names. (As each name is called the officer should take her place in front of the audience, facing the leader.) Secretary reads the names.

Leader—Fellow-workers, you have been called to positions of leadership in a society whose aim is to hasten the coming of the Kingdom of God in all the world. It is fitting that, as you accept these responsibilities, we should think again of the grounds of our commission. Our obligation is three-fold: Sacrifice, Devotion, Prayer. "There came also a woman having an alabaster box of ointment, very precious; and she brake the box and poured it on his head." "He that loseth his life for my sake, shall find it." "Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you." "Call upon me and I will answer thee, and show thee great and mighty things which thou knowest not."

All—"The God of Israel, he it is that giveth strength and power unto his people."

Leader—What are our marching orders?

All—"All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations." "Whatsoever he saith to you, do it."

Leader—It is fitting that you should be reminded of the duties which are now incumbent upon you as officers of this society. Madam president, upon you falls the heavier load and the larger responsibility. To you more than to any other one has the society a right to look for guidance, for inspiration and enthusiasm. You will need wisdom, and courage—the wisdom that comes from God and the courage born of faith. I need not say that in imposing this duty and honoring you with this position your sisters have expressed their entire confidence in your devotion to the cause and your ability to perform the duties hereby enjoined.

President—"Teach me thy way, O Lord; I will walk in thy truth; unite my heart to fear thy name."

Leader—As vice-president, you are to cooperate with the president in all the duties and demands of the office, and be to her what Aaron and Hur were to Moses. To you more than to any other one must she go for counsel and advice.

Vice-President—"I will go in the strength of the Lord God; I will make mention of thy righteousness, even of thine only."

Leader—To you as secretary, has come the honor and duty of recording the acts of the society. This is neither an insignificant nor an easy place to fill. You will need to be alert, accurate and prompt. Keep your record clean, and may no stain ever be found upon the page you write, either for yourself or for us.

Recording Secretary—"Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might. Concerning the work of my hands, command ye me."

Leader—No society can reach its highest point of efficiency without a corresponding secretary who knows her duties and undertakes them conscientiously and earnestly. You are the connecting link between the society and the conference Board (or conference board and woman's board). To you the conference officers will look for knowledge of the work of this society and through you your secretary will be kept in touch with the larger work.

Corresponding Secretary—"I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me."

Leader—As our treasurer we commit to your keeping the financial resources of our society in full assurance of your ability, your faithfulness and your honor.

Treasurer—"It is required of a steward that he be found faithful. My meat is to do the will of him who sent me."

Leader—Interest waits upon information. As literature superintendent it will be your privilege to distribute missionary literature, seek to increase the number of readers of the Christian Missionary, and in every way strive to make the members of this society intelligent concerning missionary work.

Literature Supt.—"Study to show thyself unto God; a workman who needeth not to be ashamed."

Leader—As the baby is the heart of the home, so the Cradle Roll is the heart of the missionary society. To you is given the sweet opportunity of linking our babies with the great work of bringing the world to our Lord Jesus Christ.

Cradle Roll Supt.—"Jesus called a little child unto him and set him in the midst of them."

Leader—In a very real sense you, as Young People's superintendent, have the most important work of all. May divine guidance be yours as you seek to lead those who have lives to give out into service for their Master.

Young People's Supt.—"That our sons may be as plants grown up in their youth. And our daughters as cornerstones polished after the similitude of a palace." "Not that I am sufficient of myself; but my sufficiency is of God."

Leader—"He that in these things serveth Christ is acceptable unto God and approved of men." "Ye that are the Lord's remembrancers, take ye no rest."

All Officers—"We will obey the voice of the Lord."

Leader—Will the members of this society please stand? (Let the officers turn and face the audience.) The officers you have chosen have prayerfully accepted the duties and responsibilities of their respective offices. It is well for all of us to remember that the success of this organization depends upon the faithful performance of duty by every individual member. Competent officers count for much, but they cannot accomplish any great results without your loyal support. (While the audience remains standing the leader will read Eph-3:14-21.)

Closing Prayer.

Hymn—"Lord of the Living Harvest," in The Christian Hymnary.

(Note.—The leader of this service may be the retiring president or some one else chosen for this special purpose. The service should be adapted to your society or conference board. It is sent out with the hope that it may help us to realize the sacredness of our obligations in the missionary work.)

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, Waverly, Va.

YOUTH FELLOWSHIP IN EASTERN VIRGINIA.

The Youth Fellowship of the Eastern Virginia Conference has recently sent to the pastor, Sunday School superintendent, key-worker, and president of the Christian Endeavor Society of each church a hand-book containing the minutes, committee reports, constitution and by-laws, and list of representatives and visitors of the annual meeting of the Fellowship held at Bethlehem on July 26th, last. Since we do not have a sufficient number of these hand-books for distribution to the entire membership, we hope that every person in the conference who is interested in the youth organization of our denomination will secure and read one that is being sent to his church.

We are also sending out a booklet called the "Calendar of the Youth Fellowship." This contains a bi-monthly program, combining the different pathways of the "Adventure in the Christian Quest," chart and the goals for this year set by the Fellowship in its annual meeting. It is hoped that this suggested program will prove to be an incentive for greater work to be accomplished this year by the young people of the Fellowship.

The executive committee decided in its meeting of September 9th, to award a banner at the annual meeting in July of 1933, to the young people of the church having completed the largest number of pathways on "The Adventure Chart." Who is going to receive this banner, which is but recognition of service rendered to the Master, the church, and to others?

The eastern district will hold a rally at Rosemont Church on October 9th, beginning at 3:30 P. M. Announcement will be made later concerning the meeting of the western district.

Watch for the "Calendar" and the "Hand-book."

IRENE COTTEN, Sec'y.

YOUTH FELLOWSHIP MEETS.

The first annual meeting of the Youth Fellowship of the Western North Carolina Christian and Congregational Churches met at Hank's Chapel Christian Church in Chatham County, September 4th. A splendid program was rendered to a large delegation. There were 108 representatives from the different churches in the conference. Brown's Chapel, Moore County, won the banner for attendance.

Ten months old sounds rather young and babyish, but we do not feel so little when we tell you some of the big things accomplished in our organization. With a quota of thirty-six churches we feel fortunate to report thirteen key-workers at our first annual meeting. A constitution was drawn up, amended and adopted. Also an emblem submitted by our president was adopted, one which we hope may in the future become the national emblem of our young people's work. The reports of committees were as follows:

Resolutions—The Youth Fellowship was called to order by our most beloved president, Rev. Carl R. Key. We were favored with special selections of music by the Ramseur girls and Hank's Chapel quartet. We were fortunate in having these singers, and enjoyed their good music. Also enjoyed a very important address by the president. Due to the absence of Miss Jewel Truitt, our president gave another splendid address on "The Purpose of Youth Fellowship." We regret very much, due to the lack of sufficient time, we were unable to hear from Rev. E. Carl Brady on the important subject, "The Call of Youth." Our closing service was beautifully rendered by Rev. Carl Key.

Goals and Attainments—A youth organization of some kind in each church; a representative key-worker in each church who will keep a chart and goals before the young people's organizations of the church, and report to the editor of the Young People's Page in THE CHRISTIAN SUN news items from the local church; at least one young person from each church attending Elon Leadership Training School; the young people of every church giving to missions this year; at least 200 converts to Christ won through the efforts of the young people; all young people's organizations taking an active part in the program of Allied Youth for the support of the 18th Amendment and for Christian citizenship; and at least 100 new subscriptions to THE CHRISTIAN SUN secured by the young people.

Nominating Committee—Reporter, Ralph Riddle, Pittsboro, N. C.; Supt. of Devotional Life, Connie Copeland, Eagle Springs, N. C.; Supt. of Service, Ollie Burgess, Ramseur, N. C.; Supt. of Leadership Training, Lillie Horne, Elon College, N. C.; Supt. of Moral Standards, Virginia Morton, 201 Sellars St., Burlington, N. C.; Supt. of Publications, Ollie Stadler, Burlington, N. C.; Pastor Counsellors: Rev. E. Carl Brady, Hemp, N. C., and Rev. S. M. Penn, Sophia, N. C.; Lay Counsellor, Jewell Truitt, Glen Raven, N. C.

We are not only glad that we can give a report like this but we are getting down with our shoulders to the wheel of Youth Fellowship and rolling it on.

MADGE D. CRAVEN, Sec'y.

COURAGE TO LIVE.

Since the day young Joshua assumed the responsibilities thrust upon him by the death of Moses, and doubtless long before, it has taken great courage to face life and keep climbing upward. God pointed out the way to Joshua, and urged him to be "very courageous." (Joshua 1:7.) Many people fail because they have not courage to succeed.

Young people could do much more for Christ new paths. Unfortunately, most of us scarcely and the church if they had the courage to blaze have enough courage to move forward on well-marked highways. Sometimes my supply of courage runs very low and I tumble down grade in spirit and usefulness at a rapid rate. At such time it does me good to read poems like the one which was handed me recently by a young person. I pass the poem along to you with the hope that the reading of it will give you "courage and love" sufficient to meet life's problems successfully.

It takes great courage to train to modern service,
Your ancestral brain,
To lift the weight of un-numbered years of dead men's Habits, methods and ideas;
To hold that in one hand and support with the other
The feeble steps of the new thought.

It takes great courage to bring your life up square,
With your accepted thought, and hold it there;
Resisting the energies that would hold back,
From the new attempts, to the old beaten track.
It is so easy to drift—to sink,
So hard to live abreast of what you think.

It takes great courage to live where you belong,
When other people think that you are wrong,
People you love and who love you, and Whose approval is a pleasure—and succeed at length
In living your belief—well, it takes strength,

(Continued on page 11.)

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

TOPIC FOR OCTOBER 2, 1932.

"How does the teaching of Jesus help business?"
Luke 19:1-8; Matt. 6:12, 19-34.

Every Christian Endeavor program should have a worship service in which all persons present are brought close to God. This often comes at the first of the program. It should center about a theme that will lead directly into the topic for the meeting. All hymns, scriptures, prayers, etc., should blend into each other in a progressive way.

Since this meeting deals with the teachings of Jesus it is appropriate to open the meeting with a statement of the topic and the singing of, "Tell Me the Story of Jesus." This can be followed by the scripture readings, and a prayer or prayers of thanksgiving for the things mentioned in the scripture and for business that is helpful. A song like, "The King's Business," may follow. Then comes the offering, and perhaps a business moment which may be nothing more than announcements of things that are to happen during the week. "I Would Be Like Jesus," sung as a duet will swing the group back to the theme of the meeting and the speaker, preferably a business man, can discuss the topic. Many questions will arise that should be answered by the speaker and others. Among these questions will be some like these:

What is wrong with business? Why are people hungry in a land of plenty? Would Christianity, if practiced in business, guarantee a living for everyone? Does a business man have to be dishonest in order to succeed? Zachaeus, when he met the Master, gave half he possessed to feed the poor. Do we have to do as much? Is giving a necessity? Is the stock market wrong? Why are farmers having to refuse to sell their crops?

The closing moment should be one of consecration to the task of making business Christian. Any good dedication hymn will help, and a few short prayers will strengthen the purpose to serve in business.

MORE WORSHIP PROGRAMS.

We have, this month, more worship services prepared by members of Miss Pattie Lee Coghill's class in Training and Worship and the Devotional Life at the Elon Summer School of Leadership Training.

The first is by Ethel Rodgers of Elon College, N. C., and the second is by Virginia Orcell, of Ingram, Va.

THEME—"Nature."

Call to worship—"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord."

Prayer.

Solo—"Beautiful Garden of Prayer."

Leader's Message—"Beauties in Nature."

Prayer by the leader.

Hymn—"Day is Dying in the West."

Benediction.

THEME—"Loving Our Enemies."

Hymn—"Love Divine."

Call to Worship—"This is the message that we have heard from the beginning, that we love one another." Let us not love in word, neither in tongue, but in deed and in truth.
"There is no fear in love, but perfect love casts out fear."

Hymn—"Saviour, Teach Me Day by Day."

Scripture—Romans 12:9-18.

Prayer.

Leader's talk.

Hymn—"O Love that Will Not Let Me Go."

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

THE CHRISTIAN IN THE FAMILY.

LESSON II—OCTOBER 9, 1932

LESSON TEXT: Luke 2:40-52; 10:38-42.

GOLDEN TEXT: "I will walk within my house with a perfect heart."—Psalm 101:2.

Any series of lessons dealing with Christian standards of life, as this quarter's lessons do, must take into account the Christian in the family. There is no place in which the ideals and the principles and the spirit of Christ are more needed or can be made more effective. If all the homes in America were Christian in truth and in spirit it would not be difficult to make America Christian. The two scripture lessons today deal with two phases of the Christian in the family. Parents and children, work and worship.

Parents and Children in the Christian Family.

"And when they had performed all things according to the law of the Lord . . ." and "his parents went to Jerusalem every year at the feast of the Passover," are two passages that speak volumes. Jesus was reared in a home in which religion had a normal and vital and large place. His parents attended to their religious duties in a whole-hearted way. And they did this as a unit. The boy was included in the religious observances and experiences. Our modern church life is suffering from the decline of the family pew. There is a distinct value in the family attending the public worship as a family. The atmosphere and the training of the home were influential factors in the life of Jesus.

This story gives an interesting insight into the limitations of parents, even the parents of Jesus. Mary and Joseph were "amazed" to find Jesus where he was, and doing what he was doing. They did not have any adequate conception of the boy's ability, or of his religious development. Many a child is thus underestimated by those who are nearest and dearest to him.

The fact that Jesus became separated from his parents also indicates that they trusted him and gave him some freedom and some responsibility. It is a serious question as to how much responsibility and how much freedom children should have as they become older. But parents who trust their children and give them some measure of responsibility are helping to build character. But children should, of course, keep faith with their parents.

There was the child's side, too. He grew normally—in physical strength and stature, in knowledge, in the social graces, and in the things of the spirit. The Christian home will see to it that the child comes into his heritage in all these lines. And the spiritual phase of his life will not be neglected. Even the Sunday School cannot give the child all his religious training.

"And he went down with them and came to Nazareth, and was subject unto them." Jesus was obedient. One of the reasons why he was so obedient to the will of God throughout his public life and ministry, was because he had learned to be obedient to his parents in his younger life. The parents have the place of authority in the home. This does not mean that they are to be high-handed despots. It does not mean that children do not have a right to be heard. But it does mean that in the Christian family the parents are to be obeyed in the Lord. Children are to respect and obey their parents. Parents are to be worthy of the respect and obedience of their children.

Work and Worship.

The incident of the visit of Jesus in the home of Martha and Mary might well be used as the basis for teaching the relative places of work and worship in the home. A home is a cooperative enterprise. Husband and wife, parents and children are to work together and unselfishly for the interests of all. Work has its place. For instance, children should be taught to work and to do their work well. They should have their part in the duties of the home. Work has a character-training value. Martha was quite within her rights when she insisted upon doing the work well and in insisting that Mary help her. But Martha, like many another housewife, had overlooked the vital fact that worship has just as legitimate a place in a well-ordered household as work. Alas, that all of us lose our perspective in this matter.

In other words the devotional life of the home is not a thing to be treated apart from the other activities of the home. Family prayer and grace at the table ought to be as much a matter of course as the other things which we take as a matter of course. One thing is certain—the home which gives thought and place to the things of the spirit will be a home that is different. Children coming from such homes will have a great advantage over the children who come from homes in which there is no provision for worship.

Many leaders are saying that one of the most vital things that the church can do today is to encourage and develop religion in the home. Here is the strategic place in life. Unless we can make our homes Christian we cannot hope to make the world Christian.

COURAGE TO LIVE.

(Continued from page 10.)

And courage, too; but what does courage mean?

Save strength to help you face a pain forseen.

Courage to undertake the life-long strain

Of setting your against your grandsire's brain.

Dangerous risk of walking alone and free,

Out of the easy path that used to be.

And the fierce pain of hurting those we love,

When love meets truth and truth must ride above.

It takes great courage—and love to serve the human heart

To live intimately with others, and yet apart,

A love that is not shallow, is not small—

Not meant for one or two, but for the needy all.

A love that can wound love for its deeper need,

A love that can leave love, though the heart may bleed,

A love that can lose love, family and friend,

Yet steadfastly live, loving to the end.

A love that asks no answer, that can live,

Moved by one deathless, burning impulse—to give.

"And this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith."—1 John 5:4.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7/8 x 7 Inches, and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 7/8 x 7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $6.00

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 1/2 Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold. $1.60

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 3/4 x 7

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.50

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges. $6.00

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 Inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/8 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps. $2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 1/4 Inches and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold. $4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold. $3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools. 95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond Virginia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."—II. Chron. 7:14.

MONDAY.

THE LIGHT OF GOD'S WORD.

"Thy word is a lamp unto thy feet. A light unto my pathway."—Psalm 119:105.

This psalm seems to be the expression of a person who had felt all the unspeakable bitterness of insult, persecution, shame, discouragement, troubles, and exile. But he seems to be one for whom experiences did a good work, by throwing him back on God, his ways, and his will.

Today this experience becomes an echo of all Christian people for the whole Bible. A lamp and a light is exactly what they find it to be to them. That guidance in a dark and confused world makes provision for our whole lives; it is the secret of life's true sunshine; it is the light for the course of our thinking and our conduct. With God's word at hand, we should never be in doubt about any practical question with which we have to deal. It will guide us on the true road to everlasting happiness in another life.

Prayer—Our Father, we confess our neglect of thy Word. Turn us to it today and make it our lamp and our light in all things. Amen.

TUESDAY.

THE SHINING LIGHT.

"Shining more and more unto the perfect day."—Prov. 4:18.

The function of light is to reveal everything along the way that we may carefully observe everything upon which its rays are falling—the path we tread, the objects we pass, the companions of our journey, the view it gives us of ourselves.

The light which we get from the Bible does the same thing for us mentally, morally and spiritually. It is light transferred from its pages to the inner sanctuary of life in which conscience sits as a guide, and it illuminates the humblest path with the radiance of the just.

The clearest evidence of this shining light is derived from personal experience, when obedience to his word creates an inner sense of reality, consciousness, and power of God. This is a kind of daily consecration which lies within the reach of all. Only let the Holy Scriptures have its assigned place in the regulation of conduct and life, and its light and power will certainly come. This was the reason for Christ saying, "If any man willet to do his will, he shall know the teaching, whether it be of God, or whether I speak for myself." (Jno. 6:17.)

Prayer—Our Father, help us to give up everything that hinders from coming to thy heart— forbid that we shall care too much for prayers, for hoping, or in any seeking after comforts and feelings which deter us from thee. But enable us just to come to thee with faith in thy word. We promise to do thy holy will so far as we can, to serve thee as well as we can, and, whatever the reward, to do our best for the Master. This we ask for Jesus sake. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

STEPPING IN THE LIGHT.

"Neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy."—Acts 20:24.

There is a way to read the Bible and still be in darkness, and there is a way to read it and experience the light. He who would saunter along easy-handed through its pages will not see the light. God hides himself from that kind of seeker.

We find in the Bible what we seek. If we search it prayerfully we find depths of meaning, heights of glory, abysses of wonder, which one cannot give expression to. It is an inner condition, a revelation of which one is conscious in His Spirit, and which can be imparted only in the same manner. How many a soul who loves God, knows God, has experienced the new birth, cannot express it? Language can but suggest its realities, only those who search the Scripture in this way find it a light that makes one subdue himself and pursue a course which he will finish with joy.

He who does find this light experiences it as a purifier to the soul, a strength to the will in times of temptation, an elevation to thought amid strife, a quickener of spirit in faith and prayer and a continuous inspiration to those who otherwise would be stupefied by the murky damps of life.

Prayer—Dear Father, of heaven, our days' toil will be a failure unless we have a pattern for our labors. We pray for the pattern of life that is divine. We pray that thy will be done in us as it is done by the angels of heaven. We would walk with the King all day. We pray for power to walk in that reality and for power to interpret the Bible in the light of Jesus. Amen.

THURSDAY.

A BAFFLING PERSONALITY.

"Verly I say unto you, if ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you."—Matt. 17:26.

Read also: Mark 11:23 and Luke 17:6.

A single instance in the life of Jesus exemplifies this spirit. The Disciples and Jesus were visiting the temple and looking it over and no doubt admiring it in a worshipful spirit. The Disciples marveled at its size and massiveness. Jesus said, "yes, there shall not be left one stone upon another that shall not be thrown down."

We are prone to be baffled at the size of things and think that they compel us to certain thought and actions. Under such influence one may even submit to evil. That things may be big and compelling is enough for us. It's the city with the biggest population; the State with the overwhelming vote; the store with the biggest sales; the actor with the biggest salary; the hero with the biggest punch; the biggest building; the biggest bank; the preacher with the biggest crowd; and "what have you?" These are things in which popular interest and acclaim run.

The trouble is that we are charmed by the influence of bigness and we think that bigness can do things which it cannot do. None of these things are life nor do they express the meanings of life. Bigness is only quantity and perhaps it may be the most selfish quantities of life. It may be the enemy of personality, and certainly so when it results in the substitution of quantity for quality, and when it results in the substitution of success by any means for straight thinking, straight living and Christian character.

What is your estimate of Christian character? Is it in the amount of work one may do, or in the good that emanates from that one's life? What is your estimate of a successful church? Is it the size of the building, or is it in the reality of a personal touch with God? Is it in the size of the crowd, or is it in the overflow of pure hearts?

More people were in a parade on Coney Island once than engaged in the Crusades of Europe in the Middle Ages—a larger number than has ever gone out as missionaries of Christian faith. What did it mean? Peanuts and popcorn—that's all.

Quality, purpose—a great end in view—and we should march to that end, even though there be but a few of us. The five thousand who are fed by Jesus, meant nothing compared to the twelve who were to go out as apostles and change the face of humanity for Jesus.

Prayer—O Lord, Jesus, thou art fairer than ten thousand and altogether lovely. We humble ourselves before thee this day, imploring thee to make and keep us truly thine. Amen.

FRIDAY.

OUT OF THE QUANDARY.

"Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law."—Psalm 119:18.

This Scripture, prayer of the Psalmist, is the best prayer one may make when he opens the Book. David must have realized in this that it was entirely possible, as Jesus expresses it, to "have eyes and see not."

If one were to hold out a lantern to you and ask you to tell him if there is a light in it, you might convince him that there is, but surely your chiefest concern would be, "is he blind?"

If any one should ask you if the Bible is true, and is it really the light of God which shines there, your pity is excited, that he has to ask some one. Why shouldn't he read and have the inner conviction himself? You may also remember that the Scripture saith, "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit; for they are foolishness unto him; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned." Does anyone find himself in that predicament? Then pray in the words of our text.

Prayer—Our Father, as we pray to thee this day, we turn our thoughts to thy word. Help us to ponder thy sayings. Give us holy, loving and grateful thoughts toward Christ, and kind thoughts toward our fellows, devout and contrite thoughts toward God. "The commandments of the Lord are pure, enlightening the eyes," and open thou our eyes. Amen.

SATURDAY.

THE UNIVERSAL INVITATION.

"Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest."—Matt. 11:28.

It is a sweet thought that the Bible is for every one. Other books are for the poor, or for the rich, the great and the obscure; but the Bible regards men solely in their relation to God, as heirs to the common mysteries of life and death, of incorruption and immortality. It neither wearies the aged nor repels the child. In it one and all may find a steady flowing light to their souls. No other book says, "Come unto me and find rest."

The fact that all can read the Word and find rest, peace, wisdom and light, is evidence of its being the Word of God. All people are in substantial agreement on its teachings. We never heard of one critic who has denied the power of

(Continued on page 14.)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

THE ANSWER TO A UNIVERSAL CRY.

By REV. JOS. E. McCAULEY.

Scripture Lesson—Matt. 11:25-30.

A minister sat in the office of a school teacher one day and tried to get the teacher to surrender his life to Christ. The teacher replied by saying: "I do not feel like it now; furthermore, I prefer to work out my own salvation." During the course of the conversation, a school boy came in and handed the teacher a problem in mathematics on which he had been working for several days, but had failed to solve. The teacher took the problem and looked it over. After the teacher examined the problem, he saw his error, made the correction, and said: "I could have saved you all that worry and labor if you had brought me the problem sooner." At that instant the preacher spoke to the teacher thus: "Yes, and if you will only hand your problems of life with which you have been struggling these years to the Master Teacher, he too, will show you your error." The teacher saw the point, and committed himself unto Christ and became a new creature in Christ Jesus.

Both the boy and the teacher had their problems. They had their burdens. They both needed a Saviour. Just so it is with all the world. Too long the world has tried to solve its own problems without proper teachings or without recognizing that there is a Saviour who can supply its every need.

The lack of recognition of a Master Teacher and Saviour and a commitment of our problems to him, has brought about a complex situation in the world which has absolutely bewildered the whole of humanity. The church, the educator, the statesman, the financier and the producers are alike at sea. The white man, the yellow man, the red man and the black man are all confounded in this age. This confusion has become universal. It has reached the stage where all the world is crying. There is only one answer to this cry. "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light."

I. A Crying World.—I imagine I can hear the Master say to the world: "What are you crying about? Am I not with you? Have I not shown you the way? Have I not offered to be yoked with you that your burdens might be lighter?" Yes, but still the world is crying. It would be impossible to enumerate all the cries that approach the throne of grace. Surely, all would not be universal. Neither would they be for a universal good. But there are cries that are world wide. They must be answered. What are these cries? If we had our ears tuned to hear one of the first cries, it would be the cry of millions of people from India, Russia and the Philippines, crying for industrial, economic and educational freedom. Think of the millions in these countries who are yet slaves to the drudgeries that ignorance and lack of facilities of all kinds bring to them. They are crying for relief. They are crying for political and industrial relief. Who can answer their pitiful cry?

Again, if we could tune in on China, we would hear her 400,000,000 people crying for relief from internal and external wars. We would also hear her pleas for food, especially in famine stricken districts. We would hear the masses cry for a more literate people—for ignorance incapacitates the underprivileged class to cope with the problems of life. It especially lessens their power to overcome the fates of nature.

Japan, with her multifarious problems, is crying. Her cry is for more territory, relief from her war debts, a market for her manufactured articles, and relief from her governmental difficulties.

Russia, who a few years ago, made the proud boast that Communism would be the ruling spirit in governmental affairs of the world—and humanism in religious affairs—has reached the place where there is a cry. Her industrial system, run upon a common basis, is a failure. The Soviet editors charge that there is a rotten chain of mismanagement in the factories of the country. The officials, and especially the peasantry, are crying for deliverance.

Europe is so submerged by her war debts, economical burdens, and political discords, that a cry is constantly coming from her people for help. Then proud and boastful America takes her stand among the nations to cry for relief. Just a few years ago, the financiers would tell you that there would never be another panic in this country. We had learned to live above that! I have had men tell me that there would never be a time when hungry men would walk the streets again. Some said there would never be a time when children would want for food. We were too well organized and too far advanced for that! But now we are beginning to take a stand with the rest of the nations of the world, and cry for help. Help, yes, help, in our economic life, help in our educational life, and God knows we need to cry for help in our political life.

If we include all the nations and needs which I have mentioned, we would not have the one dominant desire or passion included yet. The universal cry is probably for food. It may be for relief from industrial and political conditions resulting from the World War. But these conditions come and go with the times. The one universal cry which constantly rings out through all the ages is that for religious passion. Some seek an answer to this cry from the right source, while others seek it from the wrong source. But the answer may be found.

Can we find one to answer this universal cry? We look in vain across the plains of the universe, or on the thrones of kingdoms, or in the seat of the wise of the earth to give a satisfactory answer. Then we stand, like the whole world, aghast and bewildered at our plight. Then we hear a voice, clear and gentle, saying: "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." We look again and we see the One Supreme Answer to all the cries of the world. It is our Saviour.

II. An Answering Saviour.—As we look at the exalted Christ, let us see him lifted up. "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me." He has been lifted up as a crucified Christ. He is now exalted to the plane where he can stand in review of the world as it passes. He is ready to help all those who need him. May we see him standing this morning at his reviewing station, with the world on the march. As he stands at a given point, with the present birth and death rate, the nations of the world could continue to pass by him through all eternity. China, with her citizens four abreast, would never cease passing and crying to the Master. Europe, with her colonies could also furnish a continuous line four abreast. India would have three abreast. The line of the United States would be in single

(Continued on page 15.)

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses
(this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling). $22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00
Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Our hearts were made to rejoice last week when the clouds came thick and dark, and it began to rain, and for six hours it rained beautifully. The dust was settled and the ground was mellowed and everything looks refreshed. After such a long drought it certainly makes one feel happy to see it rain. We are happy that all sections of our country have not been visited with dry weather, and have good crops, although the Orphanage farm was hit hard this year. We have faith to believe that we will not suffer. We believe God will provide. It would be hard to make me believe that our church people would permit these orphan children in their Orphanage to suffer if they knew it. A helpless child appeals to every Christian heart. Who is it that does not love a little child? If a little child should come to your door and ask for food, would you turn it away hungry? It is more blessed to give than to receive, saith the Word. Would you not rather be able to give it something than to change places with it and receive?

If every church and Sunday School would elect some man or woman to make a short talk once each month in behalf of the Orphanage, and get the membership interested in it, we would be greatly benefited in this work. Many of our church people are not interested because they know nothing about it. And perhaps they have had no one to tell them about it. They have never visited their Orphanage to see what it looks like. If they could visit it and see the three nice brick buildings with their 101 children, the nice dairy barn with its herd of Holstein and Jersey cattle, twenty nice hogs in the pen, some pretty sheep, and many other things of interest, they would be interested.

These little children are appealing to you! What are you going to do about it?

REPORT FOR SEPTEMBER 29, 1932.

Brought forward $ 9,703.25

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:

Ingram $ 3.00
United, Lynchburg 4.66

7.66

Eastern North Carolina Conference:

Mt. Hermon $ 4.00
Wentworth 6.60
Christian Chapel 2.15
Turner's Chapel 1.10
Wake Chapel 5.00
Liberty (Vance) 2.62

21.47

Western North Carolina Conference:

Graham 1.31

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Holy Neck $ 7.02
First, Norfolk 4.03
First, Norfolk 5.26
Oakland 4.00
Bethlehem 10.00

30.31

Valley Virginia Central Conference:

Dry Run $ 3.18
Leaksville 1.55
New Hope 3.63
Winchester 3.15
Wood's Chapel 2.00

13.51

Alabama Conference:

Noon Day61

Georgia and Alabama Conference:

Beulah 4.07

Special Offerings.

A. J. Morgan, support children..$ 30.00

Mrs. Ray, support of Marie Ray.. 10.00

Special collection for singing class

Providence Mem. Sunday School 12.87

52.87

Total for the week $ 131.81

Grand total $ 9,835.06

FAMILY ALTAR.

(Continued from page 12.)

its pages to quicken faith, to renew hope, to start the impulse of prayer, to turn the life into affections, and furnish man unto every good work.

Prayer—O Lord, our God, make thy light to shine along our pathway and light us home to thee.—Amen.

SUNDAY.

SELF-STRANGLER.

"His roots are wrapped about the stone-heap."
—Read Job 8:11-22.

Occasionally a tree sends forth a root which, instead of radiating from the tree, encircles the trunk. As the root grows larger it cuts into the bark, preventing the circulation of sap, killing the trunk above it, and affording a nesting area for destructive insects and fungi. If the root is not cut away in time, it strangles the entire tree. Thus it is with many a life. Its interests, instead of reaching out into the world of helpful action, merely circle about the soul in selfishness. "What I shall eat, what I shall drink, wherewithal shall I be clothed"—such things as these, fill a self-centered life.

The process is suicidal. What we need is the inflow of sap from all the world. Every man, if he would live, must love God and his neighbor. He must have radiating roots.

Prayer—God of love, teach us to give ourselves wholly to other men and to thy world. Then will men and the world give themselves wholly to us, even as thou dost give thyself to us. Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

IN THE HILLS.

You have a right to know what is being done by your servants here, so why not write and ask? Are you interested in the work? Here are a few of the things that God is doing here in his work, and your home mission work:

1. Eighteen have been added to the churches here this summer.

2. Home nursing classes have been training the ladies to care for their homes more efficiently.

3. The grounds around both churches have been cleared and leveled.

4. Two revivals have stirred the entire community here.

5. Two well-organized Sunday Schools are doing good work, with an average attendance of 45 at one and 50 at the other. The cooperation and fellowship are fine.

These are only a few of the things that are happening here. Will you ask for any information that you wish?

The first Sunday in September was a special joy to all the people here. We had as our guests a class of orphan children from Elon College. If any of you want to get nearer to God through his children, send these little children of his an invitation to come and give their program in your Sunday School or church service.

R. T. GRISSOM.

Fancy Gap, Va.

holman Testaments

ALL SELF-PRONOUNCING

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2½x4½ inches

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Je'sus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles..... $.50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles..... .60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges..... .85

VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS

2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges..... .70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges..... .90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges..... 1.10

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges..... .90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included..... 1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4½ inches x¾ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller. It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength. One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4½ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type
ST. MATTHEW 2 The three wise men carrying away into Babylonia are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Babylonia unto Christ are fourteen

ing interpreted is, God with us.
24 Then Je'seph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges..... $ 1.00
5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included..... 1.50
5036PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather bindings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms..... 2.60

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET SIZE
3¾x4½ inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type
CHAPTER 23.
THEN spake Je'sus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance. In size, 3¾x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms..... $.90
4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges..... 1.35
4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included..... 1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT

4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges..... 1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT

4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms..... 3.00
4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red..... 3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print
Pica. 16mo. Size, 5½x7½x3¼ inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines. It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

Specimen of Type.
THE book
of Je'sus

PSALMS INCLUDED

2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included..... $ 1.50

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS
Same Large Print as Above

2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included..... 2.95

RED LETTER EDITION
Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.

3913PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included..... 3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

THE SUN'S PULPIT.

(Continued from page 13.)

file, but would continue to pass the answering Saviour through all eternity. Japan and Korea would also have a continuous line passing him. Then comes Australia, Africa, other peoples of Asia, South America, and so on. In other words, if all the people of the earth were in one line, eighteen abreast, they would continue to pass a given point through all eternity. Some would look to an answering Saviour, while others would not. But in the procession which I have described, there would be a large number falling out.

On the drill-fields and battlefields of the World War, large numbers of men fell out. They had to be administered to by a relief party. Their cries were many and varied. Just as in this great battle line of life: many would fall before the reviewing stations. But the answering Saviour could and would supply their every need if they would only cry unto him. It is of interest to note that various individuals and groups of people have turned to other sources for an answer to this universal cry. Some have turned to science, some to philosophy, some to general education, some to wealth, some to pleasure and others to the evil passions of the world. Each of these sources may supply a certain satisfaction in the life of a nation or an individual, but the Christ, the Son of the living God, is the only one that can supply every need of man.

"There's within my heart, a melody,
Jesus whispers sweet and low:
'Fear not, I am with thee, peace be still,
In all of life's ebb and flow.'
"All my life was wrecked by sin and strife
Discord filled my heart with pain,
Jesus swept across the broken strings,
Stirred the slumbering chords again.
"Jesus, Jesus, Jesus, sweetest name I know, Fills my every longing, keeps me singing as I go."

This brings us to the remedy, which the answering Saviour has for the crying world.

III. The Remedy Applied.—When Jesus said: "Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me," it looks as if a burden too great to be borne was imposed. For indeed the Master bore a burden far greater than any other human being. He said unto all: "Lay off your yoke, and take mine." We must come to Christ as our rest. The world can find rest in him. It can repose upon him. To all those who are burdened by sin, to those who are chained to the desire of pleasure and ease, to those who are groping in darkness, to those who have lost their bearings in life, Jesus says: "Come, cast thy burdens at my feet. Cast your cares upon him, for he careth for you." Sin has yoked the world in. The individual who is not freed by Christ, is under the yoke of sin. Jesus says: "Take my yoke in its place." The process of exchange may be severe but the change means all to the individual.

Many a soldier has been wounded upon the battlefields. The long hours to wait before receiving first aid or before being carried to the hospital, made it necessary to wrap the wound in a piece of old uniform. When the patient arrived at the hospital, the doctor and nurse had to tear the old bandage away so that the wound might be properly treated and sterilized bandage put on. The patient had to suffer death almost during the treatment, but it was necessary for his good. The tearing away from self may be hard, but the yoke Christ gives is worth the change.

Christ promises rest to those who come to him. Before we can enter into rest, we must take his yoke upon us. We must learn of him. He is willing to be yoked by the side of all those who cry unto him and acknowledge him as the answering Saviour. He bears the major burdens; his yoke relieves the unsaved of the doubts of the world, the sins that beset us and the pitfalls of the evil one. When once mankind knows him, leaves its burdens and goes with him, then will the burden be found lighter than that of the world.

The yoke speaks some hardships. All God's creatures must bear some burden; it is the law of nature. Since we must, to take Christ's yoke upon us is to put ourselves in the right relationship with him. It is to obey his commands. It is to be his servants and to put ourselves in the proper disposal to all his commands as true servants. It is to obey his gospel. It is to love and serve our fellowman. But Christ's commands are all in our favor. It yokes us in, yet it gives us freedom. The yoke of Christ is the supreme answer to the world's cry for her ills.

To the individual, he says, "Come," to the home, he says, "Come" to the church he says, "Come," to the nation, he says, "Come," to the world he says, "Come." "Come unto me, and I will give you rest." In this hour of distress, may our answer to his call be:

"Out of unrest and arrogant pride, Jesus I come, Jesus I come,
Into thy blessed will to abide, Jesus I come to thee.
Out of myself to dwell in thy love, out of despair into raptures,
Upward for aye, on wings like a dove, Jesus I come to thee."

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

WHITLEY MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 15th. Freshmen register on Tuesday, September 13th, and upper classmen on the 15th. Expenses reduced for this session. Write for Catalog and application blank.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D.....Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D.....Associate
W. W. STALEY, D. D.....Contributing
S. C. HARRELL.....Contributing
C. R. RAYMOND, D. D.....Contributing
ELISHA A. KING, D. D.....Contributing
W. C. WICKER, D. D.....Contributing
J. T. KERNODLE.....Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year$2.00
Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When sending subscriptions for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of year.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

OBITUARIES

CARTER.

Mr. Richard W. Carter was born May 9, 1852, and died August 19, 1932. In 1890 Mr. Carter was united in marriage to Miss Nannie Richardson. To this union three children were born: Mrs. Lillie M. Chaney, Mr. Lewis G. Carter and Miss Sallie F. Carter, all of whom survive.

About seven years ago, Mr. Carter united with Ingram Christian Church, and remained a member until his death. For more than a year Bro. Carter was confined to his bed most of the time. He was patient in his suffering, and bore it without complaint. He was ready to go when the summons came.

Services were conducted by the writer, and interment was in the family cemetery. May the Lord bless and comfort the bereaved.

H. E. CRUTCHFIELD.

SHEPPARD.

Hiram D. Sheppard was born at Lamar, Ala., June 18, 1865, and died at his home near Rock Mills, Ala., August 29 1932.

He professed faith in Christ in early manhood and united with the Primitive Baptist Church. When Bethany Christian Church was organized near his home 36 years ago he became a charter member, and was ordained a deacon soon after, and remained true and loyal to the trust until Christ said, "Well done."

He married Miss Mary Francis Boyd July 28, 1887. To this union were born two boys and one girl: D. W., Rev. A. H., and Mrs. Ora Harry, all of whom lived nearby that they might minister to the needs of their father in his afflictions which he had borne with patience for several years. He leaves to mourn their loss, his devoted companion, three children, 13 grandchildren, one brother, one sister, and a great host of friends. His friends were numbered by his acquaintances.

Funeral services were held at Bethany Christian Church with Rev. C. W. Carter, a former pastor, in charge, assisted by six other ministers, who testified to the beautiful character of a man whom we all loved. The floral offerings were very beautiful. The little church would not accommodate the great throng of friends and neighbors who met to pay their last tribute of respect to one they loved.

The body was laid to rest in the Rock Mills Cemetery to await the resurrection of the just. G. H. VEAZEY.

666

LIQUID—TABLETS—SALVE

Checks Colds first day, Headaches or Neuralgia in 30 minutes, Malaria in 3 days. 666 SALVE FOR HEAD COLDS. Most Speedy Remedies Known.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

FALL TERM—SEPTEMBER 7

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

Cost for Board, Room and Tuition, including also Entrance, Activity, and Infirmary fees reduced to $273.50 for the College Year. Personal expenses as low as student and parent wish.

All who seek an "A" grade college training for their sons and daughters in an atmosphere of Christian culture, and at minimum cost, are invited to write for the college catalogue and admission blanks.

Address: DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

A Memorial of the Congregational-Christian Union.

FRANK E. JENKINS, Pres. MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD, Dean

Chartered by Southern Christian Convention, June 2, 1922, as Bethlehem College; renamed Southern Union, June 3, 1931.

Will function during the present financial depression as a Junior College only.

FALL TERM WILL OPEN SEPTEMBER 7.

DEPRESSION PRICES.

Depression prices during the coming year, made possible by extensive gardens, careful planning, organization and donations—Tuition, board and room, $192 for entire scholastic year; tuition alone, $48; each payable in six equal installments.

Unsectarian, but thoroughly Christian.

For Information, write—

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA.

HOLMAN BIBLES

LARGE PRINT
TEACHERS' EDITION
FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS
AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear, Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type.
"From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, 'The kingdom of heaven is at hand.'"

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 10.65

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXIV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1932.

NUMBER 40.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

The Tiger Bares Its Claws.—

Mayor McKee, of New York City, has been blocked in his attempt to draft a budget which will cut $100,000,000 from the expenditures of that city. By a vote of five to eleven, C. W. Berry, the city comptroller, with the solid backing of the Tammany delegation, took from the mayor the budget-making power which that officer has for some time exercised. The mayor went down fighting, and succeeded in preventing an executive, or secret, session of the council being held for that purpose.

Treasury $400 Million in the Red.—

The United States Government ended the first quarter of its 1933 fiscal year with a deficit of $402,320,914. During that time collections had been made amounting to $431,483,016, while expenditures were almost double, or $833,803,930. New taxes under the so-called billion dollar tax bill, showed a total of $167,490,637. Other taxes dropped considerably in volume. It is expected that taxes from the newer sources will continue to increase some time, but the only hope of final balancing of the budget is the increased curtailment of expenditures.

Outstanding Facts.—

"You can read in a few minutes the outstanding facts on any of the sixty-four books of the Bible, and get a far more comprehensive idea of what the book contains than from reading the book itself." Thus says the advertiser of a "New Analytical" Bible, which has just been published. One might get a far more scientific idea of what a nice, juicy peach was by analyzing it, but there is only one way to receive the refreshment and blessing it would impart. Neither may we substitute analyses for the Bible if we would receive its refreshment and blessing.

Americans Spend Millions Abroad.—

Notwithstanding the fact that America has been facing one of the most serious crises in its history, over 15,000,000 American tourists this year spent $570,000,000 abroad, according to the Commercial Financial Chronicle. The Department of Commerce states that approximately 13,240,000 Americans crossed the Canadian border by auto and left $188,100,000 there, while 1,175,000 went by rail or boat to the tune of $50,629,000. At the end of this article which quoted other figures of money spent for pleasure in Mexico, comes the paragraph: "The total contributions made to foreign fields of activity by United States charitable, religious, educational and scientific institutions during the past year declined 20 per cent in comparison with 1930." One other sentence: "In view of the fact that the United States has been playing such an important part in the realm of world finance and business it is no wonder that 15,000,000 or more Americans assumed the attitude of wanderlust this year."—Dorothy Cushing in Overseas News.

John Sharp Williams Passes.—

On the 27th of September, at the age of 78 years, former Senator John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, passed to the beyond. It was this student, planter, statesman, who did much to rouse the South from the lethargy in which it smoldered after the War between the States. It was the same commanding voice that was raised in later years fighting the battles of Woodrow Wilson during the trying days of the League of Nations fight. It was he who, when that fight was lost, declared: "I'd rather be a hound dog and bay at the moon from my Mississippi plantation than to remain in the United States Senate." He retired from public life in 1923, after more than thirty years in Congress. He had a private tutor as a boy, and later studied at Kentucky Military Academy, the University of the South, at Sewanee, Tenn., the University of Virginia and Heidelberg, Germany. He hated sectionalism and did his best to deface it from the nation. Life was kind to him in his later years, and he was once heard to say: "I am going home to Mississippi, and as night and time for bed approaches, I will listen to the greatest chorus of voices that man has ever heard—the voices of my mocking birds."

Nearly All Religious Sects Show Increase.—

Figures recently released show that there has been an increase in practically every religious sect during the past five years. The present membership of the combined bodies is 59,268,764. Of these approximately 34,000,000 are Protestant Christians, 20,000,000 are Roman Catholics and 4,000,000 are members of Jewish congregations. The gains among the three Catholic Churches amounted to 1,552,753, bringing their total number to 20,237,378. Among the larger denominations of Protestants the figures were as follows: Eighteen bodies of Baptists, 9,372,761, a gain of 931,839; nineteen bodies of Methodists, 8,981,839, a gain of 911,274; seventeen bodies of Lutherans, 4,228,268, a gain of 262,265; nine bodies of Presbyterians, 2,695,009, with a gain of 69,725; the Disciples of Christ, 1,975,442, showing a gain of 164,133. Our own Congregational-Christian bodies showed a gain of 43,223. The only church with more than a million communicants showing a decrease, was the Protestant Episcopal, which dropped 27,108 members, leaving a membership of 1,831,978. Some of the minor groups more than doubled their membership during the past five years, and yet statistics show that less than half of the population of the United States is now listed as members of any religious faith.

English Neglected by Schools and Colleges—

Modern methods in teaching may be all right, but the three R's, together with spelling and etymology, seem to have been somewhat neglected. High school graduates are being turned out without grammar school rudiments, and even in the case of college graduates results are somewhat discouraging. Sometime ago the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching had occasion to examine a number of college seniors as to their knowledge of English. Some ten thousand students of Pennsylvania colleges, it is said, were included in the examination. One senior out of the list, with satisfactory standing in the institution of which he was to become a graduate, recognized only twenty-three out of a list of one hundred words in common present-day use. Some of the words which were wholly strange were: "inert," "lenient," "baffle," "immerse." This same student thought that "culpable" meant "tender," "declivity" meant "climate," while "benighted" was defined as "weary," and "spurious" as "foamy." Possibly this was an unusual case, but be that as it may, there are too many students being "turned out" both from college and from high school, who have not the necessary rudimentary education in grammar, rhetoric, and other ground work subjects to be able to write a creditable letter or to speak correctly the mother tongue.

The Cotton Situation Brightens.—

It is possible that the price of cotton has more to do with prosperity in the South than any other one thing. Present indications would justify us in looking for a price of not less than 12 cents before the present season is over. Of one thing we may be certain, the supply is diminishing rather than piling up, as was the case a year ago. There was a carry-over from last year of 13,266,000 bales, which with the estimated crop for this year of 11,310,000 bales, gives a total of 24,576,000 bales for the present year, compared to 25,741,000 a year ago. The Progressive Farmer, in commenting on the situation, says: "Store shelves are empty and factory stocks have dwindled to a record low. There is a deficit in finished goods in the mills of around a million and a half bales of cotton as compared to normal. Exports in July were the largest of record for that month. For July and August, exports more than doubled those of the same months a year ago. The trade generally is agreed that here is every reason to expect consumption during the present year to be greater than last year." Mills which have been idle for some time are going back to work, and all factors seem to have united to boost the cause of cotton. The general conclusion is that "there is a returning confidence and a more optimistic atmosphere prevails than we have witnessed in a long time."

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

The Best Biography—That life which writes charity in the largest letters.—E. F. M.

New students continue to come to Elon, while faculty and pupils are busy starting what gives promise of being one of the most successful and auspicious years of Elon's history.

There is a sense in which the Spirit of God dwells in every believer, but it is only a believer who is living in fellowship with Christ who realizes what the indwelling of God actually means. G. H. C. Macgregor.

President L. E. Smith, of Elon, attended the installation service of his successor, Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, Christian Temple, Sunday, October 2nd. Quite a fitting program for the auspicious occasion was carried out.

Georgia has been honored in that two of her young ministers were chosen to help in the promotion of our work in the West. Rev. Lawrence L. Stanley, Barnesville Parish, is now in Nebraska, and Rev. Alan Jones is in Iowa.

A special word comes from the Barnesville Parish: Since June 1st, this parish has listened to 53 sermons, received 325 pastoral calls, heard 25 addresses, held two vacation church schools, entertained the Middle Georgia Association, held two revival meetings. Something to think about.

The pastor of one of our rural churches writes: "We had seventy-five out to Sunday School last Sunday. We had an average of sixty-nine since our return from vacation. We had seventy-one out to church services last Sunday night. Of course the financial end is way down, but why not be thankful for good attendance?"

The Willing Workers' Misisonary Society of the Holland Christian Church, under the efficient leadership of Mrs. G. C. Holland and Mrs. I. H. Luke, has had a most profitable and successful year, in spite of the depression times. The attendance has been very good throughout the year as a whole, and all conference requirements have been met by this Society.

The Woodbury Church, "Jones Chapel," is the second—Macedonia being the first—to send in its per capita tax for 1932. That is well. Be it kept in mind that each Congregational Church in Georgia should send this money to the treasurer, Rev. M. J. Sweet, Salisbury, N. C., by October 15th, and not later than October 20th, in order to receive proper credit at the State meeting.

When Rev. and Mrs. Orville D. Ulloa returned home from their vacation at Miami Beach, they were treated to a surprise party by the women of the church. They called it a pantry shower, and nearly fifty articles in the way of cakes, pies, home-baked bread, meat loaf and canned goods were donated. The people of the parsonage were delighted, and the members of the church were glad to have their pastor home again.

That is an eye-opener in another column which Rev. John G. Truitt writes about Elon Alumni in Ohio. Elon's graduates and beneficiaries are scattered throughout the nation, and we are wondering how many other States, not in the South, have a dozen or more of her graduates. We wish that the Alumni in other States would write as Truitt has written, and let THE SUN know what far-flung influence Elon is having—East, West, North and South.

Rev. C. Rexford Raymond, D. D., Chattanooga, Tenn., pastor of Pilgrim Church, writes: "The pastor, Rev. George W. Blount, of our Union Congregational Church, at East Lake, a suburb of Chattanooga, announces his resignation to take effect October 1st. He is to return to Virginia, where his mother and other relatives reside. During his two years here, he has carried the church through a building program and they have erected a fine house of worship."

Dr. Frederick L. Fagley, associate secretary of our General Council, and who is also secretary of the Commission on Evangelism and Devotional Life, announces the dates and programs elsewhere in this issue of THE SUN of his itinerary in the Southeast. The object of his visit is to hold a seminar on worship with groups of our pastors and interested workers. Every pastor within reach of the places designated will do well to hear Dr. Fagley on the important subject of "Worship and Evangelism."

Rev. H. S. Hardcastle again takes up his work of supplying comments on the Sunday School lesson in THE CHRISTIAN SUN each week. Bro. Hardcastle had done this for some time before his illness, and it has been done most acceptably. Sunday School teachers and pupils will be glad to welcome his comments again. Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, of Durham, very graciously supplied the notes the past few months, and THE SUN family is grateful to him. His comments have been practical, pointed and worth-while. We are glad to have the work continued that he has been doing so well.

We are grateful that Dr. W. D. Harward, of Dendron, Va., is able to do his own writing, as he did under date of September 28th. His was a narrow escape, and he is fortunate to be up and going. "A week ago today," he writes, "while on our way to a meeting at New Lebanon, a rear tire blew out. Our machine turned over and was wrecked. By the help of a passerby, who came up a few minutes later, we were taken up and carried back home. The body of the car is so badly wrecked that it will not pay to have it repaired." We are glad it was the body of the car and not the body of the driver that sustained "the wreck."

Rev. C. Arthur Lincoln, of Daytona Beach, has been made chairman of the Social Service Committee for Volusia County in the work of federal unemployment relief. As Mr. Lincoln says: "It looks like a whale of a task, but with the need so great I couldn't refuse to do my part." Three offices have been opened in the leading cities of the county, Daytona Beach, Deland and New Smyrna. Existing agencies are being used, but they had to be reorganized, equipped and manned for this particular work. Mr. Lincoln has been chairman of the Daytona Beach Welfare Association for some years, and has proven himself an effective leader in this type of work.

Rev. George W. Penn and his wife, Dorothy, have resigned at Albemarle, N. C., and have taken up work in Chicago Theological Seminary. It is understood that in Chicago they have an excellent opportunity to pursue advanced study in the Seminary under very favorable conditions. With that understanding, their church people let them go. But there was much weeping—some tears of sadness, at the parting, some of gladness at the bright prospects coming to the beloved and popular pastor and his wife. They are both graduates of Piedmont College, and among the best of students. They will both work for the Master of Arts degree. Hosts of friends rejoice at their advancement.

United Church, LaGrange, Rev. J. H. Dollar, pastor, is rejoicing over the recent action of the church building society in granting them a loan of $5,000 in a very unusual contract. This will enable the church to pay off its debt and to go forward with its splendid program. A condition is that the church itself raise $2,000 in cash before the loan becomes effective. This the church will do immediately. All who know, rejoice with this church and are grateful to a building society which has, by this act, shown itself again to be a most faithful friend of the churches. Although it has taken a long time to bring about conditions upon which the society could act favorably, yet it has all along wanted to cooperate. It was a happy day when the last proposition came for it led definitely to favorable action. The church is already in its campaign for its $2,000.

We regret the absence of Dr. Staley's "Suffolk Letter" this week. The following excerpt from a letter from his daughter, Mrs. Annie Staley Calhoun, is self-explanatory: "Papa and I came to Virginia Beach September 23rd, intending to stay one week, but last Tuesday, he had an attack of acute indigestion, and has been confined to his bed ever since. We thought the salt air would give him strength, and at this season of the year the beach is very quiet and delightful. We shall stay until he gains more strength." It is our sincere hope that the stay at Virginia Beach will prove most beneficial to Dr. Staley, and we will welcome a return of his interesting letter to the columns of THE CHRISTIAN SUN. For the information of those who may wish to write a word of cheer, Dr. Staley's address is Robert E. Lee Cottage, 21st Street and Ocean Front, Virginia Beach, Va.

Rev. and Mrs. Theron Zimmerman, wonderfully faithful and energetic summer pastor, assisting Mr. Scott at Salisbury in Trinity Parish, closed his work September 25th, and returned to Yale School of Religion, New Haven, Conn. While at Salisbury, these young people made an impression on all the work which will not be easily forgotten. Sound, plain preaching, thorough organization, painstaking teaching in helping the young people to understand the principles of genuine Christianity, untiring in training for leadership and in Daily Vacation Church School, and persistent endeavors in calling on all the churches repeatedly characterized their telling work. On their last evening, just before taking the train, a happy group of loyal young people presented them with a purse and went to the train to say good-bye, and to offer good wishes. Theron and Mary Zimmerman will always be welcome to Salisbury.

The American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions announces: "Over 50 Americans serving in 12 foreign lands, many recently returned from disturbed areas in Africa and the Orient; nationally and internationally known speakers, and open forums on religious, social and economic issues in the Near and Far East, that will ultimately affect the welfare of the world, make up the program announced today by the American Board of Commisisoners for Foreign Missions, which convenes on October 18th to 20th, at the First Congregational Church, Montclair, N. J., for its 123rd annual meeting." If it is within the reach of any of our ministers or others to attend the Montclair meeting, they will be well paid for their pains. The meetings of this body are among the most inspirational of any this writer has ever attended. It helps one who attends to get a sense of world friendship and brings one in contact with world outlook and problems as do few meetings of any kind.

Rev. George K. Goodwin, who supplies the little church at Crystal Springs, Fla., in his quarterly report, had this interesting paragraph: "There are several families at Crystal Springs who are almost destitute. One of our best attendants said to me, 'I am embarrassed not to be able to assist in church finances; I think I'll stay away from the church services.' I pleaded with him for his soul's welfare, not to miss the services of the church. There are three others in the same condition, but they come. I said to him, 'Our Missionary Society recognizes the fact that the Crystal Springs community cannot support the church service, and are contributing month by month to its support. It is your privilege to enjoy the gift of others.' 'I think you are right, Goodwin, I think you are right.' There are six families financing the church, and we are one of the six. The people are very appreciative of the church services, realizing that if it were not for the missionary assistance they could not hope to have services at all. There is no other church in the community, and Zephyrhills, between six and seven miles away, would be their nearest point, and none of them would be able to go for lack of funds to buy gas."

Mrs. L. W. Stagg, Norfolk, Va., secretary of the Woman's Home and Foreign Mission Board, and so well known and loved throughout our CHRISTIAN SUN family, underwent a major operation in a Norfolk hospital, September 22nd, and was, and is yet, a great sufferer. A friend, writing of her to the editor personally, says: "She was so brave through it all. She is certainly a most wonderful person. The many doctors and nurses that were in the operating room said she was the most wonderful patient they had ever seen. It will be a long time, I fear, before she is able to be up and do anything at all. We feel that the prayers of her many friends, and their great interest in her welfare have helped to bring her back to us. We are hopeful that there will be no setback, and that she will now recover as rapidly as nature will permit." Mrs. Stagg, through a secretary, wrote just prior to her operation, about her anxiety for the annual Woman's Conference, South Norfolk, October 28th. Nothing would encourage her more, and bring more joy to that sick-room than for the women of the conference to assemble in the largest and most enthusiastic session on the 28th, that they have ever held.

A SEMINAR OF WORSHIP.

Coming to us direct from the Florida Ministers' Convocation and other appointments in the State, Dr. Frederick L. Fagley, associate secretary of the General Council of Congregational and Christian Churches, and secretary of the Commission on Evangelism and Devotional Life, is to visit a number of other centers in the Southeast.

The two Sundays of the itinerary will be spent at Demorest, Ga., and Elon College, N. C., and in addition to preaching in the morning at each place, and making other helpful contacts a Seminar group will meet in the afternoon at 2:30. In the other centers, the groups will gather at 10:00 o'clock in the morning and at 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon, thereby providing time for fellowship and individual conferences. At each center, where possible, a more general gathering will be held in the evening to talk over local, state and national interests. At this gathering, Dr. Fagley will speak.

The places to be visited are as follows:

October 9th—Demorest, Ga., Union Church and Piedmont College.

October 10th—Atlanta, Ga., Central Church, Ponce de Leon and Piedmont Avenues.

October 11th—Birmingham, Ala., Congregational Community Church, 1819 North 8th Ave.

October 12th—Nashville, Tenn., Collegese Church, 1126 Nineteenth Avenue, South.

October 13th—Pleasant Hill, Tenn., Academy Chapel.

October 14th—Chattanooga, Tenn. Pilgrim Church.

October 16th—Elon College, N. C., Elon College Church.

October 17th—Raleigh, N. C., United Church, Hillsboro and Dawson Streets.

October 18th and 19th—Fellowship visitation to Chapel Hill, Durham, Southern Pines and other places.

Dr. W. Knighton Bloom will accompany Dr. Fagley during the entire service of Seminars.

GREATER NORFOLK TRAINING SCHOOL.

The Standard Leadership Training School of Greater Norfolk, will be held the third week in October—the 16th to 21st, inclusive. Final plans were made at a meeting Monday, September 19th, at the Navy Y. M. C. A., in Norfolk, Va., and we wish to make the following statement regarding the school:

It is hoped that all members of the cooperating churches will make a special effort to avail themselves of this splendid opportunity to make themselves more useful workers in their home Church School. A fine faculty will teach the courses, and every effort has been put forth to make this the best school we have had.

Write to Miss Ethel Hurley, Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va., who is registrar of the school. Miss Hurley hopes that many will advise her at an early date their desire to enroll in the school. Books will be in her hands shortly after the first of October, and we hope many will get their texts early, in order to be well prepared to study, when the school meets for its first session.

This year, the registration fee for all interested who are not members of the cooperating churches will be $1.00 instead of $2.00 as in former years.

The school will hold its first session on Sunday afternoon, October 16th, at 3:00 o'clock, with a devotional service conducted by Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, new pastor of the Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va. Dr. Pierce will be responsible for all the worship services held each night during the week, at 7:00 o'clock. The Commencement speaker, Friday, October 21st, will be Dr. Chas. E. Shelton.

The faculty and courses are as follows:

Course No. 4—"The New Testament," Rev. F. C. Lester.

Course No. 6—"The Teaching Work of the Church," Dr. Erwin L. Shaver.

Course No. 32—"Primary Materials and Methods," Mrs. M. H. McArdle.

Course No. 42—"Junior Materials and Methods," Miss Ethel Hurley.

Course No. 106—"Materials and Methods of Missionary Education," Miss Priscilla Chase.

Course No. 107—"Training in Worship and Devotional Life," Rev. H. S. Hardcastle.

MISS ETHEL HURLEY.

THOUGHTS ON EDUCATION.

The day has come when the common sense lay reader and thinker is not swept off his feet by some feeble policy that is being sponsored in the name of education. It is obvious to most people that too many inconsistent policies have been followed in the field of education, which have proven disastrous.

The sole purpose of most people, until this day, is to get an education, because they regard it as the best preparation for making money. The fact is that it has a larger bearing than a mere preparation for one's trade or profession in making money, is overlooked. Why can we not see that it is the best equipment for any sort of efficiency? Is it not developing self until we can make fine distinctions between essentials and non-essentials? Until we can reason wisely and decide justly? Until we can instinctively live above covetousness and prejudice? Until the righteousness of Christ has first place in our hearts?

Education helps us to keep alive in our hearts the things that ought to live there. In all, it helps us to find the real secret of true happiness, and to work toward that end. Many of our boys and girls are allowed to grow up in homes, and to go through high school with a flimsy superficial notion of education; and they enter colleges and universities with unsound objectives, and many of them come out with unsound objectives for life. There is much truth in the old saying, "Whatever goes in the hopper, comes out in the grist." If our homes and our high schools will give us a better product for the hopper, our colleges and universities will give us better grist.

A. R. FLOWERS.

Rocky Mount, N. C.

BEREA, NORFOLK, HOLDS ELECTION.

At the annual meeting of the Berea (Norfolk) Church, held on September 29, 1932, the following officers were elected to serve for the new conference year:

Secretary, M. W. Hollowell; treasurer, K. S. Gammon; custodian, T. L. Dozier, financial secretary, Mrs. E. J. Hall; pianist, Mrs. Ernest Waterfield; assistant pianist, Mrs. Percy L. Nichols; Finance Committee, K. S. Gammon, E. J. Hall, Mrs. Ernest Waterfield, T. L. Dozier, Edgar Eason, Mrs. C. M. Curling, Geo. T. Hall, L. W. Nichols, R. C. Poyner; ushers, Percy L. Nichols, Edgar Eason, Lawrence Knick, Leon Parker, Albert Burgess, Leroy Dozier; Official Board, M. W. Hall, M. W. Hollowell, L. W. Nichols, E. J. Hall, K. S. Gammon, R. K. Speight, S. C. Whitehurst, L. B. Curling, Mrs. E. J. Hall, C. E. Hanbury, W. J. Nichols, Mrs. Irene McKenny, Miss Bettie Whitehurst, J. J. Halstead, E. W. Hodges, T. L. Dozier, Geo. T. Hall, Ernest Waterfield, C. M. Curling, Edgar Eason, Hermon Forbes, F. N. Hall.

Treasurer of building fund, C. M. Curling.

Janitor, Claude Sutton.

The trustees of the church are: F. N. Hall, S. C. Whitehurst and L. B. Curling.

The deacons are: M. W. Hall, M. W. Hollowell, R. K. Speight, K. S. Gammon, E. J. Hall and L. W. Nichols.

Sunday School superintendent, R. C. Poyner.

The conference was presided over by the pastor, Rev. J. F. Morgan, and the reports from the various departments of the church were most encouraging. The delegates elected to represent the church at the annual session of the Eastern Virginia Conference, which meets the last of this month, are Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Hall, and the alternates are Mrs. E. W. Hodges, and Mrs. B. O. Hall.

F. N. HALL,

Reporter.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. W. STALEY C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

W. C. WICKER

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

FIRE!

Fire is an outstanding fact, a commanding figure, and a significant symbol, in Holy Writ. Someone has said that the discovery of fire, and how to kindle it, remains the greatest and most significant discovery man ever made. Let scientists and the historians, in that manner, magnify the beginning of the fact. Our Scriptures say nothing as to its discovery, but at once exalt it as a gift and a token from heaven. In the Bible we see the fact of fire at once blended with, and signifying the presence, personality and the power of God. Moses examined the bush that burned, but was not consumed, and, when he so examined, God called unto him from the bush "afire with the presence of God." And later when Moses was leading the Israelites out of Egypt, the Lord went before "by night in a pillar of fire to give them light." As a fact the "pillar of fire" led the Israelites through the wilderness as they journeyed to the promised land, and as a fact again God appears in and through it, both to speak to his people and to consume sacrifices that were offered up to him. Knowing these things, no wonder the writer to the Hebrews (Heb. 12:39) declared: "Our God is a consuming fire."

Fire goes beyond the fact and stands out as a commanding figure in Scripture. As such it is an emblem of God's Word. "Is not my word like as fire, saith the Lord?" (Jeremiah 23:28). And often as an instrument of judgment is the figure used as in Genesis 19:24, Amos 7:4, Revelation 8:8.

But the greatest significance of fire in our Scriptures is symbolism. Fire, as it is used by inspired writers, comes to its full function and fruitage as it symbolizes enthusiasm, passion, inspiration. It seems that all the references to fire and the real meaning of fire come to their fulfillment with the advent and gift of the Holy Spirit. The Book of Acts is aflame with the presence and power of the Holy Spirit. One has remarked that this Book should not be called the "Acts of the Apostles," but the "Acts of the Holy Ghost," since what the Apostles did was under the guiding hand, persuasive power, conscious leadership of the Holy Ghost. The great events of the Book begin with Acts 2:3: "And there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire." This fire did not die out, but inflamed the leaders of the early church, and sent those leaders out with a passion for souls, a consuming passion, that swept all before it. But from that day till this, the fire of the church in the souls of men has been kept alive by the presence of the Holy Spirit.

If today there is coldness, indifference in the church, and in the hearts of Christians, it is because the fires of God have been allowed to burn low, and the presence of the power of the Holy Ghost is lacking. The gift of the Holy Spirit has been and is defined as "the fire of God kindled in the hearts of men."

Whether it was one fire, or four fires, kindled in the hearts of men with the gift of the Holy Ghost, we know as a simple fact that there came out of this gift "tongues like as of fire." There appeared then and henceforth, wherever the Holy Spirit has gone and is, as B. H. Bruner says: (1) The fire of a great conviction; (2) The fire of a great passion; (3) The fire of a great devotion; (4) The fire of a great courage and adventure.

If the church seems cold and lifeless today, it is from a lack of this fire which symbolizes the presence and the cleansing power of the Holy Spirit. What can the church do to recover this fire from heaven, this gift of the Holy Spirit?

J. O. A.

A MOSLEM LEADER VERSUS THE LEADER OF CHRISTIANITY.

Comparisons are sometimes odious, often objectionable, frequently in bad taste. Contrast, on the other hand, helps us to grasp facts which are otherwise meaningless. No doubt, there are many CHRISTIAN SUN readers who know, or care, little about some of the "spiritual" leaders in other religions than Christianity in the world today. Let us give two views: one from the daily press of Sunday, September 11th, carrying a picture of the faces of this Mohammedan leader and his wife! the other from the Bible, where there are no pictures save the Word:

"London, September 10th.—Throughout the Moslem world has passed the joyous word that the beautiful French Catholic wife of Aga Kahn is expecting a child in December. And 70,000,000 Mohammedans over whom he exercises religious and spiritual authority are hoping it will be a boy. Already gifts are being gathered together for the great occasion. There will be costly sables from Mongolia, ivory from Africa, silks from China, gems from Burmah, ingots of gold and priceless fabrics, blooded horses, even elephants as part of their great tribute.

"Boy or girl, the child will be at birth one of the richest persons in the world. The Aga Khan himself does not know the extent of his own wealth, except that it is fabulous. Many of his treasures are beyond appraisal. As a lineal descendant of Ali, who was a nephew of Mohammed, founder of the Moslem faith, the Aga is spiritual head of the Khojar sect of Moslems. These number millions in India, Persia and East Africa, and it is their duty to keep their leader in luxury.

"In addition to the steady stream of gifts that come to the Aga Khan, there is the traditional ceremony, at the end of each Mohammedan solar year, of paying him his weight in gold. At that time comes a committee of elders from India who solemnly weigh him—and he tips the scales at about 200 pounds—then measure out the exact equivalent in gold. He is thanked for accepting it, and begged in return to bestow upon them some of the water in which he has bathed."

Then, after further description, too long to be re-printed, the picture closes with the following statement of facts:

"Aside from his religious and political interests, Aga Khan is one of the greatest sportsmen in the world. His stables of thoroughbreds are reported worth nearly $10,000,000, and he wins more prize money than any other owner. He loves boxing and tennis, is a plunging gambler, and is a familiar figure at most of the continental casinos."

In contrast with the above, we submit the following from the Book about the Founder, and Leader, of Christianity:

"Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man hath not where to lay his head." Then instead of the glare of sportsmanship and the greed of gambling, these words of the Leader of our religion: "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross daily and follow me." Or, again: "For what is a man advantaged, if he gain the whole world and lose himself or be cast away?" And against this description of Aga Khan, the "spiritual leader" of seventy million Mohammedans, place this description of Him who founded the church, and now carries on as our spiritual leader: "He is despised and rejected of men, a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief; and we hid as it were our faces from him; he was despised, and we esteemed him not. Surely, he hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows; yet we did not esteem him stricken, smitten of God and afflicted." True, Aga Khan is not the founder of the Mohammedan religion, but he is a present sponsor and "spiritual leader" of it, and to him the Mohammedans look for example, and precept, and for such "comfort and consolation" as they may get. And while he lives in greatest luxury, hundreds of thousands of his subjects live in abject poverty, want and ignorance. And yet there be those amongst us and in the world who say: "Let them alone with their spiritual leader; their religion is good enough for them."

In the name of Christ, shall we sit by in idleness and indifference while millions live in ignorance of him, "Whom to know is life eternal," and many millions follow him as "spiritual leader," whose chief distinction in the world is that he is a great sportsman, millionaire, gambler?

J. O. A.

MAN'S CHIEF HOPE.

Dr. Gilmore, of Wilmington, N. C., moderator, in opening the 119th session of the Presbyterian Synod of North Carolina declared that "religion is the chief hope, both for civilization and world peace." In elaborating his theme, Dr. Gilmore pointed out that it is not the alarmist alone, but the soberest, sanest minded who are asking the question: "What next, and whither?" Dr. Gilmore declared that many strong nations and civilizations had been swept away and were but a memory, because they have made force, material possessions, culture, art, education, their foundation. They had built upon sand and their house was swept away. Recently outstanding world figures, Lloyd-George, Roger Babson, Frank Vanderlip, and other philosophers and historians, have declared emphatically that "religion is the one hope and the sure foundation on which mankind must build if civilization and its achievements are to endure.”

The present economic situation helps to enforce this fact in the last three years. Hundreds of thousands who thought they were living in secure buildings founded on fortune, have realized the futility of their pursuits, as their fortunes have been swept away and left them homeless, penniless. Others who were earning their daily bread by the sweat of their brow had as their foundation their strong arm, their honesty of purpose, their integrity as laborer and employee. These by the millions have been deprived of their jobs and are today living on the bounty of others or of the public. Hundreds of thousands of farmers who felt that the land was their security, have found their crops will not buy for them the necessities of life nor secure them at a bank as collateral. The foundations have been swept away.

“Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ” (I. Cor. 3:11.) No society is safe, no house is secure, no character is permanent, save that which has as the foundation on which it builds, Jesus Christ, our Lord.

Despite these trite truths, we are, as Dr. Gilmore pointed, merely playing at Christianity: “With two-thirds of the people giving next to nothing to support religion, three-fourths attending one service on Sunday, nine-tenths offering no personal service, 95-100ths doing no personal work to save souls, 27,000,000 young people in America out of Sunday School, 16,000,000 getting one-half hour per week of religious education nothing it seems is being done.”

Surely the church never had such an opportunity as it has now, that of supplying to mankind, and to the world, the one sure foundation on which to build for time and eternity.

J. O. A.

BEWARE OF FIRES!

The statistics for fire losses during the year 1931 show that $464,633,265.00 went up in smoke and down in ashes in one year’s time. The causes are many, but carelessness is chiefly responsible. Fifty-one and a half million acres of land were burned over. This includes forest fires and many of these fires were started by campers, hunters and travelers.

It has been thought that most of the fires occur in cities, but the report shows that there are many fires in rural districts. The losses in towns of 2,500 inhabitants, or less, exceeds $160,000,000 annually. When losses on farms are added the figures amount to $260,000,000, or about $700,000 a day! This includes small towns and country districts.

Churches are subject to serious fires. Very often a lot of debris is left carelessly in the basements or empty rooms and after years of accumulation, including cloth and paper and dust and sometimes oily rags, a fire starts, no one seems to know why. Church buildings should be cleaned at least once each year. Every possible care should be taken to see that electric wires are properly protected, that no chance be taken with cheap, careless wiring. At Christmas time Christmas trees are often lighted with candles, and though no one expects a fire, church buildings do burn down. Among the sad parts of church fires is the fact that so many church buildings are not insured. By a little foresight and extra giving, the property can be kept insured, at least in part. Church buildings are public property, usually the result of community benevolence and the trustees of a church owe it to the donors to keep the property protected against destruction by fire.

The National Board of Fire Underwriters has announced the annual observance of Fire Prevention Week for October 9th to 15th, and it is hoped that every pastor of every church will either preach a sermon on fire prevention or at least say something about it from his pulpit. This is one way to help save property and human life.

E. A. K.

SILENT INFLUENCE.

Ralph Waldo Emerson said, years ago: “What you do makes so much noise I can’t hear what you say.” What a succinct way of emphasizing the value of consistent daily living. In these latter days Kagawa is saying to his Japanese followers. “We must bring the practical everyday Christian religion into all the walks of life. We must practice it while working, while eating, between husband and wife, parents and children, master and servant, at all times. . . . We cannot call anything true religion unless through it God may be found at the counter, in the kitchen, or in the shop. The Christian religion includes not only the teachings and ideals of Jesus Christ, but also his daily life.” Practical, helpful and quiet living accomplishes wonders in a community.

The same idea is finding expression on missionary fields. C. F. Andrews writes from India like this: “Silent influence, carrying with it the fragrance of a true Christian life, is worth all the propagandist teaching in the world. The bloom of the rose does not need to proclaim itself loudly to the world. Its very perfume is the witness of its own sweetness. Christian life that grows silently like the rose, shedding its perfume on every side, is the truest witness to Christ.”

When will we learn this lesson? It is so much easier to talk and write, but after all what counts most for the Kingdom of God is the consistent daily living of earnest, happy Christians.

E. A. K.

WRESTLING IN PRAYER.

Do not say you cannot pray because you cannot speak much, or well, or long. Praying is wrestling with God: the heart is the wrestler: holy faith the strength of it; if by means of this strength thou be a good wrestler, though thou art ever so tongue-tied, thou wilt be a prevailer. Rhetoric goes for little in the heavenly court, but sincere groans have a kind of omnipotency.—Selected.

Special Combination Subscription Offer!

A special arrangement has been made whereby those who desire to do so may receive both THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for just a little more than they now pay for one of these papers.

Beginning immediately, we will accept subscriptions for the two papers at the price of $3.75 for the combined subscription. This means to SUN readers that for only $1.75 additional they may receive the great wealth of knowledge that The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty brings weekly. Those who are already subscribers for the latter paper may add THE SUN to their list for only 75 cents for the whole year.

You do not have to wait until your subscription to one or the other paper has expired, but send in your subscription now. You will begin immediately to receive the other paper and that which you are already receiving will be marked up a year in advance.

While this offer is open to everyone, it should appeal especially to the pastors and lay workers in the Southeast Convention, and we beg them to take advantage of this opportunity.

It is, of course, understood that under this special offer all subscriptions must be in advance, and must be sent directly to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va., or to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

DEAR SIRs:

Please (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my present subscription one year) to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my subscription one year) to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

(Please mark out the words not applicable.)

I enclose, herewith, check or money order for $3.75 to cover same.

M

Street No. or R. F. D.....

City and State.....

CONTRIBUTIONS

CAPTIVE THOUGHTS.

"Casting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ." (II. Cor. 10:5.)

A young girl just starting in the Christian life expressed a thought as she was talking to her mother. It was not in harmony with the teachings of Christ, and her mother said: "Oh, you must not think such things." But the daughter replied: "Well, we can't help our thoughts."

The Apostle Paul had a very different idea on the subject. In the 9th chapter of his first letter to the Corinthians, he spoke of bringing his body into subjection, but in his second letter he goes even farther, and tells them to bring even their thoughts into subjection to the obedience of Christ. There is no liberty without control; there must be a controlling power. There are only two controlling powers which govern the human mind: the power of Christ and the power of Satan. Our thoughts are ever in obedience to the one or the other.

When God for Christ's sake, because of the shedding of his precious blood on Calvary, forgave us our sins, we started to walk in newness of life and of thought; we were made free from the law of sin and death. Christ breaks the power of sin and as we walk in the light as he is in the light, his blood cleanses our whole being.

David breathed a longing prayer which we should ever echo: "Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength and my redeemer." He told Solomon, his son, when he was appointed heir to the throne, to serve God with a perfect heart and a willing mind, for God searched all hearts, and understands all the imaginations of the thoughts. Solomon started out well and wrote in the Proverbs: "Commit thy works unto the Lord, and thy thoughts shall be established."

Oh, how we need to have our thoughts established so that they will not stray into forbidden paths for our secret thoughts are the basis of our character. We sow a thought and reap an act. A sinful thought harbored in our minds mars and blackens that which God will keep pure and clean if we will bring every thought into captivity to the obedience of Christ. It means that we must ever set our affections on things above, not on things of the earth; that we must take time to think upon those things which are true, honest, just, pure, lovely and of good report.

"Take time to be holy, be calm in thy soul,
Each thought and each motive beneath his control;
Thus led by his spirit to fountains of love,
Thou soon shall be fitted for service above."

W.

ELON COLLEGE.

The registration period is about over. There will be some others coming in, but, of course, the bulk of the student body has registered. To date we have 249. All of these are paying a part, or all, of their expenses. We have at Elon this year a very high type of college student. We have on the faculty this year seven new members: Miss Madie Lee Walker, of Lexington, Ky., Dean of Women and Assistant Professor of Education; Mr. Coleman C. Gulley of Fort Worth, Texas, is head of the Department of Business Administration; Mr. M. W. Hook, Elon College, is teacher of Mathematics; Mr. Dwight Steere, Ann Arbor, Mich., is head of the Music Department; Miss Helen Chamblee, of Red Oak, N. C., teacher of Voice; Miss Virginia Fitzhugh, Batesville, Ark., teacher of Dramatics and Director of Physical Education for Girls; Dr. W. C. Wicker, formerly of the college faculty, returns this year as head of the Department of Education. Mr. Clyde Hawn, of Burlington, N. C., who is enrolled as a student, will give lessons in Commercial Art.

There is a splendid spirit of cooperation among the faculty and also between the faculty and the student body. The work, so far as the college is concerned is in good shape, and progressing nicely. I am sure that members of the church and friends of the college will be pleased with conditions on the hill and the outlook for the school.

We have one big job ahead of us, and it is a big job. We are compelled to balance our budget this year. This is entirely possible with the cooperation of the membership of the church at large and the friends of the institution everywhere. Without the cooperation of others, it will be impossible to balance our budget. Our program for financial assistance does not call for large gifts, but it does call for small gifts from a large number. The Dollar-a-Month Club is the most feasible plan that has been suggested. The alumni and the church both are in favor of this plan and have given their approval. Within the next week or ten days, plans will be perfected to give everybody in the Christian Church, every member of the Alumni Association and the members of the Congregational Church, included in the Southern Christian Convention of Congregational-Christian Churches, an opportunity to express their interest in Elon College by joining the Dollar-a-Month Club and sending in their remittances regularly. From now on we will look for new members of the Club and it is our hope that all who are members will be constantly reminding us of their membership by sending in their monthly dues.

I received the following letter recently from the treasurer of an organized Bible class of the First Christian Sunday School in Greensboro, N. C. This letter speaks for itself. What a fine thing it would be if several organized Bible classes in the Southern Christian Convention would follow suit. What a much finer thing it would be if every member of these classes would join the Dollar-a-Month Club. I will offer a prize worth while to the organized Bible class sending in the largest number of memberships in the Dollar-a-Month Club—I will not state what the prize is now, but if you are interested, write me, suggesting what you think the prize should be.

Well, here is the letter:

"Dear Dr. Smith:—The Truitt Philathea Class of the First Christian Church, at its last business meeting, voted to join the Dollar-a-Month Club for Elon. It isn't much, and we wish it could be more, but I know every little bit helps. We will endeavor to send in our dollar each month. If we can't do much financially to help you, we want you to know that we are interested in, and praying for your work at the College.

"Yours very truly,

"EFFIE LOWE, Treas."

Now, you have read it! Doesn't it sound good—doesn't it express real interest in the big problem that confronts us? "Go thou and do likewise."

L. E. SMITH.

ELON ALUMNI IN OHIO.

There are several of us in the great Buckeye State who love to sing: "Here's to Dear Old Elon." If you go down to the Christian Association Building in Dayton, you will find one of the busiest offices there bearing the banners of Elon College. In that office you will find one who is becoming more and more a national figure in the young people's work of our church, and you will not wonder at that for she was the valedictorian of her class at Elon—Miss Lucy Eldredge.

In Piqua, Ohio, that fine church wherein assembled the General Convention that voted to merge with the Congregational Church, and a church with one of the finest Christian Education plants in the country, you will find working away at that great Sunday School as a teacher and an official, Mr. W. E. Edge, from Elon.

Sometime ago I had the privilege of speaking at a banquet in Cincinnati on the subject of Elon, and whom did I meet there but Mrs. Ruth Kimball Milling, a well-known and beloved graduate of Elon. She is the wife of Mr. L. E. Milling, a Y. M. C. A. secretary of that city.

Last week I helped in three one-day institutes in Southern Ohio churches—churches which have been served largely by farmer-preachers; churches that are filled now with a new enthusiasm because they are seeing something new in their section. For nearly a year one of the most successful pieces of larger parish work in our State has been getting under way there. One of the members of that parish told me that Rev. E. H. Rainey was the first preacher that he had ever seen that really worked at the job! That parishioner is a well-to-do farmer, honored and respected for his Christian character in his community—and that Rainey is, as many readers of THE CHRISTIAN SUN know, a graduate of Elon. I heard the State superintendent commend his work as outstanding last spring at the annual conference. There are nearly four hundred pastorates in Ohio.

One of those nearly four hundred pastorates is in Eaton, Ohio, county seat of Preble County. It has a membership of more than five hundred, a splendid building, and a parsonage, and it is one of the leading churches in the city of Eaton. The efficient and well-beloved pastor of that church in Rev. E. T. Cotten, a graduate of Elon.

Another of those pastorates is located not far from Dayton, and consists of a small village church, and a rural church nearby; and both of which are in one of the prettiest farming sections of the mid-west, with fine people with large opportunities, and bringing them the Gospel every Sunday from the pulpit is Rev. George H. Robertson, a graduate of Elon, and along with him, bringing them the Gospel in Sunday School class and from many other places, is his wife, Mrs. George H. Robertson, also a graduate of Elon.

The moderator of the Ohio State Conference, second largest conference of Congregational and Christian Churches in the country; and pastor of the largest Christian Church in Ohio—the First Christian Church of Troy—holds an honorary degree from Elon—Rev. Jas. H. Lightbourne. It happens that one of his predecessors there, and the builder of the church building—as Dr. Lightbourne is builder of the new educational building—like Dr. Lightbourne, preached in Norfolk, and at the same church, by the way, holds also an honorary degree from Elon—Dr. Warren H. Denison. Dr. Denison is associate secretary of the General Council.

Adelia Jones Truitt, a graduate of Elon—is the wife of the writer a graduate of Elon; and the writer is pastor of the First Congregational Church of Dayton, Ohio. To round out an even dozen of us, I shall include Rev. P. V. Harris, a graduate of Elon, and who is a member of this Conference, but preaches in Massachusetts. All of these I know personally. There are probably many others in Ohio whom I do not know. I cite these to say: Several thousand Ohioans are indebted to some extent, at least, to "dear old Elon."

JOHN G. TRUITT.

WHO WILL BE THE NEXT ONE? YOU?

By GEORGIA ROBERTSON.

Listen to the ceaseless tolling of that phantom bell all day long and all night long for 358 days—a year lacking but seven days! Every 15 minutes tolling for each of the 34,400 persons killed by automobiles in the United States in 1931! An average of one death every fifteen minutes day and night for 358 days!

There were but 216 cities in our entire country with over that number of inhabitants—34,400—listed in the 1920 census. Whose imagination can paint that throng of men, women and children who passed into eternity in 1931, killed by automobiles? It would take that number of people to pass a given point, at the rate of one every minute, 573 hours, or 71 days of eight hours each or over two months!

Look upon this great throng of automobile accident victims for that same year who survived: some on crutches, or walking with canes, others with a missing finger, hand or arm, or an eye gone; many faces scarred for life, others with shattered nerves—mere physical wrecks unable financially longer to support themselves. Many with all their savings spent for medical and hospital treatment.

See how thronged our city streets and public highways are with motor cars. Everyone knows the inability to stop a motor vehicle even the fraction of a second sooner may transform it into a death car! The ability to stop a car in the shortest possible time depends on keen sight, an alert mind, unclouded judgment, and instantaneous response at wheel, accelerator and brake.

The reason one gets a "kick" out of any beverage containing alcohol is because it dulls the senses, makes things seem different from what they really are, makes one carefree and reckless about what is said and done. It also slows down the ability to take in a situation and act promptly. Psychologists tell us it is not the man who cannot talk straight, or walk straight after drinking who is the great menace in this automobile age, for he will not attempt to run a car; but the man who has had but a bottle or two of beer or a glass of wine and so is a bit reckless and ready to take a chance, or whose response to danger is retarded a fraction of a second only perhaps in cutting off the gas supply, releasing the clutch, and putting on the brake.

It is undeniable that with alcoholic drinks—even beer—legalized and easy to get, with no stigma attached to purchase, and kept in the home temptingly and conveniently at hand, there would be many more persons at the steering wheel of automobiles whose brains and muscles could not instantly respond to danger.

Suppose Uncle Sam should try this novel experiment to test the advisability of repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment in this automobile age, how many of those clamoring for repeal would line up for the test?

Dr. Dick, nationally known inventor, pastor, and economist who has put months of study on the relative number of traffic deaths in prohibition and non-prohibition countries, states in "An Open Letter to Henry Ford," that had our death rates from automobile accidents in "1930" been at the same ratio as wet German's they would have jumped from 32,929 to the astonishing total of 182,229!

Germany being more densely populated than our country—though having only one twenty-sixth as many cars in proportion to population—he turned to Canada, less thickly populated than the United States, where he found "the ratio of deaths to number of automobiles operated in the Dominion is exactly two and six-tenths the ratio in the United States."

In Great Britain with only one-seventh the number of automobiles we have in proportion to population, their killings were "actually four times as great."

Could any one look upon these 6,980 little caskets containing the lifeless forms of the 6,980 children who were killed in automobile accidents last year (1931), and at those 212,490 children who during the same year were injured in automobile accidents—actually see their crippled, disfigured, nerve-shattered little bodies and hear their cries of pain and moans of distress—and then be willing to take part in the death or maiming of other little victims by voting for the restoration of beer—one or two bottles of which taken by the driver of an automobile makes it even more certain to become a death car? These figures were carefully compiled by the Traveler's Insurance Company.

If those who have thought it "smart" to flout the Eighteenth Amendment could look upon those sights, and could have the spirit forms of just those who were victims of drink because of their example during prohibition years, surround them in their sleeping hours would they, like Lady Macbeth, see blood stains on their own hands impossible to wash away?

Would they longer think it "smart" to flout the Eighteenth Amendment or work for its repeal?

Think it over before casting a vote for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

CORRECTING A STATEMENT.

Dr. W. R. Kedzie, secretary of Educational Institutions for the Congregational Education Society, under date of September 16th, desires to correct a statement recently made in THE CHRISTIAN SUN. Dr. Kedzie says:

"My attention has just been called to a statement in THE CHRISTIAN SUN under the heading, 'Southern Union Announcement,' and over the signature of Dr. Frank E. Jenkins, as follows: 'The various misunderstandings as to the purpose, spirit and work of this College seem to have been removed and Dr. Kedzie now writes that he will cooperate with the College.' I am amazed to see such a statement in print. This is not true. I have not written any such statement, nor have I changed my opinion about or my attitude toward this institution. May I ask you to be so kind as to insert in the next number of THE CHRISTIAN SUN a statement to this effect."

OXFORD BIBLES for EVERY NEED

"The Oxford Bible is the Bible par excellence of the world"

THE HOME BIBLE

A Family Bible in Handy Size

An extra large type Oxford Text Bible, containing also, a family register and 12 beautifully colored maps. Size 9 x 5½ inches.

Specimen of Type

16 The LORD is King for ever and ever: the heathen are perished out

- Nos.
01600 Superior Cloth, round corners and red edges $2.75
01603 French Morocco, limp, round corners, red under gold edges, head-band, book-mark $4.75

The JUNIOR'S Bible

Self-Pronouncing

With 4,000 Questions and Answers, carefully selected "Aids to Bible Study," 16 beautifully colored and 15 black full-page illustrations, 6 colored maps and a presentation page. Children may readily pronounce correctly difficult Scripture names, as this Bible is self-pronouncing. Size 7 x 4½ x 1¼ inches.

Type in Junior's Bible
2 Take the sum of all the of the children of Is'ra-el, years old and upward, thro

- Nos.
1815 French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. Make some child happy with one of these fine $2.95 Bibles

Child's ILLUSTRATED Bible

The beautifully colored illustrations in this new Bible are a delight to the children. It has clear, readable type and yet it measures only 5½ x 3½ inches.

Specimen of Type

a My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the LORD: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God.

- No. 02112. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, gold edges $2.50

Pocket REFERENCE Bible

Has over 50,000 center column references. Measures only 6¼ x 4½ inches. (A splendid gift for a young lady.)

Specimen of Type

9 Behold, "O God our shield, and look upon the face of thine anointed. 10 For a day in thy courts is better

- No. 07523x French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $3.25

Concordance Edition

Type and size as No. 07523x, but with a Concordance, subject index and dictionary of Scripture names. An excellent edition for students and Christian workers No. 03272x $5.00

The Oxford imprint in a Bible guarantees satisfaction

OUR LEADER
Oxford Concordance Bible

Self-Pronouncing

This beautiful Oxford India paper edition is indeed the ideal Bible for the student, preacher and evangelist. Each proper name and difficult word is divided into syllables and accented, and though printed with large clear type, the volume measures only 8½ x 5½ x 1½ inches.

Specimen of Type

8 9 Jē-hōi'-ā-chin was 6 years old when he began t

- No. 03671x. Fine Grain Morocco leather, overlapping cover, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, silk head-bands and book-mark $9.50

A UNIQUE GIFT BIBLE

With Basket Weave Binding

The Antique brown calf leather binding has a basket-weave grain, and button clasp. Has overlapping cover, art silk lined, with red under gold edges.

With references. Printed on Oxford India paper. Type as Pocket Reference Bible. $5.50

No. 03255x

- As No. 03255x, with concordance. No. 03276x $6.50

Oxford TEACHER'S Bibles

Have over 50,000 center column references, and 300 double-column pages of up-to-date helps, conveniently arranged in alphabetical order. Also 32 full-page illustrations, and an indexed atlas of the Bible with 15 beautifully colored maps of Bible lands.

Easy-to-Read-Edition

Size 7¼ x 5 x 1½ inches

Specimen of Type

14 Like sheep they are laid in grave; death shall feed on th

- Nos.
04453. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners and red under gold edges. A durable and hand-some Bible $4.35

Oxford India Paper Edition

Only one inch thick.

- 0773x. French Morocco leather, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, head-bands and book-mark. A beautiful gift edition $7.00

RED LETTER Edition

Same size and type as style No. 04453, with same references and helps, but with all the words of Jesus Christ printed in red. White paper edition No. 05453. French Morocco leather, overlapping cover, round corners, red under gold edges $5.00

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

PRAYER.

Great and glorious God, author of the spiritual Kingdom, and of the outward physical church which was given to be the agency through which man might work to bring thy Kingdom into power, make thy servants valiant both in purpose and in application to the task. Thy Kingdom is sure, and the church is sure because Jesus gave himself to be its foundation. We thank thee for the joy of Jesus' comradeship and for the blessedness of toil even as he toiled. All glory be thine.

L.

CONFERENCE IN MONTCLAIR, N. J.

Over 50 Americans serving in 12 foreign lands, many recently returned from disturbed areas in Africa and the Orient; nationally and internationally known speakers, and open forums on religious, social and economic issues in the Near and Far East that will ultimately affect the welfare of the world, make up a program announced by the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, which convenes on October 18th to 20th, at the First Congregational Church, Montclair, N. J., for its 123rd annual meeting.

Timely messages from India, China, Japan, South Africa and the Near East, will come from Prof. Israil Latif, athletic young Indian professor of Psychology and Philosophy at Forman Christian University, Lahore, India, who plays polo and coaches football in addition to his academic duties; Dr. Walter H. Judd, young American physician, who, in his first five years of service under the American Board in Shaowu, China, faced more dangerous and dramatic situations than many workers have experienced in a lifetime of service.

Rev. Sherwood F. Moran, of Osaka, Japan, one of the directors of the famous Yodogawa Neighborhood House, praised by the Japanese from working man to prince, as well as by Kagawa, Japan's great social and labor leader; Mrs. Frederick B. Bridgman, of Johannesburg, South Africa, seething with social problems.

Rev. E. L. Nolting, Dean of American College, Madura, India, whose duties bring him in personal friendly contact with over 450 Indian students; and Rev. J. L. Moulton, of Rahuri, India, whose parish work over an area of 300 square miles, has brought him in close contact with the common people of India.

Dr. A. R. Kepler, of Shanghai, China, General Secretary of the Church of Christ in China, whose duties carry him annually all over that great land; Dr. Frank J. Rawlinson, of Shanghai, editor of the Chinese Recorder, and the only American Board missionary in that city during the recent Sino-Japanese conflict.

Mrs. Isabel Trowbridge Merrill, of Aleppo, Syria, wife of Dr. John E. Merrill, of Aleppo College, who comes of a famous missionary family, and whose father and grandfather both served under the American Board in Turkey and Syria.

Open forums on Wednesday morning, October 19th, and Thursday afternoon, October 20th, will be led by Dr. Hugh Vernon White of Boston, on "The New Philosophy of Missions;" Rev. J. A. G. Moore, Congregational University Pastor at Cornell University, on "Oriental Students Among America's Youth;" and Dr. Alden H. Clark, of Boston, for 25 years in India, on "Are Missions Overloaded with Institutions?"

Burning questions in China, Japan, India, Africa and the Near East will be opened up in forums Wednesday afternoon, October 19th, by Prof. Louis Hodous, of Hartford Seminary; Dr. Kenyon L. Butterfield, of Asbury Park, N. J., authority on rural missions; Prof. D. J. Fleming of Union Theological Seminary, member of the India Section of the Laymen's Foreign Missions Inquiry; Dr. Thomas Jesse Jones, of New York, Educational Director of the Phelps-Stokes Fund, and authority on the Negro not only in the United States, but also in Africa; and Dr. Fred Field Goodsell, of Boston, Executive of the American Board with 23 years' experience as a field missionary in Turkey and the Near East.

Nationally known Congregational leaders on the program include Dr. Wilfred A. Rowell of the Union Congregational Church, Hinsdale, Ill., who preaches the annual meeting sermon Tuesday evening, October 18th; Dr. Rockwell Harmon Potter, of Hartford, president of the American Board, who will preside; Dr. Jay T. Stocking of the Pilgrim Church, St. Louis, Mo., who will conduct a service of consecration and the sacrament of the Lord's Supper at the opening session, October 18th; and Dr. Chester B. Emerson of the North Woodward Congregational Church, Detroit, Mich., who will lead the noon service of worship.

Prof. Oscar M. Buck of Drew University, secretary of the Commission on Christian Higher Education in India, speaks Wednesday, October 19th, on "A Christian Pattern for Rebuilding the Rural Orient;" Miss Amy O. Welcher, of Hartford, Conn., recently returned from an eight-months' tour of Japan, China, and the Philippines, speaks Thursday on "What Missions Mean to Me;" Rev. William F. Fraser, D. D., of Burlington, Vermont, state superintendent of the Vermont Congregational Conference, speaks Thursday, October 20th, on "What Missions Mean to the Church."

A Fellowship Dinner with the missionaries directed by Dr. Wynn Cowan Fairfield, of Boston, comes Tuesday evening. Dr. D. Brewer Eddy, of Newtonville, will conduct a World Travelers' dinner on Wednesday evening. Miss Ruth Isabel Seabury, of Boston, and Rev. E. L. Nolting, of Madura, India, will be the speakers at a special young people's supper on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Arthur H. Churchill of 20 Westover Road, Montclair, N. J., is chairman of the Hospitality Committee in charge of general plans for entertaining the American Board, which is the oldest foreign missionary society in the United States, with hospitals, dispensaries, schools, colleges, kindergartens social centers and agricultural work under 12 flags.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 1, 1932.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$ 188.37
Berea (Nans.) Driver, Va.	3.82
Randleman, N. C.	2.00
Berta Johnson's Class, Liberty Spring, Suffolk, Va.	3.00
Spring Hill, Waverly, Va.	1.62
Lebanon, Semora, N. C.	1.00
Biscoe, N. C.	1.28
Bethlehem, Timberville, Va.	2.88
High Point, N. C.	2.21
United Congregational-Christian (Rose Hill), Columbus, Ga.	2.00
Pleasant Ridge, Rumseur, N. C.	4.45
Piney Plains, Raleigh N. C.	1.00
Howard's Chapel, Wentworth, N. C.	1.00

Antioch (R), Bennett, N. C.	.69
South Norfolk, Va.	6.51
Ether, N. C.	.45
Christian Endeavor Society, Holland Christian Church, Holland, Va.	1.00
Ingram, Va.	3.00
Wakefield, Va.	2.99
Timber Ridge, High View, W. Va.	4.30
Auburn, N. C.	2.75
Liberty, N. C.	1.50

Total $ 237.82

Individual and Church Offerings.

Previously acknowledged	$ 104.54
United Congregational - Christian (Rose Hill), Columbus, Ga.	8.00
Lee's Chapel, Sanford, N. C.	.50
Rev. J. Ray Dickens, Elon College, N. C.	.50

Total $ 113.54

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$ 43.50
Burlington Sunday School, Burlington,	37.23
Total	$ 80.73

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$ 420.86
Sunday Schools, Regular	49.45
Individual and Church Offerings	9.00
Specials	37.23

Total to date $ 516.54

J. O. ATKINSON, Sec'y.

IN THE HILLS.

The first Sunday in September was a pleasant one for us here. Superintendent Johnston of the Orphanage, Miss Lillie Horne, and Rev. J. L. Foster came with the singing class from the Orphanage. We certainly enjoyed the services and the program those children gave.

The children enjoyed our hilly breeze here, and the view from the top.

It was very impressive to see these children bringing a message from God. Even a person who cannot read or write, can get something from a service like they gave us. There is always something impressive about children holding the Cross of Christ before the world.

There was one more thing which impressed me. Most people think of the matron of an orphanage as always being like the pictures we see of them—a sour, cross old lady. So it was sweet, indeed, to find Miss Horne, with all her training and ability, giving her life and talents to a work of making orphan children happy. What work could be greater?

I cannot listen to those who say our young people are going to the bad. Oh, it cannot be, when the youth of our churches love and serve God and man like Lillie Horne is doing. She can do this work so much better than an older person, and how sweet it is to see those children have a young mother to love and understand them.

And, of course, we fell in love with Mr. Johnston, too. His slow, earnest smile seems to linger still in our mountains, and gives a sort of calm to the September breeze.

We appreciated Bro. Foster coming, and enjoyed having him, too.

The people are trying to get up a little fruit and some things to send to the Orphanage. But we have very little fruit here this year and crops are not so good. I fear our offering will be small, but most people here must sacrifice to give at all, and I appreciate the spirit as I know others would if they knew.

The hills send their love to those orphan children, and to you who care for them.

VICTORIA OF THE HILLS.

Fancy Gap, Va.

NOTES FROM THE FIELD.

By Mrs. W. M. JAY.

The Young People's Missionary Society of the Dendron Christian Church report a most successful season. They met all the requirements of the conference, as follows: The study of the book, "God and the Census;" a public program at one of the mid-week services, and worshipped with other Young People's Societies as visitors twice. They held their regular monthly meetings, and have had several socials. Last, but not least, they raised $10 more than their apportionment. This is indeed a good report, and they are planning for even greater work next year. Miss Beryl Barrett is the corresponding secretary and treasurer of this thriving society.

The Portsmouth (First Christian) Church had an interesting service not long ago, under the leadership of its president, Mrs. H. C. Caviness. The theme was, "Win Souls," and large letters covered with red and white flowers were suspended above the pulpit. A quiz was then conducted on how to win souls and this proved to bring out many thoughts and was very uplifting and inspiring. Mrs. O. C. Hartung is the secretary.

The Dendron Woman's Missionary Society has a membership of fifteen and they held their meetings regularly each month with an average attendance of about 75 per cent. Mrs. J. R. Bishop, the spiritual life superintendent, conducted the devotional service in an inspiring way, and brought many good and helpful thoughts. They observed the week of prayer, also the world's day of prayer for missions. They studied the book of James, and "Christ Comes to the Village." They attribute their success to their loyal and consecrated president, Mrs. W. S. Barrett, who has held this office seven years. Mrs. E. M. Richardson is secretary of this thriving group, which is doing such good work.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS LETTER.

After your urgent request for news items, I thought these clippings from our local newspaper might be of some interest. From the "News of the Week" column, the following:

"At present there are three very bad fracture cases at the Mission Hospital. Without an X-ray machine to guide the doctors in making an accurate diagnosis, the treatment in these cases would be more of a guess work. The medical profession and the general public are getting better acquainted with the necessity of the X-ray in the diagnosis of so many ailments.

"The Mission Hospital has recently been given a new coat of paint both on the outside and inside. The beautiful colors which have won the admiration of many ladies in Cagayan have added a new attraction to the private rooms which are spacious and well ventilated and consequently cool.

"Dr. M. J. W. White, of the Mission Hospital, has recently received a new shipment of X-ray equipment from the States. He is now prepared to take any kind of X-ray pictures which your doctor or dentist may recommend. The public is cordially invited to visit the X-ray department of the Mission Hospital at any time for demonstration of the X-ray machine. Ask for Dr. White."

Some other news that you may use is the fact that the government has just completed their new public hospital on the opposite corner from us. This was done in open competition because our hospital was not sold to them several years ago, when they requested it. We also hear from food authority that the local Jesuit priests are very jealous of our work here and are donating an expensive X-ray machine to the government hospital.

It seems that this competition has only helped to strengthen our cause as we are having more operations, more patients, more babies and more X-ray work than ever before. This, of course, means more income by which we hope to make this hospital entirely self-supporting and possibly a source of income to aid the evangelistic work on this island.

As you know the Board donated $700 for painting and rescreening of the hospital. We were very lucky that this came when prices were low and we bought paint and supplies enough to get all the necessary work done. There is no doubt that our hospital still makes a more favorable showing than the new government hospital. We are also building a new fence around the hospital property, using an old pipe which used to supply water to the hospital from the river. This pipe makes very good fence posts, as they are more practical than wooden ones.

Sincerely yours,

DR. AND MRS. M. J. W. WHITE.

Cagayan, P. I.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S MISSIONARY CONFERENCE AT SUFFOLK.

October is conference time, and the annual meeting of the Young People's Missionary Conference of Eastern Virginia, will be held in the Suffolk Christian Church on the evening of October 21st, at 8:00 o'clock. An attractive and inspirational program is being planned, and it is hoped that the young people will attend in large numbers.

In Luke 2:49 we find the Master, as a youth, saying: "Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" As young people, it is time we turned more of our time and attention toward our Father's business. We who live in a land of plenty and prosperity often fail to do our part to make it possible for our neighbors in foreign lands to know Christ.

During these days preceding the Young People's meeting, let each one think more of the Father's business. Come to Suffolk for inspiration, that we might better further the advancement of the Kingdom, for we, indeed, have a message for the nation that will turn their hearts to the right. So, on October 21st, in Suffolk, all the young people and adults, and especially the ministers, are urged to come. The young people need you, and we believe you will receive inspiration by attending.

MRS. E. R. BRYANT, Pres.,

Young People's Missionary Conference.

NOTICE.

The Eastern Virginia Woman's Missionary Conference will meet with the South Norfolk Christian Church, Friday, October 28th. The morning session opens at 10:30 o'clock.

It is hoped that each Society has made some forward step this year toward the advancement of our work, and will do its full share in making October 28th a great day.

The speaker will be Mrs. Jeannette W. Emrich, who has spent fourteen years on the foreign field under the Congregational Board. Since returning to America her special interest has been in the field of international relations, race relations and social problems. Mrs. Emrich is a speaker of rare charm and ability. Our people should not miss the opportunity of hearing her.

MRS. L. W. STAGG, Sec'y.

Norfolk, Va.

NOTICE.

The North Carolina Woman's Missionary Conference meets with the church at Monticello, Guilford County, on the highway between Greensboro and Reidsville, on Friday, October 21st. The Woman's Society of the Reidsville Church will be joint hostess with the Society at Monticello. All societies in the Conference are urged to have representatives present.

MRS. C. H. ROWLAND, Pres.

Greensboro, N. C.

SPECIAL OFFER ON TITHING LITERATURE.

The Layman Company, 730 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill., will furnish to churches a set of bulletins for a tithing campaign, including one especially written for present conditions, entitled, "Tithing in Hard Times." These bulletins have two pages blank for the use of the local church. Price list and sample sent on request includes a pamphlet, "Teaching the Church to Tithe," containing full directions for a ten weeks' program of silent, church-wide education at trifling expense.

Please mention THE CHRISTIAN SUN, also give your denomination.

METHODS CORNER

By REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.

Miami Beach, Fla.

In this my last special discussion of the missionary cause, I wish to mention a few helps to the study of missions. First of all, I think the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass., is in a position to furnish information of every kind about foreign mission work. The "Year Book of Missions" gives a complete survey of the stations of the Board, the names of the missionaries with their addresses, maps and much other information. (35 cents per copy.) Beautiful lantern slides of practically all the mission work of the Board may be had by churches without cost except the cost of transportation. The same thing is true of the home missionary work. A stereopticon may be purchased at a discount through the Home Missionary Office, 287 Fourth Avenue, New York City. It is sometimes possible to secure the loan of a lantern through the Visual Extension Department of your State University, or local public school.

In many churches there are missionary societies that study missions, but as a rule they are for women only. The old-fashioned missionary concert, once a month at the regular prayer meeting hour has passed away. There may be a few churches where this custom prevails. It is interesting to record the fact that Dr. Schweitzer says his interest in missions began when he was a boy attending these "concerts," held in his father's church. You can never tell what influences are working in the minds of young people. One of the very best methods of interesting young people in missions is the World Service Plan. The Sunday School World Service program provides information and creates interest and secures funds.

I suppose the churches will never come up to their highest level of missionary interest until the ministers of the churches take to preaching World Friendship in one form or another. I have become conscious that for a considerable number of years I have not preached distinctly missionary sermons. I have been interested, to be sure, and have raised considerable money for the cause, but the passion for missions seemed to fail to get into my sermons. I am trying to get over that and am now undertaking to study missions, read missionary books and put into my sermons and talks information and inspiration calculated to let the people know that the program of the church includes the world. Without doubt the minister holds the key to the success or failure of the missionary cause.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, Waverly, Va.

EASTERN VIRGINIA FELLOWSHIP TO MEET

A special committee of the Youth Fellowship of the Eastern Virginia Conference of Congregational-Christian Churches, acting on instructions of the District Chairman, Mr. Aubrey Todd, who is now in Elon studying for the ministry, met on September 13th, and decided to hold a rally of the Fellowship at Rosemont Christian Church, Sunday afternoon, October 9th, at 3:30 o'clock. The program follows:

Program.

Place: Rosemont Christian Church.

Time: 3:30 in the afternoon.

Date: October 9, 1932.

Theme: "The Challenge of Christian Living."

Invocation Rev. O. D. Poythress
Song Service Rev. O. D. Poythress
Business Session:

1. Report of Nominating Committee.
2. Election of officers.
3. Other business.

Devotional service and offering.... Watson B. Cobb
Missionary program or address... Miss Emily Tidwell
Message from the chairman..... Aubrey Todd
Discussion of plans for young people,

Miss Lottie M. Cross

"What I Have Learned from One Issue of

Our Church Paper," message from the vice-chairman Lanson Granger

Recognition service.

Explanation of Calendar of Activities,

C. E. Warrington

Special Music.... Mr. Roy Nichols, Christian Temple
Inspiring talk and benediction.... Dr. P. H. Brown

It is hoped that a large delegation from each church in the vicinity will plan to attend this Fall Rally of the Youth Fellowship.

CHRISTIAN TEMPLE C. E. INSTALLATION.

A very beautiful and most impressive candle-light installation service was included in the evening worship service at the Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va., Sunday, September 25th. The following officers were installed:

President, Miss Nina Whitehead; vice-president, Mr. Homer Hill (also service chairman); recording secretary, Miss Dorothy Lee Underhill; treasurer, Mr. Lawrence Edmonds; program chairman, Mrs. Lawrence Edmonds; welcome chairman, Mr. Edmund Hobbs; publicity chairman, Mr. Alvah Thomas; music chairman, Miss Alma Rountree.

The following officers will serve for the coming year, but were not present for the installation service:

Social chairman, Miss Nellie Gray; corresponding secretary, Miss Helen Neyhard.

The service included the solo, "My Task," very beautifully rendered by a member of the choir; while during the actual period of installation and consecration, the entire auditorium was darkened save for the candle symbolizing the light of the Spirit of Christ in the world.

Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the church, then gave the challenge in a very splendid message: "If God Be for Us." Dr. Pierce said, in part: "If God be for us, we can have hope, we have his spirit in our lives, and we have the promise that all things working together for good will come to them that love God."

PUBLICATIONS.

For several months articles have appeared on this page relative to publications. Then, too, about two hundred and twenty letters and cards have gone to the pastors and officers in the Youth Fellowship. The purpose of these letters and cards was to stimulate a desire in the young people to read our church papers more than they have been doing in the past, and to enlist as many as possible in a convention-wide campaign for these papers, especially THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

The superintendent is hoping that workers in young people's organizations and every patron of THE SUN will cooperate with us in our efforts to get religious literature before the young people.

Each sincere and consecrated Christian realizes the value of our publications. We know that the mind is suffering for those things which tend to create better morals in our environment. It takes individuals to make families, and families to make communities. Just the same, it is going to require the efforts of all Christian servants in the Southeast to get our church and its members better acquainted with religious literature.

Some of the youth organizations suggest the following books for consideration and reading. We pass the list along to you:

"Church Work with Young People (Stock), $2.00; "Training Young People in Worship (Shaver-Stock), $1.25; "The Successful Young People's Society (Miller), $1.75; "Leadership Through Christian Endeavor" (Davis), $1.00; "Youth Organized for Religious Education" (Maus), 90c. These books may be had through THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

CARL R. KEY,
Supt. of Publications.

CHRISTIAN TEMPLE C. E. PRESIDENT ENTERS ELON.

Sunday, September 25th, at the Christian Endeavor service at the Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va., the president, William L. Cooper, Jr., who has entered upon his second year at the helm, resigned his position, on account of the sudden change in his plans which enables him to go immediately to Elon College. It was with regret that the Society had to accept his resignation, but they expressed their joy that the opportunity had come to him. Miss Nina Whitehead has accepted the nomination for president, and "Bill" can feel that he has left his responsibility in very capable hands.

This will make the third leader of Young People's work in the Norfolk area who has gone to Elon this year, the others being Mr. Aubrey Todd, South Norfolk, Va., and Mr. Lansen Granger, of the same group. While their fellow associates will miss them this year, they are hoping to carry on successfully while they are away, and bid them God-speed and four wonderful years ahead, when they will truly find themselves in Christian service.

Next week more information will be given here covering the next two topics, namely: "What Does Alcohol Do to People and Society?" and "What Attempts Have Been Made to Solve the Liquor Problem, and With What Success?"

Young people should face these questions fearlessly, but in a fine Christian search for the solution of a difficult problem.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

HOW DOES THE LIQUOR PROBLEM AFFECT

YOUNG PEOPLE TODAY?

Matt. 7:17; John 8:32.

When 10:00 o'clock comes, on Sunday night, a preacher who has had a busy day in Christian service should go to bed for rest. This one was about to yield to that impulse without any comments on the C. E. topic for next Sunday. But suppose this failure should make some young person think the topic unimportant, and cause someone to yield to drink? This thought holds me to the typewriter for a little longer tonight.

It is much easier to get heat than light in any discussion concerning the use of liquor and the Eighteenth Amendment, but light is much more important. It is in search of light that young people should enter the discussions for the remainder of this month.

Many of us cannot remember the time of the saloons very well, or even at all. The memory is hazy to me, but I have seen their advertisements and have tasted their liquids even though minors were not supposed to drink. Certain modern advocates of repeal boast of the morality of the saloons and say that in those days youths could not get liquors. There is only one thing wrong with that boast—it just isn't so. The moral tone of those places of sale was lower than even the saloon-keepers would like to admit today. There is nothing like it in our streets now.

The liquor problem is most important for the young people because:

(a) They are the ones to whom liquor dealers must look for continued custom. The older generation that has known the saloon will soon be gone. If husbands are to spend money for drink rather than for fuel and food, come home drunk and abuse the wife and children, it is the young people who are to continue the habits of a past generation. The courts and the Salvation Army say that this has almost passed away. Yet there are those who want to bring back more liquor. The young people are the ones to drink it. They have a right to object to the temptation being thrown around them.

(b) They are the ones who are being slandered. It is claimed that young people are drinking heavily now. Unfortunately, some do take flasks with them when they go on parties, but I have been unable to find many who say they do it, and very few can testify that it is the general practice of high school, college, or other groups. But if some do yield to the temptation now when it is against the law to buy or transport, and only those who speak in the dark invite them to buy, what would happen to these weaker ones if papers, bill-boards, show windows, and living agents constantly invited, enticed, and persuaded them to try the various brands of what they would term "joy makers," but which in reality are "joy killers"?

(c) The young people are the ones who must eventually settle this matter. For three hundred years the liquor interests have had their chance to make America sober, law-abiding citizens. They have not done a very good job. The sober, church-going, Christian people have decided that it is better to get rid of intoxicating liquor. The process has begun, but the youth will have to continue the process. They should save all the good that has been accomplished.

It is difficult to get real information from many modern magazines, newspapers, and public speakers. But there are sources of help. The Allied Youth, Woman's Christian Temperance Union, The Christian Herald, the Young People's Department of our church (14 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.), and many other places you can find help.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

THE HOME AND THE COMING GENERATION

LESSON III—OCTOBER 16, 1932.

LESSON TEXT: Gen. 18:17-19; Deut. 6:4-9; Mark 10:13-16.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

The race moves forward on the feet of little children. What we would do for the next generation, therefore, we must do through the children of this generation. Neglect the children of this generation, and the next generation will pay a heavy price for it. Nurture the children of this generation, and the next generation will move forward, and the Kingdom of God will come a little closer. Neglect the religious life of the children of today, and the next generation will be irreligious and Godless.

But the topic of this lesson is not simply "The Coming Generation," but, "The Home and the Coming Generation." This is as it should be. For the most vital, and therefore, the most important factor in the training of the coming generation, is the home. The home has the child first, it has it longest, it has it in the most formative years of life, it has it in the most intimate contacts and relationships, it has it in cooperative activities—the home is the strategic point in training the coming generation. One of the most alarming symptoms of our modern life is the inadequate home training of children, especially in religion, and the increasing tendency of the home to delegate the training of the religious life to outside agencies. God never intended the Sunday School or the church, as important and helpful as they are, to be a substitute for the home. A faithful and observant church worker said to the writer the other day, "I believe that we ought to be teaching the parents instead of teaching the children." She meant, of course, that a great many of the problems which she had in the Sunday School were due to lack of sound home training. The home of today must teach religion if the coming generation is to be as religious as it ought to be.

A Religious Home.

God said of Abraham that "all the nations of the earth shall be blessed in him." God blesses us that we may bless others. And it was through the home of Abraham that he became a blessing to others. "For I know him that he will command his children and his household after him, and they shall keep the way of the Lord, to do justice and judgment." Here was a man who exercised authority in the home. He commanded his home. And yet one feels that it was not as a despot depending upon force that Abraham ruled. It was by the power of his moral life, the authority of his character. He felt that he had the responsibility of training the coming generation. He, therefore, taught them to keep the way of the Lord, to walk in the paths of righteousness. Parents today need to exercise authority over their children, to teach them to keep the way of the Lord, to the end that their home shall be a blessing through coming generations. What a blessing to humanity have been those humble homes from which have come through the years children who have been taught the ways of the Lord and who throughout their lives have walked therein.

Teaching Religion.

"And thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children." The ideals and the ideas of the Bible, its teachings and its truths ought to be taught to children while they are young. They are as seed sown in fertile ground. They are as a foundation. They give direction and tone to all of later life. And they can and should be taught in the home. The mother is the true teacher of religion.

"Thou shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thy house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up," and so on. In other words, religion should be the normal and natural thing in the home. Religious teaching should be a continuous process. By precept and by example religion or irreligion is always being taught in the home.

The Child in the Midst.

Jesus put the child in the midst. The welfare of the child, the welfare of the coming generation, is the criterion by which we are to judge things, and the principle around which we are to organize things. The home, the school, the church, society—one and all—are to be so ordered and so administered that they shall contribute to the enrichment of the life of the child. The adoption of this principle would work a far-reaching change in many phases of our modern life. For instance, many churches are adult-centered. Adults have the largest and best classrooms; children are put in the basement or often in a dark corner. The home is often run in the interests of the parents and not for the highest welfare of the children. Industry often makes profits at the expense of children. The liquor traffic could not stand one minute if the rights of the child were considered as of paramount importance. Much of our educational practice would be revised if we always kept the child where Jesus put him, in the midst.

Our generation must give more thought to the children of this generation, especially as concerning the religious life of the child. What with the inability of the public schools to teach religion, the inefficiency of the Sunday School in doing it, and the failure of the home to do it, there is a need for frankly facing the whole question in the light of Jesus' standards.

Think of the splendid young life around us waiting for the liberating touch of a praying church! A praying church makes it possible for God to do things. It is only when the church gets to prayer about the great need on the harvest field that the Spirit of God can get to grips with the young life about us. One of the tragedies of the mission field is the unsent worker. It is heart-breaking to see the helplessness in the midst of appalling need.—IV. Mallis.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 7/8 x 7 Inches, and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 7/8 x 7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 1/2 Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold.....$1.60

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 3/4 x 7

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.50

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges.....$6.00

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 3/4 x 5 3/4 Inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 3/4 x 5 3/4 Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps.....$2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 3/8 x 8 1/2 Inches and 1 3/8 Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools.....95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond Virginia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."—II. Chron. 7:14.

MONDAY.

THINGS IN WRONG PLACES.

"When ye shall see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by Daniel the prophet, standing where it ought not."—Mark 13:14.

According to other utterances of Daniel (11:31 and 12:11) the language of this text is based upon the pollution of the temple. This reference has an exact parallel in II. Thess. 2:6-7, "The mystery of iniquity doth already work; only he who now letteth will let, until he be taken out of the way."

Whatever may have been the exact meaning, there can be no question that there are dreadful abominations and desolations in the world today. Moffatt calls it "appalling horrors." The earth is full of it. The news sheets are full of accounts of it. We know about it. The corruption in human hearts and in society is appalling, "Standing where it ought not." From them we are told to flee.

In Joseph Conrad's story, "The End of the Tether," the central figure is an old man crouching at the wheel of the vessel whose command he will not relinquish although he has gone blind. This is a true picture of that part of humanity that clings to the world in search of gold, influence, power, selfish interest, all at any cost. Every day we see it standing in our midst, dreadful enemies of a righteous life.

This grip can be broken only by a vision of Jesus, and the happiness he can and will bring, by renouncing self, the world, the flesh and the devil, and setting in greater motion the spiritual forces of Christianity. One by one, we must get iniquity out of the heart, set up Christ within, and live his life. The heart, mind and will of man must be set toward righteousness at any cost.

Prayer—O Lord, help us to turn from all evil and take thee wholly into our lives. Be thou the power in our lives that skeptics may know that theirs is a useless mission. Give us, and, O God, give the world faith and the spirit of those simple men of Galilee whom thou didst bless and send out to change the face of humanity for thee. In his name. Amen.

TUESDAY.

CHRIST HEARTBROKEN.

"Jesus cried with a loud voice and gave up the ghost."—Mark 15:37.

Dr. Ernest F. Scott comments on the death of Jesus, as follows:

"Jesus died long before the time which was usual in crucifixion. His death was not due wholly to the terrible strain of preceding days and the torture during the death hours. His loud cry betokens a spasm; and the issue of blood and water when his side was thrust with a spear, has been medically interpreted as a rupture of the heart." This would indicate "the heartbreak of Calvary."

It is suggestive that Jesus died of heartbreak. That heartbreak is a vivid physical symbol of the spiritual reality of the atonement. It reflects his soul's heartbreak when, preceding his passion, he stood up on the mount overlooking Jerusalem and wept, saying, "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, how oft would I have gathered thee as a hen doth gather her brood, and ye would not." It is a symbol of his heartaches for humanity still—at the sinfulness of his people—and, as he pleads at the throne for them. His heart is still breaking for you and me, and especially for those who are going wrong.

Prayer—O God, O God, O God, may thy word come as never before to the hearts of humanity, and bring thy love to everybody, that thy world may be what it ought to be—especially make us thy obedient and loving children. In his name. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

THE GREAT EXPECTANCY.

"She, coming in that instant, gave thanks likewise unto the Lord, and spoke of him to all of them that looked for redemption."—Luke 2:38.

Godspeed interprets this passage thus: "She spoke about the child (Jesus) to all who were living in expectation of the liberation of Jerusalem."

It would be a great message to the world today—freedom—liberation from the things it is suffering. The very expectation that God is coming would make us immeasurably happy.

It seems that the people's expectation in that day of the coming of Jesus made it possible for them to receive him. They received him because they were looking for him.

Did anything great ever happen without great expectation? They who have the expectation are the ones who move forward. Only with the expectant can God do anything. We are often thwarting him and his blessings by sheer dullness of spirit, listlessness, apathy, small and thin hopes.

Christians are often called "one-sider people." But isn't it true that they are the ones who are on God's side, expecting his salvation? Isaiah said, "God is surely coming;" Zephaniah said, "He is here at our door;" and the apostle writes, "When the time was fulfilled, Jesus came." Did it ever happen otherwise? Doesn't truth come only as a result of great longings and long tarryings? Our sciences advance only in the avenues of expectancy. God is revealed only along the road of loving hearts. "Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled." "Seek and ye shall find." Isn't it true that only as we live in expectancy do we live at all?

Let us ask ourselves, "what is our attitude toward the possibilities of God in the world, toward Christian brotherhood, toward curbing of greed; what expectancy have we; how are we living it?"

Prayer—O Lord, we feel today that we are thine, chosen by thee to live right and to bear witness in our lives to everybody else that thou art the salvation of the world. Implant our faith in thee and suffer us not, we beseech thee, to fail in spreading the good news to everybody. In Christ's name, we ask it. Amen.

THURSDAY.

A GOOD TIME TO PRAY.

In those days he went out into the mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God."—Luke 6:12.

What days? They were the days when the Pharisees were full of fury toward Jesus and sought what they might do with him, and they were also days of choosing the apostles. They were days of opposition and conspiracy against him, and it was definitely established that he could not win them. Their hearts were as hard as their heads; and they were days when he must go forward despite opposition and set the kingdom in motion in the world. His power against them and his success in choosing the disciples surely had its relation to his night of prayer.

The attitude of the Pharisees is very much like the plain everyday stubbornness you and I know so well—Jesus is often a new fact in one's experience, and some are opposed to new facts. We love our traditions, our ways of habitual thinking; like the Pharisees, to adhere to those traditions, we would not have a single twinge of sympathy for a cripple, even though God had healed him. In them was not a trace of common, elementary, human emotion rejoicing over a healed man.

Can we recognize any spirits of this kind in ourselves? If so, it is a good time to pray. Has God a work for us to do? What do we see that should be done in our homes, our own neighbors, for our community, for our country? Seest thou anything? Is apostleship needed? If so, it is a good time to pray, and say, "O Lord, here am I, send me." Amen.

FRIDAY.

FIGHTING AGAINST SELF.

"The lawyers rejected the counsel of God against themselves."—Luke 7:30.

Godspeed: "The experts in the law thwarted God's purpose for themselves."

Yes, and for everybody else! This is a story of a man face to face with Jesus—a man with wide information and profound wisdom, unable to grasp elementary spiritual realities, or the significance of a personality like Jesus, or the blessing of following him.

Are not thousands doing the same thing today? There is a refinement that ignores Jesus. There is a learning that explains Jesus out of the life. There are theories about him which wrongly interpret him. There are those who blithely leave him out of everything in which their theories do not fit. There are those who are so religious that great matters of mercy and justice in human relations receive but scant attention. All these grievously thwart God's plan for one. This must have been why some said, "A little learning is a dangerous thing."

That image of God with which he hath endowed us, is to be cultivated and developed until we shall be like him, says the Word. We are able to think his thoughts after him, and go on until we shall think as he does. He has endowed us with moral senses of right and wrong, and we are to follow him until we shall do as he would do. He hath put in us his own love, and we are to love until we shall possess eternity and live in eternal brotherhood. Any argument or theory that rejects him is against ourselves. How much are we his?

Prayer—Dear Lord, we beseech thee to forgive us our sins, and help our infirmities, and grant unto us the will and the wisdom to present our bodies wholly unto thee for thy service. In his name, we ask it. Amen.

SATURDAY.

AIR-RESISTANCE.

"All the day long did I spread out my hands unto a disobedient and gainsaying people." Read Romans 10:12-21.

Few drivers of automobiles realize that the chief enemy of speed in their cars is the viewless and silent atmosphere. Physicists have proved that, after a car has reached a speed of forty
(Continued on page 14.)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

TOILING IN ROWING.

By REV. JOHN G. TRUITT.

"He saw them toiling in rowing."—Mark 6:48.

We have here a passage of Scripture which turns our minds to the Sea of Galilee. It had been a great day. To look upon it is to look upon a series of moving pictures. Early in the morning the Master and his men start to climb the mountain in order that they may be alone in a desert place to rest awhile; for we read in another Gospel that the coming and going was so much that there was no time not even to eat. Jesus' popularity was at its height, and it was very exacting both on him and upon his disciples. They all needed rest.

But when they reached the top, and began looking down on the other side, "Jesus . . . saw much people, and was moved with compassion toward them, because they were as sheep not having a shepherd; and he began to teach them many things." All day long he taught them. At the close of the day his disciples desired him to send the multitudes away for food and home. Jesus did not like to send men away hungry, and so after ascertaining how many loaves and fishes could be found among them, which were five and two respectively, he blessed the food and fed the five thousand men, to say nothing of the women and children. He must have fed as many as twelve thousand people.

This was, in the eyes of his beloved disciples, supreme victory. Now they were anxious to do "great things" for him. Now they would join the crowd in proclaiming him King. They would help make him to become the great Messiah indeed! How often we want to do the "great things" for God, when it is a series of lesser things he desires of us. For his small things will be far greater than our greatest things. We are likely to misjudge size unless we look through the eyes of Calvary! They would escort him to a throne, but he wanted them to get into a boat and set out for the other shore: "Straightway he constrained his disciples into the boat." Instead of encouraging them in their wish to make a royal court, he sent them forth into loneliness, lengthening shadows, and lifting winds.

1. The Call of Christ is a Call to Combat.—Who wants an easy, silly, soft job? Jesus goes back to dismiss the folk while Peter and his men tackle the tempest which is steadily arising.

No doubt he is asking why did Christ ever assigne us to this duty? Does he not know a terrible storm is in the offing? Peter and some of the fellows with him were inured to the sea. They knew a storm when they saw it, and this one would be tremendous. By now the wind is high, and the crowds are gone. A roar is coming up from the sea, and a faint light still shows a small bark far out in the trough of the waves. "And when he had sent them away, he departed into the mountain to pray."

There he is! The praying Son of God! Always praying, and oftentimes long. What is he praying about? Oh, what is the lovely One, with already a cross in his heart, praying about? Is he praying for the shepherdless multitudes? Is he praying for the men out yonder obeying his order? Men whom he is training for shepherds? No doubt by now the rain is falling full upon that blessed upturned face! His clothing is being drenched tight to his form. And I think he is proud of the fellows who followed his instructions, and put out into the night and the storm. By now, at every flash of lightning, he is scanning the sea for the brave men who have tackled many a storm. And now the words of young Mark, in his Gospel, here ring out as he describes the scene: "He was alone on the land, and he saw them toiling in rowing; for the wind was contrary unto them."

2. The Combat of the Christian is in the Line of Duty.—It is no credit to have to fight, because one has placed himself in a compromising position with evil. But it is an honor to battle to the death even for the right. These men did not want to go; but, thank God, they wanted to obey! "To obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams." How the world is waiting for a generation of young men and women today who will step up beside Christ and obey his orders! Only think what mighty things such discipline would do our needy world! We owe it to Christ. What have we worth a straw in our civilization which has not come as a result of the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ. We may find our fullest criticisms with the church and her members, but nevertheless the church has brought us our blessings in spite of her faults. And we cannot find fault with her founder, Jesus Christ. Young folks, I cannot promise you ease and luxury in living for Christ, but I can promise you far more, namely, "toiling in rowing."

3. The Christ Who Orders the Path is Able to Give the Power to Pursue It.—He does not ask us to do something he will not do, and cannot do himself. Ten thousand times more he will, and can do! They are asked to master the storm with a seaworthy boat. He masters it with no boat at all! They are commanded to make their way with the best aid of the day. He makes his way with only the aid of the Divine. Jesus does not expect us to overlook all the help we can get to help us in our time of need, but he has set the example of looking to a source that is higher than ourselves. And further, let me suggest that we come upon the ordinary things by simply following the ordinary path without the element of faith; add faith, young people, and the ordinary things become extraordinary.

That struggle out there on the sea of Galilee ended triumphantly. When the disciples started they had a man whom they would like to make King; when they finally pulled in their oars, they had seen evidences of the Infinite!

To them he became more than one who could sustain life with loaves, but rather one who could preserve life without loaves, and be the Lord of both life and the sea of life besides.

MACMILLAN PRIZE SERMON CONTEST.

Under the editorship of Dr. Edwin A. McAlpin, Dr. Hugh T. Kerr and Dr. J. Newton Davies, the Macmillan Company has been conducting a prize sermon contest, and has offered a prize of $250 for the best sermon submitted. The contest closed in June and MacMillan will bring out a book this fall containing, besides the prize-winning sermon, twenty-four of the best sermons submitted. Announcement of the prize winner will be made shortly.

Ministers have greeted this contest with enthusiasm. Hundreds of letters have been received by the editors and the Macmillan Company, and 690 sermons have come in from every state in the Union, from Canada, England, Bolivia and Korea.

The contestants represent almost every Protestant denomination.

The book is to be called "Prize Sermons."

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses	$7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses	6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses	6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10	2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10	2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim	1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses	$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85	11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85	16.00

(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses (this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling)	$22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90	16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90	14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim	$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim	9.00
Filler—Silver Lined	6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

The months of October, November and December have been set apart by the Southern Christian Convention as Orphanage months. During these three months we make a special effort to stress offerings for the Orphanage. During these three months Thanksgiving comes, and the Thanksgiving offering for the Orphanage is made a special feature. During the summer months the offerings always run less than the expense account, and we are compelled to go in debt. Every year, for sixteen years, our people have been kind and generous, and have made the Thanksgiving offering liberal and sufficient to take up all indebtedness and leave us something to start off the new year with. Surely, we will not do less this year than in years gone by. Let us all begin to plan now and lay aside something to swell the Thanksgiving offering in your Sunday School this year—to larger proportions.

Owing to the long drought our crops are so short that we will have much to buy that we have always produced here. We want to interest all the pastors, Sunday School superintendents, officers and teachers, and every member of all our churches and Sunday Schools, so we will have 30,000 boosters for the next three months. Let everyone be a booster. Talk to your friends about the Christian Orphanage that is mothering more than one hundred little children. Ask them to lay aside something to help these children when you make your special Thanksgiving offering. Let every one awake. Duty calls. Will you answer?

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR OCTOBER 6, 1932.

Brought forward $ 9,835.06

Sunday Schools.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:

Elon College $ 6.25
Salem Chapel60

6.85

Eastern North Carolina Conference:

Auburn $ 3.00
Bethel (Wake) 2.25
Christian Light 1.60
Moore's Union 2.00
Henderson 3.78
Pleasant Hill, J. 2.82

15.45

Western North Carolina Conference:

Bennett $.38
Randleman 1.00
Smithwood 1.77

3.15

Eastern Virginia Conference:

Mt. Carmel $ 5.89
Spring Hill 1.62

7.51

Valley Virginia Central Conference:

Timber Ridge $ 4.30
Bethlehem 3.05

7.35

Georgia and Alabama Conference:

Rose Hill 2.00

Special Offerings.

Woman's Missionary Society, Henderson Church $ 10.00
Friendship Bible Class, Oakland Sunday School 3.00
F. C. Owens, guardian for James Brown 12.50

Mrs. Doloris Morrow Barnwell, balance of pledge	50.00
Mrs. Maynor, support of Rebecca.	5.00
	80.50
Total for the week	$ 122.81
Grand total	$ 9,957.87

FAMILY ALTAR.

(Continued from page 12.)

miles an hour, more power is needed to overcome air-resistance than road-resistance.

In many ways automobiles remind us of men, and especially in this particular. When far-seeing men try to bring about some reform, their work in advancing the reform is more than half spent in overcoming the pervasive, silent, obstinate opposition of prejudice and selfishness. The atmosphere of society must be overcome before any progress can be made with the reform. When this persistent and universal force works at last with the improvement, the reform is virtually accomplished.

Therefore, let us Christians work for the betterment of the social spirit. Conversations must be elevated in tone. Newspapers must be brought into active sympathy with all that is good. Home atmosphere must be clarified. One by one the people must be led to transform their feelings, that they may favor and not obstruct the kingdom of God.

Prayer—Let us not be parts of a disobedient and gainsaying people. Let us seek thy ways, O God, and go with thee toward thy goals. Let us put every opposition out of the way, and the opposition of our hearts above all. In Christ's name. Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.

"Wherefore I take pleasure in weakness . . . for Christ's sake; for when I am weak, then am I strong."—Read II. Cor. 12:1-10.

Paul was not the only man with a feeble body who in it did a giant's work for God. Christian history is full of such glorious examples.

One of them was Dr. Baedeker, who at the age of forty, was a confirmed invalid. He was a skeptic, but suddenly he was converted, and at once his invalid life was transformed. His new zeal for his Saviour lifted him from his sickbed and sent him out in the world with the message of the cross. For forty years more he preached in European prisons to the wretched inmates, filling their desolate lives with gladness.

That is what God can do for the bodies of those who admit the Great Physician into their souls.

Prayer—We are weak, O Saviour, until we remember thee, and seek thee, and find thee. Then we can do all things, for thou dost strengthen us. Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

NOTICE.

I am selling magazine subscriptions "to help along," and would appreciate a share of your subscriptions. If you will send me your new, renewal or gift subs, to any magazine at the publisher's price, you may deduct 15 per cent and I will send 25 per cent of my net commission to any church or church auxiliary you may direct. In this way you will help your church, yourself and me. A postal will bring catalog and prices.

J. EDWIN HARRIS,

Holland Road, Suffolk, Va.

ALL SELF-PRONOUNCING

Holman Testaments

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament
Size, 2½x4½ inches

Specimen of Type.
AND the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Je'sus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles. $.50

2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles.60

2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges.85

VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS

2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges.70

2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges.90

2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges. 1.10

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENTS

With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red.

13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges.90

15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included. 1.35

Holman Jewel Testament
INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4½ inches x¾ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4½ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2 The three wise men

carrying away into Ebb'ing interpreted is, God
3-lon are fourteen genera- with us.
tions; and from the carry- 24 Then Je'seph being ing away into Bab'y-lon raised from sleep did as unto Christ are fourteen the angel of the Lord had

5003X. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges. $1.00

5015PX. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges, Psalms included. 1.50

5036PX. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, silk sewed, red under gold edges, with Psalms included. 2.60

COMMAND ATTENTION AND APPROVAL

Holman GEM Testament

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type
CHAPTER 23.
THEN spake Je'sus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

POCKET SIZE
3¾x4½ inches

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3¾x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burnished edges, with Psalms. $.90

4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges. 1.35

4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included. 1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT

4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges. 1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT

4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms included. 3.00

4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red. 3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print
Pica, 16mo. Size, 5¼x7¼x¾ inches

Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines.

Specimen of Type.
THE book
of Je'sus

It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

PSALMS INCLUDED

2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included. $1.50

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS

Same Large Print as Above

2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included. 2.95

RED LETTER EDITION

Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.

3913PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included. 3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

CONGREGATIONAL COMRADES MEET AT GRAND VIEW.

Everything was grand at Grand View—weather, view by sunshine and moonlight, hosts, delegates, program and entertainment. The fall meeting of the Comrades was held September 17th-18th, and over seventy delegates attended. This was the third conference the Grand View folks had entertained during the summer and fall months, but their spirit and hospitality were unabated.

The topic of the conference was quite appropriate for this season of political fervor. It was "Christian Citizenship." The theme was closely allied: "What Would Jesus Do?" We tried to take up the problems of Christian Citizenship from all angles, through discussions, addresses, devotional services, dramatics, and mock political speeches. Each of the seven groups represented took active part on the program and each contributed richly to the spirit of the whole. Pilgrim young people, with their pastor, Dr. Raymond, presented the Prohibition question with enthusiasm and convincing power. East Lake presented that most effective play, "Dust of the Road," and did it remarkably well. Pleasant Hill led us in a beautiful worship service early in the morning as we looked out over the Tennessee Valley. Crossville came in strength to lead our Church School. In fact they brought the whole Sunday School with them to Grand View. It was great to have them with us. Grand View led two devotional services and let us share the leadership they enjoy all the time. Daisy conducted an open forum which dealt with a discussion of the Lord's Prayer and its application to our lives. Soddy led a beautiful devotional service and brought the conference to a close by presenting to us "A Platform to End the Depression," upon which the young men's class has been working for some time. Helpful and challenging addresses from our leaders, Rev. J. W. Davenport, Dr. F. P. Ensminger, Dr. C. Rexford Raymond, Rev. E. E. White and from two representatives from Bryan University rounded out the program with the wisdom of adults.

Anyone who happened in the vicinity during the mock political rally would have wondered what was happening. Four parties were represented: Prohibition, Socialist, Democratic and Republican. One representative from each group was in each party. Banners, songs, cheers and slogans introduced the parties during the rally and two-minute speeches from each member of the party brought forth more or less information and much response from the crowd.

Since this was the annual meeting of the Comrades, election of officers took place. In the absence of the president, Mr. James Larrimore, of Daisy, the vice-president, Mr. Alex Ferguson, conducted the business sessions with so much ease and ability that the group elected him to the presidency for the coming year. Mr. Ferguson comes from East Lake, Chattanooga. The new vice-president is Mr. Bascomb Bussell, of Pleasant Hill. The secretary is Miss Mary Lusk, of Pilgrim Church, Chattanooga. Soddy invited the Comrades to meet there in February. Soddy also carried off the banner for having the group of delegates which showed the finest spirit throughout the conference. M. D.

ANTIOCH CHRISTIAN CHURCH, ISLE OF WIGHT COUNTY.

Our last business meeting was held Saturday, when we elected our delegates to conference and our church officers for next year. There was an unusually large congregation present.

We are happy to say that we have an earnest, faithful and consecrated pastor, who has cheerfully and gladly given his time and help in every available place throughout the church. The great subject of his ministrings has been the Lord Jesus Christ. Our pastor, the Rev. E. B. White has done his best for the extension of the gospel in his locality, and has won many friends with his friendly disposition and his high type of Christian manhood. He is devoted to the church and the Kingdom of God.

Realizing that he may, like Moses, fail, unless we hold up his hands, and in view of the fact that he has had much to try him, the conference, by a large majority, voted to support him, and to manifest a more loyal spirit towards our denomination and its interests. We are very proud of the whole White family.

It is a pleasure to report that we have just closed a most successful church revival. Bro. White did the preaching and his sermons were strong, inspiring and full of love for the unsaved. We had large congregations at each service.

About twenty-five or more of our inactive members, along with many others, have pledged financial support to our pastor, and the church, for the balance of this year and next. To God be all praise and power for all the good that was accomplished.

LOUISE PIERCE, Sec'y.
Antioch Christian Church.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

WHITLEY MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 15th. Freshmen register on Tuesday, September 13th, and upper classmen on the 15th. Expenses reduced for this session. Write for Catalog and application blank.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D.....Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D.....Associate
W. W. STALEY, D. D.....Contributing
S. C. HARRELL.....Contributing
C. R. RAYMOND, D. D.....Contributing
ELISHA A. KING, D. D.....Contributing
W. C. WICKER, D. D.....Contributing
J. T. KERNODLE.....Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year$2.00
Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When sending subscriptions for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of year.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

OBITUARIES

OWEN.

W. J. W. Owen was born August 28, 1870, and died September 6, 1932, at the age of 62 years, 9 days. He joined the Rock Springs Christian Church more than 30 years ago, and served more than half of that time in the office of deacon. He was true and loyal to the trust the church had reposed in him, until he peacefully fell asleep at 10 o'clock P. M., September 6th.

He married Miss Mollie Swann March 13, 1892. To this union were born one son and five daughters, who mourn the passing of a devoted father. He leaves, besides his children, his devoted companion, 17 grandchildren, two sisters and a host of friends.

We feel that in the going of this man of God, our loss is his eternal gain. Therefore, we bow in meek submission to him who doeth all things well, and pray his rich blessings upon the bereaved.

Funeral services were held from Rock Springs Christian Church September 8th, led by his pastor, this writer, assisted by Revs. C. W. Carter, J. D. Dollar, and G. D. Hunt. The body was laid to rest in the cemetery near by to await the resurrection of the just.

G. H. VEAZEY.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas, the death angel has visited our community and taken from our midst a good and honored member of our

THE CONGREGATIONAL LATIN-AMERICAN INSTITUTE AND PILGRIM LATIN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH OF WEST TAMPA, FLA.—

Are helping give the Gospel, which is "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," to the forty thousand Latin people of Tampa. The evangelical forces working among the foreigners of Tampa are by no means covering the territory sufficiently.

Methodists have six preachers, Baptists two, Presbyterians one, Congregationalists one. Church workers and teachers must be supported for this great missionary work. Send check to

LESLIE S. BRAY, Treas.
Route 4, Box 468, - - Tampa, Fla.

Send boxes of clothing to Mrs. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

For literature, write Rev. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

HOLMAN BIBLES
SMALL TYPE
FLEXIBLE BINDINGS
THE HOLY SPIRIT
THE WORD OF GOD
THE HOLY SPIRIT
THE WORD OF GOD

LARGE PRINT
TEACHERS' EDITION
FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS
AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear, Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type.
"From that time Jesus to preach, and to say, 'I the kingdom of heaven'"

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible, French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, carmine under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid..... 10.65

church, Ladies' Aid and Missionary Society, Mrs. Laura Morse Mead, who departed this life August 22, 1932, therefore, be it resolved:

First That we bow in humble submission to the will of God, who doeth all things well.

Second, That we extend to the entire family our deepest sympathy, realizing the husband has lost a loyal wife, the children a loving and devoted mother, the community a cheerful and encouraging friend, and the church a faithful member.

Third, That we may strive to profit by all that was good and true in her life.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to her family, a copy to "The Christian Sun," for publication, and a copy to be put on the records of Berea (Norfolk) Christian Church.

Respectfully submitted,

MRS. F. G. HALL,
MRS. C. P. CANNON,
MRS. C. E. HANBURY.

666

LIQUID—TABLETS—SALVE

Checks Colds first day, Headaches or Neuralgia in 30 minutes, Malaria in 3 days.

666 SALVE FOR HEAD COLDS.

Most Speedy Remedies Known.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

FALL TERM—SEPTEMBER 7

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

Cost for Board, Room and Tuition, including also Entrance, Activity, and Infirmary fees reduced to $273.50 for the College Year. Personal expenses as low as student and parent wish.

All who seek an "A" grade college training for their sons and daughters in an atmosphere of Christian culture, and at minimum cost, are invited to write for the college catalogue and admission blanks.

Address: DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

A Memorial of the Congregational-Christian Union.

FRANK E. JENKINS, Pres.

MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD, Dean

Chartered by Southern Christian Convention, June 2, 1922, as Bethlehem College; renamed Southern Union, June 3, 1931.

Will function during the present financial depression as a Junior College only.

FALL TERM WILL OPEN SEPTEMBER 7.

DEPRESSION PRICES.

Depression prices during the coming year, made possible by extensive gardens, careful planning, organization and donations—Tuition, board and room, $192 for entire scholastic year; tuition alone, $48; each payable in six equal installments.

Unsectarian, but thoroughly Christian.

For Information, write—

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXIV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1932.

NUMBER 41.

.. THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY ..

Thirty-three Dry States Before Prohibition.—

The wets say the liquor interests had no warning and were, therefore, subjected to snap judgment. Twenty-six States had voted dry before the World War, and thirty States were dry before the thirty-sixth had ratified the 18th Amendment, and three more became dry before the 18th Amendment became operative. Before the 18th Amendment became effective 85 per cent of our area was dry territory, inhabited by more than two-thirds of the people of the United States.—

The American Issue.*

Tower of Babel Probably Unearthed.—

The Methodist Protestant-Recorder is authority for the statement that a Zugurrat, which may be the Tower of Babel mentioned in the Bible, has been unearthed in the ancient city of Akshak, later called Opis. The mound is about 50 feet high and 250 to 300 feet in diameter. The outer structure is composed of a circular wall of sun-dried brick 30 feet thick. Inside is a core of solid brick 40 feet square. The city of Akshak was one of the oldest of Sumerian and Babylonian civilization, which dates back to about 4000 B. C.

Foreign-Born Voters.—

More than half of the foreign-born white population of the country will be qualified to vote in November. The Census Bureau recently announced that of the 13,366,407 counted in the 1930 census 7,627,436 aged 21 or over had become naturalized citizens, 4,217,576 men and 3,409,860 women. The proportion by countries was: Denmark, 74.9 per cent naturalized; Wales, 73.6; Norway, 70.9; Germany, 70.5; Northern Ireland, 68.1; Irish Free State, 66.1; Switzerland, 67.4; England, 67; Netherlands, 66.6; Italy, 50; Jugo-Slavia, 46.3; Greece, 44.7.

Laymen to the Mission Cause.—

The Laymen's Missionary Movement of Chicago, Ill., calls for the observance of November 13th as "Men and Missions Day," a day to be observed all around the world by dedicating services to the cause of missions, according to plans approved last January by leaders in all the co-operating denominations. On the evening of Tuesday, November 15th, interdenominational suppers for men will be served in some 1,000 communities (what, could ye not fast one hour?), when the extension of the Kingdom of God by missionary effort will be discussed. In calling attention to this movement, the Watchman-Examiner remarks: "A thrill of inspiration went all over the world last November when in 31,000 churches thousands assembled to renew their allegiance to carrying the message of Jesus to every corner of the earth."

Child Workers Decrease.—

A "striking decrease" between 1920 and 1930 in the number of children from 10 to 19 years old gainfully occupied was reported by the Census Bureau. Of the workers in 1930, 1,425,236 boys and 720,723 girls between 10 and 17 were gainfully occupied, forming 14.9 per cent and 7.7 per cent of the total, as against 22.2 per cent and 11.8 per cent respectively in 1920. The 18-year-old and 19-year-old division was slightly higher in 1930, totaling 1,590,768 boys and 942,445 girls, as compared with 1,443,968 and 802,235. No reason was assigned by the bureau for its findings, which were included in a summary of the age, number and sex of workers in at the beginning and end of the ten-year period. In 1930, of 98,723,047 persons 10 years old or over, the bureau reported 48,829,920, or 49.5 per cent, gainfully occupied as compared respectively with 82,739,315 and 41,614,248, or 50.8 per cent in 1920. Men outnumbered women workers three to one in each census. Since 1930, the depression has undoubtedly still further greatly reduced these numbers.

They Call It "Control".—

"Under the system of Government Control of Liquor in Canada, drinking among women is on the increase because of the accessibility of liquor in the home. This not only debauches womanhood, but endangers the lives and destroys the morals of the children. There is no greater danger to a nation than drinking among its women." Statement by Dr. Jennie Smillie, eminent Toronto physician and chairman of the Liquor Investigating Committee. Alberta Liquor Board: "60,000 permits issued the first year, 144,000 two years later." Montreal Star: "Drunkenness among women increased 53 per cent." British Columbia Board: "As much liquor sold by bootleggers as in government stores." Dominion Government at Ottawa: "Arrests for drunken driving increased 1,300 per cent in six years; alcoholic deaths doubled." In 1920 there were four distilleries and fifty-seven breweries; in 1931 there were twenty-seven distilleries and eighty-six breweries—all privately owned and operated. The only time Canada has had any real "control" is while the liquor is safely on the shelves in the liquor stores.—Signal Press.

Where Communists Prefer Christians.—

"One night Hugh Hubbard and I and our Chinese evangelist companion were comfortably rolled up in our blankets on the broad brick bed of the spacious guest room of a wealthy convert, who had recently loaned a whole courtyard for the use of the local church. 'This is just the sort of man,' our Chinese companion remarked, 'who, because he is a Lord of Wealth will be the special object of attack should the Communists ever get the upper hand hereabouts.' The long conversation which followed revealed how generally people all through the countryside are toying with many of the ideas of this new Russian gospel which has to be preached underground, but which nevertheless is being propagated. The chairman of our Hopei Church in Tientsin, a returned student, was one of those who volunteered for flood relief service in the Yangtze valley last spring. He was captured and carried off by the Communist bandits. Given the choice of serving them or being killed, he not unnaturally preferred the former alternative, and now, we understand, is on their Executive Council, with little chance of early release or escape. As was frankly admitted by a Communist in another connection, 'We like to get Christian recruits—their Christian training makes them all the better Communist material'."—Earle Ballou, American Board Missionary in Peiping, China, in the Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

Dr. John R. Mott on Prohibition.—

In view of the purported "interview" with Dr. John R. Mott in Scotland, widely reported in American papers, immediately following the statement regarding the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment given out by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., much importance attaches to a definite written statement, the only statement that Dr. Mott has sanctioned, which has just been released to the religious press. Not only was Dr. Mott seriously misrepresented and misquoted in the reports that came from Scotland to America, but at the time reporters interviewed him he had not seen Mr. Rockefeller's statement, and was unaware of its contents or of the fact of its renunciation of national prohibition. Dr. Mott's clear statement of his position is as follows: "I am not in favor of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, because, with all its limitations and certain disappointing circumstances in connection with its working, I believe its good results far transcend those which have been unfavorable. At the same time, I would welcome a nationwide thorough-going reconsideration of prohibition as a policy on two conditions: (1) That such reconsideration be in the form of a popular vote in the various States, and in no way related to any political campaign, and (2) That it be in the form of a clear-cut expression of choice between (a) the present plan of nation-wide prohibition, and (b) a definite or concrete alternate plan. I emphatically oppose a referendum in the form of a choice between (a) the present plan, and (b) its rejection without concrete substitute."—The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, Durham, N. C., will represent the Congregational-Christian Church at the Washington Bi-Centennial religious celebration in Fredericksburg, Va., October 16th.

To all lovers of law, order and sobriety, the versatile editor of the National Christian Advocate gives this word of hope: "The noise of the liquor crowd sounds like a dreadful roar; in reality, it is a death rattle. Liquor advocates are whistling in their own graveyard."

The announcement of the Greater Norfolk Teacher Training School, given in last week's SUN, failed to state that the school would be held this year in South Norfolk Christian Church, Rev. O. D. Poythress, pastor. The date is correct as given, October 16th to 21st.

We join the Wall Street Journal in its statement of facts and hope in these terms: "It has been said that world history can be told in a cycle of six words—Peace, Prosperity, Pride, War, Poverty, Peace. Let us hope that the 'poverty' from which the world is today suffering may be the harbinger of peace, and that in at least so much the history-cycle may run true to form."

The entire church mourns, as we go to press with this issue of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, because of the going home of Dr. W. W. Staley. It had been hoped that after his partial recovery from serious illness, that he would continue to improve and would finally be restored to his former health. It was willed otherwise by One wiser than we. While his mortal remains have been laid to rest, he will continue to live in the hearts and lives of all who knew him.

The following from Rev. C. E. Gerringer, Wakefield, Va., tells of the accidental death by drowning, of his elder brother, Sergeant James Turner Gerringer, in the Panama Canal Zone: "J. B. Gerringer (better known to many former Elon College students as 'Uncle Buck') received a telegram from Washington, D. C., announcing the death of my brother, Sergeant James Turner Gerringer, on October 1st, in the Charges River, Panama Canal Zone. He and a friend had gone for a canoe ride, and his canoe was struck at right angles by a current coming from a set of locks that were emptying, capsizing his boat." We extend our deepest sympathy.

Mt. Zion Church, of which Rev. J. F. Apple, Elon College, N. C., is the beloved pastor, finding its Sunday School room overflowing, has very wisely decided to build "a hut," on the church grounds, with four or five Sunday School rooms, thus making attractive and efficient accommodations for the growing number of pupils in this school and community. It is hoped to have the "hut" enclosed by the annual session of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference, which is to meet this year with Mt. Zion. The people of the community are taking much interest in the prospective "hut," some contributing money, logs, lumber, other materials and labor. Rev. Apple, pastor, who has received into the church membership nearly sixty members the past three years, has been called to serve the church another year.

Rev. R. T. Grissom, our pastor at Fancy Gap, Va., writes: "From Rocky Ford I am sending you our monthly mission offering, $1.00, and from Elk Spur, $1.50. We are unable to do as much as we want, but are glad to share what we have. Our services were fine yesterday. We had more than ninety at our two Sunday Schools, and a good congregation at our preaching service. These churches recently sent to the Orphanage at Elon five bushels of Irish potatoes, two bushels of apples, two bags of cabbage, and in addition, a special collection of $8.75." This is, indeed, gratifying, since it shows that our churches in Carroll County have come to be one of us and are cooperating for the good of the Kingdom, and are not any longer apart from us. They too, with us, are learning that it is "more blessed to give than to receive." No wonder the work under Mr. and Mrs. Grissom is going well and good reports are coming.

President L. E. Smith of Elon, Rev. J. L. Foster and the Mission Secretary were present Sunday night, October 9th, with our Winston-Salem rocongregation, when a formal organization of a United Congregational-Christian Church was initiated. The pastor, Rev. W. T. Scott, was in charge of the services. There were seventy-five or more interested members and friends there, a charter membership of twenty names was read with twenty others promised, and the list for charter members is to be held open until there are at least fifty. The prospects at Winston-Salem are bright and promising, indeed. During the evening Bro. W. B. Truitt, of our Greensboro Christian Church, president of the Christian Missionary Association, one of the supporting bodies of the work, gave very encouraging remarks and pledged the cooperation of the Association in the great task and challenge of our Winston-Salem Church.

Our sympathy goes out to Bro. W. G. Teague, of our Pleasant Hill Church community, near Liberty, N. C. On the morning of September 30th, Mrs. Ada Teague, the beloved wife of Bro. Teague, was run over by a team of mules in a field on the Teague farm. That which added deeper sorrow to the occasion was that the husband and son were eye witnesses to this sad accident, which they were helpless to avoid. The account of the accident in the daily press said: "Mrs. Teague was walking across the field toward the two men when the mules, hitched to a wagon on which the men were loading cane, suddenly became frightened and began to run. They crashed into the woman before either of the men could stop them." Sister Teague was a faithful member of Pleasant Hill Christian Church, from which the funeral services were held Sunday afternoon, October 2nd, conducted by the pastor, Rev. T. J. Green. Sister Teague is survived by her husband, two sons, Ernest and Junius, and a daughter, Miss Martha. We sorrow with these friends in the tragic taking away of their loved one.

DATES AND PLACES OF ANNUAL CONFERENCES.

The annual conference season is again with us. Last week the Georgia and Alabama Conference was in annual session at Richland, Ga. This week the Alabama Conference is in session at Antioch, near Roanoke. The week following, viz.: on Tuesday and Wednesday, October 18th and 19th, the Alabama Conference of Congregational and Christian Churches will be in session at Mt. Olive Church, Tallassee, and on Friday, of the same week, October 21st, the North Carolina Woman's Missionary Conference will be in session at Monticello Church, Guilford County, N. C., and the Young People's Missionary Conference of Eastern Virginia will be in session at 8:00 P. M., in the Christian Church, Suffolk.

The following week, on Friday, October 28th, the Eastern Virginia Woman's Conference will be in session at South Norfolk.

On Wednesday, November 2nd, the Eastern Virginia Conference will convene for a three-day session, November 2nd, 3rd, and 4th, at Waverly.

On Wednesday, November 9th, the Western North Carolina Conference will be in session, beginning at 10:00 A. M., at Park's Cross Roads, Randolph County, N. C.

On Tuesday, November 15th, the North Carolina and Virginia Conference will convene in annual session with Mt. Zion Church, Orange County, N. C. (near Mebane).

On Tuesday, November 22nd, at 10:00 A. M., the Eastern North Carolina Conference will convene in annual session with Liberty Church, in Vance County, N. C.

FREDERICKSBURG CELEBRATION.

At Fredericksburg, Va., fifty-five miles south of Washington and a like distance north of Richmond, there will be held on Sunday, October 16, 1932, a meeting commemorative of the religious character of George Washington, religious freedom, and separation of church and state.

The leading authorities of what might be termed the standard faiths of America have been invited to attend this celebration and have signified their approval of the celebration and their acceptance of the invitations of Governor John Garland Pollard of Virginia.

The exercises will be of a dual character. In the morning in the churches in the city of Fredericksburg there will be separate religious ceremonies conducted by the leaders of the respective denominations in churches of their own denomination, with exchanges of pulpits among those whose church law authorizes such exchanges.

Following lunch and in the afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, the principal celebration will be of a Civic nature presided over by Governor Pollard and it is to this ceremony that the Governor's invitations apply. In addition to leading men of the various faiths, the governors of the thirteen original States and commissioners of the District of Columbia and many men and women distinguished in social, religious and civic circles in America have been invited and many of them have signified their acceptance.

The address of the afternoon will be by Dr. Francis Pendleton Gaines, President of Washington and Lee University of Lexington, Va.

Washington and Lee University in Virginia was formerly Washington College and was founded by George Washington from a donation or donations made to him by the General Assembly of Virginia in recognition of his distinguished services in the American Revolution. Washington had declared to the Continental Congress that he would accept reimbursement for his personal expenses, but would not accept pay for his services. Following this declaration of his intentions he accepted the gift from the General Assembly of Virginia on condition that he dedicate it to purposes of education.

Virginia gave Washington to the nation and to the world and Fredericksburg, Va., was Washington's boyhood home town, in which town his mother lived, died and is buried. Washington was a man of many sides, not the least of which was his religious side.

This meeting will be held under the auspices of the Virginia George Washington Bicentennial Commission in conjunction with the Fredericksburg Bicentennial Commission and will be presided over by Governor John Garland Pollard of Virginia.

It seems peculiarly appropriate that such meeting should be held upon the soil of Virginia and particularly in the little city of Fredericksburg.

ROSEMONT CHURCH ELECTS OFFICERS.

The quarterly conference of Rosemont Christian Church, that marked the close of the church year, was held Friday evening, September 30th, in the Sunday School auditorium of Rosemont Christian Church. Supper was served at 7:00 P. M., by the Christian Endeavor Society and the ladies of the church, and was immediately followed by the business session, the pastor, Rev. J. F. Morgan, presiding.

Reports from all the departments and organizations of the church and Sunday School were read. These reports gave evidence that a successful year's work had been accomplished, from the standpoint of finance as well as all other lines of the church work.

Mr. O. F. Smith gave a short talk on the purpose of the church, stating that he thought it was not only the duty of the church to minister to the spiritual needs of the people, but the physical needs as well. He suggested that the church have an organized relief commission to attend to the welfare work in the community. The conference, acting upon his suggestion, voted that a committee be appointed by the pastor, to act in that capacity. Dr. L. C. Ferebee, of South Norfolk, and Capt. George B. Downing, of Portlock, also expressed opinions on this subject. Mrs. B. F. Gibson and T. M. Rust also addressed the conference.

Following this, the election of officers for the new year was held. Those elected are as follows: Treasurer, H. L. Bondurant; assistant treasurer, Miss Mattie Bondurant; secretary, Miss Mary Halstead; assistant secretary, Miss Lowrine Halstead; pianist, Miss Elizabeth Mills; assistant pianist, Mrs. J. F. Morgan; Sunday School superintendent, H. R. Morrison; choir director, H. C. Hedley; assistant choir director, Mrs. O. S. Mills; custodian, W. H. Farrow; official board, Mrs. B. F. Gibson, W. H. Farrow, T. M. Rust, W. F. Hodges, H. L. Bondurant, O. F. Smith, B. H. Gibson, J. R. Morrison, Sr., Mrs. J. A. Harrington, Mrs. O. S. Mills, H. C. Hedley, L. H. Stewart; ushers, Rev. J. N. Cutchin, J. R. Morrison, Jr., David Dennis, A. B. Hobbs, A. S. Morrison, Wm. M. Sparkman; finance committee, T. M. Rust, chairman; W. H. Farrow, H. L. Bondurant, A. S. Morrison, D. A. Dennis, L. H. Stewart.

Those appointed as delegates to Conference were: Mrs. M. S. Laubach, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Morrison.

WM. M. SPARKMAN,
Reporter.

RALLY DAY AT CHRISTIAN TEMPLE.

Rally Day was observed at the Christian Temple, Norfolk, Sunday, October 9th, with fitting services. The members of the Church School assembled in the church auditorium at 10:00 A. M., together with the usual 11:00 A. M. congregation, and the Sunday School and morning worship of the entire church was combined in an appropriate service planned by a special Rally Day committee. The service included special music by the choir, under the direction of Mrs. May H. Henley, director, and Mrs. S. H. Ferebee, organist, roll call of departments, and a challenging dramatization of Christian Education, "The Unlighted Cross."

The theme of the dramatization was, "If, therefore, the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness." The characters were well portrayed by young people of the School chosen for the parts.

Mr. Mallory, "Pillar of the Church," discovers that there is more to witnessing for Christ than merely to attend all the services of the church, give to the church liberally, and have his church equipped with comfortable pews and expensively decorated. "A church that is not meeting the inescapable challenge of the growing youth of its community is shedding about as much light as a burnt-out candle." And, "will the men and women of tomorrow have a clearer vision and a nobler character because we have taught them the living principles of a Christ-centered life?" Mr. Mallory has been blind to the mission of the church.

He finds that he has thought only of new pews and stained glass windows, when all around the church children had been growing up to manhood without once beholding the presence of the Master in their midst. The power of Christ has been there, but they hadn't been working together, letting themselves be used. He pledges himself, at the close of the drama to lift the cross, with all its light and power, and let it shine in the community, so that "the light of the life of Christ shall come."

GEORGIA JOINT CONFERENCE.

The Georgia Joint Conference of the Congregational and Christian Churches will be held at Duncan's Creek Church, six miles from Buford, November 1st and 2nd. Pastors and church clerks have already been advised that entertainment will be furnished free to delegates and pastors. But this you must do: Send in your names to Rev. W. Carl Parker, 719 McMillan St., N. W., Atlanta, Ga., just as soon as possible. Programs will be sent out about October 15th.

As advance announcement, the program will open at 10:00 A. M. (E. S. T., upon which the entire conference will be conducted), Dr. W. T. McElveen, as moderator, will open the first session with greetings; Mr. Parker, pastor, will offer words of welcome and the keynote of the conference will be given by Rev. H. B. Mowbray, pastor at Demorest.

The women's work will be given full sway following the lunch hour. Superintendent Chas. D. Johnston will speak on our Orphanage. The registrar will give his annual report.

Tuesday evening a group of Piedmont College students, with certain faculty members, will have charge of the program.

Wednesday morning the young people will have its day, under the leadership of Miss Annie Campbell, extension worker. There will also be separate meetings of the three Georgia Associations. But very important will be the consideration of the forming of a Georgia Conference of Congregational and Christian Churches. This will have been acted upon by the Christian Conference meeting in Richland, Ga., October 4th and 5th.

Wednesday afternoon there will be words of greeting from Piedmont and Southern Union Colleges, discussions on evangelism, reports of committees on education, licensure, and an address by the retiring moderator. Wednesday evening will close the conference. Rev. J. H. Dollar will preach the sermon, followed by the communion service. During the days of the conference he will prepare a choir, with the aid of the Duncan's Creek choir and others present from many churches, for special music. This service will be the climax of the whole conference.

Everyone is urged to come prepared to remain to the great closing service. Let it be most surely remembered that the Christian Church delegates are expected to come in full numbers. Let these pastors take notice and bring them in.

Be always displeased at what thou art, if thou desirest to attain to what thou art not; for where thou hast pleased thyself, there thou abidest.—Quarles.

EASTERN VIRGINIA CONFERENCE.

The Eastern Virginia Christian Conference will meet with the Waverly Christian Church, Waverly, Va., on Wednesday, November 2nd, at 10:00 A. M., and continue in session three days.

Churches in a position to entertain the conference in 1933 are requested to consider the matter prior to this session and place their invitations in the hands of Mrs. J. A. Williams, Frankling, Va.

N. G. NEWMAN, Pres.

NOTICE.

The Young People of the Eastern Virginia Conference will hold their annual meeting in the Suffolk Christian Church, Friday, October 21st, at 8:00 o'clock, P. M. Mrs. Marian L. Parsons, of Washington, D. C., will be the speaker. The pastor of each church in the conference is invited, and each Society is urged to have a large representation present.

MRS. E. L. BEALE,
Supt. of Young People.

Franklin, Va.

NOTICE.

The Executive Committee of the Western North Carolina Conference has changed the date of meeting of that conference from the first Thursday in November to Wednesday after the first Sunday. It was the intention of our conference to meet on Thursday after the first Sunday, but either the man who made the motion for adjournment or the secretary got matters tangled. So the conference will hold its sessions on the 9th and 10th of November.

E. CARL BRADY, Chairman.

METHODS CORNER

By REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.
Miami Beach, Fla.

Something new has actually come to pass. The Congregational Publishing Society (The Pilgrim Press, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass., and 418 S. Market Street, Chicago) has a new Bible published for its own use by the Thomas Nelson and Sons of New York. It is the American Standard Revision (1901) with an introduction by the Dean of Yale Divinity School and with a new set of helps by Sidney A. Western, Ph. D. The Bible is illustrated profusely with some of the most beautiful pictures in colors that we have ever seen. It has a special presentation certificate page, also in colors. By all odds it is the most attractive Bible we have seen in a long time.

The book is printed in boldface type and is self-pronouncing. The pages are so clear and attractive that anyone who likes books and delightful type will rejoice in it and desire to read it. It is substantially bound in divinity circuit but can be had in a plain cover at a slightly less price.

These Bibles are made to give away. It is the custom of many churches and Sunday Schools to give Bibles to students on Rally or Promotion Day. For nearly ten years our church has presented a Bible to each pupil promoted from the Primary Department into the Junior Department. The pastor of the church always presents the Bibles with an appropriate exercise. Many hundreds of Bibles have thus been distributed through our Sunday School. There is no greater service that the church can render to its children than provide them with a beautiful and useful copy of the Sacred Book on which all our Christian work is based.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. W. STALEY C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

W. C. WICKER

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

A PRINCE HAS FALLEN.

The sad news reached us at Elon late Sunday evening that our own beloved Dr. W. W. Staley had passed away at the Virginia Beach cottage where he was staying temporarily for health and hope of recovery. Every reader of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and thousands of friends, will learn with sorrow of the passing of this great and good man. More in detail about this beloved man will appear in THE SUN next week. No man in our Southern Christian Convention had wrought so faithfully and accomplished so much for his church, all of its enterprises and institutions, and for his day and generation, as had Dr. W. W. Staley. His name was a household word throughout our brotherhood, and none heard that name but to respect and honor it. Arrangements were being made to celebrate the 50th anniversary of his services as pastor of the Suffolk Christian Church on October 16th. Had he lived one week longer, he would have rounded out fifty years of faithful service as pastor and pastor-emeritus of this great congregation.

No contributions to THE CHRISTIAN SUN were so much enjoyed and so universally read as the "Suffolk Letter," over the name of "W. W. Staley." He loved his church paper, and again and again plead for its wide reading and more liberal support by the constituency of the church.

In the passing of Dr. Staley, Elon College has lost the best friend it had in this generation. He served as president, and without one penny of compensation, for eleven years. He served on its Board of Trustees from the day of the beginning of the institution until the time of his death. Time and time again he took money from his own pocket to save the institution from some impending crisis. No man in our day has been such a benefactor to Elon College as was Dr. W. W. Staley. He loved every enterprise and interest of the church and was liberal to all, both in his personal appeals and for the support of the enterprises of the church, backing up the same ever and always with his own contribution out of his savings. He was one of the most liberal men to his church and its enterprises that we ever knew.

Recognition services were held at the college, Monday, October 10th, and all college recitations and activities were suspended from 2:00 o'clock on the afternoon of October 11th, while the services were being conducted at Suffolk, Va., the hearts of faculty and students bowing in reverence and solemnity to this great and honored man.

It is needless to say that the editor of THE CHRISTIAN SUN has lost one of his best friends, and a man whom he esteemed and loved even as a father. In all our writings and public addresses and private conversations, we have never quoted any man as often as we did the sayings, statements and the philosophy of Dr. Staley. Somehow, what he said and what he did impressed the editor of THE SUN in a way and manner that was permanent. The whole church will miss the wise counsel, the sustaining support, the noble example, the inspiring presence of this Prince in Israel—this man of God. J. O. A.

"THE ESSENCE OF DISCIPLESHIP."

Dr. W. W. Staley once remarked, or wrote, that "A preacher's ability to win souls to Christ is one proof of that minister's call to the ministry." This is in any event a sine qua non of the successful preacher and pastor. It may be only one element, one feature, one event in the pastor's multitude of duties, but that one event is essential. In fact, as one has written, and as the church has often proven, to secure decisions for Christ is of the essence of discipleship. If we are Christ's disciples, we naturally desire to share that discipleship with others. This is the object and essence of church life, aim and activity. The church gathers in its fold and unites in one body the disciples of Christ, the followers, the learners of the Lord, and then, through worship, teaching and preaching, instructs and inspires those disciples to go out and win others to the church and to the Lord.

It would be difficult to express the aim of the church more emphatically and succinctly than in the following:

1st. The essential goal and aim of the church is to lead men and women to accept Jesus Christ as Lord and pledge allegiance to Him in this life and the life to come. That, though first in the aims of the church, is essential and must never be lost sight of. "He that winneth souls is wise."

2nd. To increase the membership of the church. "And the Lord added to them"—the church—"daily such as should be"—were being saved.

3rd. To share in the work of the church at home and abroad. "Ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you; and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth." (Acts 1:8.)

4th. The proper religious training of children. "Train up the child in the way he should go, and when he is old, he will not depart from it." (Prov. 22:6.)

5th. To create interest in the well-being of neighbors. "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." (Leviticus 19:18.)

While these do not include all the essential elements of church life, and goals toward which a church may strive, they are among those aspirations of the church which have made the church invincible, and against which all the organized and unorganized forces of evil cannot prevail. J. O. A.

A SCRIPTURE FULFILLED.

An event recently transpired in far-away India, the significance of which we of the West cannot comprehend. Mahatma Gandhi entered protest against certain rulings and attitudes of the English government toward India. The Mahatma declared he would fast, even to starvation, until the British Empire yielded to certain demands of millions of people in India. This fast had continued nearly seven days when the irreconcilables of India became alarmed. After a prolonged council of the conflicting factions, an agreement was reached, which agreement, approved by Gandhi, was cabled to London where there was just as much anxiety about Gandhi and his conduct as there had been in India. After a conference, lasting all night, of the officials in London, and as dawn began to come, the British government was wiring its acceptance back to India. The Mahatma, through fasting, had won out, bringing together the mighty opposing elements in his own country, and bringing the great British Empire to acceptance of his desire. It is declared that this fight in behalf of the untouchables is "the biggest event in India in thirty years." In this we have almost an exact parallel with the event and victory in the life of David, the Psalmist (Psalm 35:13): "But as for me, when they were sick, my clothing was sackcloth: I humbled my soul with fasting."

Not a few students of the Orient have declared that the people of the Far East will yet teach us of the West the real meaning of much of our Scripture, and will further reveal many vital facts in the life of our Lord which we occidentals have not yet been able to comprehend. It was our Lord himself who declared (Matt. 17:21), "This kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting." By peaceful methods, refusal to acquiesce in unmistakable wrongs to his people, the Mahatma has won a victory for India, which victory, had war and the sword been resorted to, would have cost billions of money and possibly millions of lives.

While all this stirs the imagination, one is to recall that Gandhi embodies in himself the aspirations and the attitude of millions in India, and the British government well knew that while Gandhi was suffering through fasting, millions of her subjects were also suffering, and this suffering even the British Empire could not ignore. But where else in all the world, since David, has one man by fasting, brought the millions of two empires to his way of thinking, and forced them to act even against their wish? J. O. A.

MINISTERS' SALARIES.

Some laymen are greatly disturbed about the small salaries that most ministers receive. "What is the matter with the Christian religion?" asked a layman recently. This question came after he had learned of a "shower" that was given to a certain minister whose finances are very low. His idea was that the church should give him an adequate living salary, and let him buy his own food. "Why are ministers willing to work for so little?" he asked. Another business man, a banker and a trustee of the church, once said: "I think all ministers are queer. There is a man who is smart, and could earn a large salary in business, but see what he does and what he gets. I cannot understand him." Another minister was secretly discussed by his board in this way. "He seems to be a smart man, but why did he come to us for so small a salary? Surely there must be something queer about it." Those men finally increased his salary. But there are scores of boards that reduce salaries much more easily. It is a ticklish question, but it is one the church cannot dodge. We knew a splendid man, young and able, who got three hundred dollars a year, a small house and an acre of ground. Perhaps that would look mighty fine to the minister in New York State who got two hundred dollars last year. He does have a little garden. Another man on the Pacific Coast we once knew, lived on wedding fees and revenue from the milk of a Jersey cow! Is that the way to compensate ministers of the Gospel? The scripture says that the workman is worthy of his hire. Once in a while a worldly-minded cynic says that all ministers are parasites. By the way, ministers have quite a difficult time of it.

But the question persists. Why are ministers willing to work for so little? We answered our inquirer this way: Men who feel the call of God to preach the Gospel are willing to go anywhere and sacrifice anything, everything, for the cause they love and take anything that the people are willing to give. In olden times when money was not plentiful, people paid their preachers in produce. The custom has prevailed in many places. Small churches sometimes have taken advantage of the willingness of the preacher to take what he could get. A sort of custom has grown out of it, and salaries have been dreadfully small. A living wage was not always the standard, but the leading denominations are trying to get all the churches to provide a living wage. Sometimes the Home Missionary Society helps. That is a wonderful source of courage, because the minister can depend upon his check from that source, even though the local remuneration is delayed. And now there is the Annuity Fund. At the National Council at Seattle ministers said they could not afford to even join that! However, the Annuity Fund is the economic salvation of the minister after he is 65 years old.

It is to be hoped that all our churches will seriously consider the salary question and see to it that the ministers of the Gospel are adequately paid. It makes them more independent, gives them better standing in the community and they feel so much more like doing their work.

E. A. K.

PERSISTENT PRAYER FOR REVIVAL.

(Editor's Note.—There is repeated evidence that we are on the eve of another great spiritual awakening. The hope may be father to the thought. Again and again, however, this thought is being voiced in many quarters, and this hope is not without foundation. Last week The Southern Churchman (Episcopal) carried a full page, prepared by George T. B. Davis, setting forth a plan of systematic prayer for another spiritual awakening. We wish that CHRISTIAN SUN readers everywhere may share the knowledge of this plan with the readers of The Churchman, which gives these heartening and hopeful facts.—J. O. A.):

A new plan has just been started for increasing daily persistent prayer for another great spiritual awakening in the United States and Canada. The object of the new movement is to link together hundreds and thousands of God's children to spend at least fifteen minutes daily in definite prayer for revival.

It is suggested that special intercession be made for those in authority in both lands; for our schools and colleges; for pastors and churches; for unsaved relatives and friends; and that there may be full surrender and revival in our own hearts and lives.

The plan of taking time for earnest intercession is by no means new. After the remarkable outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon the Moravians at Herrnhut, Germany, in 1727, they began to spend an hour daily in intercession. Relays were arranged so that some one was praying during each of the twenty-four hours of the day. That was the beginning of a prayer meeting that lasted day and night for one hundred years and is without a parallel in the history of the Christian church.

The results were amazing. They were almost unbelievably great. A passion for spreading the gospel to the ends of the earth came upon the people. In twenty-five years one hundred missionaries went out from that community. The Moravian Church became the pioneer missionary body. The daily persistent intercessory prayer was the dynamic of the remarkable work that was wrought in lands far and wide throughout the world.

Recently in Latin America several hundred people have banded themselves together to spend fifteen minutes daily in prayer, and glorious results are being brought to pass. A missionary from San Jose, Costa Rica, says the plan has not only brought outward blessings, but it has "revolutionized the spiritual life of those who have been true to their pledge, and have prayed faithfully day by day. Their faces shine with His peace, and their testimony rings with His joy."

A book just off the press is being given free of cost to those who enroll in the plan of praying for revival. The book is written by Rev. John Shearer of Scotland, and is entitled "Old-Time Revivals." It is quite different from other books on revival. The volume pulsates with the joy and gladness of the great spiritual awakenings of days gone by. It thrills the soul. It helps one to pray with greater faith and fervor for another outpouring of God's Spirit.

If you would like to enlist in this method of praying through for revival, send your name and address to The Million Testament Campaigns for Students, 1505 Race Street, Philadelphia, and a copy of "Old-Time Revivals" will be forwarded to you without charge.

If thousands of God's children will speedily covenant together to take time for prayer, and will humble themselves and cry mightily to God for our lands, for our schools and colleges, our pastors and churches, and unsaved relatives and friends, and for revival in our own hearts and lives—who can tell what mighty things may quickly come to pass! Surely the windows of heaven will be opened and once more we will see showers of blessing falling upon our lands.

It may be that we are on the eve of the greatest spiritual awakening the world has ever seen. Let us pray especially that great conviction of sin may come upon all classes of people, and that speedily we may see multitudes repenting, and forsaking sin, and turning to God.

Special Combination Subscription Offer!

A special arrangement has been made whereby those who desire to do so may receive both THE CHRISTIAN SUN and The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for just a little more than they now pay for one of these papers.

Beginning immediately, we will accept subscriptions for the two papers at the price of $3.75 for the combined subscription. This means to SUN readers that for only $1.75 additional they may receive the great wealth of knowledge that The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty brings weekly. Those who are already subscribers for the latter paper may add THE SUN to their list for only 75 cents for the whole year.

You do not have to wait until your subscription to one or the other paper has expired, but send in your subscription now. You will begin immediately to receive the other paper and that which you are already receiving will be marked up a year in advance.

While this offer is open to everyone, it should appeal especially to the pastors and lay workers in the Southeast Convention, and we beg them to take advantage of this opportunity.

It is, of course, understood that under this special offer all subscriptions must be in advance, and must be sent directly to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 E. Broad Street, Richmond, Va., or to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

SUBSCRIPTION BLANK.

DEAR SIR:

Please (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my present subscription one year) to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and (enter my name as a new subscriber) (advance my subscription one year) to The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

(Please mark out the words not applicable.)

I enclose, herewith, check or money order for $3.75 to cover same.

M
Street No. or R. F. D.....
City and State.....

LAST TRIBUTE OF RESPECT IS PAID DR. STALEY.

All Suffolk and the entire surrounding country paused to pay the last tributes of love and respect to Suffolk's first citizen, the Rev. Wm. W. Staley, whose funeral service on Tuesday, October 11th, at 2:00 o'clock, at the Christian Church, which he had served for the past half century, was attended by thousands. Long before the hour of the service, the sidewalks were lined with people wending their way to the church and cars were parked on every street adjacent to the church.

Scores from Richmond, Franklin, Petersburg, and the nearby counties of Virginia, Elon College, Burlington, Greensboro, Durham and Raleigh, N. C., Dayton, O., Washington, D. C., and other cities, were present, as well as hundreds of people from adjacent territory.

During afternoon of Monday and Tuesday morning, while the body lay in state in the church, it is estimated that over three thousand persons filed past the casket for a last look at his beloved face.

The funeral services in charge of the pastor and Dr. Staley's co-worker, Rev. H. S. Hardcastle, were as follows: Organ prelude as the funeral procession entered; hymn, "How Firm a Foundation," by the choir; scripture reading, Rev. H. S. Hardcastle; reading of the 23rd Psalm by Dr. J. O. Atkinson; hymn, "Faith of Our Fathers;" scripture reading from I. Corinthians, Dr. C. H. Rowland, of Greensboro; prayer, by Rev. I. W. Johnson, secretary of the Southern Christian Convention; short eulogies by Rev. Dr. H. J. Goodwin, pastor, First Baptist Church, representing the local ministerial union; Dr. Leon Edgar Smith, representing Elon College, and Hermon Eldredge, speaking for the General Council of Congregational-Christian Churches; prayer by Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, of Durham, N. C., president of the Southern Christian Convention. After the closing hymn, "Abide With Me," the body was taken from the church to Cedar Hill Cemetery for burial.

Hundreds of beautiful floral offerings, from the magnificent designs of organizations and churches, to the bouquet of wild flowers from a humble friend whom he had helped, were massed about the altar and entire front of the church auditorium.

Among the clergy present to do him honor were the pastors of all the Protestant Churches of Suffolk and the county, Rev. Father Philip Blackburn, rector of St. Mary's Catholic Church, and S. Levy, president of Aguddath Synagogue. Negro churches were also represented. Pastors of his own denomination attended in a body.

Active pall-bearers were: Henry Crocker, Jr., Wellons Caulk, Jack W. Nurney, Otis S. Smith, Dr. D. L. Rawles, Marshall Andrews, H. W. Phillips, of Suffolk, and J. T. Kernodle, of Richmond, Va.

Members of the board of deacons, the board of trustees and the superintendent of the Sunday School were the honorary escort.

The business of the whole city was suspended during the hours of the funeral. Every store was closed. This act was a spontaneous gesture on the part of these merchants in respect to the deceased.

DAISY NURNEY.

DR. WILLIAM WESLEY STALEY.

On the afternoon of Sunday, October 9th, at 5:45 o'clock, Dr. William Wesley Staley answered the final call of Him whose faithful servant he had been, and left a host of friends and loved ones here to join those who had gone before.

Dr. Staley deserved the love bestowed upon him by his local church, his city, his State, his entire church body, and the numerous organizations of which he was a member. Nothing greater can be said of him than that he was "an humble servant of an ever humble Master, and a friend of man." Neither race, color, or creed mattered when the Master's call to service came. White and black, Christian and Jew, Protestant and Catholic—to all he was well beloved. Lacking only four weeks of rounding out a half century of service with the Suffolk Christian Church, he was known to thousands in that section as the "Bishop of Suffolk." During that long and useful period of service he knew no denominational lines, but visited the sick, helped the needy, and comforted the distressed of all who needed his help.

Dr. Staley was born in Alamance County, N. C., in the year 1849, his parents being John T. and Melissa Day Staley. He professed religion and joined the church at the age of thirteen years. He was left an orphan early in life and helped to support his mother and, later, helped to bring up his half-brothers and sisters. He carried the mail for the Confederate Government when only fifteen years old.

DR. WILLIAM WESLEY STALEY.

He was prepared for college at Graham High School, under the direction of Drs. W. S. and D. A. Long, and graduated from Trinity College, now Duke University, in 1874. He took post graduate work at the University of Virginia in 1877 and 1878. Soon after his graduation, Dr. Staley became a professor in the Graham High School. He was licensed to preach by the North Carolina and Virginia Conference, at Shallow Well, in 1872, and was ordained on November 17, 1874, at the conference held at Hank's Chapel.

Coming to Suffolk in 1882, he served the church there as active pastor for forty-one years, and as pastor-emeritus until his death. During his ministry, the church has grown from 140 members to 1,328 at the last conference. The small church edifice was replaced by one of the largest and best-equipped church plants in the entire South.

He served eight terms as president of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference, and for more than thirty years as president of the Southern Christian Convention. He was elected non-resident president of Elon College in 1894 and served until 1905. He was a member of its Board of Trustees from its founding until his death.

The Christian Church was the first denomination whose Northern and Southern bodies united after the War between the States, and Dr.

Staley was largely instrumental in bringing this about. He also took an active part in the recent Congregational-Christian merger.

He was a member of the Federal Council of Churches and of the National Anti-Saloon League and a civic as well as a religious leader.

He was married on April 30, 1879, to Martha F. Pearce, who preceded him a number of years ago. Surviving him are three daughters: Mrs. Bessie Staley Cheatham, of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Willie Staley Holden, of Louisburg, N. C., and Mrs. Annie Staley Calhoun, of Suffolk, Va.; and several grand-children.

One who has passed from labor in a finite world to a greater labor in the land beyond the blue—he will yet linger in the hearts and minds of all who knew him—for to know him was to love.

J. T. K.

AN EDITORIAL.

Had Dr. William W. Staley lived until December he would have rounded out half a century of life in the city of Suffolk—all of it spent in the ministry of the Christian denomination, but all of it equally spent in the larger ministry of healing and bettering human relationships. A non-sectarian, city-wide celebration was being planned in honor of this significant fiftieth anniversary of one man's service to his community, but death forestalled it. What was to have been an occasion of congratulation and thanksgiving has become a sorrowful commemoration. At the ripe age of 82, Dr. Staley has passed from the scene of his labors. One does not lament the passing of one who has been spared to complete a high earthly mission with the same feeling of irreparable loss that one laments the death of one who is cut off in his prime, but Suffolk and this whole eastern section of Virginia and North Carolina recognize in Dr. Staley's death the loss from its religious and communal life of a rare spirit—one who even in the late evening of his career preserved the power to appease, conciliate and bring into accord the dissidences and antagonisms that in modern as in ancient times continue to call for the services of the peace-maker.

Tributes will be paid in due time to Dr. Staley's fruitful service to his own particular branch of organized Christianity. They will take note of his leadership many years ago in reconciling and bringing together a great communion divided by the antagonisms of the Civil War, and of his constructive congregational labors in the city of Suffolk. But labors narrowly confined within credal boundaries, however crowned with success, seldom lay up for one the treasure of public esteem in the larger communion that knows neither creed nor race—the communion of common human brotherhood. It is an important part of the tribute that must be paid this departed minister of God that he was in a true sense a high priest in the Temple of Man. He saw the competitions, jealousies and asperities of his day and time as an understanding philosopher sees them, and applied himself to showing up their narrowness and needlessness. All creeds and all races locked upon him as their friend and to all he gave of his ripe wisdom and abundant charity.

"The Bishop of Suffolk," his townsmen called him affectionately. There was in that title no flippancy, but a community's recognition of his eminence in that church universal that embraces all men and women of good intent, and all, regardless of color, creed or lack of creed, who hold that on love of God (some prefer to call it Justice) and neighborliness hang all the law and the prophets. The people of Suffolk will long hold him in grateful memory, as well as many thousands of others in the two States between which he divided his labors.—Editorial in the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

CONTRIBUTIONS

THE CHURCHES' RESPONSIBILITY FOR ELON COLLEGE.

More than forty years ago, a number of the interested leaders of our church launched a movement for the founding of an institution of higher learning for the Christian Church. The experience of these years has proven the wisdom of the ambitions of these early Christian leaders. By offering to the sons and daughters of the homes of our church opportunities for training, under the guidance of the church, itself, has proven a great asset to our denomination in the South.

The graduates of Elon College have gone out into all the walks of life, and are located in different sections of the country. The article in last week's SUN, by Rev. John G. Truitt, himself an illustrious son of Elon, calling attention to the practical and most effective way in which Elon College has projected herself into the religious, educational and social life of the country, was most interesting and exceedingly inspiring. I am sure that conditions in the great State of Ohio may be duplicated in many other States in the Union.

In addition to those who are graduates, there are hundreds and hundreds of young men and women whose lives have been touched by Elon, who have been assisted to greater successes because of the limited time they spent as members of the student body. When we think of the educational and spiritual value of the college, and of the splendid type of work she is doing now, our hearts are thrilled and we rejoice that we are a part of the organization that created and has fostered such an institution through the years. It is also tremendously inspiring to realize that at this particular time, we have become a part of the great Congregational Church. The Congregational Church has pioneered in religious education and in college building. They have always been interested in educational and cultural endeavors. As we have become a part of them, they have become a part of us and together we face this task of advancement for the Kingdom through the church.

We have discovered, however, that it takes something more than vision, hopes, determination or expectation to build and maintain a college. It takes something concrete—it takes money—just plain money—hard cash. We have to have money to buy coal, to keep the buildings in repair, to provide books and magazines for the library, to pay teachers, servants and helpers. It is impossible to maintain a college today without money.

There are four principal sources from which a church school receives its support today. The first, of course, is from the student body in the form of fees, tuition, room rent, board, books, etc. This, by no means, provides an adequate amount to pay the expenses of the college. It helps, tremendously, but is not sufficient.

Second, endowments. Every college that proposes to stay in business, provide proper facilities, secure a faculty and see that the institution is conducted on a high plane of service, must provide for itself considerable endowment. Elon has quite a bit of endowment, part of which is earning now, but we are finding it impossible to realize an income from a goodly amount of our investments. We need additional endowments. Friends might bear this in mind when they plan to dispose of their wealth.

Third, the Convention. The Southern Christian Convention has undertaken, through the years, to collect from the churches through the conferences of the Convention, a modest sum, a part of which has always gone for the partial support of Elon College. Will the readers of this article please take this as a suggestion and see that your individual church sends up to the conference the amount asked for by the conference? If all the churches in the Convention would raise their apportionments in full, that, within itself, would be a tremendous help to Elon College, and would help make it possible for us to balance our budget. We are depending on the churches since the college has been created for the church.

Fourth, individual gifts. Every worth while institution has among its alumni and friends certain individuals who are interested sufficiently to divide their living that the institution may continue its service. Elon is no exception. She has had a number of friends in the past who have given, and given largely, and we appreciate these facts. Elon is, perhaps, in greater need of individual contributions today than ever before. Her friends may not be able to give quite so largely, but still they are able to give something. I am appealing to these generous friends for a contribution. We need additional funds this month for our payroll. I feel that if I had the privilege of sitting down and talking with these friends of the college that they would be glad, out of what they have, to give what they can reasonably spare, but, of course, with the many responsibilities that are on me now, I cannot approach any large number of individuals personally.

In a short while, we will make a faithful and systematic effort to reach every alumnus and friend of the college with an appeal to join the Dollar-a-Month Club. Will you please bear this fact in mind, and be ready to respond when you are approached, and use your influence in getting others to respond?

We are getting along finely at the college in every particular except finances, and if every member of the church will do a bit this need will be met adequately. We are depending on you.

L. E. SMITH.

THE ORIGIN OF A POPULAR HYMN.

John Fawcett, the author of the popular hymn, "Blest Be the Tie that Binds," and several other hymns that have found a place in our church hymnals, was a Baptist preacher in England. He was born at Lidget Green, in Yorkshire, in 1739. He was converted under the preaching of Whitefield and united with the Methodists, but after a few years joined the Baptist Church. He died in his seventy-eighth year, having spent nearly sixty years in the ministry. He wrote a number of books on religious subjects, and was the author of more than one hundred hymns. Besides the popular hymn mentioned above, the following are found in many hymnals: "Lord, Dismiss Us with Thy Blessing," "How Precious is the Book Divine," "Praise be to Thee, Thou Great Creator," "Thy Way, O Lord, is in the Sea," "Religion is the Chief Concern," "Sinners, Turn, Why Will Ye Die?"

His popular hymn, "Blest Be the Tie that Binds," has an interesting origin. In his early life Dr. Fawcett became pastor of a humble Baptist Church at Wainsgate, in Yorkshire, and after a few years received a call to London to succeed the Rev. Dr. Gill. His farewell sermon had been preached and his furniture placed in wagons, when "men, women and children clung around him in perfect agony of soul." This was more than the man of God could stand. "Finally, overwhelmed with the sorrow of those they were leaving, Dr. Fawcett and his wife sat down on one of the packing-cases, and wept bitterly. Looking up, Mrs. Fawcett said, "Oh, John, John, I cannot bear this! I know not how to go!" "Nor I either," said the good man; "nor will we go. Unpack the wagons, and put everything in the place where it was before." This determination was hailed with tears of joy by those around, and a letter was at once sent to London explaining the case. Dr. Fawcett then resolutely returned to his work on a salary of something less than two hundred dollars a year, and this hymn is said to have been written to commemorate the event.

The Methodist Hymnal Annotated, says: "This hymn is sung the world over, and is one of the most universally popular lyrics of Christian love ever written. It not only gives beautiful poetic expression to the growing spirit of Christian fraternity that now everywhere prevails, but the singing of it at all the great gatherings of Christian workers both in the home and foreign fields has done much to bring about this very fraternity and Christian fellowship.

"How beautiful and well worthy of being here quoted," adds the same writer, "are the following lines by Frederick L. Knowles:

"When I have won the Golden Door,
Who will open to me?"

"They who have had on this little earth
Alms or a smile from thee.

"When I have won the Golden Door,
What will the password be?"

"Love is the password, love is the toll,
Love is the golden key."

H. H. SMITH.

Ashland, Va.

A MOUNTAIN GIRL.

Once more a mountain girl has gone out from these rugged blue peaks that have always been home to her. Miss Connie Lyon, from our Rocky Ford Church, has gone to Brice's Creek to take up high school work.

Connie is a sweet girl who, we feel sure, will make good when she has the opportunity of living in the Christian atmosphere of this school where she has now gone. She is interested in religious work and wants to be able to do something worth while some day.

I want to ask that the people of our church look Connie up and stop to see her when passing her school. Christian mothers, she needs you. She lost her mother when real young, and she needs your love and prayers.

She is a long way from her native hills and all who know her. Please, Christian friends, won't you hold her hand through the dark places on the rugged path that lies before this little mountain girl?

And friends, this girl goes out from here, as once I went out, believing that about all things cut in that great world beyond these blue hills are good and beautiful. How I hope that years from now she can still believe a good part of that. You who profess to be Christians may hold in your hands the power to make or break this mountain girl. I am thankful that I know many who are true Christians to whom I can tell this girl to go and find a friend indeed. I still remember the mothers and fathers who were mothers and fathers to me while I went to school out of the hills. I do not think of Connie as being a lonely girl among strangers, but as being in a Christian world among friends.

VICTORIA OF THE HILLS.

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

PRAYER.

Great and glorious God, author of the spiritual Kingdom, and of the outward physical church which was given to be the agency through which man might work to bring thy Kingdom into power, make thy servants valiant both in purpose and in application to the task. Thy Kingdom is sure, and the church is sure because Jesus gave himself to be its foundation. We thank thee for the joy of Jesus' comradeship and for the blessedness of toil even as he toiled. All glory be thine.

L.

RELIGION AND MISSIONS.

By HUGH VERNON WHITE.

Christianity is a missionary religion. It is a religion which, because of its essential nature, impels those who have truly appropriated it to impart it to others, so far as opportunity affords. "Christian missions," are the product of this necessity and not merely the obsession of a certain type of Christian or the propaganda of missionary societies. There are other religions which are missionary by nature and there are also religions that are non-missionary. Chief among the first class, apart from Christianity, are Mohammedanism and Buddhism.

The non-missionary religions are those exclusively identified with a certain race, or state, or culture. These are the ethnic religions, Judaism, Hinduism and Shintoism. It is possible for one of another race to become a proselyte to such a religion, just as one may change his citizenship from one country to another by a process of naturalization. But in the main the religious boundaries are co-terminous with those of race. The term "Jew" has at once a racial and a religious connotation, as does also "Hindus." The best example of a state religion today is the Shintoism of Japan, which is not only localized geographically to Japan, but which has its essence in the forms of national life and culture and culminates in worship of the emperor. No one can be a Shintoist without being Japanese in culture and citizenship.

Why State and Ethnic Religions are Not Necessary.

The mere definition of state and ethnic religions shows why they are not missionary. For a strictly state religion to extend itself would mean the conquest or annexation of populations by the state itself. An ethnic religion may influence people of other races but if it flourishes beyond racial limits it must make radical changes and in effect cease to be strictly an ethnic faith. Thus Hinduism goes abroad in the form of theosophy but theosophy is by no means the Hinduism of a native of India.

These distinctions make clear why Christianity is a missionary religion. It is not limited to any race, and while many countries have made some form of Christianity the state religion, it has always extended far beyond any particular nation and has even been a restless partner to the state in countries where it has been the established faith. The struggles of church and state which have characterized so much of the history of Europe and which are by no means entirely over, and the desire to escape similar struggles, lie back of the separation of state and church in this country. The racial issue was sharply faced in the first Christian century when Christianity decisively rejected the limits of Judaism and went forth to the Gentiles, that is, to the world.

Why Must Christianity be Missionary?

But why cannot Christianity be the religion just of a state or of a race? Why must it be missionary? The answer is to be found in its belief in God as one and as incarnate in man. One may hold to a philosophical concept of the oneness of God and acquiesce in a religion that is national and in limited relations with his fellow-men. But if one's faith in a God who enters into and lives in humanity and seeks to exercise actual inward control over men, his religion compels him to break down all barriers and share the life of the race. Any intentional exclusion of any part of mankind is a repudiation of such a God.

All forms of the missionary outreach of Christianity are expressions of this active character. We should not overlook the crucial point, that it is the impulse to serve in the name of God and not to rule in his name that is the essence of the truly Christian missionary spirit. Christianity is made for man, and not man for Christianity. This has not always been clearly seen and felt and acted upon. Today it is becoming the conscious principle of Christian missions and is working some radical changes in method and attitude. —The Missionary Herald.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS.

WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 8, 1932.

Sunday Schools.

Previously acknowledged	$	237.82
Bethel, Union Ridge, N. C.		2.61
Dry Run, Seven Fountains, Va.		2.00
Newport News, Va.		10.00
Hank's Chapel, Pittsboro, N. C.		3.22
C. E. Society, Wakefield Christian Church		1.38
Holy Neck, Holland, Va.		6.95
Rocky Ford, Fancy Gap, Va.		1.00
Elk Spur, Fancy Gap, Va.		1.50
Liberty (Vance), Henderson, N. C.		3.00
Smithwood, Liberty, N. C.		.89
Newport, Stanley, Va.		1.21
Lanett, Ala.		2.65
Shiloh, Kemp's Mill, N. C.		1.06
Winchester, Va.		4.55
Linville, Va.		6.01
Youngsville, N. C.		2.00
First Christian, Greensboro, N. C.		14.83
Berea (Norfolk), Berkley, Va.		12.90
Fuller's Chapel, Henderson, N. C.		3.91

Total $ 319.53

Specials.

Previously acknowledged	$	80.73
Woman's Missionary Society, Enigma, Va.		4.00

Total $ 84.73

Coin Card Offering.

Previously acknowledged	$	81.45
Senior Girls' Class, Elon College Sunday School, Elon College, N. C.		1.00

Total $ 82.45

Summary.

Previously acknowledged	$	516.54
Sunday Schools, Regular		81.68
Coin Card Offering		1.00
Coin Card Offering		1.00

Total to date $ 603.23

J. O. ATKINSON, Sec'y.

MISSION STUDY BOOKS.

Leaders of young people who are looking for World Friendship material, will be interested in the study books for this year. Miss Winifred Hulbert was sent out to talk with the young Indian leaders and to get their stories and opinions and problems first-hand. The result is an excellent book entitled, "Indian Americans," paper, 60 cents.

Frederick L. Fay has written a "Leader's Manual" to accompany "Indian Americans," 50 cents.

There is also a thrilling story book for Intermediates, called "Three Arrows," by E. Ryerson Young, paper, 75 cents.

Never in the memory of the writer have we had such a gripping book as "The Young Revolutionist," by Pearl S. Buck, author of "The Good Earth." Its appeal is universal although the teaching helps by Rev. Alfred Heminger are for the Intermediate age level. Price of "The Young Revolutionist," paper, 75 cents; "Teaching Helps," 50 cents.

For older young people, "As It Looks to Young China," paper, 60 cents, written by a group of Chinese leaders, provides food for thought and the basis for understanding. The study outline, for use with the above, "Introducing Young China," 50 cents, has been prepared by Ruth Seabury.

In her own teaching the writer has found that "The Young Revolutionist" and "As It Looks to Young China," make a very satisfactory combination, the emphasis being put on the former for less advanced groups and on the latter for the more advanced.

Leaders of children's groups, by whatever name they may be called, will want to use one or more of the following: "Many Moons Ago and Now," by Katherine Gladfelter, a book of Indian Stories for nine to eleven-year-olds, together with helps for the leader. Paper, 75 cents.

"Children of the Great Spirit," by Florence C. Means, a book of Indian stories for six to eight-year-olds, together with teaching helps for the leader. Paper, 75 cents.

"New Joy," by Carolyn Sewall, a book of Chinese stories for nine to eleven-year-olds, together with teaching helps for the leader. Paper, 75 cents.

"Off to China," by Sweet and Wagner, a book of Chinese stories for six to eight-year-olds, together with teaching helps for the leader. For use with either young people or children, there is a wealth of visual education material: Pictures, maps, 50 cents; teaching pictures, $1.00; picture sheets, 25 cents; World Friendship paper dolls, 25 cents. Any of these materials may be secured from the Pilgrim Press, 14 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.

Free leaflets on the American Indian may be secured from Miss Helen F. Smith 287 Fourth Ave., New York City, and on our work in China from the American Board, 14 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.

Is your Church School a World Service School? If not why not? It costs only a postage stamp to find out about the World Service plan. Write Rev. J. L. Lobinger, 14 Beacon St., Boston, Mass., or the writer for information. There are two pieces of denominational literature that every young people's group ought to have.

The Pilgrim Highroad, a monthly publication at $1.00 per year, contains all manner of useful material; the treatment of the senior group graded church school lessons, material for both the Christian Life and the Christian Endeavor topics, practical plans of young people's work, suggestions for the worship programs, stories, articles on current issues, news of what is going on in church groups of young people.

The Young People's Bulletin, a fine publication of the Young People's Department of the Congregational Education Society, is a veritable mine of valuable information for Young People's leaders.

Now What Can We Do About It?

Study and discussion will not be enough. We need service. Any young people's group may take a definite investment in service for China or for the American Indian through their own State project list or by using the following suggestions:

1. Take a share in the Current Sunday School Project, which is for the maintenance of schools and churches for the American Indian.
2. Invest in "Schools in China," which is the special current Sunday School project abroad.
3. Send a Christmas box to the boys and girls in one of our Indian schools. Such articles as good library books and papers, victrola records and good sheet music, towels, bureau covers, pins, needles and thread, pieces of cretonne, denim, gingham or percale, talcum powder, first-aid kits, games, pictures, Christmas tree decorations, educational games, sewing bags, toilet bags, bean bags, kindergarten paper, cut-out dolls, paints and paint books.—Young People's Bulletin.

The undersigned is always glad to dispense information regarding materials and programs.

PRISCILLA CHASE.

Elon College N. C.

PROGRAM.

We publish below the program of the Twentieth Annual Session of the North Carolina Woman's Missionary Conference, to be held at the Monticello Christian Church, Friday, October 21, 1932, at 10:00 A. M., with Mrs. C. H. Rowland, presiding:

Theme: "Onward and Upward."

Scripture Text: "Looking Unto Jesus."

Morning Session—10:00 o'Clock.

Call to order.

Worship, led by Mrs. D. O. Sander.

Roll call of Societies and enrollment of delegates.

Recognition of ministers and visitors.

Reports of District Superintendents:

Mrs. Luther Carlton,

Miss Jessie Sharpe,

Mrs. J. W. Patton,

Mrs. R. L. Moss,

Mrs. Ed. York,

Mrs. C. H. Stephenson,

Miss Margaret Alston.

Reports of Officers—

Literature Secretary, Mrs. W. T. Scott.

Cradle Roll Secretary, Mrs. J. R. Foster.

Spiritual Life Secretary, Mrs. W. H. Carroll.

Life Membership and Memorials, Mrs. R. J. Kernodle.

Young People's Secretary, Mrs. D. E. Mitchell.

Report of Treasurer, Mrs. W. R. Sellars.

Report of President, Mrs. C. H. Rowland.

Appointment of Committees.

Special music.

Address—Dr. L. E. Smith, President Elon College.

Offering.

Adjournment for lunch.

Afternoon Session—2:00 o'Clock.

Call to order.

Song—"Lead On, O King Eternal."

Presentation of the Home Study—"The American Indian," Mrs. L. E. Smith.

Address—"China, the Cradle of Conflict," Rev. Stanley C. Harrell.

"This, That and the Other of Missions," Dr. J. O. Atkinson.

Reports of Committees.

Miscellaneous business.

Adjournment.

"I feel the dawn, the thrill of coming day;
The souls of men are stirred with vision bright;
The hopes of men are climbing up the height,
The prophets bold are setting forth the way."

FRANKLIN, VA.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Franklin Christian Church always looks forward to their final meeting in September. At this meeting we have our mite box opening and a special program is arranged. We met this year in the Sunday School assembly room in a public meeting. The following program was rendered:

Piano prelude—"Something for Jesus."

Call to worship—Leader.

Hymn—"Something for Jesus" (first and second verses.)

Prayer.

Scripture lesson—Matthew 19:16-22.

Hymn—"Something for Jesus" (third and fourth verses.)

Story—"The Widow's Mite."

Solo—"I Gave My Life for Thee."

Playlet—"Opening the Mite Boxes." (By sixteen young women.)

A nice sum was realized from the mite boxes. At the conclusion of the program a social hour was enjoyed.

MRS. E. L. BEALE.

MISSIONARY NEWS NOTES

One of the outstanding programs of the year, at the First Christian Church, Portsmouth, was the missionary pageant which was presented by about seventy people. The name of this pageant was "The Search for Light," and was sponsored by the Young People's Society.

The main speaking parts were taken by Miss Vizelle Denson, who represented America; Mrs. Elizabeth Whitehurst, interpreter of history, and the seeker, Miss Merrill Caviness. The leaders of the non-Christian groups in whose religions the seeker has endeavored to find the Light, were: Worshipers of Isis and Osiris, Mrs. Bertha Holland; Hindus, Mrs. Dora Boles; Confucianism, Miss Dallas Heath; Buddhists, Mrs. Ada Floyd; Mohammedanism, Miss Helen Powell.

Just before the final tableau two girls appeared and four prophets of the Old Testament presented passages of Scripture in regard to the birth of Christ, at which time a star appeared, announcing the coming of the Messiah. The church, speaking next, said, "I am the Light of the world. He that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the Light of life."

The final climax of the pageant was reached when the seeker dropped her dark robes, disclosing a robe of flame color, and proclaimed that she had found the Light in the Cross of Christ.

Mrs. T. H. Dilday writes from the Woman's Missionary Society of Bethlehem that they have gained several new members and have had a very successful year in every way.

MISSIONARY MATERIAL FOR 1932-33.

For the first six months of our church year, we will study China. On a magic carpet, let us be off now on this most interesting study. With such teaching material as study books, maps, plays, pictures, mottoes, what we see we absorb. Cooperate with public libraries—do not be satisfied to use just our study book. Try to satisfy the uninterested.

Books for Women—"Lady Fourth Daughter," 50c; "How to Use"—programs—25c.

Books for Young People—"Lady Fourth Daughter," 50c; or "The Young Revolutionist," 75c; "How to Use"—programs—25c.

Books for Juniors—"Ling Yang," 50c; "Many Moons Ago and Now," 75c.

Do not fail to get the imported Chinese pictures. They are to be used in each organization. Leaflets on China free.

The eyes of the world are turned toward China. Let us understand her better, and then be ready to study the American Indians—a most fascinating study of the first Americans.

Everyone will be anxious to get ready for these books and follow trails and trailers. We want to know what we are doing for them, where our work is located, etc. A full year. May we feel our great need—educational and religious.

MRS. J. CARTWRIGHT,

Literature Supt.

1732 LaSalle Ave., Norfolk, Va.

BETHLEHEM YOUNG PEOPLE.

The Young People's Missionary Society at Bethlehem (Nansemond) are coming to the close of what we call a very successful year.

We are fortunate in having Mrs. O. D. King as our superintendent. For several years she has served as our counsellor.

Our pastor, Rev. R. E. Brittle, has been on the job at all times, especially when it came time for our Mission Study Classes.

During the year we have held our regular monthly business meetings, followed by a social hour, which all enjoyed.

We have held other meetings, such as vesper services on the lawn, conducted by the young people; entertained the Woman's Missionary Society of our church; had other Young People's Societies to meet with us; had two very noted speakers to be with us at two meetings.

We have also sent flowers to the sick, held lawn parties, enjoyed picnics, and other minor affairs. But the best of all—we have raised our apportionment and are hoping to go over the top.

ELIZABETH BYRD, Pres.

NOTICE.

The Eastern Virginia Woman's Missionary Conference will meet with the South Norfolk Christian Church, Friday, October 28th. The morning session opens at 10:30 o'clock.

It is hoped that each Society has made some forward step this year toward the advancement of our work, and will do its full share in making October 28th a great day.

The speaker will be Mrs. Jeannette W. Emrich, who has spent fourteen years on the foreign field under the Congregational Board. Since returning to America her special interest has been in the field of international relations, race relations and social problems. Mrs. Emrich is a speaker of rare charm and ability. Our people should not miss the opportunity of hearing her.

MRS. L. W. STAGG, Sec'y.

Norfolk, Va.

NOTICE.

The North Carolina Woman's Missionary Conference meets with the church at Monticello, Guilford County, on the highway between Greensboro and Reidsville, on Friday, October 21st. The Woman's Society of the Reidsville Church will be joint hostess with the Society at Monticello. All societies in the Conference are urged to have representatives present.

MRS. C. H. ROWLAND, Pres.

Greensboro, N. C.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

REV. F. C. LESTER, Editor, Waverly, Va.

LEADERSHIP TRAINING.

October and November are Leadership Training months in our church. The Norfolk churches will have a training school beginning October 16th, at South Norfolk Church. Courses and teachers are as follows:

The New Testament, Rev. F. C. Lester; The Teaching Work of the Church, Dr. Erwin L. Shaver; Primary Materials and Methods, Mrs. M. J. McArdle; Junior Materials and Methods, Miss Ethel Hurley; Materials and Methods of Missionary Education, Miss Priscilla Chase; Training in Worship and the Devotional Life, Rev. H. S. Hardcastle.

Beginning on November 13th, the churches near Suffolk will hold a school in the Suffolk Christian Church, with courses and leaders as follows:

The Pupil, Dr. W. M. Jay; New Testament, Rev. F. C. Lester; Junior Materials and Methods, Miss Priscilla Chase; Young People's Materials and Methods, Miss Lucy Eldredge; Training in Worship and the Devotional Life, Rev. H. S. Hardcastle.

These schools open at 3:00 o'clock on Sunday afternoon on the dates given. There will be a session each evening during the week at 7:30 o'clock. It will be a fine thing for young people to take advantage of these schools, and prepare themselves for leadership.

How many of the smaller churches are making preparation for a training school for their teachers? Although it may be impossible for them to have a Standard Training School with several instructors, it is possible for them to have a training class after prayer meeting, or some other convenient time, running for ten weeks. The pastor would doubtless be glad to teach those interested. If a class is impossible, it is possible to take the work by correspondence. Some young people are now taking the work by correspondence. Those interested in this should write to Rev. F. C. Lester, Waverly, Va., or to Dr. Erwin L. Shaver, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

A report of the director of Leadership Training of the International Council of Religious Education shows that in 1928 credits were won by 50,776 people. That seems amazing, doesn't it? Those are encouraging facts, but there are three questions which disturb us, namely:

1. How many churches make no provision at all for leadership training?
2. How many churches are as fervent in prayer for their teachers as they were for their army during the World War?
3. How many schools are as anxious to provide leaders qualified to teach their children to love God and neighbor as they were a few years ago to cultivate a passionate hatred for Germans and everything German?

Make your present job, whether teacher or pupil, and your attitude toward life, a living example of your worth, and you will be inviting that opportunity which is only waiting for an invitation.

Now, let me ask two more questions: 1. Is your church preparing a way for any leadership training? 2. Are you preparing for the job that lies ahead?

LOTTIE MAE CROSS,

*Supt. Leadership Training,
Eastern Virginia Youth Fellowship.*

"Jesus said unto them, Follow me and I will make you fishers of men."—Matt. 4:19.

MISSIONARY CONFERENCES.

Announcements are being made relative to the many missionary conferences to be held in the near future. Young people owe to themselves to attend these conferences. It is at such conferences that world visions are presented, far-away people become neighbors, and the Christ who said, "Go ye into all the world," becomes an abiding friend. There is nothing like a fine missionary program to stir up the soul and make one feel the moving of the divine spirit within. It was in such fellowship that a young man long ago said, "Expect great things from God; undertake great things for God." This is the thing that happens to many others as they hear thrilling tales of adventure in Christian service among strange people beyond the seas.

Eastern Virginia young people will hold a conference in Suffolk Christian Church, beginning at 8:00 o'clock Friday evening, October 21st. Mrs. Edward F. Parsons, of Washington, D. C., who spent six years in China as a missionary, will be the speaker, and those who knew her at Elon last summer will be anxious to hear her again. She will bring an inspiring message. Every young person in eastern Virginia should try to be in Suffolk for this meeting, and help to get others there.

There are many other such meetings to be held throughout the South this fall, and all young people should let nothing save sickness or death keep them from attending. Go with eagerness to learn; look for a bigger vision of life; and great good will come to you.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

TOPIC FOR OCTOBER 16, 1932.

"What Does Alcohol Do to People and to Society?"—Matt. 18:4-6.

If alcohol is a good thing it should be kept and used. If it is a dangerous thing, it should be controlled or destroyed. Christian Endeavorers and all other young people should seek to find the facts concerning what alcoholic drinks, for which some are crying so loudly, really do to people and society. This writer does not attempt to give all this information. But a few things are listed which seem to be very evident to all who seek the truth.

To People.

Alcohol seems to stimulate a person and make him more alert, but in reality it deadens the nerves and makes him less alert. It has about the same effect as hitting an old horse with a whip. There is a little spurt forward, but presently the pace is slower than before.

Alcohol burns up the physical system. Try some on the white of an egg, if you want to see the effect. Not so long ago an acquaintance of mine was sent to the hospital for an operation. Investigation proved that the digestive system was burned up with alcohol so that nothing could be done for him, and he was sent home to die. As I stood in that sick room looking at an emaciated form waiting for death to relieve pain, I wished that all boys and girls who think it is smart to break the law and drink liquors could see this man who had yielded to temptation. This is what liquors will do when given a chance. When "flu" was so bad in 1918, it was very noticeable that those who were regular drinkers seemed to have no chance of life when the "flu" hit them. The system was burned up so it could not stand the strain.

Alcohol takes away self-control. Recent statistics show that far more than half of the automobile accidents are accompanied by liquor. The drivers are not always drunk, but they are drinking. The death toll from these accidents is alarming. Increase liquor and accidents increase. The reason is that the driver loses control; his judgment is bad. Many a young lad and girl, the pride and joy of the home, have lost their virtue under the influence of alcohol. Without the drinks they would never have fallen.

It would appear from these results that every person should try to keep away from the thing that causes so much personal injury.

To Society.

Strong drink has robbed society of many good minds. Think of what Burns, and Byron, and Poe might have been had they not indulged. Suppose Sinclair Lewis would leave his liquors and use his powers for good. How much he could accomplish! After reading his fascinating tale of Elmer Gantry one feels that a (moral) bath is necessary.

Liquor brings poverty. Many men spend their wages for drink who then have nothing for food and clothes for the family. In the days of the saloon this was especially true. It is not nearly so common now, if the testimony of social workers, who deal constantly with poverty, can be trusted—and it can.

Liquor corrupts politics. This was especially true before the days of prohibition, but it is also true today. You can probably name some leaders in the political realm today who leave their party for no reason other than in the hope of getting more liquor. It is impossible for legislators or office holders of any kind to use good judgment in the interests of the public when they sit at a table loaded with liquors furnished by the liquor interests.

Liquor creates crime. The man who comes home drunk, beats his children and shoots his wife, becomes a criminal because of drink. Boys and girls who go out on wild parties seek to excuse themselves for the things they have done by the fact that they were drinking. It is the liquor that causes the trouble.

What Shall We Do About It?

What shall we do about this great enemy of individuals and society? Shall we let it go free seeking whom it may devour? Many of us had rather just leave it alone and do nothing about it. But this is both dangerous and cowardly.

A better plan is to seek to restrict the use of such a dangerous thing. In fact, it is better to prohibit the use of it on the part of others, and to refrain entirely from the use of it ourselves. If we never touch it, there is no danger of it getting us down.

SOME GOOD ADVICE FROM A WISE MAN.

Finish each day and be done with it. You have done what you could. Some blunders and absurdities no doubt crept in; forget them as soon as you can. Tomorrow is a new day; begin it well and serenely, and with too high a spirit to be cumbered with your old nonsense. This day is all that is good and fair. It is too dear, with its hopes and invitations, to waste a moment on the yesterdays.—Emerson.

Man grows inevitably. Insensibly he is becoming Christ-like or world-like. If he bears the image of Christ he will share his glory. If he grows into the world's image, what choice remains but that he must at last share the world's fate?—Isaac Edwardson.

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. H. S. HARDCASTLE.

LESSON IV—OCTOBER 23, 1932.

PROBLEMS OF THE MODERN HOME.

LESSON TEXT: Joshua 24:14, 15; Ephesians 6:1-9. Reference material, Mark 10:2-12.

GOLDEN TEXT: "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."—Joshua 24:15.

The Problem of Family Worship.

This may be interpreted in terms of what we call the "family altar," and as such it constitutes one of the problems of the modern family. We are so hurried, the family is so broken up, there are so many varied interests, that in many, perhaps the majority of the homes in America today, there is not the least semblance of family worship as a group in the home. And we pay an awful price for our neglect of this custom. Now it is a question whether we can have the old "family altar" in its set form, when the father and mother at night gathered the family together and a passage of Scripture was read and prayer was offered—except when the family is small and the children very young it would be difficult to do this. But even yet there is a place and there can be found time for family worship. If it could not be done at the morning meal, it could be done at the evening meal. And the children would enjoy it if they could have some part in it. A selection from the Scriptures, a devotional reading, a prayer, even a period of silence with bowed heads, and there would be a different atmosphere in the home, and a lasting influence on the members of the family. If the home takes religion seriously enough, a place can be found and a way can be found for family worship.

Then, of course, there is the problem of family worship in the church. The members of the family should attend the services of worship as a family, they should sit together, they should worship together. It would be an inspiration to others, and a help to the family itself.

And finally there is the matter of family worship in the sense of the ideals and the atmosphere of the home. Joshua enjoins the Israelites to "put away the gods which your fathers served on the other side of the flood and in Egypt." They were false gods, heathen gods, gods which debased those who served them or worshipped them. There are many false gods in our modern homes, not placed on pedestals in visible form and bowed down to and served in formal worship, but actual gods just the same, and bowed down to and served in a very real way. The god of material success is enthroned in many a modern American home. The god of pleasure has his devotees by the legion. The god of social prestige and power has many followers among those who are socially ambitious. The god of comfort draws many, often unsuspectingly, away from the worship of the true and living God. There are many parents who worship their children as gods. Joshua summons the people to choose what god they will serve. He warns them, however, to think well before they choose. And he says that so far as he is concerned, he and his family will worship and serve the Lord.

The Problem of Family Relationships.

One of the Scripture references for today's lesson refers to one of the most menacing evils of modern home life—divorce. Statistics reveal the startling fact that about one out of every ten marriages in America ends in the divorce courts. The Bible speaks a very plain word on this subject. God made them one, male and female made he them. For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother and cleave unto his wife. What God hath joined together, let no man put asunder. (Mark 10:7, 9.) Paul said, "And unto the married I command, yet not I but the Lord, let not the wife depart from her husband; but and if she depart let her remain unmarried, or be reconciled to her husband; and let not the husband put away his wife." There is the plain word of God. The problem of divorce would be solved if men and women obeyed the law of God. There would be no need for divorce if men and women had the love of God in their hearts.

The problem of the parent-child relationship is also treated in this lesson. "Children obey your parents in the Lord: for this is right." Obedience to parents is God's law to children. Respect for and honor to parents is commanded, and by the way, it is the only commandment with a promise: "that thou mayest live long in the earth, and that it may be well with thee." Children who respect their parents, who obey them as God's constituted authority in the home, as a rule live long and live well.

There is another side of the question however. Parents are to deserve respect and obedience. They are not to provoke their children to wrath. They are not to be high-handed despots, meting out punishment in an arbitrary way. They are not to humiliate their children before others, they are not to be always speaking harshly and unkindly to them; they are to treat them fairly, kindly, intelligently. They are to train them in the nurture and the admonition of the Lord. Patience, kindness, tact, sympathy, will go a long way toward solving home problems, even where they are in the most acute form.

One other phase of home relationship is here treated: the problem of master-servant relationship. How shall a servant act? Paul says he is to be obedient unto those who are his masters in the flesh, but he is to serve as unto Christ who is his true Master. He is to go beyond eye-service, merely working when the master is looking, or doing enough to get by with. He is to work as unto Christ, in singleness of heart, rendering his best service. And Paul adds that the Lord will reward all alike for service done unto him, no matter what a man's station in life may be.

But masters have a responsibility, too. Their slaves are human beings. They are to be treated as such. Masters have a Master in common with the slaves. There is no respect of persons with Him. The application of this principle would solve not only the master-servant relationship in the home, but all industrial relationships.

What God wants is men great enough to be small enough to be used.—H. W. Webb-Peploe.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Minion Bold-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 $\frac{7}{8}$ x7 Inches, and 1 $\frac{3}{8}$ Inches Thick.

2152—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$3.75

India Paper Edition, Size 4 $\frac{7}{8}$ x7 Inches, 1 1-10 Inches Thick.

2152X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$6.00

Minion Type, Pocket Size, 4x6 Inches, 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ Inches Thick.

With 32 full-colored illustrations; also 25 outline maps through the text and 12 colored maps.

133—Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges, title stamped on side in pure gold.....$1.60

Minion Black-Face Type, Self-Pronouncing, Size 4 $\frac{3}{4}$ x7

2172—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.50

2173—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges.....$6.00

135—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$3.00

India Paper Edition, Only 16-16 of an Inch Thick.

133X—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.$4.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS' BIBLE.

Especially made up for gift or reward Bibles for Sunday School scholars, containing a special series of very practical and useful helps and Bible Questions and Answers, etc. Printed on fine white Bible paper; ruby type; pocket size, 3 $\frac{3}{4}$ x5 $\frac{3}{8}$ Inches, and 1 inch thick, with 31 full-page illustrations in sepia. All bindings are black.

Ruby Type, Size 3 $\frac{3}{4}$ x5 $\frac{3}{8}$ Inches, and 1 Inch Thick.

65—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on side and back in pure gold; 6 colored maps.....$2.50

AUTHORIZED VERSION.

RED LETTER TEACHERS' BIBLES.

Brevier Type (8 vo.), Self-Pronouncing, Size 5 $\frac{3}{8}$ x8 $\frac{1}{2}$ Inches and 1 $\frac{3}{8}$ Inches Thick.

Containing the Bible, with full references. The words of Christ in the New Testament are printed in red; other parts of the book are printed in black. With Concise Bible Dictionary, combined Concordance, and 12 indexed maps.

7852—Genuine Leather, Levant grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, title stamped on back in pure gold.....$4.75

RED-LETTER EDITION.

With All the Words of Christ in the New Testament Printed in Red.

1282—Genuine Leather, Morocco grain, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges, register and headbands; title stamped on side and back in pure gold.....$3.25

60—Bound in Cloth, stiff covers, square corners, red edges, Sunday School Scholars' Bible, stamped in pure gold on cover, no illustrations; special book for Sunday Schools.....95c

Any of the above Bibles sent postpaid. Address

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street

Richmond Virginia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."—II. Chron. 7:14.

MONDAY.

SEED AMONG THORNS.

"That which fell among thorns are they, which, when they have heard, go forth, and are choked with cares and riches and pleasures of this life, and bring no fruit to perfection."—Luke 8:14.

Weymouth interprets these words of our Saviour as follows: "Are stifled by the anxieties, the wealth and gayeties of time."

The meaning of the Master is illuminated in the next verse (verse 15), which says, "the good are those who have an honest and good heart, having heard the word and keep it, and bring forth fruit with patience." The words in the Greek for "honest" and "good" are kalos kagathos. These words express "a perfect gentleman." If true, we have here Jesus describing a perfect gentleman in contrast with a person who has his fling in the pleasures of life, the former possessing honesty and goodness the very throne of the Kingdom; the latter having no place for the religious life.

One might argue that to enjoy riches and the pleasures of this life does not necessarily preclude honesty and goodness. But it does, and all unaware. It can be stated without successful contradiction that there is not an instance on record of one plunging his life into the gayeties of life in response to the appeals of delights to which the body and mind readily respond, who has not, at some future time, however honest and good he has intended to be, found his life filled with these things and religion and Christianity choked out. They are names with which he is familiar and may have some vague recollection, but as realities they have no part in his life. "True religion and undefiled before God," says the Word, "is to visit the fatherless and widows in their distress and keep thyself unspotted from the world." This statement of God's Word covers the whole field of goodness and a pure heart.

Prayer—Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. O God, help us to say that in spirit and in truth from the bottom of our hearts, hallowing thee in thought, word and deed, and withholding ourselves from all evil, however innocent it may seem. In Christ's name. Amen.

TUESDAY.

SUFFOCATION.

Considering Monday's text still, there is another side to this gay life worthy of our meditation and concern—a suffocated soul.

First of all, in the text of Monday, we have opposite experiences mentioned; viz., "cares" and "pleasures," or as Weymouth puts it, "anxieties" and "gayeties." These seem to be the opposite poles of human experience. Jesus seems to say that both cares and pleasures are alike in their effect on the soul—something like ice and fire, they both feel the same. They give the same shock to the nerves.

Look into the lives of those who are burdened with the cares of life and those whose lives are absorbed in worldly pleasures, and it will be seen that both conditions stifle the Word of God in them, and also religious experience in the life.

Which, now, do you suppose, stifles the most? Would you say "pleasure?" "Not by a long shot." With the most of us gayeties are not our greatest sin. Their array is pathetic. But cares—oh my!—they are the very atmosphere which we breathe. But in a real respect they are essential. However much so, they need not suffocate us. We fail to see only when we have not acquired the art of knowing the value of cares, and allow inconsequential things to worry us. How we do trouble ourselves sick over little foolish things! Somebody has said that we take our cars like a radio set that has no selective power, and we listen to six or eight jazz bands all at once. All the melody and harmony is destroyed.

Jesus gives us selective power to prevent this suffocation. Turn the dial of the soul on him and heaven. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." "Cast all your care on him for he careth for you." "I will be with you in the sixth trouble and in the seventh I will not forsake you, yea, I will never leave you nor forsake you." "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

Prayer—O Lord, in the name of Jesus, thou Son and our Saviour, we pray, we beseech thee to pardon our sins and forgive us for not coming to thee in our troubles. Help us to come always. We cast our all on thee this day, O thou most high, bless us. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

STIFLING WEALTH.

"How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God."—Mark 10:23.

This is another angle of our previous text. Wealth is as suffocating as anything else. It need not be, but it is, as a matter of fact.

A homely illustration brings this truth strikingly home to us. In Frank Norris' novel, "The Pit," we have a story of a grain speculator who is trapped in a grain elevator and buried alive in the wheat. Here was the means of the support of life, and his own support and wealth, the wheat, became the agency of destroying him.

No one will question that the high purposes of life are often obscured with the clutter of material possessions. Emerson said, "The worst thing about money is that so often it costs so much." Life's spiritual flame and deep significance are often snuffed out by absorption in the material things we may be interested in.

There is only one preventive: Jesus says, "Follow me;" and he describes this very passage as the antidote. The righteous are those "who, having listened to the message with open minds and in a right spirit, hold it fast and patiently yield a return."

Prayer—Dear Father, we want to be thine. Help us to give up to thee—live for thee and die in thee. Amen.

THURSDAY.

"GET OUT."

"They besought him to depart from them."—Luke 8:37.

Recently, Mayor McClosky, of Johnstown, told the Bonus Marchers to "get out." If any one refused, he promised them "the boot."

How often Jesus got "the boot" would be an interesting study. At Capernaum, his home, they threw him out because he had healed a man and challenged their traditions. At Gerasa, they threw him out because he healed a demoniac, and in so doing they had lost some hogs. They preferred pigs to miracle-workers.

Herod threw him out because his ideas interfered with his government. The Samaritans threw him out because he was not of their race.

The worst of it was that they threw him out of their lives, and made their own salvation impossible. Only "as many as received him gave he them the power to become the sons of God." That same rule is true today.

It might be interesting for us to take enough time to catalogue the times and circumstances in which we have thrown him out. How is it when his teachings run counter to our own opinion? How about when his teaching reduces our business profit? How is it when his teaching challenges us to a stand in public office, or private principle, which stand would make us unpopular and suffer loss? How is it when we are challenged to tell the truth when the truth will hurt?

Prayer—O Lord, our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth, and to us thou art excellent because thou art right, and thou doest all things well to them that come and serve thee. We trust thee. O help thou, our distrust, that we may go with thee all the way. Amen.

FRIDAY.

LET ME ALONE.

"And he from within shall answer and say, trouble me not; the door is now shut; and my children are with me in bed."—Luke 11:7.

This is the reply of a man who was called upon at midnight by a neighbor begging the loan of a piece of bread because a guest had come and he had nothing to eat.

The circumstances are human, we can sympathize with the feelings of one being disturbed at such a time during those first moments of waking. It is a static frame of mind and one is liable to be ungenerous if not to say unkind.

But this story of the Lord's has its meaning. It is this: It represents vividly a risk that life has for all of us—of becoming so set and finished in our ways, our ideas, and views of life, that anything new, which demands a reopening of the mind, or a revision of opinions, is resented. We become so self-satisfied in our condition that anything however legitimate or just, is disturbing.

There is a temptation to let well enough alone, but he who thus sleeps gets run over. The kingdom of God is kept out of many a heart today because of complacency. The door has been shut, decisions have been made, the matter is closed—"sorry."

"Don't bother me," is often heard from those who could be a living flame for Christ, but they will not.

Prayer—O Lord, we pause to examine ourselves, whether we are up and doing ready to serve thee, or whether we are complacent in our own way. O God, have mercy upon our shortcomings and make us alive for thee. We pray that we may live so today. Amen.

SATURDAY.

THE BALM.

"Is there no balm in Gilead? Is there no physician there? Why then is not the health of the daughter of my people recovered?"—Read Jeremiah 8:18-22.

Chemists know 258,000 organic compounds which may be drugs useful for healing the body or relieving pain, and they have not yet had time
(Continued on page 15.)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOHN G. TRUITT, Preacher.

THE PRICE OF DEFEAT.

By JOHN G. TRUITT.

"Great was the fall thereof."—Matt. 7:27.

It costs much to fail. It costs too much of life's toils, energies, and tears to fail. Life is too serious and magnificent a business to invest in it our all and then fail. Only recently I met one of my parishioners on the street. We talked. His son had returned from the State prison—had been convicted of filching funds from a treasury. He had spent two years of mental anguish before his crime was detected. He told his father that the first night he was placed in the prison was the first night of rest he had had in two years. During these two years he had been offered a promotion for which he was working, and which he needed for his wife and children, but could not accept it for he knew in leaving his post he would be detected and the offer would be off. He had invested years, study, labor, life, all—and failed. There was a crash, and it was a great crash. Now he had done his time, and was out and into life again. This time he must not fail—it is too costly.

Jesus had preached perhaps his longest sermon. He had laid down full many a life-giving principle. He taught as with authority, and divinely, the principles of the Kingdom of God. Now he was closing his message with the words that were to make it valuable to his hearers. It is the parable of the wise and the unwise builders.

The price of defeat is illustrated in the unwise builder. Let us see what is said. He is a "foolish man." He is not a fool. He only acts insensibly. He could act otherwise. He is just an ordinary man. But he is taking the unwise course. Without forethought he is making life-long plans, and decisions. A foolish man.

Furthermore, "he built his house." To build, is to plan, dream, see the thing in one's hopes, and set about getting the materials together. It is a most interesting thing to contemplate. The building of a house with all its romance, its promise of the future, its prophecy of the years to come. It is a noble, worthy venture, containing a thrill in every turn. Moreover, it speaks of toil, labor, the overcoming of difficulties. It takes one's attention, efforts, all. It is a consuming business. What a price is implied!

And more, it was "his house"—his very own. It was not being built for others, nor for rent; but in it he himself would live. It would become as a part of himself. How he would rejoice in it, and how he would love every brick in it. He would remember how it was built and at what a cost. Yes, it would be his, a castle of his calibre, a home after his own heart's desire.

"His house," not his playground, not his hobby, not his garden—but the most permanent thing about his living. It was an important matter, for it he would mortgage all, into it he would put his very best timbers, and no half-way business. His house it must be—his fort, his refuge, and haven of rest. Are we thinking as we go along what materials go into building a life? The hopes and dreams, plans and prayers of parents; efforts of numerous teachers and friends; and that indefinable something within us that urges us on. At what a price we are built!

This foolish man's house was built "upon the sand"—not even taking the time, or forethought, to dig down just a little bit, but right on top of the dry, shifting, loose, broken sand he built it! Jesus has certainly drawn us a picture. All the valuable timbers, magnificent and comparatively costly finishings and furnishings—all his toil and dreams and hopes and plans laid right out on the sand.

He was a foolish man, indeed, for let us see what happened. "The rains descended." Ah! he says, "My house is still standing," for many had urged him to make a good foundation. Some had urged him to build upon the eternal Rock of Ages. Some had told him that other foundations could no man better lay than laying a foundation in Christ Jesus. But now the rain is falling, and see! the house is still standing. Has a good roof on it, and is well built. The very first temptation may not knock one's props from under one. What will tempt one may not tempt another. So the rains descend, and we are somewhat as we were before.

"And the floods came," surely there will be severe tests. Houses here in Dayton had flood waters to reach the roofs, and yet they stood. Sometimes we may boast our beating the sound principles laid down in the Sermon on the Mount. For a good while we may have every semblance of success. Even we may have the courage to laugh at the floods, but let us see further.

"And the winds blew, and beat upon that house." Yea, the rains became a flood, the flood became a fury when the winds whipped it into a merciless monster of mighty power. The longer we build in the wrong way, the longer we serve on the wrong side of right, the more complete and tragic the end will be. If we dally with temptation, sooner or later a sufficient one will overcome us.

"And it fell." The bottom went away; it collapsed. But that is not all, for had it only collapsed, there might have been some salvaging done of the imperishable materials put therein, so Jesus does not stop at saying it fell, but adds: "And great was the fall of it." It was completely washed away. Luke, in recording this speech, says: "Ruined!"

The price of defeat is too great. We cannot afford to be defeated, and we may be "more than conquerors through him that loved us." But how? That is the question. The answer is found in the context of our message for today. Hearing and doing. "Whosoever heareth these sayings of mine and doeth them." What are some of the "sayings?" "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets." "Wherefore, by their fruits ye shall know them." "Not everyone that sayeth unto me in that day, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father, which is in heaven." "Judge not, that ye be not judged." "Ye cannot serve God and mammon." "Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on an high hill cannot be hid. Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." These are some of the sayings, picked at random; but enough to show that falsifiers, game-beaters, commandment-breaking, God-forgetting people are courting defeat, and a defeat that is altogether too costly in all that is fine and best in life.

Behold the man that builds on Christ. Behold the life that is laid completely upon the altar of God's service. Behold the house that had foundations stood all the storms that prevailed upon the other, "and it fell not; for it was founded upon a rock." God grant that day by day—not simply a pious Sunday pretense, but day by day—we may hear the sayings of Jesus, and do them.

"Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul,
As the swift seasons roll.
Leave thy low-vaulted past,
Let each new temple, nobler than the last,
Shut thee from heaven with a dome more vast,
Till thou at length art free,
Leaving the outgrown shell by life's unresting sea."

COMMUNION WARE.

Individual Service.

Made in best Silver Plate or Aluminum. Prices low; first-class workmanship and finish.

ALUMINUM.

Aluminum is light in weight, durable, and does not tarnish.

Style No. 50-A.

Tray No. 2—Interlocking, with 40 plain glasses $7.00
Tray No. 6—Interlocking, with 35 plain glasses 6.75
Tray No. 10—Interlocking, with 30 plain glasses 6.50
Base No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Cover No. 50-A—Fits Trays 2, 6, or 10..... 2.25
Bread Plate No. 1—Narrow rim..... 1.60

SILVER-PLATED.

The Silver-plated Ware is of the very highest grade and best finish; heavily plated on nickel base.

Tray No. 85—Interlocking only, with 36 glasses.$22.00
Base No. 1—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 85. 11.00
Cover No. 5—Silver-plated; fits Tray No. 85... 16.00
(For Silver Bread Plates, see under No. 90.)

Style No. 90.

Tray No. 90—Interlocking, with 36 plain glasses
(this style has broad rim, which is sometimes preferred, due to increased ease of handling). $22.00
Base No. 2—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90.. 16.00
Cover No. 4—Silver-plated; fits Silver Tray 90. 14.00

Bread Plate No. 3—Narrow Rim.....$ 9.00
Bread Plate No. 4—Broad Rim..... 9.00
Filler—Silver Lined..... 6.00

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

The Christian Orphanage Singing Class had a very enjoyable trip to Eastern Virginia the week-end of October 1st. Mr. J. M. Darden, the chairman of the Orphanage Board, personally made the engagements for us to give concerts at the following places: Mt. Zion at Eclipse, Wakefield, Berea, Cypress Chapel, Bethlehem, and Newport News. Mr. Darden had given us a special invitation to be entertained at his camp on the James River, so we could keep the children together in one group, as it would be easier to get them from place to place, and we gladly accepted his invitation and left Elon College on Friday morning, September 30th, reaching his camp in the afternoon, where he met us with outstretched arms, and gave us a joyful welcome.

The class gave a program at Eclipse Friday night, Wakefield Saturday night, Berea and Cypress Chapel Sunday morning, Bethlehem Sunday afternoon, and Newport News Sunday night.

We had splendid audiences at each church, and the people seemed to enjoy the program the children gave.

Mr. Darden always has something in store for the children. Last year he gave us a trip out on the bay, and we visited places of interest and fished. This year he gave us a greater treat. He carried us in his two automobiles to Jamestown, Williamsburg and Yorktown—all places of much historical interest. Four things at Jamestown were of much interest to the older children, who had studied history: the old church tower which was a part of the old original church, and where the people watched for the Indians through the port-holes in the wall. The statue of Pocahontas, who saved the life of John Smith, the statue of John Smith, who did so much to make the settlement of Jamestown permanent. The thing that impressed us most was the picture of the first communion service in bronze, administered by Rev. Robt. Hunt in 1607, and thereby establishing the foundation of the Christian religion in this country. It was a most impressive and sacred scene. We wished we could have spent more time there.

We went through Williamsburg to Yorktown, where the children had the opportunity of seeing the Nelson home, where Cornwallis made his headquarters during the Revolutionary War, and where he surrendered. They saw the old cannon balls sticking in the wall that were shot in there during the siege of Yorktown. The children stood at the gate and sang "The Old Rugged Cross." The hostess was very kind to the children and told them the story of Yorktown during the Revolutionary period, and how Mr. Nelson directed the cannon fire on his own home and offered a reward to the first gunner who hit the house. When they began to stick cannon-balls into the house it got to be uncomfortable for Cornwallis, and he soon surrendered to General Washington. The children were very much interested, as were the superintendent and teacher.

We also had the pleasure of crossing the Newport News and James River Bridge, 25,271 feet in length; the Crittenden, across Chuckatuck Creek, 23,395 feet in length; the Nansemond River bridge, 3,760 feet in length. These structures were interesting to the children, who can never thank Mr. Darden enough for making this trip possible for them. He was so good to us, and made our trip so happy that it will linger in our hearts and minds for a long time.

We wonder if we have another man in our church, with so many business interests on his shoulders, who would take his two cars and give our children such a trip in the interest of the Orphanage and give three days of his time.

Please begin to plan for the Thanksgiving offering in your church.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON, Supt.

REPORT FOR OCTOBER 13, 1932.

Brought forward $ 9,957.87

Sunday School Monthly Offerings.

North Carolina and Virginia Conference:

Durham$ 16.92
Hopedale, March to September.... 10.07
Happy Home 2.30
Berea 2.36

31.55

Eastern North Carolina Conference:

Morrisville$ 1.18
Pleasant Cross 1.75
Plymouth 5.58
Cary 1.55
Catawba Springs 10.54

20.60

Western North Carolina Conference:

Biscoe$ 1.74
Hank's Chapel 3.22
Pleasant Hill 3.70
Seagrove 2.00

10.66

Eastern Virginia Conference:

South Norfolk$ 6.46
Barrett's72
Union, Southampton 1.40
Burton's Grove 2.37
Rosemont 11.22
Liberty Spring S. S. and Classes.. 7.00
Berea (Nansemond) 10.00

39.17

Valley Virginia Central Conference:

Mayland$ 1.90
Mt. Lebanon60
Linville 6.35

8.85

Alabama Conference:

Pisgah 1.04

Special Offerings.

W. A. Lee, support of children....$ 5.00
Junior Philathea Class, Suffolk, Va.

support of girl 2.50
Mrs. Floyd Gray, Crittenden, Va... 2.00
Soap coupon money 10.00
T. B. Roberts, support of children 20.00
Special collection for singing class

from the following:

Mt. Zion$11.33
Cypress Chapel 16.00
Berea 13.03
Bethlehem 15.00
Wakefield 14.27
Newport News 37.53

107.16

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Wall, Happy Home Church 5.00

Birthday offering, Beginners' Department, Ind. Cong.-Christian Church 2.06

Mrs. Vitus Holt, Burlington, N. C.. 10.00

163.72

Total for the week $ 275.59

Grand total $10,233.46

"The importance of constancy in prayer arises from the place it holds in man's spiritual life."

ALL
SELF-
PRONOUNCING

Holman Testaments

COMMAND
ATTENTION
AND APPROVAL

Holman Vest-Pocket Testament

Size, 2½x4½ inches

Specimen of Type
AND the third day there
was a marriage in
Cana of Galilee; and
the mother of Je'sus was

The VEST POCKET is, beyond question, the most popular Testament published. It is in size, 2½x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

2104. Dark Blue Silk Finished Cloth, with edges colored to match, gold titles.$.50
2103K. Morocco Grained Binding, flexible limp, gold edges and titles.60
2114. French Morocco, genuine leather, flexible limp, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges.85

VEST POCKET TESTAMENT AND PSALMS

2103KP. Morocco Grained Binding, limp, gold titles, round corners, gold edges.70
2114P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges.90
2115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, overlapping covers, round corners, red under gold edges. 1.10

RED LETTER VEST POCKET TESTAMENT

With all the words of our Lord and Saviour printed in red. 13RL. French Morocco Leather, flexible limp, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, gold edges.90
15RLP. French Morocco Leather, overlapping covers, gold title on red panel, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included. 1.35

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4½ inches x 3/8 inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made. The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller. It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength. One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together. The size, 2½x4½ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

Specimen of Type

ST. MATTHEW 2 The three wise men carrying away into Babylonia are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Babylonia unto Christ are fourteen ing interpreted is, God with us. 24 Then Je'seph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had

Holman GEM Testament

POCKET
SIZE
3¾x4½
inches

Specimen of Gem Black Faced Type
CHAPTER 23.
THEN spake Je'sus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance. In size, 3¾x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

4102P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red burished edges, with Psalms.$.90
4113. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges. 1.35
4115P. French Morocco Leather, divinity circuit, gold titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included. 1.90

RED LETTER GEM TESTAMENT

4113RL. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges. 1.50

INDIA PAPER GEM TESTAMENT

4136XP. Fine Grain Morocco, divinity circuit, leather linings to edge, red under gold edges, with Psalms. 3.00
4136XPRL. Red Letter Edition with Psalms, same binding as 4136XP, but with the Sayings of Christ Printed in Red. 3.25

Old Folks Testament

Extra Large Print
Pica, 16mo. Size, 5¾x7¼x3¼ inches
Old folks or those with poor sight will appreciate the advantage of this Testament. The type is a delight to the eye with its wide spacing between the lines. It is the most readable edition of all large print Testaments.

Specimen of Type

THE Book of Je'sus

PSALMS INCLUDED

2902P. Black Silk Finished Cloth, gold titles, round corners, red edges, with Book of Psalms included.$ 1.50

THIN BIBLE PAPER EDITIONS
Same Large Print as Above

2913P. French Morocco Leather, limp, gold back and side titles, round corners, red under gold edges, with Book of Psalms included. 2.95

RED LETTER EDITION

Same as above, with the Sayings of Christ in Red.

3913PRL. French Morocco Leather, flexible covers, gold side title on red panel, rounded corners, red under gold edges, and with Book of Psalms included. 3.10

All styles sent postpaid at above prices

FAMILY ALTAR.

(Continued from page 12.)

to investigate their possibilities. About twenty new compounds are discovered every day.

God's medicine chest has scarcely been opened yet in the material realm, and has he not infinite resources in the spiritual realm for the conquest of sin, the overcoming of temptation, the relief of sorrow, and the gaining of strength and peace?

What a pharmacopia lies in the Bible, almost wholly undeveloped by most of us! How boundless are the supplies of prayer, of Christian fellowship, of brotherly service! What aids of the Holy Spirit remain unused and unsuspected!

Prayer—Ah, the balm that awaits our taking! Ah, the abounding health within the reach of God's children! Give us more enterprising spirits our Father, that we may find and use all the blessings thou dost design for us. Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

SUNDAY.

GUILT FROM AFAR.

"Thou art a God that seeth" (Authorized version: "Thou God seest me.")—Read Genesis 16:7-14.

A woman in Berlin saw a movie of a British football game, with close-up views of the spectators. The woman's husband was in England on business, and his wife saw him in one of the close-ups, evidently most intimate with a woman companion. The wife showed the film in court, and obtained a divorce.

This is only one of the many prods to conscience which modern science is continuously furnishing. More and more we are coming to realize how easy it is for God to follow us into all dark and distant corners, since even clumsy and weak men can do the same.

Of course, the only safety is in honor and purity and nobility of character. That would be the only safety, whether God and man could follow us or not.

Prayer—See us, O God, fully and constantly, and hear us, O God, even the words that lie unspoken on our tongues! We would not have anything to conceal from thee. Amen.

AMOS R. WELLS.

NEW CHURCH ORGANIZED.

At Deep Creek Schoolhouse, near Byron, Ga., Crawford County, a new Congregational Church was organized September 25th. The acting pastor, Mr. Crawford Moncrief, a licensed minister, who has been active in this area for several years fostered the growth and consummation of this new church. For several months he has been holding services once a month here and when the people desired to organize, he was willing and prepared the way. For the final service of organization he had called the pastor-at-large, Rev. M. J. Sweet, to share in the work. He came and found at one time during the day not less than 300 people were present.

It was an all-day service shared in by people from many miles around. The services consisted of adopting articles of association, according to the custom of Congregational Churches, reading and adopting a constitution and by-laws, which had been previously prepared, and the election of officers. There were twenty-three charter members. There are others who will become members and it was announced that the charter would be held open until about the beginning of the new year, for the addition of names of those wishing to join.

There were two baptismal services, one at the pool about a mile from the church, where a large crowd had gathered to share in the service. Here six were baptized by immersion. Later five more were baptized by affusion.

A bountiful dinner was served on the grounds.

The worship service followed, when Mr. Sweet preached the sermon. It was a great day for the community. The church will follow the usual custom of working its way along into the life of the denomination and will apply for membership in the Middle Georgia Association at its next meeting. The people of the church expect to become active in the adopting of a budget, pledging a stipulated amount for the pastor's salary, a thing which so many small churches fail to do, and in every way prepare themselves for honorable and full membership in the fellowship of the church. It is hoped they will send delegates to the State meeting at Duncan's Creek, November 1st and 2nd. Mr. Moncrief has worked hard to bring about this day, and was very happy as well as very tired, when the day was over.

A gift is all the dearer because it has belonged to our dearest friend and is linked with him or her in our memory forever. Our Lord's gift is of his own peace which had dwelt in his own divine breast and is poured out into the hearts which open to him.—Selected.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

WHITLEY MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

FALL TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 15th. Freshmen register on Tuesday, September 13th, and upper classmen on the 15th. Expenses reduced for this session. Write for Catalog and application blank.

Address—

C. M. CANNON, Registrar

Elon College, - - - North Carolina

Home Atmosphere—Reasonable Rates—Clean Athletics—Christian Spirit

The Christian Sun

Established 1844 by Rev. Daniel W. Kerr

A Religious Weekly for the Home, devoted to the interests of the Kingdom, as represented by the Congregational-Christian Church.

BOARD OF EDITORS.

J. O. ATKINSON, D. D. Editor
E. C. GILLETTE, D. D. Associate
W. W. STALEY, D. D. Contributing
S. C. HARRELL Contributing
C. R. RAYMOND, D. D. . . . Contributing
ELISHA A. KING, D. D. . . . Contributing
W. C. WICKER, D. D. . . . Contributing
J. T. KERNODLE Managing Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Year $2.00
Six Months 1.00

Trial Subscriptions: Five or more new subscriptions sent in at one time by pastor or president of any church organization, three months for 40c each.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY AT RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Richmond, Va., July 25, 1922, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address: Be sure to give both old and new address when asking that your address be changed.

When sending subscriptions for friends, state whether paper is to be stopped at end of year.

All news matter and items to be published in "The Sun" should be addressed to J. O. Atkinson, Editor, Elon College, N. C., and should reach him not later than Friday preceding date of publication. If more convenient, news from Congregational Churches may be sent to E. C. Gillette, Associate Editor, 117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla. Emergency notices will be received at the Richmond Office up until Tuesday of week of publication.

All remittances for subscriptions, renewals, advertising, etc., books for review, and other matters of business should be addressed to J. T. Kernodle, Managing Editor, 1536 E. Broad St., Richmond, Va.

Notices: Obituary and marriage notices, limited to 125 words, published free. All over 125 words, 1c a word, cash with notice. No notices should exceed 250 words.

Receipts: The change of label is your receipt for money paid. The label shows date of expiration, and change on label will appear the first or second issue of the month following renewal, provided it was received before the 25th. No other receipt will be sent unless requested. Please notify the Richmond Office if label is not changed as above.

OBITUARIES

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas, it has pleased our heavenly Father, in his infinite wisdom, to remove from our midst our friend and neighbor, Robert Pierce, therefore be it resolved:

First. That we humbly bow in submission to God's will, knowing that he is too wise to err, and that we seek to emulate all that was good in our departed friend.

Second. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy sent to "The Christian Sun," and a copy be entered on the records of Liberty Spring Christian Church, of which he was a member.

MRS. I. T. BYRD,
MRS. F. F. BRINKLEY,
MRS. O. L. BAKER,
E. B. RAWLES,
R. E. ROGERS,
E. F. O'BERRY.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas, our heavenly Father, in his infinite wisdom and love, has called to his eternal home our beloved friend and fellow member, Jack Baker, we the members of Liberty Spring Christian Church, offer the following tribute to his memory; therefore, be it resolved:

THE CONGREGATIONAL LATIN-AMERICAN INSTITUTE AND PILGRIM LATIN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH OF WEST TAMPA, FLA.—

Are helping give the Gospel, which is "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," to the forty thousand Latin people of Tampa. The evangelical forces working among the foreigners of Tampa are by no means covering the territory sufficiently.

Methodists have six preachers, Baptists two, Presbyterians one, Congregationalists one. Church workers and teachers must be supported for this great missionary work. Send check to

LESLIE S. BRAY, Treas.

Route 4, Box 468, - - Tampa, Fla.
Send boxes of clothing to Mrs. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

For literature, write Rev. C. H. Corwin, 2326 Green St., W. Tampa, Fla.

HOLMAN BIBLES

LARGE PRINT
TEACHERS' EDITION
FOR ADULTS, TEACHERS
AND PREACHERS

and all who would study the Word of God intelligently this edition is unsurpassed. The type is large, clear, Bourgeois, Self-Pronouncing, with liberal space between the words and lines, which makes it easy to read.

Size, 8 x 5 1/2 inches.

Specimen of Type.
"From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, 'The kingdom of heaven is at hand.'"

Containing New Copyrighted Helps by most reliable Authorities. A Treasury of Biblical Information, Practical Comparative Concordance, Oriental Light on the Bible, Four Thousand Questions and Answers, New Colored Maps.

No. 4712. Divinity Circuit Teachers' Bible. French Seal Leather, red under gold edges, Silk Head bands and Silk Marker.

Our Price—Post Paid 5.00

No. 812RL. Red Letter Teachers' Bible. The Words of Christ in the New Testament, Old Testament Passages Alluded to by Christ, Various Prophecies Relating to Christ in the Old Testament, etc., all PRINTED IN RED. Binding same as described above and same large Self-Pronouncing type.

Our Price—Post Paid 6.00

No. 733X. Holman India Paper, Algerian Morocco, Leather Lined, Silk Sewed, Divinity Circuit, round corners, earline under gold edges, silk head bands and silk marker, same type and Helps as above.

Our Price—Post Paid 10.65
1536 E. Broad St., - Richmond, Va.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

First. That God in his all-wise providence doeth all things well, so, while we mourn the loss of one who was ever faithful and whose last actions on earth were according to the teachings of our heavenly Father, we bow in humble submission to his divine will.

Second. That we hold in loving remembrance his faithful attendance, and trust his separation from us will only draw us nearer the throne.

Third. That we extend our deepest sympathy and love to the family in their loss, and commend them to him who can sustain and comfort.

Fourth. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family and one to "The Christian Sun" for publication.

MRS. I. T. BYRD,
MRS. F. F. BRINKLEY,
MRS. O. L. BAKER,
E. B. RAWLES,
R. E. ROGERS,
E. F. O'BERRY.

666

LIQUID—TABLETS—SALVE
Checks Colds first day, Headaches or Neuralgia in 30 minutes, Malaria in 3 days.
666 SALVE FOR HEAD COLDS.
Most Speedy Remedies Known.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE

Located in

"The Blue Ridge Highlands"

FALL TERM—SEPTEMBER 7

An accredited college with an enviable reputation for superior classroom instruction, and wholesome student life.

Fully recognized and accredited in its home State, and in such neighboring States as North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee and others. Standard courses leading to the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

Cost for Board, Room and Tuition, including also Entrance, Activity, and Infirmary fees reduced to $273.50 for the College Year. Personal expenses as low as student and parent wish.

All who seek an "A" grade college training for their sons and daughters in an atmosphere of Christian culture, and at minimum cost, are invited to write for the college catalogue and admission blanks.

Address: DEAN J. C. ROGERS,
DEMOREST, GEORGIA.

SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE

A Memorial of the Congregational-Christian Union.

FRANK E. JENKINS, Pres.

MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD, Dean

Chartered by Southern Christian Convention, June 2, 1922, as Bethlehem College; renamed Southern Union, June 3, 1931.

Will function during the present financial depression as a Junior College only.

FALL TERM WILL OPEN SEPTEMBER 7.

DEPRESSION PRICES.

Depression prices during the coming year, made possible by extensive gardens, careful planning, organization and donations—Tuition, board and room, $192 for entire scholastic year; tuition alone, $48; each payable in six equal installments.

Unsectarian, but thoroughly Christian.

For Information, write—

DEAN MARLIN G. SATTERFIELD,
WADLEY, ALABAMA.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

Representing the Southeast Convention of Congregational and Christian Churches.

IN ESSENTIALS, UNITY.

IN NON-ESSENTIALS, LIBERTY.

IN ALL THINGS, CHARITY.

VOLUME LXXXIV.

RICHMOND, VA., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1932.

NUMBER 42.

In Memoriam--William Wesley Staley February 24, 1849--October 9, 1932

DR. STALEY IN HISTORY.

Sketches from The Christian Annual of far gone years make very interesting reading about Dr. Staley. The Christian Annual, 1872, page 22, North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference, in session at Shallow Well, Moore County, N. C., November 16, 1872, says:

"The Educational Committee asks leave to submit the following partial report:

"We have examined J. W. Holt, P. T. Klapp, Stephen J. Ellis, A. F. Iseley, W. W. Staley, and J. W. Pinnix, on all the branches of learning required by the government of the church, and find that they have made considerable proficiency in their studies. These young men come well recommended by their pastors and the churches of which they are members. We, therefore, take pleasure in recommending them to this Conference for licensure.

"W. S. Long, Chairman."

The report was adopted.

In the same Annual, page 24, in the additional report on Education, the following is recorded:

"The young men who were received into the Biblical class last year were put into school soon afterward. The advancement of W. W. Staley, we are informed by Dr. Craven, president of Trinity College, is very satisfactory. He has taken the first honor in his class on every examination since he entered college. He is now in the junior class, half advanced."

In the Annual for 1874, page 47, the following is of record:

"The Committee on Education beg leave to make the following report:

"W. W. Staley came before us, recommended by the Church at New Providence for ordination. We have examined him according to our form of government, and are satisfied with the proficiency he has made in his studies, and are free to recommend him to the favorable consideration of Conference for ordination.

"J. W. Pinnix was recommended by the Church at Concord, also by two members of another congregation, for ordination. But Brother Pinnix decided to defer the matter for another year without an examination, which we hope will be satisfactory to all parties.

"Respectfully submitted,

"W. S. Long,

"S. Apple,

"A. G. Anderson.

"On motion of Rev. T. J. Fowler, two o'clock, P. M., was set apart for the ordination of Brother Staley.

"The President appointed Revs. S. Apple, A. Iseley and A. G. Anderson an Ordaining Presbytery. The President of Conference requested Rev. Dr. Wellons to assist in the ordination."

The Christian Annual for 1885, Proceedings of the Eastern Virginia Conference at Antioch, Isle of Wight County, Va., October 27th, gives the following on page 34, as the first mention of Dr. Staley's name in connection with the conference in which he was to be such a prominent figure

DR. WILLIAM WESLEY STALEY.

For forty years I've known, admired, and loved
This Prince of men; this Christian Knight, removed
Now for a little while; gone home to God
Whose every Word he lived; whose Way he trod
As few have kept his law; and now his reign
Begins amid those mansions freed from pain,
Where no tears fall; where seeing face to face
His days shall be eternal, saved by Grace!

Farewell! A little while and those who weep
Shall, too, rest quiet in that dreamless sleep
Which God for His beloved ones doth keep.
He is not dead. Great lives can never die;
They are not lost amid the void, but high
And far they still move men immortally.

—William Thornton Whitsett.

ure and play such an important part for the forty-seven years to come:

"Revs. James Maple, D. D., W. W. Staley, M. L. Hurley and P. H. Fleming, of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference, were invited to seats as deliberative members."

Then on page 35, second day proceedings, Dr. Staley's name is mentioned for the second time in the Conference:

"Rev. W. W. Staley was, on motion, appointed as a committee of one to receive funds for Conference purposes."

Immediately following this, the following was adopted:

"As a partial report, the Committee on Education, recommended that Rev. W. W. Staley be received as a member of this Conference. The brother was unanimously received."

The Annual for 1890, page 19, carries a picture of the friendly face of Dr. Staley as a young man, and beneath the picture the following record is given:

"William W. Staley was born in Alamance County, N. C., February 24, 1849. His parents were John T. and Melissa J. Staley.

"At the age of thirteen he was converted and united at once with the M. P. Church, but in 1869 he took a letter of transfer and joined the Christian Church at New Providence, Graham. He was prepared for College in Graham High School under Rev. Drs. W. S. and D. A. Long, and graduated from Trinity College in 1874. In 1877-78 he took a post graduate course at the University of Virginia. In 1887 he attended the Summer School for the study of Hebrew at the University of Virginia.

"Soon after graduation he became one of the Professors in Graham High School, where his success as a teacher was marked. In the year 1872 he was licensed by the North Carolina and Virginia Christian Conference at Shallow Well, Moore County, N. C. Having proved his gifts as a preacher he was ordained to the office of Elder in the Christian Church in the conference held at Hank's Chapel in Chatham County, N. C., in 1874. Revs. W. B. Wellons, D. D., Solomon Apple and Alfred Iseley constituting the Ordaining Presbytery.

"April 30, 1879, he married Miss Martha F. Pearce of Franklin County, N. C., Rev. J. W. Holt officiating. They have three sweet little girls, Bessie, Annie and Willie.

"While teacher at Graham, he served several churches as pastor and served Alamance County as Superintendent of Public Instruction. In 1882 he received a call to the pastoral charge of the Christian Church in Suffolk, Va. He accepted, and since going there, has not only been greatly blessed in building up the church, but he has become a leading man in the denomination, South, as he certainly is one of the foremost scholars in the ministry.

"In 1886 he was elected to the highest office in the gift of the Christian Church, South—the President of the General Convention. During his term of office (four years) he has visited all the annual conferences which belong to the Convention, besides attending the American Christian Convention at New Bedford, Mass., in 1886. He is a close student and a hard worker."

NOTES-PERSONALS

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

The pastor, Rev. H. V. Cox, Ramseur, N. C., has just closed a good evangelistic meeting at Mt. Pleasant Church, Overhills, N. C. Bro. John Dixon assisted and led the singing, and, as a member writes, "We had a good time and a good meeting."

The members of the Congregational Church of Tavares, Fla., recently gave a party at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Fred Marsh in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Schmitz, of Eustis. Mrs. Schmitz is pianist for the church. Dr. Marsh had arranged a program, at the end of which a shower of gifts was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Schmitz.

Rev. Charles H. Beale, D. D., will return to resume the pastorate of the First Congregational Church at St. Petersburg, Fla., November 1st. Dr. Beale will be in charge of the church until next spring. During the summer the services have been in charge of Rev. Lawrence A. Gedcke, who continues as assistant pastor of the church.

A week-end conference for young people will be held at St. Petersburg, October 21st-22nd. The young people of the churches at Tampa, West Tampa, New Port Richey and Crystal Springs have been invited to share in this conference. An interesting program has been prepared by Rev. Lawrence A. Gedcke and Miss Pattie Lee Coghill.

Ministers from all over the Eastern Virginia Conference, and many from other conferences, journeyed to Suffolk on October 11th, to attend the funeral services of Dr. Staley. A large section of the seats in the church were held in reserve for them—Christian ministers and ministers of other denominations—and these were all taken by his brethren in the ministry, who universally loved and honored him.

Wherever two or three of our Christian people have been gathered the past week, whether at Sunday School or church, in the Missionary Society, the office, the highway or the field, the one topic of conversation uppermost was that of the passing away of our beloved Dr. Staley. Everywhere there is a feeling of loss and expression of love, a note of sorrow at his passing and of anxiety for the church and the enterprises of the church that have been so blessed and benefited by his great life.

Miss Pattie Lee Coghill has returned to Florida after an absence of three months, two months of which was spent in work among the churches of Eastern Kentucky and one month as a vacation at her home in Henderson, N. C. Miss Coghill already has a full program arranged for the fall season, including several interdenominational training schools, week-end young people's conferences, association meetings, etc. She is welcomed back by her many friends, both young and old, in the Florida churches.

Dr. H. Samuel Fritsch has had an interesting series of Sunday evening lectures at Union Congregational Church, Jacksonville, Fla., recently. He has included in his list of speakers the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, the head of the Florida Children's Home Society, the judge of the Police Court and the secretary of the State Board of Health. Dr. Frederick L. Fagley, of New York, also was one of the speakers in the series.

In a personal letter, our good and mutual friend, Dr. Martyn Summerbell, writing from Lakemont, N. Y., October 13th, about Dr. Staley, says: "The loss to the brotherhood and to my heart is great. We were close friends, though separated by wide distance. I need not dwell on that, since you know it. I learn with surprise that which I did not know, because he was reticent about it, that I am nearly two years his senior, as in a couple of months I shall reach eighty-five. I ought to have been at Suffolk with the rest of you, but engagements here that I could not evade held me fast. Next week I preach before the Hudson River Association of Congregational and Christians at Schenectady, N. Y."

Rev. G. D. Hunt, writing from Roanoke, Ala., under date of October 13th, says: "The session of the Alabama Christian Conference this year is history now. We had a fine meeting, nicely represented, and fine fellowship prevailed. Conference meets next year with New Hope Church. However, we were all saddened by the news of Dr. Staley's death. Truly a great man rests now in his Saviour. I go to Lanett tomorrow, and will begin my pastorate there next Sunday, preaching morning and evening. I am hoping to be able to do my best work next year, and trust I shall have the prayers of the church and the co-operation of its members." Bro. Hunt goes from the Roanoke pastorate to the pastorate of the Christian Church, Lanett, Ala.

Of all the tributes of confidence, esteem and respect in this week's SUN, dedicated to the memory of Dr. Staley, those of Col. E. E. Holland and Col. J. E. West, members of the Suffolk Church through nearly the whole of Dr. Staley's long ministry there, seem to us of special interest, in that these men, who knew him so long and so intimately, can speak in such terms of their beloved pastor and spiritual leader. All the tributes are beautiful, but these are especially striking, coming as they do with such directness from the hearts of two laymen who profited by his counsel and through whose lives Dr. Staley's influence as moral teacher and spiritual leader and adviser has gone out, and will go out far and wide through the years to come.

At Rollins College on Sunday, October 16th, a memorial service was held for Dr. Wm. Fremont Blackman, president-emeritus of the college, who died in Winter Park, August 9th. The service was held in Knowles Memorial Chapel and was conducted by Dean A. D. Enyart, who served as dean of the college during Dr. Blackman's administration as president. Dr. Blackman was most active in the life and work of the Florida Congregational Conference and Dr. E. C. Gillette spoke for the conference at this memorial service. Twice during the years of his presidency, Dr. Blackman served as moderator of the State conference, and was a leader in all important movements during that period which was from 1902 to 1915. He continued his interest in the conference even after the serious loss of health.

"Comic Characters Convention," was the title of an interesting entertainment given by the young people of the church at North Miami, Fla. All the famous characters in the comic strips were present, including Major Hoople, Moon Mullins, Jiggs, the Gumps, Amos and Andy, and Little Orphan Annie. Mrs. O. H. Denney, the pastor's wife, directed the entertainment which was given in the auditorium of the beautiful William Jennings Bryan High School, which adjoins the church. Recently the pastor, Rev. O. H. Denney, received twelve more new members into the church making sixty-seven during the year. This church had a membership of sixty-five on January 1, 1931. Of those received, four were immersed in the sea by the pastor, whose early ministry was in the Freewill Baptist denomination. As the two other churches in North Miami have become practically defunct, our church has become the community church.

The people came away from the funeral of Dr. Staley, in Suffolk, October 11th, saying again and again: "We have never seen it on this wise before." It was not merely in the unparalleled and uncounted numbers from far and near who came to attend the funeral, not in the abundance of the floral designs that greeted the eye, and spoke their silent messages of beauty and of love, not in the tributes paid by the speakers at the funeral, but in the atmosphere, the indefinable something of the occasion, that one felt the strange awe of reverence, universal love and esteem in which this man was held. We shall never see his like again, and those who attended the funeral in Suffolk that day, in all probability, will never see again such a spontaneous expression of love and devotion for a man. Jew and Gentile, Catholic and Protestant, white and colored, met and mingled as one, to pay tribute to the memory of this man. The wheels of industry stopped in Suffolk, the places of business closed up, the shop and school doors were shut, while the citizens of Suffolk of all kinds and classes met and mingled as one to pay their silent tribute of praise to this, their greatest and most useful citizen. It was a tribute, indeed, which the youth of Suffolk and of our generation cannot forget—a tribute paid to an humble, sincere, devout man of God and preacher of the Word of God.

On Sunday, October 9th, Dr. L. E. Smith, of Elon, exchanged pulpits with Rev. William Albert Cade, pastor, Front Street Methodist Church, Burlington. We are advised that Bro. Cade preached a very able and acceptable sermon in the college pulpit, and faculty and students hope to have and hear him again. Dr. Smith reports a very pleasant service with a large congregation present in the Front Street Methodist Church. The Bulletin of the Front Street Church, carrying the program of the morning and the announcements for the week following, has this item of appreciation and interest: "We are honored today with a visit and sermon by Dr. L. E. Smith, president of Elon College. He is a gifted minister; and comes into our community to devote his talents to the education of youth. Elon is one of the outstanding small colleges of the State and South. It has for many years rendered conspicuous service in Christian education, and has made possible a collegiate education to many young people who otherwise could not have gone to college. In material equipment it ranks with the best. Such an institution is an invaluable asset to this city and community; and should be accorded our loyal support and patronage. The past few years have been a period of stress for all small colleges; and Elon is no exception. By faith, loyalty, and sacrifice on the part of Alamance County people and its friends everywhere, Elon will live and continue its service to this and future generations." The above certainly manifests a beautiful Christian spirit on behalf of our Methodist friends of the Front Street Church. Incidentally, one of their members remarked that "it was, indeed, a joy to hear Dr. Smith, who on this occasion, preached a truly great and wonderfully good sermon."

MESSAGES BY WIRE.

As the news of Dr. Staley's death spread, carried in the wings of universal sorrow, brief messages by the score poured in from various sections of the country to the family of three daughters assembled at Suffolk. Just a few of these expressions are given, indicating the deep and far-flung sorrow and sympathy at the passing of this good man:

From Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Lightbourne, Troy, Ohio—"I will always count the friendship of your father among the finest I have known. To have worked with him in conferences and conventions is a real privilege. A prince of the church and among men has gone to his reward, but his memory will live enshrined in the hearts of a multitude of humble and great, for he was in the very highest and noblest sense, all things to all men."

From Rev. John G. Truitt, Dayton, Ohio—"Condolences to you and the family, the church and Suffolk."

From Allen A. Stockdale, Washington, D. C.—"We think tenderly of you all today. A great father has gone."

From Mabel Leet, Maryland—"We mourn the passing of our beloved pastor. Sympathy to the family."

From J. F. Rawles and Family, Nashville, Tenn.—"Our hearts are grieved. You have our sympathy and prayer in the loss of your father, our friend."

From Dr. W. A. Harper, Nashville, Tenn.—"Deepest sympathy in your sorrow. During my twenty-six years at Elon, I did not have a warmer friend, a more helpful spiritual adviser, nor a more valuable counsellor in business and administrative matters."

From Mrs. Minnie Cook, Newnan, Ga.—"Am deeply grieved, thinking of all three of you. He has been a comfort to me. Heart full of love and sympathy to all members of the family. My prayer for sustaining grace."

From Dr. and Mrs. D. A. Long, Florence, S. C.—"Your father needs no mausoleum. He has reared to himself a monument that mocks the regal splendor of marble, and the durability of perennial brass. That monument is the cause of Christian Education. To this he gave his heart, tongue, pen and money. Garlands of flowers will deck the gateway through which William Wesley Staley marched to glory."

From H. A. Carlton, Mullins, S. C.—"I extend to the family sympathy from myself and family. The Christian Church and Elon College, also the homes he visited, will miss him, too, as all loved him like a father."

From Mrs. Lee S. Overman, Salisbury, N. C.—"Our hearts and tears are with you. God bless you."

From P. J. Carlton, Richmond, Va.—"Deep sympathy to each member of the family. Unable to attend funeral account of pressing business."

From J. W. Stout, Sanford, N. C.—"Please accept my deepest sympathy. It was a privilege to know and enjoy the friendship of Dr. Staley."

From Dale O. Sander, Sec'y., Burlington, N. C.—"The Piedmont Congregational-Christian Ministers' Association extends its heartiest sympathy to you, your sisters and relatives in this hour of bereavement. May you find Christ as real to you at this time as your father has represented him to be to thousands of others under similar occasions."

From Esther Thompson, Graham, N. C.—"Regret so much that I cannot be with you in this sad hour. Dearest love and deepest sympathy from an understanding heart. Your cousin."

From Dr. L. E. Smith, Elon College, N. C.—"The entire Christian Church and all her institutions, Elon College in particular, have suffered an irreparable loss in the death of your noble father. He was a friend of everyone and a willing helper in every good cause. Personally, I shall miss him greatly. Prayers and sympathy for you all."

From the President of Elon College—"Faculty and students greatly distressed receiving news of death of our loyal friend, your devoted father. Entire Christian Church and her institutions, Elon College in particular, have suffered an irreparable loss. He never faltered in the path of duty. No task too difficult or sacrifice too great for him. He was Elon's staunchest friend. We extend sincerest sympathy and prayers."

From Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Bland and Family, Norfolk, Va.—"To have enjoyed the friendship of your father, we hold one of the greatest privileges of our lives."

To Rev. H. S. Hardcastle, pastor, came the following, among others:

From Samuel McCrea Cavert, Sec'y. Federal Council of Churches, New York City—"The Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America laments loss of Dr. Staley. One of the most devoted leaders in Church Federation ever since the beginning of the Council."

From F. G. Coffin, Pres., General Council, Columbus, Ohio—"The whole church mourns with relatives, Suffolk congregation and Southern Convention. Dr. Staley was a uniquely great man. Regret absolutely impossible to attend the funeral in person. Eldredge appointed to represent Council. Please secure flowers in name of General Council."

From W. H. Denison, Minneapolis, Minn.—"Please extend Suffolk congregation, the family, sincere appreciation of the work and life of Dr. Staley."

From H. E. Sims, Pres., Publishing Association, Piqua, Ohio—"Deepest sympathy in death of Dr. Staley. Hermon Eldredge coming to represent Convention and Publishing Association."

From R. C. Helfenstein and Congregation, at Dover, Del.—"Please express to Dr. Staley's family and the church the sincere sympathy of People's Christian Church, Dover, Delaware."

Wherever the news of Dr. Staley's death went, sympathy for the family and the church was spontaneously expressed, as the above selected from many, clearly indicate.

FROM NEGRO MINISTERS AND CITIZENS.

Whereas, we have learned with deep regret of the death of Rev. W. W. Staley, D. D., pastor-emeritus of the Christian Church at Suffolk, Va., and,

Whereas, we realize that it is the call from heaven to come up higher, as a servant of God who has been faithful, earnest, and progressive in advancing the Kingdom of God on earth, therefore be it,

Resolved, that we shall ever feel the powerful influence of his Christian life, and teaching, in the service in which we are engaged;

Resolved, that we shall ever hold dear his unselfish service, his visits to our hospital wards, our homes, our churches, and his kindness to our poor and needy;

Resolved, that we extend deepest sympathy to the family, and friends of this godly and sincere servant of God, in their loss.

Done by order of special meeting of Negro ministers, professional and business men and citizens of Suffolk and environs.

NOTICE.

All applications for ordination, licensure, or admission as candidates for the ministry in the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference, should be filed at once with Dr. I. W. Johnson, Suffolk, Va., chairman of the Committee on Education.

N. G. NEWMAN, Pres.

WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE

The date for the Western North Carolina Christian Conference is set for Wednesday and Thursday, November 9th and 10th, the place of meeting being Park's Cross Roads Church.

G. O. LANKFORD.

Burlington, N. C.

EASTERN VIRGINIA CONFERENCE.

The Eastern Virginia Christian Conference will meet with the Waverly Christian Church, Waverly, Va., on Wednesday, November 2nd, at 10:00 A. M., and continue in session three days.

Churches in a position to entertain the conference in 1933 are requested to consider the matter prior to this session and place their invitations in the hands of Mrs. J. A. Williams, Frankling, Va.

N. G. NEWMAN, Pres.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PAID IN SEPTEMBER.

During the entire month of September we received only eighteen renewals to THE CHRISTIAN SUN. There should have been 210 renewals and not less than twenty-one new subscriptions, so we are just 213 behind for the past month. We do not believe that it is lack of interest in their church paper, but the pressure of other things, that causes subscribers to neglect to send in their subscriptions. So look at your label now, and if you are in arrears attend to your subscription. There are some, we know, who do not feel able to pay their subscription at this time. Two or four dollars is quite a sum these days, but if they will lay aside a dime or a quarter at a time, they will soon have their subscription money. THE SUN costs less than four cents a week. You cannot afford not to have it in your home.

Please read this list carefully, and if there is a mistake in your name or address, notify us. We wish that we could personally thank each one of the following:

Rev. J. F. Blackburn, 1542 S. Gordon St., S. W., Atlanta, Ga.
Mrs. S. A. Bracey, Box 44, Franklin, Va.
J. L. Cash, 420 Mangum St., Durham, N. C.
Mrs. T. W. Chandler, Virgilina, Va.
Mrs. J. W. Freeman, 220 Spring St., Winston-Salem, N. C.
Mrs. T. S. Graves, 218 E. Bragg St., Greensboro, N. C.
Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, 725 Burch Ave., Durham.
T. J. Holland, Ambrose, Ga.
Rev. B. J. Howard, 415 Cameron Ave., Chapel Hill, N. C.
Mrs. Dora King, R. 1, Box 67, Suffolk, Va.
Mrs. B. E. Livesay, Waverly, Va.
Miss Zula C. Matthews, R. 1, Varina, N. C.
C. C. Mulholland, 909 W. Trinity Ave., Durham, N. C.
J. W. Payne, Wedowee, Ala.
Mrs. M. A. Walker, 304 W. Front St., Burlington, N. C.
Mrs. N. L. Walker, R. 3, Burlington, N. C.
R. T. West, Waverly, Va.
Geo. T. Whitaker, Franklinton, N. C.

JOHN T. KERNODLE,
Managing Editor.

The way to preserve the peace of the church is to preserve the purity of it.—Matthew Henry.

E-D-I-T-O-R-I-A-L

EDITOR

J. O. ATKINSON, ELON COLLEGE, N. C.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

E. C. GILLETTE

117 W. Forsyth Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

W. W. STALEY C. REXFORD RAYMOND

S. C. HARRELL ELISHA A. KING

W. C. WICKER

THE PRINCIPLES OF OUR CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF OUR CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

A TRUE TRIBUTE OF PRAISE.

We gave hurriedly in the last issue of THE SUN a brief account of the life and going away of Dr. W. W. Staley. That was hurriedly prepared, as all the copy for the paper was in when the unexpected death of Dr. Staley occurred on Sunday, October 9th, the funeral occurring at Suffolk on October 11th. This week we dedicate THE CHRISTIAN SUN to his memory.

This is done for two reasons:

1st. No man lived who had a stronger love for his church paper, than did Dr. Staley. In season and out of season, he plead with the people of the Christian Churches to subscribe for and read THE CHRISTIAN SUN, but he did more than this. He used his pen for forty years to give to the readers of THE SUN his best thoughts, his wisest counsel, his wholesome and helpful experience and advice. This, indeed, was an asset that THE SUN cannot now, and never will, forget. If the other pastors in the Christian Church loved THE CHRISTIAN SUN, even in small measure, as did Dr. W. W. Staley, and would seek to promote its usefulness and influence as did he, it is safe to say THE SUN would have ten subscribers where it has one, hundreds where it has ten.

2nd. The second reason for dedicating this issue of THE SUN to Dr. Staley is that the tributes of esteem and devotion have been spontaneous, far-spread, universal, where he was known, and these tributes are pouring in on the family and the editor of THE SUN by wire and the written page. And so we lay before our readers this week many of these tributes, since we know that the church and the world are not only interested

